A BAND OF HOPE BOY'S STORY. BY THE REV. WILLIAM ISAAC KEAY, P.D.D.,

TRINIDAD. CHAPTER XXXIII.

DISPOSAL OF THE CHARACTERS WHO HAVE PLAYED THEIR PART IN THE STORY IN A VERY SUMMARY MANNER, THE WEDDING; SOME ACCOUNT NOT ONLY OF THE PRINCIPAL PARTIES BUT ALSO OF THE SPECTATORS. AMIDST A SHOWER OF OLD SHOES THE CURTAIN PALLS.

The custom that would compel an author to give some concluding notice of all his dramatis persone, or even of the chief among them, is so unreasonable or even of the their among them, is so unreasonable that we should not have thought of following it even if we could; but impossibility in our case adds an additional reason, able to stand against all argument to the contrary. We have all met many argument to the contrary. We have all met many persons at various periods of our lives who were known to us for a short, or it may be for some considerable, time, and even exercised some ininfluence upon us, good or bad; but they passed from our sight, and we do not care to hear any more of some of them if we could, and others we couldn't hear of again if we would; their lives and couldn't hear of again it we would; their lives and ours have diverged irrevocably; thus must the reader be content to be treated so far as the ordinary cheracters in this story are concerned; they are past, and he has done with them; of a few only, being those who have occupied the principal part of our space, whether telling of their good or eval conduct, do we intend to make further mention at all,—and these only in a very limited way. The first of whom it will be well to dispose is the sentenced convict; the charp, clever, shrewd, but uncarcupulous clerk, the respectable and prudent distance, the blackleg, gameater and sporteman, at last the convicted felon; be was not a man who had altered much for many a year, though he had developed much; rascal, and the sentenced much; a scal, and the sentenced much; a scal, and the sentence when the sentence we have the sentence of the sen a year, though he had developed much; rascal, villain, fiend, were the words to describe his life almost since he attained manhood, only at last he came within the reach of the law; and that made his character plain to everyone. What part intoxicating drinks played in enabling him to become what he was, may be gathered from the state ments extracted from his confession towards the end of the last chapter; and for a man to continue to be what he was and find pleasure in so being withbe what he was and and pleasure in so being without the baneful influence—exciting, benumbing, soothing in turn—of intoxicating liquors we believe to be impossible. He was sentenced, as formerly stated, to 10 years' penal servitude;
but of nine months of that period only have we any static second. After maintaining, anally sout of certain account. After maintaining a sulky sort of silence for the first few weeks of his convict life, he began to behave with praiseworthy propriety, being diligent in the tack appointed him, and having the ontward appearance of contented resignation. Al outward appearance of contented resignation. At the end of three quarters of a year he ecaped in the company of another, whose crime was burglary with violence, and whose penal term was twice his own. The manner of eluding the vigilance of his keepers was both clever and daring. He was never captured. He was traced, it was alleged, to the Australian bush, and then the purant was abandoned. Some would identify the with the content of the abandoned. Some would identify him with a celeabandoned. Some wome necessary must be a coming they took up the arrain, so many parties are pending the hearts of the entire neighbour-the parties atepped out of the carriage it was a moth cruelty appalled the hearts of the entire neighbouring they shouting indeed; it was simply deafening life?

but whom the natives called Nibboo; if that were not he then his person and name sank out of public sight, as, indeed, he deserved that they should. If the reader can join us in saying, "Peace be with him!" or the reader can join us in saying the him," so be it.

The wedding next demands our attention. Great The wedding next demaods our attention. Great preparations were made on the morning of the day appointed, which being also the commemoration was, of course, a boliday at the works. Almost everbody seemed astir. They were hanging about in groups all over the place, male and female, old, middle-aged, and young. The children were carrying about extemporaneous flags, cheering a good deal and generally having a good day's play out of it. The adults clustered about in all sorts of positions, lying on the eround. standing at the positions, lying on the ground, standing at the corners, sitting on the doorsteps, leaning out of the windows, and all or at lesst a great many of their tongues going, the wedding or some cognate eub-ject being the principal topic of discourse. Not ject being the principal topic of discourse. Not being near enough any group to reproduce the talk we may be pretty safe to say that the men chatted about it, the young women gossiped about it, and the old women of both sexes croaked about it. As morning passed into forenon the crowd increased, reaching quite along the route the carriages would take to church. atong the route the carriages would take to church. All parts of the churchyard, and especially both sides of the walk from the principal gate to the porch, were occupied by a mass of interested apectators, uncomfortably numerous, not only the neighbourhood but quite distant metropolitan quarters contributed their quota of persons more or least interested in the coming award. Then there iese interested in the coming event. Then there was the casual loafer here and there visible, alwaye ready to make one at a crowd and assist at fun or ready to make one at a crowd and assets as this of mischief as occasion may determine. Early in the forencom, too, a large printed notice on the church-gates, "Boware of pick-nockets!" gave us to understand that the local police had become aware thateome members of the light-fingered fraternity had added their presence to the assembly. The bridegroom was the first person of importance who arrived on the acene. He came very uncetentationsly in a one-horse conveyance, which was closed. He seemed a little nervous as he stepped into the porch, for he hastened into the building without turning even to look at the crowd. Soon after came the groom's man, Mr. Poppy, followed by various clerks, then came the manager of the works, who, as he was much liked by the worknen, received a hearty cher the moment he was recognised. Then a close carriage and pair drove up and deposited the rector of the parish and Mr. Walter, returning immediately to the house of the Strongmans, from thence it re-appeared in due time with the Rev. Joseph re-appeared in due time with the rector's daughter, who was to be brideamaid. We may here mention that Mr. Barron's wife (for like St. Peter, he was himself a married man) would have been present but for audden illness. As this carriage returned for the accound time, and the hour fixed for the ceremony had fully arrived, the excitement of the crowd was getting to a very high pitch, when thesame vehicle again came in sight, and this time open, and within it were the bride and her father. The cheere began far down the road, and when the people near the gato saw what was coming, they took up the strain, so that by the time as the figures of father and daughter disappeared within the sacred edifice, which was cremmed to the door, the shouters without indulged themselves with a short vacation, and were quiet. During the ceremony it may not be amiss to notice a few persons in the crowd without.

sons in the crowd without.

Just outside the gate at which the carriages entered was a substantial business-looking cart, like those used by shopkeepers for the delivery of goods; within it was seated a very stout elderly female who seemed hot and not very comfortable. The people crowded all about her elderly female who seemed hot and not very com-fortable. The people crowded all about her eart, to the no small annoyance of the horse, which, though town-bred, and therefore accustomed to a great deal of bustle, did not seem to enjoy the thing at all. Besides the large formale, was snother of much smaller, even diminutive, build, and a little crooked in the figure. A smart-looking man now joined them, and stood near the horse's head. He had been at the church porch, and had worked his way back to the party we have been describing. It will be scarcely neces-sary to announce Mr. Nathaniel Hubbard, and the two women, his mother and spouse.

"You was disappinted, mother, at not seein' hin; but it'll be all right when he comes back, for the carriage is open, and he'll drive back with the bride; and we'll have a real good sight here, mother, bride; and we'll have a real good eight here, mother, much better 'in there.'

"That's right, Nat; I believe we're best up here; I'm too old for crowds myself; and Sally 'ad not be much among a noisy lot like them is, auy more than me. Did you see him at all. Nat!"
"No, mother; I didn't look for him; I knows him well enough, it was her I went for to see."

"Let him go on," said the mother, helplessly, as Sally, otherwise Mrs. Nat, was about to set him right.

"He said God often hange the greatest weights upon the amallect wires. Lives turns upon tha triffinest things you ever saw. Now I thinks back, mother, what were the turnin' pint in our Dick's life? I've 'eard him say hisself it was learnin' to

"By meeting him in that square, Nat— But how did we come for to teach him?

"No, mother, your nearly always right; but I think he might have gone out of that square with-out our saying a word to him or he to us, but my hat blew off, and he brought it back; now it seems to me the little thing that did it all was the puff of wind; all we see here comed out o' that, and as the wind wasn't ours, I don't think we done much of t, nother, after all."

"Well, well, Nat it's very hot, and they'll soon be out, and we must have a proper sight; and, Sally, give me out my white pocket hanky to wave like, as they passes."

Whereupon the daughter-in-law dutifully unfolded a very ample square of white material which the matron clutched in her hand to be in readiness.

Up towards the church porch there was an occasional heaving in the mass who were closely wedged together. This sort of movement gave an oppor-tunity to a persevering person to get forward by degrees. One such had made steady progress tunity to a persevening powers degrees. One such had made steady progress towards the front rank. As he neared it he tapped a lame-looking man on the shoulder, who, looking round, said, "Ah! he that you, neighbour? scarcely 'xpect to see you here!"

"Same to you, Bill; it's the last thing I looked

"Pleasure's double when you're not lookin' for it, as the dragon fly said when she stung the horse's shoulder, his head bein' turned the other way."

"He keeps his wages from us and the pubs, Bill. Haw, haw, haw-w-w!"

"Don't he be at all gay?"
"Him! bless you, he's one of your totallers; and pious I believe.

PRESENTATION.—At the George Wilson McCreo Lodge, on March 23, Bro. and Sister Downs were presented with a testimonial on the occasion of their recent marriage, and also on their retirement from active membership in the Lodge. Bro. S. W. Tysoc, W.D.Ch., of Beds., presided. The testimonial, which took the form of a beautiful marble timepiece, was presented by Bro. G. Wildish, L.D., who referred to the valuable services of Bro. and Sister Downs, but more especially Bro. Downs, during the five years he acted as Lodge Deputy, and asked their acceptance of the gift as a token of the highest esteem and respect in which they were held by the members. Bro. Downs feelingly responded, and said that, respect in which they were held by the members. Bro. Downs feelingly responded, and said that, though unable to take an active part in the work, they would not sever their membership. Sister Harmanck, V.D., Bros. Tysoe, Brown, Winch, and others, having also apoken, a very happy and pleasant session terminated.

WE beg to call the attention of the readers of this paper to Bro. Raine's advertisement, which will be found in these pages.—[ADVI.]

GOOD TEMPLARS' WAR SONG,*

By BRO SAMIRI, LAYCOCK.

As Good Templars we're met once ogen,
Ah, met here te plan an' to work,
An' so long as there's owt to be done
We're determined nos duty to shirk. When we don on this armonr o' eawers when we don on this armonr o eawers.
It's a sign at we're rigg'd eawt for leightin',
An' there's plenty o' wark for us ole,
There's a vast deol o' wrongs ut want reightin',

Neaw, we're nonn here to look at-not us; Nor these trappin's aren't worn for a show;
An cawer Order's noa choildish affair,
Tho' there are fealk at think soa, we know.

Tho' there are fealk at think soa, we kno We'n a far grander object i' view, An' th' lon'lords koow that, never fret; God bless yo', we'n sammat else t' do Nor be playin' at habheawse jost yet,

When th' drink shops have ole bin shut up,

When th' drink shops have ole bin shut up, When th' woives o' poor drunkards con smolle, An' their poor little childer are fed—
Well, then, we may play us awholle.
But soa long as th' drink traffic exists, An' so mony are perishis' thro' it,
We feel hat there's work to be dons,
An', God helpin' us, brothers, we'll do it.

There's some hundreds o' then wands i' th' field, Sworn foes to this enemy, drink; n' we're noan very lockely to yield

Chus what some may say or may think.
Eawer opponents may turn eawt their "chaff,"
An' treat us wi' second-hond wit;
They can just do an' say what they loike,
But we'll oppen their cen in a bit.

We're soldiers! and trained up to feight
Wi'owd England's deadliest fos;
An' cawer swords shall ns'er rest i' their sheaths

Till we'n laid this great enemy low. Eawer wurfare is God-like an' fair; Eawer cause one o' justice an' right; We're aimin' a terrible blow

At selfishness, meanness, an' might. Eh, there would be some stock o' fealk pleased Ly this drink could nea longer be had!

Ir this drink could not longer be had! There would be some tests woiped away, Some hearts leetened up 'at are asd! As Good Templars let's do what we con To bring ole these good things abeant; Heaven nil Holess us! Work o' this sort, An' give us success, there's no deawt.

Neaw there's nowt 'at needs cause ony shame Neaw there's now' it needs cause ony shane I' this great undertakin' o'cawers, For we're rooting' eawt poisonous plant. An' i' thi place o' em plantin' fair ficawers Isn't this a grand work to engage in I' Need we wonder at th' giorious success Attendin' sawer Heaven-inspired cforts! Nay I' we cannot expect now to less!

Nay! We cannot expect now no tees:
Some object to us wearin' these badges,
But th'objections are nosn "worth a fig";
Do we ain ony more nor a parson
Or a barrister wearin' a wig?
Don't th'Oddfellows wear their regalia—
Their aprons, their saahes, an' things?
Don't widowers wear moorin' hat bands?
An' don tu married women wear rings?

This is th' armour we put out to feight in Au' we've never yet stained it wi' blood We feight not to kill foalk, but save 'em,

We teight not to thi losis, but save em,
Not to injure, but do people good.
We con ax for God's blessin' on cawer cause,
An' while wa'rs at war we con pray;
We con feight wi' clear consciences, bretheren—Con eawer enemies do so? Not they!

We're Good Templars, and meon to defend This glorious owd country o' eawers 'Gaiost a traffic 'at's blightin' her hopes,

An' ornshin' her lovilest fleawers.
Vested interests" we've nowt to do with;
Foalk are free to invest what they loike;
house 'at feel discontented con "shont,"
Or else do same as th' oolliers do—"stroik

Haven't we vested interests an ole? Haven't we vested interests an over now, Are those leases un'l lads o'cawers now, These exholars we've paddled to th' schoo', An' toiled for, and prayed for an' towt? "Vested interests," indeed 1 oh, for shame! Let that drop, for we ve had quite enuit Let that viow in the conditional dislim damages too, For investin' i' brimstone an' stuff.

We can do wi's fair honest trade, Wheer th' articles dealt in are good, Wheer th' artacles dealt in are good, But this traffic i' drink we abhor. As ole thowtful an' sober men should. As Good Good Templars an' lovers o' right, Let's be faithful an' trus to a mon, n' wherever these plague-spots exist, Let's shift them as soon as we con. (* Layerck's Lancashire Songs, No. 51. Price 1d.)

We're right, mi dear bretheren and sisters. God smoiles on eawer work from above : we re right, mi dear bretheren and sisters. God smalles on eawer work from above; Let's go on moore determined than ever, I' this labour o' merey an love. Eawer country's i' danger—let's save it; We've peawer ennft, let it be felt An' keap on agitatin' this question. Till justice is honestly dealt.

Till owd England shall rise in her greatness,

Till owd Eogland shall rise in her greatness. An 'sakse of her deadliset foe; Till Rachal feels as fe wi' her childer, An' fings off her trappins o' wo; Till the dram shops no more shall diffigure This bonny, dear island o'c sweers; Until sorrow is turned into gladness, An' thistels are changed into fleswers.

"BACCHUS" AND THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

In a large volume just published, "A New Guide for Hotel, Bar, and Resturant," by "Baoshus," a great collection of recipes is given for making and doctoring intoxicating drinks. It is, however, a notable fact that a section is also devoted to Temperance drinks, and in this the name of our Order and its English Chief are given to certain beverages. We should warm readers that all cordials sold at derivabour are spiritrous, while, of course. We should warn readers that all cortains sond winkshops are aprintious, while, of course, Beckett's fruit syrups and cordials are free from alcohol. We give the recipes without committing ourselves to recommending them in any way:— "GOOD TEMPLARS" PUNCH.

A MILK DRINKING "Boom."—There is a great boom in milk-drinking in New York. Wall-street indulges extensively in the healthful beverage. Every side-walk fruit-stand has its can of milk, and neary every down-town bar has it on eale, while there are numerous peripatetic merchants who deal in the fluid. The price varies from one to five and 10 cents, per glass, according to the gentility of the locality and the excellence of the article sold.

To Crollers.—Strength and staying power, with admirable nutritive, fiesh forming qualities, are retained in a concentrated form in Cadbury's Cocoa, providing an akhilarating [bavange—comforting and sustaining for long or short trips.—[ADVI.]

TEMPLARS.

To some of those who have followed the history of Good Templary, it has become apparent that in attempting to make the Order serve for two quite different purposes we have failed to a considerable extent in both. Those who carefully read our rituals and constitution will see that the original design must have been to establish an Order for men and women, who had to at least a large extent dedicated the strength and energy of their lifetime to the Temperance cause, and were prepared to make very considerable sacrifices to promote it. The Good Templars were, in fact, to be the advanced guard of the Temperance army, whose devotion to the cause was indicated by their willingness to take the very comprehensive pledge of the new Order. The obligation was the outward sign of their fixed resolution, rather than a means sign of their fixed resolution, rather than a means of tupiring or sustaining a resolution. The Lodge-room was to be a council chamber, the Lodge seasions were to be war councils, with far sterner purpose than "milk and bun feat-ta" or "br thers' darning competitions," or other innocent pastimes which find a large feature in present Lodge programmes. That was a grand idea, and such an Order, necessarily small in numbers, but compact and resolute, might have proved a deadly force against the liquor traffic. It was the idea of such an opposing force which raised the conviction in the ranks of the fee that Good Templary meant "war to the knife and the knife to the lilt." Now that the foe has discovered that we only mean milk and bun feasts he is conforted and reassured. The fact is that in our zeal to extend the Order and bun feasts he is conforted and reassured. The fact is that in our zeal to extend the Order and enroll new members we have converted our Lodges from war councils to social clubs, and have invited anybody to join who will keep a testotal pledge and refrain from supplying drink to others, and will promise a number of other things which he may or may not combably way not be seen. New the idea of a from supplying drink to others, and will promise a number of other things which he may or may not (probably may not) perform. Now the idea of a social club for teetotakers is a very excellent one, but it is not Good Tomplary, and the attempt to make the machinery of the Order thus do double duty is much like trying to use the same vehicle for both a dog-cart and a haywaggon. Nevertheless we have committed ourselves to the social club idea, and we console ourselves for the animber of people who promise so much more than they perform with the hope that some day we shall odeacate them up to keeping their promise. In the meantime we indulge in considerable tall talk about "never lawering our standard" when anyone suggests a doubt of the morality of inviting people to sign an irrevocableness will have no sort of binding effect. I am straid if anyone were to charge us with being a society for the encouragement of broken promises it would be difficult to disprove the impeachment. For some years the Mid-Somerset District Lodge, painfully slive to the scandal of these extravagant promises so constantly and lightly broken, has pleaded that in the Subordinate Degree the plodge should not be considered irrevocable, but it has pleaded, and is apparently likely to plead, in vain. Would it not be possible to meet the difficulty on the lines suggested by some other societies, retaining on the one hand the idea of an Order whose strength should lie not in the bigness of its promises, but in the constants and devotion of its watch words should be devotion and self denied, whose strength should lie not in the bigness of its promises, but in the constancy and devotion of its normbers; and on the other hand the idea of a social organisation to which all who would keep a simple tectotal pledge should be welcomed, where they might be offered rational instead of pot-house amusements, with plenty of milk and hun feasts, and where they might be gradually educated up, by contact and example, to the stand-point of those whose resolution was indicated by a more comprehensive obligation? I think there is a solution of the problem, and that it lies in the direction of the

ASSOCIATES OF THE ORDER OF GOOD of Grand Lodge Representatives, in view of the fact that the first business for Tuesday afternoon of the approaching session is to be (by direction of the last Grand Lodge) the discussion of the proposal from Mid Somersot.

OBITUARY.

Bro. William Peacock .- With the deepest Bro. William Peacock.—With the deelest regret we record the death of our belived brother, who, at the age of 45 years, departed this life on Sunday, March 7, after a brief illness of 11 days. He attended and took part in the business of the annual session of our Clevelaud D.L., on February annual session of our Clevclaud D. L., on February 23, on which day ho took cold, and soon after going to work the following morning became seriously ill, but continued at work till night, when he had to be assisted home. He was attacked with inflammation of the kidneys, bowels, and lungs. At times his eufferings were great, but he bore the same with great patience. All was done for him that medical skill and loving hearts could devise, but it was all of no avail, for he gradually grew weaker until he succumbed to the grim monarch as a life-long. weaker until he succentibled to the grini monarch as alfredoug abstainer, and ever since his connection with our Order, which dates back to June 27, 1872, manifested more than ordinary interest in its work. He has been a member of Clevelaud D.L. since its formation, and was also a member of C.L. having taken that degree when representative to the having taken that degree when representative to the Bristol session. He was a most consistent and exemplary member of Wilberfore Lodge, Mid-dlesbro, and for which he was a most faithful D.G.W.C.T. for several years prior and up to his decease. Seldom, ind-ed, if ever, absent from his Lodge unless prevented through work or illness, the was a most devoted member of our Order. One was a most devoted member of our Order. One who loved the work, for the work's sake, and the good to humanity, he was thus enabled to do. He good to humanity, he was thus cnabled to do. Ho has for many years been the main stay of the Wilberforce Lodge. Others have joined, and worked for a time, but our brother never ceased to do his utmost for the good of the Order. One of the faithful few. He was a firm believer in, and upsholder of our G.L. political policy, and one who not only held it as a theory, but carried it into practice. Alway voting right himself, and influencing others to go with him. Our brother was an engine driver on the N.E.R., and amongst the railway men exercised considerable influence; in fact, at times of elections we had always left this section of the community very much to him, and he could always be depended upon to perform what he undertook. During last year he was on the D.L. Electoral Committee, and in this and other ways readered considerable aid during the general election. Hawas an affectionate husband and father; and a faithful, loving wife, and one married daughter a faithful, loving wife, and one married daughter are left behind to mourn his loss. The attachment between our brother and his wife (also a devoted member of our Order) was very strong, and consequently our sister feels her loss most keenly. The parting was a most painful one, and such as the parting was a most painful one, and such as the writer had never before witnessed. He had many strong personal friends who feel his absence, but of course this is mostly felt by her to whom he was #11. In addition to his interest in Temperance work, our brother took a repeating part in several clubs and societies specially promoted for assisting his fellow workmen on the railway. Our brother's funeral was largely attended, our Order paying a tribute of respect to his nemory by about 100 members in regular pre-calling the crosse. A limited was present to the control of the course of t celling the corpse. An impressive service was conducted by the Rev. J. W. Armstrong, superintendent minister of the United Methodist Free Church, with which denomination our brother was identified. The hymn, "Rock of Ages," &c., having been The hymn, sung, and the ordinary ceremony concluded at the grave, our beautiful Good Templar funeral service was effectively read by Bro. Rev. R. Nicholls, and was electively read by Bro. Rev. R. Nicholfs, and thus was placed to rest in peace the mortal remains of our beloved friend and brother, who "though being dead yet speaketh." His I fe was one o quiet, unostentatious goodness, which found its chief pleasure in seeking to promote the greatest happiness and welfare of others.—J. W. C.

FAREWELL TO THE REV. J. GELSON GREGSON .-FAREWELL TO THE REV. J. GERSON GRESSON,—On Thursday night, March 25, a large gathering of Temperance workers was held at Hoxton Hall, on the occasion of the impending return of the Rev. J. Gelson Gregson, to India. The public proceedings were preceded by a tea meeting. Mr. W. I. Palmer presided, and he was supported by the Rev. J. Gelson Gregson. Mr. R. Kao (secretary National Temperance League). No Stimulants for Children.-Under this NO Stimulants for Children.—Outer his heading you gave an extract from "The Book of Health" in your issue of March 29, with which I quite agree. My family doctor has for some time past been attending my little boy, age five, who is just now recovering from a very severe illness. About a fortnight ago the doctor ordered brandy to be administered in small doses three times a day, but as I am a Rechabite, as well as a Good Templar, my principles would not allow of my purchasing the brandy, so I told the dector that if it were necessary for the child to have it he would have to supply it in a bettle the same as any other medicine, duly labelled as to quantity to be given, and the times to give it, which the doctor duly agreed to do, but up to this time I have not seen anything of the brandy. The child is fast recover-ing, and on questioning the doctor, he says there is now no necessity for brandy.—Chriss Willson, Harlesden Lodge.

Harlesden Lodges in Agricultural Districts.—
Referring to the letter of "A New D.C.T." in your issue of March 22, 1 may state that in my District there are several Ledges working in "purely agricultural districts," but not near so many as should be. For obvious reasons, the Order will always be very difficult to work in sparsely populated localities. The isolated position of many places, together with the indifferent railway facilities, combine to throw obstacles in the path which require determination to overceme. Of which require determination to overcome. Of necessity, more expense is incurred in sustaining such Lodges. To keep in good working order for such Lodges. such lodges. To keep in good working outer to long together it is often requisite that they should be visited quarterly by an Executive officer. The best plan, when possible, is to hold a public gather-ing-of sume kind, and then for the officer to meet the Lodge in session afterwards for counsel and encouragement. A little more of the true Templar spirit infused into some of our town Ledges might lead to District Executives being encouraged to do more in the direction of endeavouring to plant "a Lodge in every village."—An Agricultural " a Lo

Three Good Templars Drowned.—I am much obliged to W.H.S. for his account of the sad accident which has flung so much sadness into our accident which has flung so much sadness into our midst. Will you allow mo to supplement his account by saying that Bro. Robert Edyrean was the treasurer of the Juvenile Temple we have lately formed here. The three young men rescued are all members of our Lodge. Bro. Frank Edyrean, who is only 17 years of age, behaved with the heroism of a veteran. After the three had been about half-an-hour in the water clinging to the cars and spars, as he was asked if he could swim to the boat which he was asked if he could swim to the boat which had been put off from he vessel with which they had been in collision. He said nothing, but in his quiet way he told me he "thought he could do the jub," and let go the spars and swam to the beat. The crew in the boat could not, account of the storm, get it to the place where the young men were in the water. Bro. Edyvean seized the oar and forced the boat along, and was thus the means of rescuing his mates, who became unconscious directly they were His mother, a feeble woman is left with eight His mother, a feeble woman, is left with eight children, mostly young. His uncle has left a widow to whom he has only been married a few months. The beat was insured, but when the liabilities on the boat are paid, there will be nothing left for the bereaved. Nots are not insurable, so all the property is gone. We have commenced a relief fund, of which I am treasurer, and I shall be glad if any of much 1 am treasurer, and I shall be glad if any of my old friends can evince practical sympathy with this real case of distress. Any donation sent here will be duly acknowledged.

BAND OF HOPE DEMONSTRATION AT WILLENHALL. BAND OF HOPE DEMONSTRATION AT WILLINHALL.— The G.W.C.T. addressed a great Band of Hope Demonstration at Willenhall, on March 22, when a procession with the Good Templar Prize Band and four other bands paraded the neighbourhood. The references made to the work of our Order were warmly acknowledged, and a Lodge is expected to be formed there shortly. J. H. Blades, Eeq., M.P., and others took part.

AN EARLY FRENCH ILLUSTRIOUS ABSTAINER.

La Feuille de Tempérance, or "The Temperance Journal," the organ of the Blue Cross Temperance Society, published in French, at Vevey, Switzer-Society, published in French, at veryey, Switzer, land, gives in its February issue a sketch and portrait of a M. Passy, from which the following is gathered:—'M. H. Passy was born in 1793. At 16 years of age he entered the cavalry 1793. At 16 years of age he entered the cavalry school at St. Germain. From school he joined, in Russia, the French regiment to which he was appointed for that fatal campaign. In 1812 he was wounded and taken prisoner at Wilna. He escaped and rejoined Emperor Napoleon I. at Dresden. He was prosent during the campaign of Marshal Saxe, in which he was covered with wounds; and he was decorated for his bravery hefore even he was 20 years old. By giving in his resirentian at the restoration of the Bourbons. in his resignation at the resteration of the Bourbons. the third broke off his short and brilliant military career, and ended it with 66 wounds—perhaps at least two wounds for every month of service. To rest binosit the same of t himself the young officer undertook a voyage to America. At St. Domingo he had yellow fever, but, having a strong constitution, he recovered.

Passy returned to France and retired for some time to a large family estate at Gisors, where he gave himself up to agriculture and to the etudy of the most important social questions. Soon afterwards he commenced a new and long career as political writer, economist, and statesman, and thus continued until death.

In 1830, he was elected Deputy of his department. Having held certain important offices under Louis Philippe, he at last became a peer of France. At the revolution of 1851, he was thrown into prison by the Empire for having wished to remain loyal to the legal Government—the Republic. After that he retired from politics and devoted himself to his writings on economy and agriculture. His book on the Systems of Culture and their Influence on Social Economy, not to mention all his important publications, is one of the most remarkable and competent of works, and will long survive him.

competent of works, and will long survive him.

'in 1871 he, for the last time, again entered into public life, as Deputy to the National Assembly.
Such is briefly the life of this remarkable man. It is declared on good authority that this celebrated economist only drank pure water, and never drank spirits or even coffee. Towards the end of his spirits or even coffee. Towards the end of his life, his dector, Dr. Hardy, insisted on Parkiking a little wine and coffee, but the old man only very reluctantly departed from his abetinent habits."—J. Malnes, Jun.

BRO. JOHN SWEETMAN, of Strength of the Wood DEO. JOHN SWEETMAN, OI SUFERILI OI IMP WOOD LOGGE, is emigrating to Hallifax, Nova Scrtia. He sails from Liverpool on 8th April, in the steam ship Sardinian, Allan Line, and would be pleased to hear of any brother or sister going by the same vessel.

GOOD TEMPLARS TO THE FRONT.

Bro, Sergeant Woolcock, L.D., of Elliot Lodge, Plymouth, has won the prize of £3 for the best shot in the Plymouth division Royal Marine Light Infantry with a grand total of 300 points; also a prize of £1 for the best judger of distance in the same division.

CENTRAL TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.—At the Sunday evening meeting of this association Mr. Thomas Watson, M.P. for the Ilkeston Division of Derhyshire, was the chief speaker. He said he was a Lancashire man. Londoners had a curious notion of North countrymen, and North countrymen had a queer notion of Londoners. The chairman (Mr. P. Carigan) was a 45 years' abstainer, but he (Mr. Watson) signed the pledge—under Joseph Livesey Watson) signed the pledge—under Joseph Livesey and the giving his heart to God had been his two safeguards in life. The country wanted total Sunday Closing, but London was the great etunbling block. Why did not the people of London rise en mass and let the House know their will? The brewers, maltsters, and spirit merchants talked pure nonsense in the House of Commons on the subject of Sunday Closing subject of Sunday Closing.

FOOD ADELTERATION.—Mr. Cassall, lecturing at the Health Exhibition, said: "Homeopathic Coccas are well named, as they contain the smallest quantity of Coca." CADSUA'S COCOA is guaranteed pure, and we recommend the public to buy no other,—[ADVI.]

WINE AT THE LORD'S TABLE.

Rev. Canon Wilberforce.

He had known terribly real and undoubted instances, in which men, by partaking of wine from the sacramental cup, had been started on their downward course to a dishonoured grave. If it came to be a question whether the wine or the Christian should be panished from the Table of the Lord he could not hesitate a moment as to which should go. From the sacramental table over which he had more immesacramental table over which he had now long been diste control intoxicating wine had now long been banished, and in this he believed they were carry-ing out the true spirit and meaning of the sacraing out the true spirit and meaning of the sacra-ment. If it was not a spiritual communion with the blessed Lord, beyond and above anything the mere elements could convey, then it failed in the great purpose for which it was ordained.

The Bishop of Manchester, Nov., 1884.

I have had cases mentioned to me of sad relapses into sin from this very cause—the very sight or smell of the intoxicant reviving the old, only halfconquered desired—and these cases apparently so well authenticated that I cannot dismiss the danger as one purely imaginary; and though I think that no one ought to press his principle of abstinence so no one oligit to press his principle of assessmenters of far as this, where he has no reason to apprehend danger, there may be exceptional instances where exceptional treatment is demanded. Even a Sacramont of the Lord must not be tureed into an occasion of sic. We condemn the spirit of fanaticism; but we should deal tenderly with the fear of being tempted beyond what we are able to bear.

"As it may pessibly occur to some who are accustomed to think of the consecrated elements of bread and wine as essential to the administration bread and wine ac essential to the administration of this holy accaraent to marvel how such luxuries were provided for so great a multitude, I may men-tion that no such fruitless effort was made. It was judged that as the Master made use of the ordinarily daily food of Judea, so would He blees that of Hawaii. Therefore sweet water from the eccoanut, or from the sparkling brook, replaced the juice of the grape, while bread-fruit or tare repre-sented the sacred bread. Even had the foreign elements been favourable," she adds, "it would have been impossible to prevent the people from attaching superstitious meaning to those unknown dainties."

Drink Amongst Women. "THE LANCET."

Women who would on no account be seen going into a public-house, and who could not obtain wine and spirits unknown to their husbands if they were only procurable through a wine merchant, now find it quite easy to supply their dressing cases and wardrobes from the grocer's store. To sweep away this scandal and put an end to a secret vice the grocer's licence must be abolished.

GOOD TEMPLARS' WATCHWORD. MONDAY, APRIL 5, 1886.

AN APPEAL TO THE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE AND THE GRAND LODGE.

Ever since the day when Sir W. Lawson's resolu-tion was passed the third time by the ill-omened assistance of a Government declaredly hostile to its object—the accuring of the Direct Popular Veto— the Government has, with great clearness, con-sistency, and persistence, held before the country its own promised (or threatened?) measure of Local Option by transference of the powers of licensing magistrates to the elective local government bodies to be provided under its general Local Government scheme. From its first mooting, this measure has been, and seems likely to he until settled, the only Parliamentary policy in conuntil settled, the only Fariamentary policy in con-nection with Local Option before the consideration of the country and of the Temperance party, to whom it is seriously offered as an acceptable (even if in their own eyes but a partial) estilement of their demands for an indefinite period to come. Every other scheme that might otherwise have Every other scheme that might otherwise have arisen in Parliament in response to the great Local Option agitation has retired before it. The conference of Temperance members of the newly-lected House, lately held, decided to do nothing in view of the coming Government proposale. And when these proposale are made, they are to form but a detail of a great, popular, reconstructive measure, which bids fair to carry all before it. They will come backed by a powerful Government and its party following, as well as by the comes and philanthropic opinion in and out of Parliament, which honestly views the proposed scheme of what may be called Representative Local Option as, if not a perfect measure, at least one that will place may be called Representative Local Option as, if not a perfect measure, at least one that will place the hard-working struggler with the liquor traffic in his own locality in a position of greater freedom and power than at present. And further, there is very much to be said, on the face of it, for this view. On the other hand, it is urged by Temperance politicians whose arguments are of the greatest weight, that the tendency of the measure is uncound and demoralising, and that its reaching will in the majority of case place the measure is decount and demorations, and that the working will in the majority of cases place the Anti-Liquor traffic party in a more helpless position than hitherto. Under these urgent circumstances is it too much to sak that our Prohibition Temperance bodies, our Order, and the Alliance, chall not only exhaustively examine, on its own merits, the known features of this offered Local Option measure, and clearly ascertain whether, viewed in its indirect and clearly ascertain whether, viewed in its indirect and after effects as well as the more obvious, it is calculated to work for gain or loss to the Prohibition cause,—but that they shall formulate and publish their verdict in resolutions that may be quoted as carrying the weight of the body? It is only so that those amongst us whose long experience at once of municipal and county government and of the tactics of the Anti-Liquor struggle subject that to forecast clearly the actual working. enables them to forecast clearly the actual working of the measure, can with real effect reach, inform, of the measure, can with real effect reach, inform, and guide the mass of the membership. It is only so that these leading societies can raise a standard, which will tend to unite the Temperance Party in a common policy with regard to the scheme, against the time when Parliament is called on to deal with it. A shigle word, so to speak, will do what is needed;—witness the declaration passed at the late Conference at Sheffield, of the Northern branch of the National Temperance Federation, which resolved that "a mere transfer of 'authority from the magistrates to Town Councils, or to any body proposed to be created under a Local Government Bill, would rather INCREASE [the emphasis is my own] the will complained of." I know of no similarly straight deliverance on the merits of the measure passed by any of the National Temperance bodies. Our own Grand Lodgo has gone no further than declaring (last session) that no measure not comprehending a direct veto is adequate or satisfactory—a dictum sadly ambiguous and inadequate in view of the needs of the occasion. A measure may be inadequate and deserve support as far as it goes, or it may be no gain at all, or even a distinct loss. But it is just on these very points between which the dark, that he urgently needs accurate guidance for rank-and-file member is here left to decide in the dark, that he urgently needs accurate guidance for prectical purposes. He probably does not need telling that the scheme is inadequate, not nearly so efficient as the Direct Veto; what he wants to know is, what is its worth if the Direct Veto cannot be had, and as compared, not with the veto, but with the present and guide the mass of the membership. It is or itsworth if the Direct Veto cannot be had, and as compared, not with the veto, but with the present system which it is proposed to exchange for it. With both political parties and a large section of the Temperance party itself opposed to the veto, as one dare calculate on its falling to us for the asking; and his question, therefore, still recurs—What is to be thought and done about this Government measure which is designed for us whether we ask for it or not? Am I (he virtually ask tho Order he belongs to) to regard this transference of licensing powers to local government hodies as a good thing as far as it goes, a "half-loaf," a little help, and give it my support; or am I to view it as a little (or perhaps in its consequences not a little) blow to the cause, and do my its worth if the Direct Voto cannot be had, and as comutmost to prevent its becoming law? Practically — and in view of the rumoured general election not long hence — should a candidate who will vote for it in Parliament be on that account more or less acceptable to me and my "Tomperance Hundred"? To such urgent questioning the Sheffield resolution alone, so far as I know, gives a square answer: no same man sends np representatives to "increase" an evil. The effect of the want of such clear guidance as to the character of the measure (whether in one direction or the other) has been painfully shown in the incoherency and dislocation that have characterised the policy of the Order ever rince the scheme has been before the country. I have been lately assured, on the authority of one who should know, if anyone does, that the mind of our G.L. on the Government measure is accurately represented by the Sheffield resolution; and certainly the recommendation passed at last GL. Season to telectors to withhold their votes from any but Direct Veto candidates is, to say the least, consistent with this view. But, for want of grounding this recommendation upon any condemnation of the substitute measure offered by Government, such as that of the Sheffield resolution, it has remained, to a very great extent, a dead letter. Good Templars and Alliance men have toiled up and down the country to send men to Parliament expressly because they were pledged—if the Sheffield Conference was right—to "increase the evil complained of," and this with the concurrence in many cases of come of our highest authorities. Who does not recall the circulars of our D.E.S.'s—"Brethren are recommended to vote for Mr. A. B., who will support. Local Option [the Government scheme], though he declines to vote for the D. Heat Veto."

though he declines to vote for the Direct Veto.'

Our leading Prohibition papers have pointed with triumph to their lists of the "Temperance party" returned to the new Parliament, in which Government "Local Optionists" figure indiscriminately with "Direct Vetoists," a sort of "happy family" arrangement, in which, if the Sheffield resolution speaks truth, one half is to increase the evils which the other labours to lessen.

Now all this is not the lavoures and conclust of crease the evils which the other labours to lessen. Now all this is not the language and conduct of a great Order which intelligently believes that the mere transference measure would increase the difficulties of the Prohibition cause: it is rather the course to be expected from a membership left on this point to any influences that may reach them and who, consequently, for the most part follow almost inevitably the old rallying cry, LocalOption, to whatever measures it may become statched. If the best-informed men in the Order really are in agreement, broadly speaking, with the judgment of the Sheffield Conference, is it not time to speak out and to get the Order to speak out? If the intended measure be a dangerous one, what are we doing to avert it? Hitherto we have done little but weary Government with entresties to produce it and send up plenty of M.P.'s to vote for it. What are we going to do when't is produced? "Pass the Direct veto as well," I hear it said. By all means if we are strong nough—a large "if"—only, in that case, why submit, in addition, to a retrograde licensing scheme? But suppose we do not get the Direct Veto—again what is to be done with the licensing measure? Reject it? How can we assume that it will then be in our power to reject it? It would be folly to talk as though it was only for our benefit—the Anti-Liquor Party—that the change is designed, and that if we decline it the thing is at an end. The Government has other interests besides ours to think of. And, unfortunately, a large section of the Temperance world itself are at present prepared to support it, even to these worst features—"Compensation," and the like—indicated by the Home Secretary, to which it so readily lends itself.

No: if we do not want to see heensing powers

no; if we do not want to see Reensing powers conferred on Town Councils and County Boards; if we really think that it would prove, like the Grocers Licences Bill, in effect a hostile, though parhaps a well-intentioned, measure, the work of prevention must be done non, by all the usual methods of public attack. And it can only be begun by the outspoken opposition of our Order and its kindred societies.

PROBIBITION.

IREAR SUNDAY CLOSING AND HOME RULE.— A deputation representing the Dublin publicans, had which can only be obtain an interview on Monday night last with Mr. Our contributor has all Parnell, and urging him to oppose the Sunday unduly ignored the very I closing Bill for Ireland should it be introduced, on the ground that as Home Rule is to be granted utmost to prevent its becoming law? Practically immediately, the alien Parliament should not — and in view of the rumoured general further meddle in the matter. Mr. Parnell proelection not long hence — should a candi- mised to lay the views of the deputation before his date who will vote for it in Parliament be_colleagues.

Why some Foreioners are Employed.—Mr. Arrol, contractor for the Forth and Tay Bridges, said at a sirve at Dundee, on March 26 that drink was the greatest curse he had to contend with among Scotch and English workers at Forth Bridge, and solely for that reason he had to employ Belgians and Italians to sink large caissons. It was not because they were better men, hut because they were nore steady." A sad but true commentary, we fear, upon the great majority of our wage-earning class.

MR. W. S. CAINE.—At a crowded meeting of Liberals, held in the Cambridge Hall, Barrow-in-Forness, last week, Mr. W. S. Caine was ucanimously and with great heartiness chosen the Liberal candidate at the ensuing bye-lection. Mr. Caine, who is connected with some of the large industries of the neighbourhood, is looked upon sa a strong candidate, and we hope his attempt will prove successful. It is rumoured that should the Secretaryship of the Local Government Board become vacant and Mr. Caine be successful, he will have the poet offered to him.

BISMARCK'S SPIRIT MONOFOLY BILL.—On March 26 the German Reichstag rejected the Spirit Monopoly Bill in detail. Having first negatived by 181 votes to 66 a motion of Herr von Kardorff for referring the measure back to the committee, the House threw out the first two paragraphs, containing the essential provisions of the bill, by 181 votes to 3 (37 members abstaining from voting), and finally rejected the remaining paragraphs without discussion. The Imperial Chancellor had intimated during the debate that were the measure rejected, it would be necessary to introduce a licence-tax in

The Durham Surday Closiko Bill.—Among the opposing notices on the paper in regard to the Durham Sunday Closing Bill, Mr. Agg-Gardner proposes that the committee on the bill have power to make provision for giving reasonable compensation to those who may be compelled to close their houses by reason of the bill; Mr. Mill-vain has blocked the measure; Mr. Gent-Davis thinks it is inexpedient, having regard to the avowed iotentions of the leaders on both sides to deal with the whole licensing question in a County Board's Bill, that special facilities should be given to deal with the subject in a piecemeal fashion; and Mr. Henniker Heaton is to propose that no measure restraining the sale of liquors on Sunday will be complete which does not include the closing of clubs.

LOCAL OPTION VACARIES. -- We are glad that an esteemed contributor has raised a very important question for the consideration of the Political Action Committee of our Grand Lodge, and for the Grand Lodge itself, in an article we have placed in our leading columns. With the main drift of that article we are in hearty sympathy, and, if space will permit, we hope to say something on the subject in our next issue. We do not confirm every statement in the article. For example, "Prohibition" has ignored Mr. McLagan's Bill and Mr. Stafford Howard's Bill, by intimating that the Government proposals are the only measure of Local Option before Parliament. With respect to the "powerful Government," a somewhat uncertain qualification at the present moment. Neither are we aware, as "Prohibition" seems to be, that all the M.P.'s who have ex pressed themselves favourable to some form of Local Option are committed to the Government proposals. But with the Sheffield resolution we are in cordial agreement, and we cannot too strongly emphasise the importance of informing the But with the Sheffield resolution we public mind of the dangers of legalising an public mind of the dangers of legalising an elective licensing anthority, especially with the possibility of having the increased evil fastened upon us without securing that control which can only be obtained by the direct local veto. Our contributor has also, we think, somewhat unduly ignored the very plain and direct expression of opinion which has been given in our leading

No. 1 of the Gntario Good Templar has appeared at Hamilton, Canada, as the organ of our Grand Lodge of Ontario.

PROBABLY THE FIRST GREEKS ever enrolled were recently initiated into the Order at Sydney, a Bro. Fuotas translating the service.

BARON CARRINOTON, at his first levée as Governor of New South Wales, received an address of welcome, and declared he gave his warmest support to so valuable an institution as the Good Templar Order.

Bro. W. C. AMERY, of Blandford, formerly D.E.D. for Warwickshire, lectured recently at Poole on "The Workhouse Tap, and how to stop it." Long reports appeared in the papers next day, and, to use our brother's own words, the whole affair has "set the Guardians by the cars." He also succeeded in carrying a Local Option resolution, against the secretary of the Liberal Association, in the Debating Glub.

A TEMPRANCE POET.—Lancashire boasts three living men of humble birth, whose poetical geniue—mainly manifested in the Lancashire dialect—is beyond dispute; but in neither case have their brilliant talents yielded those pecuniary results which they merited. Something has, however, been done to supply this deficiency. One of the poets, Edwin Waugh, has had a pension granted to him. The second, Bob Brierley, has received a testimonial of over £000. The third, Samuel Laycock, of Blackpool, is a veteran total abstainer, who is now over 60 years of seg, and is in failing health. He is the author of very many sterling Temperance pieces, and of other Laucashire poems of sterling worth, the meet charming of which is "Welcome Bonny Bird," probably the finest bit of Lancashire poesy in existence. His ability is fairly illustrated in the Good Templar War Song which appears in another column. It is now proposed to present him with a substantial testimonial, and it is hoped that Temperance people will assist in the project. The Mayor of Blackpool is president of the Testimonial Committee. The late Mr. Hugh Mason in sending £25 to it properly said:—"He is the poot of the people in every sense of the word, and his pen has been ever ready for the promotion of the welfare of our country." The secretary of the fund is Mr. Samuel Baueroft, 53, Adelaide-street, Blackpool.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Question.—Can a member who has been proposed and seconded for office decline to go to the ballot? Answer.—In Grand Lodge, where he can only be nominated after consenting to stand, he must stand at least one balloting. In the lower bodies, where no prior consent is required by law, he can dccline even before a ballot.

Question.—What sub-officers must be at least Second Degree members?

Answer.—The W.C.T. and W.M.; and the W.C.T. must have also served a prior term in some other office. The Lodge may, by bye-law, impose degree qualifications for any or all offices.

Question.—How is a tie by ballot to be decided?

Answer.—By balloting again till a change is made or one withdraws. There can be no casting vote in a tie ballot.

Question.—Can a Lodge elect officers on the last night in the quarter, without first adopting bye-law to that effect?

Answer.—No. If it makes such a bye-law it can, but the installation cannot take place till the first night of the new quarter.

Question.—If a W.C.T. puts a motion and asks "Is the Lodge ready for the question?" and no response is made, is the motion to be dropped or is it to be put to the vote?

Answer.—No response is imperative, although those ready to vote might wisely call "Question." The motion should be put to the vote if no member rises to speak.

Question.—When a Lodge, by vote, allows one of its members to sit in it without the password, has such member the right to speak and vote.

Answer,—A Lodge has no right to allow any of its members to sit without the password. If the member can sit in his Lodge he can also speak and vote in it.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The division in the House of Commons on the second reading of the Durham Sunday Closing Bill is, to Temperance reformers, one of the most encouraging signs of the present day. It clearly shews that when the House is allowed to divide upon questions affecting the social and moral wellbeing of the people, the majority are decidedly in favour of prohibitive measures. Another instance is found in the manner in which Mr. Stansfeld's resolution was recently adopted. And it is to be hoped the course thus entered upon will be continued in, and that in future Parliament will make it clear to all that it can in no way sanction vice and wrong-doing in high or low places.

It should also be noted that the two Government whips, Messis. A. Morley and Majoribanks, were the tellers for the unjointy. This, I think, is the first time that the representatives of the ruling party have ever acted in such a capacity for a similar measure introduced by private members.

The large majority obtained by Mr. Theodore Fry for his Bill has given encouragement to the promoters of the Cornwall Sunday Closing Bill. Every effort will be put forth to carry this measure through Fathiannet this Session, and as the evidence in its favour is quite as conclusive as that for the Durham Bill. I see no reason why these endeavours should not meet with the desired success.

I sm glad that our G.W.C.T.'s excellent paper is to be reproduced in pamphlet form, for it deserves to be circulated throughout the United Kingdom. Above all it should be carefully studied by writers for the public Press, as the information contained therein might prevent a repetition of such blunders as have recently been propertrated. These gentlemen who are auxi us to instruct the public in things social and political, cannot rid their minds of such pet fallacies as "unearmed increment," "vosted interests," 'A.C., &c. They do not hesitate to say that drink traffickers have a right to compensation, but fail to prove from whence this right is derived.

Thus the Daily Neves in an article upon this question a few days ago expresses its surprise that when the Canadian Patlament dealt with the matter in 1878 and 1883 the principle of compensation received no attention from the Conservative Government of the Dominion. It is also remarked that any application of the local veto system to English parishes should be limited by this so-called principle. The legal opinions quoted by Bro. Malins conclusively prove that such a "principle" has no existence in fact, and I am surprised at the Daily News lending itself to the advocacy of something altogether contrary to law and justice.

The pages of English history contain many instances where money has been voted to persons for services (a few real but many insugnary) rendered to the State. In some cases men have received large sums for slaying their fellow-creatures; and others have been rewarded because they were treacherous to the trust committed to them. Let us hope our country's record will not be further darkened with an acknowledgment that men should be rewarded if commanities decline to grant them licence to spread misery, disease, crime, and desolation throughout the land.

An interesting communication on the Temperance movement in Sweden appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette of Saturday last. It is from the pen of Zadel Barnes Gustafson, and states that the Good Templar movement of to-day is the most important that has ever taken place in Sweden. At the present time there appears to be a strong contast going on between the members of the Order and the Socialists, both parties elaining to have the same end in view, but advocating different modes of its attainment. The most significant passage in the article is that which refers to the opposition encountered by our Order, and the source from whence it springs, viz., the elergy.

An idea of the strength of the opposing party may be gained from the fact that from time immomorial the spritual leaders of the country "bave talked and preached the virtues of drink, and wrote voluminously in its defence, and utterly opposed abstinence on every occasion." The elerical party is the most powerful in Sweden, and their antagonism the most formidable that can be brought to bear against any movement. The championship of liquordom is not confined to the local clergy, but is also claimed by the bishops. One of these in a recent pastoral states that education and the social amenities of relined life are inseparable from the use of punch, the dance, and cards, and declares "that the overthrow of the social dunking habits would involve the overthrow of the educated classes, and place the State at the mercy of the rabble who gather under the flag of Abstinence!" What should we think if one of our bishops wrote in this strain?

The Alliance News every week, under the heading "Fruits of the Traflic," recites a number of dark deeds performed whilst men and women are under the influences of strong drink. These are mostly culled from the daily and weekly Press, and the horrors they reveal are enough to make every right-thinking person refuse to have aught to do with so destructive an agent. But such reports as these, together with the police and other returns issued by the Government, indicate but a tittle of the deadly work ever in progress through this common enemy

How many homes are there to-day where, but for the drink, health, happiness, and peace might be reigning supreme instead of sorrow and despair? Some of us are life abstainers, yet we have felt the blows this monster can inflict, and carry in our bodies the fruit of others' dissipation. Our hearts are also made to bleed for the sufferings of many dear ones, the brightness of whose lives has been for ever swept away because of the wrong-doing of those who should have loved and protected them. Only a few days ago I learnt of a case which exactly illustrates the above.

About five years ago a young lady, a flower as fair as ever bloomed upon God's carth, was woosd and won by a man who promised to love, cherish, and protect her so long as he should live. The relatives of the brido believed they were giving their darling to an honourable man, and up to the last few weeks it was not known their trust was misplaced. The country home was exchanged for a London one, and the first few months of married life were very bright. Gradually, however, the husband began to absent himself from home till late at night, when he would return the worse for drink. The young wife remonstrated lovingly, reform was promised, and for a time all went well, But the old habits were soon resumed, and neither the attractions of home, wife nor child availed against then.

What was the result? Instead of the money (his situation was worth nearly £200 a year) finding its way home, it was wasted in dissipation. For days together the poor woman had hardly anything to eat. Yet when this monster, called a man, came home some nights he would drag her out of bed, creelly illtreat her, and demand that she should furnish him with a good supper. Three children have been born, one is affitted with a ricketty spire, and the others are very delicate—all the result of the father's svil life. During all this suffering the wife offered no complaint to her family, for she could not bear to let them know her husband had proved so false. But by the marest accident the news reached the mother's ears. She canne to London, took them by surprise, found all she had heard was only too true, and did not leave the house without her daughter, who is now with friends whose loving care is gradually restoring her shattered health.

Another case. Only this week I have atood by the open grave of a young man cut off in the flower of his manhood, leaving behind a young widow. Yes, it is the drink again. A few years ago he thought he would seelife, and gave himself up to every form of worldly pleasure. Two years since he put the brake on, and tried to reform, but the drink had done its work and the seeds of disease were sown. For the last few months his life has been slowly ebbing away, and a fortnight ago a severe cold was taken, and the weakened constitution secucumbed. Speaking to his brother four days before his death, he said, "Oh, Bob, keep straight, for I have proved that what a man sows that shall be also reap."

These are but a specimen of what is daily taking place in our midst. They call to us with a trumpet voice, to puch on our warfare against the drink with renewed energy and vigour, and to spare no effort until this terrible[curse is swept away for ever.

FRE LANCE.

"I AM A TEMPLAR."

"Max," the writer of the Parliamentary report of the Reho, referred as follows to Bro. John Wilson and the part he took in the debate on the second reading of the Durham Sunday Cleaing Bill.

son and ene part he took in the debte of the second reading of the Durham Sunday Cleening Bill.

"How the House of our fathers, or grandfathers, would have stared at an honourable Member whe, standing coolly up in his place, should make, unabashed, the above confession, in the equivalent language of the period! And how they would have gone on staring had the Member, still unabashed, proceeded to confess that he was under a solenn mandate—from his constituent—to promote the Templar cause, and that he must sak the House to ordain that for her Majesty's lieges there shall be no cukes and also on Sundaya—st least, in the taverns. This is what Mr. John Wilson, Member for the Houghton Division of Durham, did in the House of Commons last night. There was, indeed, nothing now in the feat, But there was some degree of novelty in the style of it. The appearance of the Wilfrid Lawsons and the Wilsons in the House of Commons shows what enormous strides the Temperance cause has made since the comparatively recent times when, as a matter of course, every gentleman made himself dead drunk after dinner, and when, too, insurance agencies would have nothing to say to an applicant who did not drink. Mr. John Wilson is in more ways than one a living illustration of the change which has some about in personnel and the ideals of Democratic Parliaments, Ex-sailor lad, pliman, Methodist prescher, miners' Unionist, all hi one, he is a primipifus of the multitudinous army whom our bibulous ancestors aforesaid would have contemptuously regarded as the Othe and Vandads of politica."

"The occasion of the brief passage of arms between the two was the second reading of the Durham Sunday Closing Bill, moved by Mr. Fry, who said that 15 out of 16 Durham Members were in favour of it, and that the petitioners for it were eight times as numerous as those-sagnast it. Mr. Milvain, in meving the rejection of the Bill, declared that not half-a-dozen men among the 2,000 whom he personally canvassed, in a constituency of 2,305 (Durham City), made their acceptance of his candidature conditional upon his support of the Closing Bill. Mr. Wilson blundly retorted that he knew the Durham people better than Mr. Milvain did, and that, iustead of Mr. Milvain's half-dozen, or rather less, he could find, at a moment's notice, 600 or 700 who would contend for Sunday closing through thick and thin. Wilson; "and the next time you go canvassing, and cail upon be, as I suppose you must, Til give you ocular proof of what I say." The personal directness, the unadorned candour, the homeliness of this new Parliamentary style of address—and its occasional awkwardness too, as when the speaker described how he knew Durham and its chapels, and all its churches, and "all its cathedrals!"—reminded one of a miner seriously arguing with a "Chum" at the street corner. And I think it would have seemed the most natural thing in the world if Mr. Wilson had pointed with his forefinger to the Tory side of the House, nedded shrewdly at his opponent and fellow-senator, Mr. Milvain, and asid, "You bet, lad."

COMMENTING on the special G.L. Session held at Northampton, the Northampton Guardian says: —
Then we have had the Cirand Lodge of the Good Templar Order held here for the first time. There is a good deal about Geod Templary which I do not understand—ite regalia of various colours, its orders, its secrecy. But there can be no doubting the fact that it is a splendid organisation—the most powerful and wide-aprasal in the world for the promotion of the principle and practice of Temperance. Its constitution, too, is the best I know of—far better than the "glorious constitocatun" which some loud-voiced demagogues prattle about. It is an absolute democracy where equality and frateroity are the ruling watchwords, and liberty is only restricted by enjoining against drinking and the breaking of the rules of the Order. It is masonic in its universal brotherhood, woman are placed on an equal footing with the "lords of creation," and as for its organic power, I do not think it would be too much to say that the Temperance reforms, actual and contemplated, are principally due to its efforts. The holding of a Session of the Grand Lodge of this impurhant body in our borough, is an event worth chronicling.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

said it would be more convenient if he deferred until Monday, stating whether it was the intention of until Monday, stating whether it was no mention of ber Majesty's Government, during rite present Session of Parliament, to bring in a bill similar to that mentioned in the Queen's Speech opening the Session of 1884, and subsequently introduced by the then Chief Secretary for Ireland, making the Irish Sunday Closing Act of 1878 permanent, extending its provisions to the five cities and town exempted from its full operations.

MARCH 96 -SALE OF LIGHTES IN THE TRANSPEL VALENTINE asked the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies whether the proclamation made by the Government of Cape Colony, allowing the sale of intoxicating drinks in the Transkei is still in force, or if it has been withdrawn; and if the latter, what was the date of the withdrawal?

Mr. OSBORNE MORGAN said the sale of spirituous art. USBORNE MORGAN said the sale of spirituous liquors to natives was prohibited by proclamation, which was still in force, unless they could produce a magistrate's permit. The sale of other liquors to natives, except under certain conditions, was strictly forbidden.

MARCH 29 .- SUNDAY CLOSING IN IRELAND. MR. JOHN MOREEY, in reply to Mr. Theodore Fry, said it was a little too early in the Session to say positively whether it was the intention of her Majesty's Government during the present session of Parliament to bring in a bill making the Irish Sunday Closing Act of 1878 permanent, and ex-tending its provisions to the five cities and towns exempted from its full operation; but they confidently hoped to bring in a measure similar to that introduced by the then Chief Sccretary for Ircland the year before last.

BILL TO PROHIBIT THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS TO CHILDREN.

THE TRIRSTY APPRENTICE. - During the dinner-THE THINSIY APPRENTICE.—During the dinner-hour at a Tyneside factory, an apprentice complained of an insatiable thirst. "As had ower much beer last neet," he remarked, "an' aa's as dcy as a harrin'—that dry aa's animeyst chowkin'." Had away to the tap, then, an' get a drink," said a companion; "the dinner hoor's not up yit." "Gan on, thou fyul," he replied, "think aa's ganning to drink wettor!" me aan time?—not me! ap'll wait till the buzzor blass!"

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT IN SWEDEN.

On March 16 a petition, signed by 208,827 of his subjects, asking for the absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic was handed to King Usear, of Sweden. In other words, almost 13 per cent. of the entire population, or about one-third of the adult population of Sweden, have petitioned the king for the total suppression of the liquor traffic. The settlement of this question is in Sweden a royal prerogative, therefore, the king can suppress the trade whenever he chooses, and, as some of King Oscar's predecessors have temporarily suppressed it, he has precedents for such a course, although he would be the first to do it at the instance of a general popular demand .- Pall Mull Gazette.

In RESPONSE to a deputation from the Local Optionists of New South Wales, who waited upon him, Sir John Robertson (the Premier) suggested the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the whole question of the drink traffic of the Colony. He undertook to use his influence with the Executive Council to have a commission appointed without delay, and upon whose report future legislation might be framed.

NOTES FROM NAPLES.

An Italian official of a Freemasons' Lodge at Naples lately wrote to the G.W.C.T. inquiring about the Order, and although they have not directly taken up our work, they have indicated willingness to begin in another direction. This is clear from a letter to hand from Bro. Stephen Burrowes, the English Sailors' Missionary at Naples, who writes:—"I am the only Good Templar in this part of the world, and before coming out here I took an active part in the cause Scotland. The Lodge formed, through a religious movement in Stornoway Isle and Lewes, reformed that island, and the Band of Hope and Lodge at Fort William, N.B., was in the face of the powerful opposition from the proprietor of the whisky, knuwn as 'Long Tom.' For 20 years I advocated the cause of Temperance in the United Kingdom, associated with Captain Brotchie, of Greenock, ex-Mayor Thompson, Bridgwater, and others. The Freemasons of Naples received a communication from you, with printed statements, which thuntection from you, with prince statements, which they sent to me, assuring me of their earnest support and promising to take up the subject of the social ovils in this city, which are more dreadful than recent revelations in our own country. Tho English residents here all drink wine at their meals, a number are members of our Sailors' Rest Society. The Sailors' Rests are affiliated with the Seamen's Temperance League, and that is a branch of the National Temperance League. Rests are The Sailors' Rests are affiliated with the urgently needed in many parts; for this we plead before the Temperance men and women of England. £3,000 is needed for all our purposes."

ATTENDANCE AT LODGE MEETINGS. A. S. DRAPER, P.G.W.C.T.

A. S. Draper, P.G.W.C.T.
The one thing of greatest importance to the efficiency of a Good Templar Lodge is that the members should attend the meetings regularly and promptly. No person can be a real Good Templar unless he attends Lodge constantly and refu-es to permit little matters to keep him from going. If your Lodge is slimly attended, the first thing for you to do is to good the seed of the constantly and the seed of the constantly of the property of the constantly and the constantly of t you ask what you shall need that see that depends your different circumstances. Agitate the matter, think about it. Determine what course will accomplish the thing in your Lodge, and then go and do it with all the coergy you can command.

I will tell you what one Lodge did. Things had got in bad shape. There were more than 50 members got in bad shape. There were more than 30 members on the books, but they never had nore than 10 or a dozen present at the Lodge meeting. They began to imagine that the Lodge was meeting upon an unfavourable creating, and so they changed to another evening, but it did not me ad matters. As a last resort the few faithful ones determined upon this course. They prepared a written pledge, something like the fol-

A committee was appointed to visit every member of the Lodge, talk with hun about the matter, and secure his signature, if possible. The work of the committee was thoroughly performed, and was quite successful. More than half the members signed the paper. They also kept their promise good. The Lodge-room was creditably filled again. Meetings became interesting, members who had refused help under the supposition that the Lodge must die, finding that they were labouring under unistake, began to come back. Now members cause in sud the institution became popolar again, and, though it is several years since this method was adopted, that Lodge has been atrong and sub-tantial ever since. Bro. J. W. Jones, D.E.S., Middlesex, writes to say that although present at the London Olive Branch Lodge, when a paper was read in favour of dividing the Middlesex D.L., he was certainly not in accord with the views expressed, as the report in our last issue might lead readers to suppose. -Another correspondent also calls our attention to the fact that two or three brethren snoke against the proposal, so that all present could not be in

ENOLISM OPIUM EATERS.—Dr. O'Hanlon, the medical officer of health to the Spennymoor Local Board, has reported that a great source of in that district is the excessive use of intoxicants amongst men, and the equally reprehensible consumption of opium amongst the wives of pitmen especially. The medical officer points out in emphatic language, says the Sanitary Record, that a result of a continuance in these pornicious practices must naturally result in the deterioration of the race.

LITERARY NOTICES.

THE BIBLE TEMPERANCE EDUCATOR : THE BIBLE TEMPERANCE ENGCATOR: Organ of the Bible Temperances Association. Edited by the Rev. John Pyper. Vol. v., 1s. London, 337, Strand. This volume includes most valuable atticles by the editor, Dr. Dawson Burns, Dr. Norman Kerr, Dr. F. R. Lees, Dr. William Ritchie, the late Dr. Nott, and others. Some of these are replies to opponents, and have the spice of controversy, always more inspirited than spontaneous disquisitions. Even Dr. Dawson Burns reads better when answering a critic, and Dr. Lees strikes sparks under similar circumstances. It seems to us that men get warmer in discussing their differences than on any other subject. Naturally, when we know we are right we are apt to get impatient with our opponents, and to wonder how they can be so stupid. Students of Bible Temperance can hardly do with-Students of Bible Temperance can hardly do without this volume, and devotees of the new phase of ground them in their faith and give stamina to their zeal, for Bro. Pyper's moving and main contention is that Christ is in the Temperance movement as its source and authority, and it is essential that in this as in all things He may have the pre-cminence. The volume is interspersed with such varieties as short readings, anecdotes, tit-bits, and recitations. and recitations.

A WOMAN ON TOBACCO is the title of a penny pamphlet published by the Anti-Narcotic League, 56, Peter-street, Manchester, and is a paper which was read by Mrs. Arthur Arnold at the annual conference of the league, under the presidency of the late Mr. Hugh Mason, M.P. The cost of tobacco, its general effects, and its dangers, are very ably and tersely treated.

REVERIES IN RHYME is a medley of musings REVERTIS IN RHYME is a medley of musings for the million grave, gay, and grotesque, by John Duncan Richardson Hull: C. H. Barnwell, Bondstreet, Saville-street. The writing of these reveries has doubtless kept the author out of mischief. He says it has solaced him many a weary hour, and if only his rhymes brighten other lives, his ambition will be abundantly gratified. Temperance sentiment pervades the peems, and there is considerable merit and variety in the collection. in the collection.

THE BANNER OF TEMPERANCE .- A collection of THE BANKER OF TEMPERANCE.—A COLLECTION of original verses by a member of the Dreaden Victory Lodge, 1.O.G.T. 1s. London and Manchester: John Heywood.—Reciters looking for something new and original will find a number of pleasing pieces in this little volume.

SLINGS AND STONES FOR TEMPERANCE WARRIORS. SLINGS AN STORE FOR LEAFERANCE WARRIORS. By W. Stanyon, Leicester. Id. Gibbons, King-street, Leicester. Fully sensible of the power of the press, Mr. Stanyon has contributed to a local paper, week by week for a year, most telling facts, arguments, and statistics, in simple and terse language, often depicting some striking incident of local interest depicting some striking indicate of local interest such as too often occurs everywhere else; and these pithy and pointed contributions are now collected into 64 well printed pages, stitched in a cover, and offered to the public for one penny. The profit can only be to the purchaser and the reader; it cannot be in money to the author or publisher. This little pamphlet is a veritable storehouse and armoury; and the earnest and plodding Temperance worker will do well to get a copy for perusal, or better still a dozen or 100 for circulation. We have seen nothing like it. Buy it, read it, give it away.

COMMUNION WINE. By the Rev. James Smith, M.A., author of "The Temperance Reformation and the Christian Church." Lendon: 337, Strand, W.C.; 6d.—In this treatise the author has dealt exclusively with the subject in a manner evidencing exclusively with the subject in a manner evidencing considerable study and research. Mr. Smith is eminently qualified for the task, and the careful student of his work will be well armed to defend a plea for purity in the Christian Church against all comers, whether on the ground of Scripture suthority, example, expediency, or common-sense. If Gospel Temperance be worthy the name, it surely is time that the thousands of its converts should begin to recognise the obligation it imposes, and so long as we keep the cup of devils on the Table of the Lord, the world may well note our inconsistency, and say how little we value the principle we profess, and which in so vital a particular we impiously violate. It is In so visis a particular we improvely violate. It whigh time that we had a new agitation on this subject. A great deal of teaching has been abroad, so much so that we are almost ton well-instructed, unless we are prepared to act up to the light we have. Our condemnation must be the greater in proportion as we know what is right, and yet the wrong pursus. We welcome this authoritative textbook, and hope it will stimulate many to action.

BIBLE OR GOSPEL TEMPERANCE : JESUS A TOTAL ABSTAINER; THE BIBLE A TOTAL ABSTINENCE BOOK. ABSTANER; THE BISER A TOTAL ABSTREERCE BOOK.
By the Rev. John Pyper, editor of the Bible Temperance Educator. London, 337, Strand; 1s.—A masterly treatise, laying the one foundation for true Gospel Temperance. It is high time the Church took its stand with Jesus Christ as their Example and Leader, and attrong drink put away for the other side exclusively; and it is to this end Bro.
Pyper furnishes the authorities and arguments of

NATIONAL DISEASE

OF THIS COUNTRY

IS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-half of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is moved the other diseases vanish, for they e but symptoms of the real malady.

REMEDY SEIGEL'S SYRUP.

Testimonials from Thousands of people speaking highly of its Curative properties prove this beyond all doubt.

Bro. Richardson also addressed a public meeting in Sunderland, under the auspices of the General in sanderland, once the auspices of the General Havelock's Jodee, and presided at two public meet-ings in South Shields. A greater work might have been done, but owing to the severe snowestorm which prevailed in the District during the early part of March, communication with many of the colliery villages was entirely cut off, the roade being completely blocked up.

Signing the Plenge in Court.—At the New-castle Police-court, on March 29, there were 54 cases on the charge sheet, and of this number 40 persons were charged with drunkenness. Two of the delinquents were acquitted on expressing their willingness to sign the pledge, and were given cards by Bro. the Rev. A. G. Marmeet, who also pinned the blue ribbon on their breasts in court. A Guildenn correspondent writes: "At the recent School Board election here, out of the seven recent school board election here, out of the seven candidates returned, four were tectotalers (including one Good Templar), two being at the top of the poll. This is noticeable, considering the broweries and public houses abounding at this

A BAND OF HOPE BOY'S STORY. BY THE REV. WILLIAM ISAAC KEAY, P.D.D., TRINIDAD.

But the ceremony was over, and there was a buetle about the doorway; and Mr. Poppy, who was master of the ceremonies, began to arrange the carriages. A few preliminary vehicles carriages. A few preliminary schicles with no body in particular in them were despatched for the purpose of clearing the way, as it were. Then came the open carriage containing the bridgenom and bride. They drove over slowly, and bowed to everybody in a way that pleased all who had any interest in them. We regret for the aske of the bride; and we are ourselves of the bride; and we are ourselves of the bride; and we are curselves unqualified for so high a theme. As it was on the whole rather a homely wedding, in which the customs of etiquette were by no means, strictly observed, the want of such fulsome details will be the less noticed, and the more easily forgiven.

A very old workman, whose remarks on Miee Alice's recovery will be remembered, was standing near the gate with hie hat in his hand, smiling all

THE EPILOGUE : IN WHICH A FAMILY SECRET IS DISCLOSED AND THE READER REING TAKEN INTO CONFIDENCE IS

We must refer the reader to the first chapter of this narrative, in order to remind him that the story was originally told to a family party, so much at s time as each evening would conveniently admit. veniently admit. And though many particulars are given in the systematic history now brought to a close which the family doubtlets did not receive, still in the main they were presented with the same facts that the reader is possessed of, beginning at the second chapter. We must bring ourselves forward again as at the opening page, to a more recent date, namely, the year 1877, a little before Easter, and find the Wimble family again seated round the table discussing the and same matters, only that the head of the household has come to an end of the story and is now engaged satis-fying some inquiries which the mempers of his family make at the conclusion. All were deeply interested. Young moustache was looking so deeply occupied in the conversation that he forgot for some considerable time to foulde the crop of very soft down which was beginning to adupper lip, the practice of attending to which his eldest sister often playfully remarked occupied too much of his The twins were very nearly untime. twined and sitting not very far from The said eldest y separate. oung lady sat on her father's right hand on this occasion, leaning down upon the table so as now and then to look up into his face. Then the unfeminine girl of the family, who seldom used a chair with boarding school propriety, had fairly risen off her seat, and was lying forward on the table, so intent intent was she on the subject of conversation. The two boys whom we spoke of before as sitting by the fire (it being then Christmas and cold) had latterly taken their places at the the table, and now occupied the end opposite to their father. "I say I have told you his whole history up to the time of his marriage," replied Mr. Wimble. "And I did so for the purpose of shewing what a help, what a means of safety in every way, is total abstinence. But for that little boy's joining that Band of Hope, and through it being educated and lifted out of the pitiable condition in which he was born, there is reason to believe that he would have lived a mere street life all his days, if, indeed he had not landed in crime and prison

"Yes, but I mean more than that."
"Did his hair ever get to brush down right?" pertly interrupted young seven year old, pointing to the curious half-combed locks which had often been matter of anusement to the children.

"Don't you speak deridingly of that boy," said Mr. Wimble with mock severity; "he might turn out to be one of vonr own near relations

"What relation, father?" asked one of the twins, speaking much more quickly than was her wont; for the twins were deliberate at most things.

"Does it really, father?" asked

Miss Tomboy, as the unfeminine was frequently called.

"Your mother has seen it oftener than I have," said Mr. Wimble, "elie ought to know."

They all turned at once to the lady

Bro. Weatherill, in suitable terms, responded, modestly declining the eulogies, ascribing them more to the kindness of his fellow workers than his deserts.

Mr. James Whyte, secretary of the U.K.A.,
Mr. E. Dawson King, secretary of the Manchester,
Salford, and District Temperance Union, and Mr. William Canning, secretary of the Electoral Asso-ciation, also addressed the meeting, each acknow-ledging the valuable services rendered by Bro. Weatherill.

Bro. H. J. Weatherill said he desired to express his pleasure at the honour done to his brother, and his only regret was that his father and mother to whose pious training he and his brother were deeply indebted, and who are still living, were not present to witness that afternoon's proceedings. Tea was provided, and over 100 partock of it, after

Bro, Malins, who very happily addressed the Lodge, was well received throughout, and his remarks will certainly have a good effect on the Order in this District.

The Good of the Order being called,
Bro. Edwards spoke on the Mission Work going on, and ask each present to help him in the work now in hand.

Mr. Pickersgill, M.P., on Temperance Legis-LATION.—Presiding on Friday night, April 2, at a public Good Templars' meeting at the Bethnal Green-road Baptist Chapel, Mr. E. H. Pickeregill, public Good B.A., M.P., said there were many members of the new House of Commons who belonged to the Temperance party, notwithstanding the defeat of several of its distinguished leaders, including Sir W. Lawson and Mr. W. S. Caine. It was to be deplored that an immense amond of money was spent by the people on stimulants which they could not afford to so spend, and it was desirable to ecould not afford to so spend, and it was desirable to innelacte thrift, which was the daughter of Temperance and the mother of many great virtues. In these times of depression the country would feel how especially valuable thrift was to those who had practised it. The Temperance question had two sides, social and political. If there was to be effective legislation with regard to the liquor traffic it must be based as mon a role, many the weat democratic miscatice. as upon a rock, upon the great democratic principle, viz., the government of the people by the people, and for the henefit of the people at large. The hon. member was loudly cheered, and the meeting was afterwards addressed by Mr. George Nokes, the Rev. W. Harvey Smith, Bro. S. Insull, P.D.C.T., and others. An efficient gleoparty gave selections between the addresses.

VALUE OF GOOD TEMPLARY AS A BROTHERHOOD.

The Huddersfield Examiner, of March 27, reports

the following incident :-"A NARROW ESCAPE.—On Friday morning last A RAKKOW DESCAPE. On Priday morning mast week a desently-dressed and respectable-looking working man was discovered on the highway, opposite the National School (Marsden, near Huddersfield) in an unconscious state, and apparently dying from want and exposure. The police were communicated with, and were quickly on the spot. They obtained a cart, in police were communicated with, and were quickly on the spot. They obtained a cart, in which they conveyed the senseless man to Dr. McLintock's, who ordered him to be taken to the attention upon the patient, who remained for 24 hours in a critical and insensible condition. After attention upon the patient, who remained for zero time, he was enabled to take a little nourishment, and quickly rallied with care and good nursing, and on Tuesday was able to get up, and go out of doors. The man's name is John James Wilson, aged about 45 years, a Scotchman, and a gardener, and was journeying from Loudon to the North seeking cmployment. From his atatement it seems that when found he had been six days without food of any kind, being too independent to beg. He had saked for a glass of water on his way, which had been refused, and when found he had been refused, and when found he had sunk on the ground in the last stages of exhaustion. While ondeavouring to discover his identify, which shewed that he had been a Good Templar for several years, and his conduct during his prosertation proved that he had been a Good Templar for several years, and his conduct during his prosertation proved that he held by the doctrine of total abstimence most literally. The emaciated condition of the man, in the medical officer's opinion, confirmed his statement as to long deprivation of food." vation of food." The issue of April 3 contained the following sequel :-A NARROW ESCAPE. -The secretary of a Good Templar Lodge writes to us as follows:- 'The remarkable story under this title, in last week's remarkable stony under this title, in last week'a Examiner, attracted much attention. The W.A.S. of the Villago Rescue Lodge, No. 546 of Good Templare, read the item at the weekly meeting on Tuesday last, entirely ignorant of the fact that the very man, John James Wilson, was present to hear the story. Having ascertained that such was the case, and that the man was in needy circumstances and in search of employ-ment, relief was voted to him by the Lodge, and he was afterwards entertained to supper by the P.W.C.T. Endeavours were made next day to procure bim a situation, and these were successful, we trust a permanency; he was rigged out in a fresh suit of clothes by the W.O.G., and is out in a fresh suit of clothes by the W.O.G., and is now happy and comfortable, in which condition we hope he may remain. Thanks are due to the Marsden people for their kinduess to him, and also for the insertion of the idea. for the insertion of the item in the paper, as such a happy result has obtained thereby."

MONSTROUS PROPOSALS.

About two years ago (writes the Calcutta correspondent of the Times) the Bengal Government ap-pointed a commission, with Mr. Ware Edgar as president, to inquire into the cause of the increase in the consumption of spirituous liquous among the people, and to suggest a remedy. Afterspending semo mouths in visiting various parts of the province, the Commission submitted a report enumer-ating the following as the chief causes. First, the waning influence of social and caste restrictions: secondly, the increase in the purchasing power of the lower classes; third, the suspension in 1878 of the lower classes; third, the suspension in 1878 or the old rule limiting the capacity of the still; fourth, the excessive number of licensed shops; fifth, the improper selection of sites for shops. They recommended the establishment of central distilleries in large towns, fixing a maximum capacity for the stills in each District, and a minimum price for the cheapest sorts of liquor, the reconstitution of the Excise establishments, and the exercise of greater care in the selection of retail exercise of greater care in the selection of retail shops. The Lieutenant-Governor referred the report to the Board of Revenue. After a delay of 18 months, final orders have at last been passed and published in the Government Gazette. The recommendations of the Commission are aimost entirely approved. Central distilleries will be established in certain large towns and the re-maining suggestions will have a full and fair trial.

APRIL 2 .- DURHAM SUNDAY CLOSING.

This bill passed committee without amendment.

Mr. E. Clarke (Con., Plymouth) was about to propose an amendment to Clause 2; but it was cinted out by the Chairman of the Committee (Mr. pointed out by the Chairman of the Committee Courtney) that the hon, member had attached his amendment to the wrong line, and that it, therefore, could not be put.

APRIL 5.—THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN BASUTOLAND.

Mr. OSBORNE MORGAN, in answer to Mr. M'Arthur, read a statement shewing that a successful endeavour had been made to put a stop to the introduction of brandy into Basutoland, and it was hoped shortly to check the introduction of drink into that country, which for five years had paralysed the action of a civilised government. They had every reason to believe that the authorities of the Cape Colony and of the Free State had given their support to the policy.

DURHAM SUNDAY CLOSING BILL.-We learn that Mr. T. Fry had the greatest difficulty in keeping "a House" on Friday at dinner-time, as the Whips wanted a "count" and would de nothing to help him. We hope our Temperance friends in Parliament will speak their minds and, if necessary, Parliament will speak their minds and, if necessary, treat the Whips and the Government with reciprocal attention.

The Intoxicating Liquors (Sale to Children) Bill is for committee on Tuesday, the 13th inst., and already notice of opposition has been given. Mr. James Stevensen's resolution in favour of total Sunday closing has the first place on the paper on Friday, the 30th.

Mr. G. Balfour and Colonel Hughes-Hallett have given ratios of opposition to the Sunday Liquor iven notice of opposition to the Sunday Liquor given notice of opposition to the Sunday Liquor Bill on the committee stage, and among the amend-ments to be moved is one by Visconnt Cranborne providing that the Act shall expire at the end of the year 1891.

Observes the Echo :- "It is stated that, though the Government intend handing over the licence for the sale of intexicating drinks to the bodies which will be created under the County Boards Bill, they will not entirely part with the control of the licences. An arrangement is suggested by which a fixed sum for every liquer licence shall accrue to the Crown, and the right be granted to the local boards to put on what increase they think fit for local purposes. This is electro-plated breakfast cruet as a token of regard the system now in operation in the United States. There the initial rate for liquor licences of every laboured for four years.

kind is fixed in Congress, and each Stats adds what kind is used in Congress, and each Stats adds what it thinks fit for local taxation. Thus in Chicago, with its 12,000 saloons and drinking bars, the revenue of the town is increased by £250,000 per annum, as the authorities have fixed a local rate of £20 per annum on each licensed house."

GOOD TEMPLARY.

[From the Birmingham Times.]

The Good Templar Order, the " Freemssenry of Teetotalism," was planted in this kingdom by its present English chief, Mr. Joseph Malins, at Birpresent English enter, Mr. Joseph Mallis, at Dirmingham, which remains its head-quarters in this country. This society is not a sick benefit or burial club, its fees (Is. 6d. on entrance and Is. per quarter afterwards) being, of course, too low to embrace the beneficiary feature. Members must be formally proposed and elected, and on admission must pledge themse abstinence from the takin intoxicants as beverages. pledge themselves to life-long the taking or giving beverages. The service admission is not made known to outsiders, so that its mystery may make a deepsr impression upon the candidate. No "scenic" or red-hot poker effects are however attempted, as is supposed by many of the uninitiated. Young people of both sexes who have completed their 15th year may be admitted to the privileges of the Order. The admitted to the privileges of the Order. The Order is religious, yet unsectarian; its object is strict Temperance, its spirit beneficent; its privileges equal, and its membership worldwide. The Lodge meetings are confined to members, who sit around the room as in certain religious class meatings. Every morphs its around. scriber and legislator, with equal rights in every respect. The formal business is sometimes light, respect. The formal business is sometimes high and then debates, essays, and music at once educate the members and enliven the proceedings. To convey some idea of the entertainments provided by the members at these meetings for their mutual bensfit, we quote a few from the quarterly programmes printed in the "Official Hand-book, for this District. "Night with the American poe programmes printed in the "Official Hand-book," for full bilstict. No Stimulants for Children -Bra Willson's letter in your last issue calls to mind your extract from the "Book of Health" in yours of March 29, from the "Book of Health" in yours of March 29, and with which I am rather surprised to find Bro. Wilson saying, "I quite agree." I commend him much for his decision and plain speaking with the doctor, but as he (the doctor) did not after all supply the brandy, and the child is fast recovering without it, I take it as a proof that he did not think it really necessary, but that it was intended, as it usually is, as an experiment. And it is by no means certain that if the child had take. It is would have recovered so fast. I it it would have recovered so fast. I have no quarrel with the extract from the "Book of Health" till near the end, where it says, "Stimulants (meaning drinks) are amongst the most potent and valuable agents as medicines in the hands of the physician!" Of this there is no proof, at the price of the control of the contro as there is not one single disease, for the cure of which the highest medical anthorities are agreed that this class of stimulants is necessary; and they have been experimenting with them long enough; at least, so thinks another, who is a Rechabite as well as Good Templar.—G. COLLIN, P.D.C.T.

A traveller had put up at an hotel where the accommodation was of the poorest but the charges, of the highest. Without wasting any words he paid the bill, but sent for the landlord who, feeling paid the bill, but sent for the landord who, reeling sundry misgivings, approached with trepidation But instead of giving vent to his displeasure, the traveller threw himself on the landlord's neck and embraced him tenderly. Our startled best baving at last recovered his breath, inquired the reason of this affectionate treatment. "Fare thee well, my good friend," replied the guest, "forget me not, for we part never to meet again!"

THE

A PROJECT NEEDING SUPPORT, AND DESERVING IT.

APPEALS for help of one kind and another are so numerous that the most generous must turn a deaf ear to a very large proportion of them, and yet, with the growing grievance of "so many calls," the cry is, "still they come." But we are not now starting upon a new begging expedition, nor, indeed, are we about to ask auyone's charitable aid. We are We are only going to appeal to a somewhat limited and exclusive circle, and to invite those gentlemen who, whether living in London or occasionally coming up to the Metropolis from the provinces, are at all of the nature called clubbable, to become members of the London Central Club. We are very sorry we cannot extend our invita-tion to ladies. Why clubs should be the exclusive resort of only one half of humanity we can hardly say, but so it is, and it is doubtless an evidence of the backwardness of our civilisation.

most commodious and well-appointed institution, occupying a spacious and massive building of six large floors in the very heart of the great city. It has been in existence about two years, and was started with considerable spirit and pluck, after the somewhat disastrous failure of a similar effort. The cry went forth that a good London club could not possibly pay without making profits out of the sale of drink. The answer was "Then more shame for the Temperance community if they do not determine to make it pay." Several thousand pounds have been expended in fitting and furnishing the London Central Club, and in paying the expenses of starting and of waiting for an accession of members, and those two years have been an anxious and arduous time for the founders. But at last, by a great effort, and by the munificence mainly of a few good Temperance friends who are far too heavily pressed, capital has been subscribed to clear off all past liabilities, and to make a new start for a future, and, we trust, a prosperous career.

We do not appeal, therefore, for gifts. All we ask for now is that Temperance friends who are able will become members of the club. The sub-scription for town members residing within 10 miles, or having daily business in London, is two guineas per annum, payable in half-yearly instalments; while for country members, residing beyond that distance, the annual subscription is only half-a-guinea; and there is no entrance fee. The advantages are that members entrance fee. The advantages are that members have a house of call where they can invite friends, make business appointments, obtain well-served refreshments at very reasonable charges, read the papers and magazines, play at billiards, chess, draughts, &c., write letters, leading articles, or poetry if they like, in a quiet writing-room, have a good "wash and brush up," and—tell it not—even indulge in a quiet tracks in recited ensures. in a quiet smoke in retired quarters. Surely this is a good return for so small a subscription.

But we press the matter on higher grounds than the mere return of value for money. We have other clubs to compete with: Political clubs, drinking clubs, gambling clubs, aristoctuos, drinking ciuos, gamoling ciubs, aristo-cratic class clubs, &c., &c., whereas this is bond fide a Temperance club. Many of its members are not pledged teetotalers, but they gladly join and cheerfully conform to its rules, and thus new habits are formed and practical Tem-perance teaching prayils. Wa need haudie thus new habits are formed and practical Tem-perance teaching prevails. We need hardly say how readily money flows in to a party political club. Ought not the rich men of the Temperance movement to be equally ready to support a Temperance club? Such a club should be the central meeting point of the leaders of every section of the Temperance movement, of their conferences and councils; and we have stood by this club from its be-ginning till now with this feeling—that it would be a disgrace to so great a movement as onrs, after once such an effort had been made, and temporarily repulsed by the drink interest, if it could be said that the Temperance reformers of England had not sufficient public spirit and cohesion amongst them to make such a club an established fact and an assured success.

THE SALE OF LIQUORS TO CHILDREN

Mr. Conveenre scored a good stroke of success on Friday, 2nd inst., the same date that was signalised by Sir J. Pease's Curtailment of Sunday Liquor-selling. The provisions of Mr. Conybeare's Bill were stated in the Watchword last week. They prohibit publicans from selling to children under 13 years of age, prescribing a penalty up to 20s. for the first offence, and 40s. for subsequent offences.

The proposal emanated from a committee of villisation.

The London Central Club, be it known, is a W. I. Palmer is one of the leading spirits, with Mr. George Calvert, acting as accretary with his accustomed zeal and energy. An influential conference recently held at Exeter Hall countenanced the effort, after receiving a report of a public-house census which had been taken by the members of the Tolmers Square Help Myself Society and other friends on a Saturday night between the hours of 9 and 12. It shewed that 48,805 men, 30,784 women, and 7,019 children entered 200 drinking houses in three hours, Those 200 houses thus enumerated were considered to be fairly representative of the 10,000 other licensed premises in the Metropolis, and it was estimated that in London some 250,000 boys and girls are thus becoming habituated to the surroundings of the public-house, breathing its vitiated at-mosphere, witnessing its awful sights, listening to its demoralising talk, and imbibing its dangerous drinks.

The statement of the committee avers that the state of London in regard to this crying evil is unhappily not exceptional. A Saturday night drinking census of the City of Bristol in 1881, shewed that in four hours 12,000 children entered 900 drinking houses. And what is true of London and Bristol may also be re-garded as true of the majority of unpopulous cities and towns.

With such facts and figures before earnest Christian men and women, what could they do less than urge forward immediate legislation on the lines of Mr. Conybeare's bill? It was naturally anticipated that the proposal would be met by the old cry of "interference with the liberty of the subject," and the committee therefore published precedents for such interference, and reminded those who want to carry the useful doctrine of liberty to the extreme of licentiousness that by Act Parliament no child under 13 years can be employed full time in a factory or mine; by Act of Parliament every child under 13 must attend school; and by Act of Parliament no child under 12 may pledge at a pawn-shop. These regulations suggested how unreasonable it would be to hinder legislation designed to protect young children from the contamination of drinkshops, where all that is precious in child nature may be destroyed.

A long debate ensued, in which a great deal of very small talk was indulged in, but in the small hours of Saturday morning the second reading was adopted by 132 votes for, 115 against, a majority of 17. We heartily pray that this measure may pass through committee unmained, and become law in its entirety.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

SIR JOSEPH PEASE'S Bill for the curtailment of Sunday liquor selling passed its second reading on Friday, 2nd inst., in a rather small House, there being 101 votes for and 41 against, giving a majority of 60. Only three members are reported to have spoken-Lord Oranborne, Mr. Llewellyn, and Sir J. Pease, and the announcement of the majority was received with laughter and cheers. The "swells" were for the most part away dining, and were somewhat surprised on returning in evening dress towards 10 o'clock to find that considerable progress had been made in actual legislation. Lord Randolph was par-ticularly chagrined, and vented himself in characteristic fashion. Lord Cranborne tried to make an effective speech against the Bill, commencing, of course, as opponents usually do, by declaring that "the proposal was one with which he had a very great deal of sympathy." He wanted to put off all Temperance legisla-tion till the Government might introduce it with the Local Government Bill. And then, doubtless, be would do his best to render nugatory any really Temperance element that mendation of Loc might appear. He made one suggestion that Superintendents.

should not be lost sight of, namely, that a great deal of Sunday drunkenness was attributable to Saturday night drinking, and this pointed rather to a Saturday Night Closing Bill. Very good, my Lord Cranborne, we shall look for an amendment from you in this direction when the Bill reaches committee. He would support a Bill for shortening the hours of labour of women in public-houses; but this could be attained without closing the houses. Yes, Lord Cranborne and his friends would doubtless support anything that is not proposed to be done in preference to what is in a Bill before the House. But Sunday Closing would shorten the hours of labour for many thousand men, women, and children who are not employed in public-houses; and more than this, it would ensure them better results for their labour in increased home comfort and happiness; so Lord Cranborne may as well come up to the very moderate and halting measure of Sir J. Pease, and think more of the welfare of the people and less of the vested interests of the brewers and publicans.

We have said that the measure is moderate and halting. We append a statement of the proposed changes, prefacing it by shewing what are

THE EXISTING REGULATIONS. The hours during which public-houses are at present open on Sunday are as follows :---In the metropolitan district-

From 1 o'clock p.m. to 3 o'clock p.m. From 6 o'clock p.m. to 11 o'clock p.m.

Elsewhere-From 12.30 o'clock p.m. to 2.30 o'clock p.m. From 6 o'clock p.m. to 10 o'clock p.m.

THE PROPOSED CHANGES are as follows :-

It is proposed by this Bill to reduce the evening hours of opening IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT, so that houses may remain open-

From 7 o'clock p.m. until 10 o'clock p.m. And in places OUTSIDE THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT, but within the metropolitan police district, or a town or populous place as defined by the Act of 1874, so that houses may remain open-

From 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock p.m.

In places outside the metropolitan district but within the metropolitan police district or a town or populous place, it is proposed to prohibit any sale of intoxicating liquor during the hours of opening, except the sale of beer, &c., for consumption off the premises.

In the country it is proposed that publichouses should not be opened at all on Sunday, but neither in town nor country is it proposed to alter the present law as regards a bond fide traveller, or as relates to railway refreshment

The effect of placing such a measure as this in competition with Mr. Stevenson's Bill is to suggest that public-house trading on Sundays ought to be and is encouraged by Act of Parliament.

The curtailment provided by this measure is in the right direction. It is well to be thankful for small mercies. Like a billiardmarker, or a cricket-scorer, Sir Joseph Pease has endeavoured to mark the advance of public opinion on the Statute Book, but with great respect for his good intentions, we think he has scored with a strong leaning to the publican in terest, and that he has altogether miscalculated and under-rated the widespread public desire for total closing. It remains for earnest-minded reformers to continue their good efforts, and not to rest until the evil traffic is stopped on Sundays, as other trades are, and on week-days also wherever public opinion demands protection from its withering and blighting curse.

THE G.W.C.T. REQUESTS us to call the attention of all Lodges to his official notice—re the recom-mendation of Lodge Deputies and Lodge Electoral

THE REMARKABLE EXPERIENCES of five Good Templar sailors, who were icebound for over a fortnight in the Baltic Sea and suffered many trials, are nerrated in another column, and are well worth reading.

MR. W. S. CAINE, M.P. for Barrow-in-Furness, will be an acquisition to our forces in Parliament will be an acquisition to our forces in remission we most heartily rejoice to welcome. Both on personal grounds and for the sake of our cause, Mr. Caine's re-election will afford genuine satisfaction to all sections of Temperance Reformers.

THE BENGAL GOVERNMENT are just perpetrating an strocious job by legalising State manufactories of drunkards. It is done on the plea of reducing intemperance, but the Government Distilleries and their retail agencies selected with "greater care," will be simply a big network of State officialism for making the natives drunk and absorbing their hard earnings. We print elsewhere the statement of the Times correspondent.

* BRO, THE REV. H. J. BOYD, D.C.T., secretary of the British Temperance League, writes as follows:
"In your excellent leader of April 5 there is an error that should be corrected. The writer says:
'Witness the declaration passed at the late conference at Sheffield, of the Northern Branch of the ference at Shetheld, of the Northern Branch of the National Temperance Federation, which resolved that "A mere transfer authority from the maigstrates to Town Councils, or to anybody proposed to be created under a Local Government Bill, would rather increase the evil complained of. Such resolution was drawn by the Executive of the British Temperance League, and placed before the Drusin temperance League, and pisced before the conference; but as there was a difference of opinion, and the time for debate having been exhausted, at the request of several friends the resolution was withdrawn."

THE PUNISHMENT OF PROFAMITY IS SO rare an THE PUNISIMENT OF PROFASITY is so rare an occurrence that it is worth noting as a warning both to old and young. A Mr. George Bliss, of Beckenham, was summoned by a neighbour for using profane language. The proceedings were taken under Act 19, George II., c. 21, sec. 1, which provides a penalty of 1s. if the offender be a day labourer, common seldier, or common seaman; 2s. for overy other person below the degree of a gentleman; and 5s. it of or above the degree of a gentleman. Mr. Bliss was fixed 2s. and 1s. costs, thus having not only to pay the penalty but to gentleman; and 5a. if of or above the degree of a gentleman. Mr. Blies was fixed 2a. and 1s. costs, thus having not only to pay the penalty but to suffer for the remainder of his days from the odium of a judicial decision to the effect that he is a person below the degree of a gentleman. After this we shall certainly do our best, both as journalists and individually, to avoid the use of profane lauguage, and hope our all contemporaries will do the same. The newspapers reporting the case do not even inform us what words coostituted the offence, for fear, we presume, that they might be siciollarly fear, we presume, that they might be similarly fined. Had this unfortunate man taken the pledge of a Juvenile Templar, who knows but he might have attained the degree of a gentleman, and his bliss might have been complete?

To THE CHILDREN'S RESCUE .- Pressure will doubtless be needed to guard against the mutilation of Mr. Conybeare's Bill. A great effort will be made of Mr. Conybeare's Bill. A great effort will be made to prevent its application to children fetching beer for their parents. Letters and memorials elould be sent to members of Parliament urging the support of the complete Bill, and asking them to vote against any such mutilation in committee. If such an exception be made to the Bill, it will open the way for wholesale excuse and evasion. The publican will always assume that parents have sent the children. Our M.P.'s way for wholesale excuse and evasion. The publican will always assume that parents have sent the children. Our M.P.'s will not suffer in their vertebral department by the aid of a little gentle and healthy atimulus which no one can supply so well as their own active constituents. A little qulet, plodding work of this kind, writing letters, preparing memorials, getting signatures, and such like, may do more real good than talking on public platforms, and seneding no end of energy in points of order and spending no end of energy in points of order or personal squabbles. Here, then, is an oppor-tunity for doing useful work. Who will rise to the tunity for doing useful work. Who will rise to the occasion? Every friend of the children should do something. If our sisters cannot vote they can write; they can influence others; they can send petitions from children and from children's parents. We hope that an earnest effort will be made, and that this small but most veluable measure will be carried safely through, and speedily become the law of our land.

"Oh for a Lodge in some vast wilderness," said Shakespeare. Bombardier James Hardy, of the 8th Brigade Royal Artillery, which has just been removed from Hong Kong to Ceylon, writes from Fort Frederick, Trincomalee, saying:—

"I was rather taken back a day or two after my artival here to find a Good Templats' Lodgo in a jungle. It was after sunset when lest out to find the Lodge, and after walking some time through the jungle I saw a lamp suspended from a cocoa-nut tree, its brilliancy illuminating the jungle around, the lamp being marked in glaring letters with the inscription Until Lodge I.O.G.T. I feel that such energy on the part of the pioneers who first plauted a Lodge in such an isolated spot in Ceylon is highly commendable."

OUESTION ANSWERED.

Question.—Is it requisite for the Bible to be closed after the business of the Lodge is over, and when the programme commences?

Answer.—No. The Bible should not be closed. When the proceedings are unsuited to an open Bible, the Lodge itself should be closed.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The business capacity of the new House of Commons is surprising to many, forming as it does a marked contrast to some of the proceedings of the late Parliament. A few of the "old fossils" which have found their way into the House, protest that the pace is altogether too fast, that measures are not properly discussed, and the fact of any Bill being forwarded a stage during the dinner hour is siroply monstrous. Such were the complaints made on Friday, April 2, when members strolled loisurely into the House late in the evening and discured into the House late in the evening and discured that Sir J. Pease's Sunday Closing Bill had been read a second time, that the Durham Bill had passed through Committee, several other Bills advanced? a stage, and the House in the midst of a dirension on Mr. Compbeare's Intoxicating Liquors (Sale to Children) Bill.

Altogether the proceedings of the evening were eminently satisfactory, not only because of the success obtained, but also for the diversity of opinion expressed, as this clearly shewed who are friends and who are opponents. The right hon. member for South Paddington was indignant at the course the House of Common was taking, "harassing individual liberty and laying down what the working-classes are to do at every hour of the day." The leader of the Opposition declared that such a law would be an "intolerable missance to the working classes." And so the tale went on. The glory of England was departing and we were fast degenerating from the independence once, beasted of, to something worse than slavery.

It is curious to note, however, that many of the representatives of working-class constituencies took a very different view of the matter, and boldly affirmed that Mr. Conybeare's Bill would be a beek to the land. Parliament years ago admitted that it was the duty of the nation to see that its children were cducated. But the good many receive at school is counter-balanced by the evil influences of the public-house, the associations of which are belt demoralising and degrading. It is from the influences of these surroundings this Bill is intended to protect our children, and I sincerely hope it will be passed. If it is to be amended, I hope it will be in making its provisions more stringent. The prohibitive age should be 16,

There are many things in this world I cannot understand, and one is how a man can have the cause of Temperane at heart, preclaim he is anxious to see the drink traffic curtailed, and, if possible, abolished; and yet whenever any proposal to this end is brought forward he feels it his duty to oppose it. To me this seems a curious method of helping on a good cause.

The St. James's Gazette has been pouring out the vials of its wrath on Mr. Compbeare and his eadquitors, affirming that the nation is becoming tired of such "grandmotherly legislation" as they are proposing. This self-constituted champion of the rights of Englishmen says that the "working classes will not endure this intertrenee with their domestic concerns; it is administrative tynany, the violence of a clique, and is already proveking reaction. The good sense of Englishmen revolts from the notion that the freedom of all is to be restrained by a petty, meddling, and harassing despotism." Unfortunately for the St. James's, matters appear to be just the reverse, and everywhere we hear expressions of pleasare and gratitude at the turn legislation is taking with regard to social fallitirs.

Some of the leading Temperance workers in Central Hackney recently sent a letter to Sir Wilfrid Lawen, asking him to come forward as a candidate for that constituency at the next election. Sir Wilfrid, however, whilst appreciating the cordiality of the invitation, is not disposed to accept it, feeling sure that no difficulty will be experienced in finding a man who will unite the Liberal party, and secure the seat when the next contest takes place. At the same time, Tomperance reformers are very anxious to see their leader back again at St. Stephen's, and trust that similar answers to the above will not be made to every invitation sout to him from constituencies.

The April number of the Band of Hope Chronicl of Chronicl of the written by Sister S. Ress, Superintendent of Bands of Hope and Juvenile Temples, and gives a most enceuraging account of the work carried on by her among the native and white population. Our sister says:—

"We have either a Band of Hope or Jurenile Temple in most towns, but we are very isolated our only means of communication being by letter, for one society is usually 50 miles from the next. I have under my care about 400 young people, white and coloured, which are divided into 14 bands. The work is very upinil owing to the want of goed superintendents and materiels, such as books, tracts, and music; but it amply repays all the time and trouble when one considers that the young of to-day, rightly trained, will be valuable Temperance workers in the future. The native work is most interesting. I have a large band of 110 members, we march or sing once a month; and also gave an ontertainment interspersed with blackbeard lessons from the Ohronicle. You should see their bright cager eyes and white teetth gleaning when they answer questions correctly. I should be see thankful if any of your readers, who have spare copies of services of songs, tracts, leafsts, &c., would kindly forward them to me. They would be most welcome, and would be por our work so much. We are really too poor to buy new ones."

If any members can comply with Sister Resa's request, I hope they will. A pound weight may be sent by book-post for one shilling.

Two memorials are to be inveiled on Good Friday. One at Nunhead Gemetery, erected to the memory of our late Bro. George Thornoloc; and the other at the corner of Great College-street, Kentish Town, where a memorial drinking fountain is being placed to the memory of Jabez Inwards. Both were true "heroes in the strife," and their names are hooured in many homes.

Bro. Chriss Willson's letter in last week's Warchwond reminds ne of an incident which camnder my notice some time ago. One of our sisters was dangerensly ill. and both doctor and nurse said she would have to take "something" if she was to get well again. The husband, also a member of the Order, was told this, but he declined to purchase the "something," stating that he believed nilk and beet-ten would be more likely to give strength to his wife than all the "somethings" put together. These remadies were tried, with the result this our sister gradually regained her health, and to-day is pronounced "a wonder" by the doctor.

A Sunday-school teacher, writing recently to one of his scholars who was just going out to business, gave him the following excellent advice.—Be always neat, and never go in for anything "found," Leave the fast fellows, with when you are sure to ome in contact, to their own devices. Have no more association with them than you are compelled. The City of London, and in fact every large town, is full of these fellows, who never did either themselves or anyone else any good. Remember in this as in other departments of life, "a man is known by the company he keeps." I am glad you are already an abstainer as that is one possible danger removed out of your way. If I could live three lives, I would live three

Dr. F. C. Coley, of Newcastle, has sent some recommendations to the Press, which he suggests should be adopted in places where a measure of local option would be practically inoperative. The chief changes he proposes are:—That all places where intoxicating liquor is sold to the public be closed at 9 p.m. in large towns, and at 8.50 p.m. in the country. The refreshment rooms at railway stations should be allowed to be open for the use of passengers only us at present, and that persons engaging hosts at hotels be supplied with whatever they might require at any time. He follows up these suggestions with several arguments for and flowing herbibliotic is the mark aimed at, we look upon each additional hour during which the sale of drink is forbidden as a step in the right directions.

Ir is announced that the conference on the subject of the abuses in councetion with the sale of alcoholic liquors to the fishermen of the North Sea will meet at The Hague about the middle of June.

FREE LANCE,

GOOD TEMPLAR SAILORS ICE-BOUND.

Bro. W. Woodall, W.C.T., of Hull, sends us the following interesting particulars of the triumph of Good Templar principles through great and dire

I am pleased to publish through the columns of the Watchword the following details which were experienced by five of the members of the Kingston-upon-Hull Lodge. No. 210. I think that the depriva-tions, the intense cold, and the perilous position of the crew evidence most strengly that under any circumstances Temperance principles are best, and I am proud of the five members of our Order for the following, which I will relate in the chief officer's own werds.

He said the steam ship Cato, belonging to Thomas Wilson, Sons, and Co. (the owners of over Thomas Wilson, Sonis, and Co. (the owners of over 60 vessels), left Hull on February 28, bound for Stettin up the Baltic. She had on beard five members of the Kingston-upon-Hull Ledge, I.O.G.T., of which I was one. Amid the smiles and waving of handkerchiefs of our wives and families we made straight away down the Hunber, and went if a good season will up on a shall the and went at a good speed until we reached the Helman, where we encountered a strong gale, and was driven back about 60 miles, the gale moderated, and fair headway was made until about 20 miles from Hershell Lighthouse; here we fell in with great blocks of ice, which were moving about in such force as to make our position dangerous. The cold was intense; the water would freeze a foot in one night; every rope, spar, and everything on board was glazed over with ice. The top rigging having been blown away, I had to send one of the crew (a brother) up the icy coils of rope, and when he came down, so numb and void of feeling was he, came down, so numb and void of feeling was be, that the captain offered him a glass of grog. I was afraid for a moment that he might yield, but my fears were groundless, he asked for a jing of coffee. We proceeded a little further and sighted five other ateamship approaching from Gothenburg in com-pany with an ice breaker; we fell in with eight outward bound ateamers at Wingo, four of which turned in at this port, but the master of the Cato determined to face further up the Baltic, and we determined to face further up the Battic, and we worked our way through the ice as best we could until we reached and passed Copenhagen. On March 5 we again fell in with heavy ice, and on the 6th were completely fast. Our good ship Cate, the vessel that had weathered many a storm, and her care, who had each scene the had account. and her crew, who had seen many dangers, was hemmed in on all sides by a deep thickness of ice, hemmed in on all sides by a deep thickness of ice, for how long God alone at that time knew. Our provisions were scanty, and everything seemed to have a black outlook, Day after day amid the wilderness of ice such man only had seven ounces of black hard biscuit for every 24 hours. We never longed so much for our Lodge office supper, we knew you were having, and that perhaps some of our own flesh and blood were enjoying themselves there, little dreaming that we had to contend with intense celd, and with little to a fact that the contend with intense celd, and with little to act. About four miles from our shir three little to eat. About four miles from our ship three other ateamers fast in the ice were "stuck." The mate and eight others of the crew, took the "boat," other ateamers fast in the ice were "stuck." The mate and eight others of the crew, took the "boat," and went over the ice to seek provisions from these steamers, for Jack Tar generally shares and shares alike in difficulties. On their way one of our brother Templars fell through a soft place in the ice into the sea; after some difficulty he was got out, and in a moment his clothes were dried into crystalised ice, not a comfortable suit no how. We got a little packing (food) but the s.s. Dogma had to find 'prog' (food) for 40 persons from other ships fast up as were ourselves, ttook the bext's crew six hours going and coming the four miles, and so exhausted were they that the beat was left behind, and they ventured on foot over the ice, which if the sun appears softens in places and in they flop (fall). After their resturn we devoured our share of scraps (catables) and then it was rest awhile. The master sent grog round for the starring crew, but the five Good Templars to quench their thinst aucked the enow. We were so fast until March 20, or a little over a fortnight. In fetching back the beat all hands flopped into the sea, and were wet more or less, but thank God all were saved. On March 21 a hungry and wretched it such a such a such extreme the experiences of the Cato crew, as crew arrived at Stettin.

However, when the ship arrived in our port on Thursday, the 1st inst., I am afraid our demonstrations of pleasure to see again our rescued bretbren to pressure to see again for reserved interference for contractions one more to their (weeping for joy) families, would make us appear like the proverbial April character, but the joyous welsome at our Lodge meeting made up in a great measure for all the trials and deprivations of the past few

MISSION REVIVAL WORK.

RADCLIFFE.-The 14th anniversary of the Radcliffe Lodge, being on March 28, the members celebrated the same by holding a mission in the Co-operative Hall, Radeliffe, from March 21 to 28 inclusive. Mr. William Forbes, of London, was secured as missioner, and the various meetings was secured as missioner, and the various meetings were presided over by the following gentlemen; William Barlow, Esr., Rev. H. A. Starkie, M.A. (rector), Bre. Rev. W. T. Stonestreet, Rev. W. L. Tonge, George E. Anson, Esq., of Manchestor, Rev. H. W. James; and on Saturday, Mr. Robert Leake, M.P. for the division, when Mr. Forbes lectured on "Canada and the United States." On Sunday, 28b, Mr. G. M. Harvey, Baptist minister, presided in the afternoon, and Mr. Forbes in the expanier, when he took for his articles the svening, when he took for his subject "Heaven and how to get there." On Monday 29th a conversazione was held. Glees were given by the choir and some first-class talent was engaged. Mr. William Hodgson presided. Bro. J. G. Tolton, D.C.T., took part in the proceedings, and the daughters of Mr. Leake favoured by their presence. An augmented choir sang at each meeting and their services were greatly appreciated by all who attended.

CURISTCHURCH.—The third entertainment for working classes was held at the Church Institute on Saturday evening, April 3, in connection with the Hepe of Twynham Lodge. There was a ful the Hope of Twynham Lodge. There was a full attendance, Bro. Rev. Lowe presiding. The entertainment, which was well received, lasted nearly three hours, and the programme included nearly three hours, and the programme included songs, readings, and recitations, by Sisters S. Horne, Lawrence, Lowe, Mann, E. and A. Tizard, and Watton; Eros. Frizzell, Harris, March, G. H. and J. Marshall, Mott, Moyle, Read, Spong, and Stay; and Master E. Mott. During the evening, the dialogue, "Maggie's Vigil," from the WATCHWOED CHRISTMAS NUMBER, was given amid applause.
Most of the items on the programme were, as usual, Temperance pieces, and doubtless had some good effect upon the audience.

EAST SOMERSET .- Some few menths since the Executive formed themselves into a Mission Committee for the purpose of immediately working the District. A fund has been formed by each Lodge making a quarterly subscription, either by collection in Lodge or at the public meeting arranged by the committee, the committee taking the responsibilty of all expenses, speakers, and programme. The committee has held meetings, and been successful in resuscitating Lodges at Wrington and Timsful in resuscitating Louges at Wrington and Amst-bury the former having now a capital Juvenile Temple in connection with the Lodge. Well attended public meetings at Carlingcott, Mid Somernorton, and Chilcompton. At the latter Somernorton, and Chilcompton. At the latter place the D.C.T., Bro. J. S. Sturges, instituted a Lodge of 12 members, which Lodge is steadily a Lodge of 12 members, which Lodge is steadily increasing. The committee early in the winter months made a "Grand Charge" upon Portishead (which place they have unsuccessfully tried to capture before), but this time with the G.W.C.T. as their general, and after a splendid public meeting, with Col. Simpson (Portishead) in the chair, Bro. J. Malins instituted The Dove Lodge, consisting of 12 members, among whom were the Sailors' Missionary as W.C.T., the schoolmaster as Sailors' Missionary as W.C.T., the schoolmaster as W.Sec., and the station master as W.Chap. With such members there is not much wender that we have since received a report of membership treble the number at starting. For more than 12 months we have been without a Lodge at Frome but last week our G.W.C.T. was amounced to deliver an address.

The H.M.Committee had well research the committee had well liver an address. The H.M.Committee had well posted the town, and distributed numerous bills and tracts during the previous week at meetings week. The D.C.T. (Bro. J. S. Sturges) has instituted a new Lodge to meet in Bath on Saturday nights, at his school, Lo Studio, having 13 members.

MANCHESTER .- For some time past the attenlance of members at the Manchester Pionear Lodge has been but scanty, owing in a great measure, no doubt, to the several recent removals, each time leaving behind some members who could not follow the Lodge to its new room. However, the "faithwho attended well to the meetings reful few solved to make a united effort to win back the old members, and with that aim held a re-union tea party on April 5, tickets being personally presented to all whose whereabouts could be ascertained. About 30 sat down to a very plentiful table of good About 30 sac down to a very plentian tools of good things, after which a short meeting was held, pre-sided over by Bro. J. G. Tolton, D.C.T. Songs, readings, and recitations were given by Sisters Golden, M. E. Jonos, Mrs. Farrington, and Miss Golden, M. E. Jones, Mrs. Farrington, and Albse H. Jones, and a very hearty rote of congratulation was passed to Bro. H. J. Jones, it being his birth-day and the 15th anniversary of his connection with the Lodge. At the close a session was held to re-admit several old members, and more promised to join next week. Bro. and Sister R. J. Jones generously provided everything at their own expense.

HISTORICAL GLEANINGS.

COMPILED BY BRO. JOHN B. COLLINGS, HOR. G. W. S.

Oliver Cromwell, the day after the battle of Dunbar, speaking to the assembled Parliament, after ascribing glory to the God of battle, said:— "Disown yourselves, but own your authority and improve it to curb the proud and the insolent, and such as would disturb the tranquillity of England, such as would disturb the tranquility of Engand, though under what specious pretences whatever; relieve the oppressed, hear the groans of the peor prisoners of England, be pleased to reform the abuses of all professions; and if there be any one that makes many port to make a few rich, that suits not a commonwealth."

Baron Larry, Napoleon's favourite army sur-geon, said that the 6,000 survivors who returned safely from that terribly fatal Egyptian campaign, were all abstainers from ardent drinks. "Drink brandy and die," is a common expression in India, Hot climates and alcohol are decidedly incompatible.

One of the Kings of Persia sent a very eminent physician to Mahommed, who, remaining a long time in Arabia without practice, at last grew weary, and presenting himself before the prophet, he thus addressed him:—"Those who had a right to command me sent me here to prachad a right to command me sent me nere to pro-tise physic; but since I came I have had no oppor-tunity of shewing my eminence in this profession, tunity of shewing my eminence in this profession, as no one seems to have any occasion for me." Mahommed replied, "The custom of our country is this; we eat but when we are hungry, and slways leave off while we have an appetite for more." The physician answerced, "That is the way to be always in health, and to render the physician useless"; and so saying he took his leave and returned to Persia.

Extract from Poem by Rev. Thos. Washbourne, D.D. (born 1606).

Cannot friends meet but they drink to excess?

Must all your mirth conclude with drunkenness? Accursed be he brought it in fashion first; Before, ye were content to quench your thirst, And not exceed three or four cups at most; Now you carouse till all your reason's lost, And like to overheated Dutchmen, ye Drink till ye fight, and fall to snicker suce. He that invites his friend to a drunken feast. Keeps out the man, and entertains the beast; A feast 'tis not, but a base Bacchanal, Where the beast man a sacrifice doth fall. Worse than a beast he is, for no beast will Be made to drink a drop more than his fill. But man his belly makes a tun, his brain A bog, and drinks till up he comes again. Vile man, whom God next angels did create. Below a brute thus to degenerate! For shame! give o'er this most unmanlike sin, Which too long has thy daily practice been. Redeem thine honour, drowned in ale and wine, And thy soul, settled on the less, refine. When thy debauched life thou shalt correct, Thou happier days in England mayst expect.

DRINK AND INSANITY. Dr. Shepherd

(The superintendent of Colney Hatch), Says that 40 per cent. of the patients admitted in 1876 were lunatics through the influence of intoxicating drinks.

Dr. B. W. Richardson, F.R.S.

"We know now, scientifically, that alcohol excites the mental power unduly, then depresses it into melancholy, and so often brings it to complete aberration; that in some of our institutions for the insane, as many as 40 per cent. of those who enter per year are made to enter from this cause alone."

Committee's Report of Brushfield Asylum. Guildford, 1879.

"Our experience of late years confirms the evidence of other metropolitan asylums that intemperance and dissolute life, directly or indirectly, furnish about 40 per cent. of the asylum immates, 25 per cent. from sloohol, 10 to 15 per cent. from the consequences immediate or remote. The contessions on their discharge of very many—in some cases four-fifths or upwards of the males—prove that while earnings were high their savings were nothing, and that drink was the cause of their insanity.

Chester Chronicle.

"We understand that there are fewer inmates by 20 in the Chester Lunatic Asylum at Upton than there were at the corresponding period last year. The medical officer of the asylum attributes year. The medical officer of the asylum attributes the decrease entirely to the diminution in the statistics of drunkenness. He observes that the number of persons coming from towns where drunkenness is rife has greatly fallen off. In fact, it is from these towns alone that the diminution has taken place."

Dr. Cheeney (U.S.A.).

"There are constantly crowding into our insane asylums persons from 50 to 80 years age, who, in early life, were addicted to the use of alcoholic liquors, but who had reformed, and for 10, 20, or 30 years had never touched a drop. The injury which the liquor did their bodies seemed to have dis-appeared, being triumphed over by the full vigour of their full manhood; but when their natural force began to decrease, then the concessed mis-ohief shewed itself in insanity, clearly demon-strating that the injury to their bodies was of a premature character."

Ten Commandments

COMBINED.

Every Christian Family will buy one. Over 1,000 sold by ONE AGENT in One Month.

THE LORD'S PRAYER AND TEN COMMAND-MENTS COMBINED has been made the subject of an elaborate and costly stone engraving, size 20in, by 15in. It consists of the Lord's Prayer, embellished with upwards of ONE HUNDRED symbols and emblems of the most fitting and appropriate character. These symbols and emblems are decorated with the finest and most exquisite work that it is possible for an artist to do. The artist, HERMAN CLAUSSEN, whose name is known throughout the world, has faithfully and with high imagination and skill engraved some of the most delicate and besutiful imaginary scenes, as the spacious firmsment with Angel and Chernb attendants, the flower garlands, &c. Nothing like it has ever been produced, and probably never will be. It has cost years of toil and £1,000 in money to complete this work of art. We have spared neither money, labour, nor time in the completion of what we regard as the grandest piece of workmenship ever produced. We are the SOLE PUBLISHERS of this Prayer. It is Lithographed in tinted colours, and we can furnish copies in any quantity to agents or dealers in any part of the world.

This explanation will give you but a faint idea of the transcendent beauty and perfection of the design and execution of this engraving. It must be seen to enable you to realise what it is in its perfection.

A WORD TO AGENTS, -As there has never been anything of this kind sold in this country, the selling of it affords you a golden harvest-indeed, it is the only new thing of any importance out for agents at the present time. A large number of agents are st work selling it now, and are reporting extraordinary large sales from every quarter. You cannot fail to succeed in selling it, as the moral sentiment of this engraving ensures its success. This feature cannot be over-estimated, as it alone destines the sale of it throughout all Christendom. Every Christian man or woman will have one if they have money to buy it with. One word with regard to the pripe. The first edition of this engraving was sold at 8s, each, only a fair price for such a work of art, but in nonsequence of greater demand our former price was reduced to 2s., which is very cheap.

We are now going to sell a MILLION COPIES of this Prayer, and we make this SPECIAL OFFER to the readers of THIS PAPER. We will send a conv post paid, tocanvass with, for 1s. or 13 stamps, and if you will get up a Club of ten subscribers, and send us 10s. 6d., or 130 stamps, we will make you a present of TEN COPIES—that is, we will sand you 20 copies, post paid, for 10s. 6d., or 130 stamps. Very valuable and desirable Bonus Gifts presented gratis to agents selling large quantities. Particulars free on application.

Agents, do not fail to send for a Sample Copy of the engraving to canvass with. You can easily sell 1,000 copies in six weeks in any town in the United Kingdom, on which you can make £25 CLEAR MONEY. We guarantee satisfaction or refund the money. In regard to our responsibility, we BEFER you to the PUBLISHER, or any Paper in the United Kingdom. A Temperance Festival in a Tomb.

"On Christmas Day at about 3 p.m. the members began to assemble at our Temporary Lodge-room, viz., a dilapidated tomb of some departed Mussulman, which stands on the summit of a small hill about 500 yards to the north of Camp Sultanpore. The tomb is about 30ft. high, with a dome-like roof; the floor of the interior measures about 24ft. square, but with the aid of the temporary straw square, but with the aid of the temporary straw "tatics" the interior as now used for our meetings measures roughly 24 by, 30—rather small for the 200 odd Templars in the camp, but not to be depised under the circumstances. By 4 p.m., a goodly number of brothers having assembled, proceedings commenced by an attack on the catables provided by Lodges, which included several plum puddings of enormous size. When the inner man had been satisfied in some had been satisfied (and more than satisfied in some cases), bonfires were lit and singing commenced, the enjoyment lasting until the Camp Gun called to quarters at tattoo."—The Indian Good Templar, January, 1886.

Trinidad.

The D.L. of Trinidal has once more selected Bro. J. H. Collens as its D.C.T. Our brother held the post some three or four years back, and the Order owed much of its success and prosperity to the efforts put forth by our brother. Of late the the efforts put forth by our brother. Of late the numerical strength of the District has been steadily on the decline. We hope, however, that with the advent of Bro. Collens, and by the assistance his collesgues are capable of rendering, that the Order will advance both in numbers and influence.

BELGIAN TEMPERANCE CRITICISM.

In referring to a recent meeting held in Brussels In reterring to a recent meeting field in Brussels in furtherance of a young Temperance organisation and at which Dr. Moeller and Sister Mies C. A Cray (R.W.G.D. Marshal) Antwerp, and others, spoke, the newspaper L'Etout Delge thus vainly spole, the newspaper L'Etoùi Belge shus vainly attempts to discourage this attempt to soberise the most drink-cursed country in Europe:—

The society against the abuse of alcoholic drinks has done, like the mountaineers in the "White Lady"—it has met. It was notiher for a fets nor for a baptism, unless it acted for the haptism of wines and spirits. This meeting took place on Sunday at half-past two in the anti-chamber of the burgomaster. We are very much afraid that, owing to the national temperament, it will still further for a long time be only the anti-chamber. The members of the Executive present were Mr. Lahaye, lawyer and provincial councillor, resident; Mr. Candelier, goneral secretary, and Dr. Moeller, assistant secretary. There was a crowd of 30 persons. of 30 persons.

"On leaving the Gulf of Otranto There were thirty."

Heaven grant that without arriving at Cadiz there may soon be only 10!

Dr. Moeller read a paper tending to shew that there is a larger consumption of spirits in Belgium

Dr. Moeller sead a paper tending to snow that there is a larger consumption of spirits in Belgium than in any other country. He preaches the entire renunciation of all this kind of drink. Dr. Moeller is an anti-liquorist suited to the times. He finds Dr. Moeller's system difficult to realise in Belgium. He does not think that taking a few glasses can be dangerous. He would only repress the abuse. Then in the midst of an animated discussion, a young English lady rose, extolling total abstinence. This Joan of Arc of anti-alcoholism would only allow us tea and lemonade, or perhaps what would be better, clear water. In abort, the re-establishment of torture, and above all by water. Certainly Louis XIV. when signing his edict did not foresee such a thing as this. These English do not go by four roads. It seems to us, however, that between the exagerated drinking of the Poles, and the extended the service of the care of th the cxaggerated drinking of the Poles, and the ex-cessive barrenness of the Sahard, we could suggest to this English lady that there is a milder and more temperate regime.

OF THE GRAND WORTHY CHIEF TEMPLAR TO THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND I.O.G.T. Newport, Mon., Easter, 1886.

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS,-

A paculiar feeling of gratification animates me while preparing this report, because, for the first time in the history of our Order in England, our Lodge work is centred in a home it will be able to call its own; and one, tee, of whose appearance and dimen-sions we have no reason to feel ashamed. For many years I have hoped for the time when we might years I have noped for the time when we might possess such a visible proof that our Order had "come to stay" in old England; and our new Grand Lodge offices will eloquently testify to that fack, in spite of those desertions, declassions, and other distresses which sometimes try the best of institutions.

I .- STATE OF THE ORDER.

The course of the Order during the past year as been somewhat uneven. Soon after last Grand Lodge, summer brought its comparative lassitude and consequent losses, and later in the year the General Election inevitably created some local cententions and a general distraction from Lodge work—the Lodge attendance suffering, while good members were supporting Parliamentary candidates nemers were supporting rariantentary candidates favourable to our principles. Seeing a somewhat heavy declension, I have at recent D.L. sessions, except where they did not afford me time, urged and constituted Sub-District Mission Committees to constituted Sup-District Mission Committees to break up new ground; and the fact that since New Year's Day we have instituted about 50 new Ledges is surely an indication of a turn for the better. I do not here imitate the detailed geographical

I do not here imitate the detailed geographical record I gave last year, but merely just refer to the groups of counties. In the Northern counties we have in the past suffered much, but the decreased distress on the Tyne promises well—and especially in North Durham, where the W.D.Sec., Bro. Richardson, is fast multiplying Lodgos. The depressed mining and iron interests in West Cumberland cause us loss, but in the East we are looking up. Our agent, Bro. Wrathall, has been doing good service all the year in the Northern Districts. North LANCASHIME is healthy and advancing under Bro. Mansergh; and S. E. Lancashire is all aliev with mission work, projected by our is all alive with mission wor P.G. W.C.T., Bro. Edwards. alive with mission work, projected by our W.C.T., Bro. Edwards. Our Welsh District P.G. W.C.T., Bro. Edwards. Our Welsh District of South Lancashire is a creditable self-contained community of 900 members, whose D.L. awarded £35 in prizes at its last literary and musical competition. In Yorkshiffer, Cleveland District projects a bazaar for Mission funds; North Yorks at last has Mission Committees appointed; the Northwest has been moving forward; the Central District west has been moving forward; the Central District is admirably capturing new towns under the imported D.D., Rev. Bro. Deans, and Bro. Allpass, W.D.Sec.; while S.W. Yorks is fairly solid, but not so politically harmonious or so devoutly in earnest as its honoured D.D., Bro. Boyd, could wish. He says—and it is true of the whole Order—"If we can work as sane men we shall succeed. If we simply seek to amuse ourselves we shall DIE!"

The East MIDLAND Districts have been plodding along, but nearly all have suffered from depression, except Cambridgeshire, which has advanced from nine to 12 Lodges. The Beds D.L. is exceptionally good in discipline. Our Special Grand Lodge Sessions at Grimsby and Northampton may give an impetus in those parts. The West Mid-land counties have plodded along without anything exceptional transpiring. Some have latterly made progress, and most are planning for extension progress, and most are planning for extension—South Stafford notably. At Birmingham a French-speaking Lodge has been started, and a "National" Sub-Lodge is projected at the G.L. Offices, largely to attack, by correspondence, travelling ministers and others who now get adrift through removals.

Of the SOUTH-WESTERN Counties, Wilts is ad on the GOUTH-WESTERN CORDINES, WINE IS AUvancing well with Bro, Bramley as its engaged missionary. Somerset is respectable in the West; is earnest in its village missions in the middle district; and, in the East, several new Lodges have been formed. The Gloucestershire districts are good but not progressing. Manyanuthhire has but not progressive. Monmouthshire good, out not progressive. Administration agained 37 per cent. Dicreet drags somewhat. Each District of Devonshire is stirring, and Cornwall is trying to advance in the East, and secure a Grand Lodge special asssion in the West.

The South Eastern Districts vary much. folk is healthy. Essex is educating its members with its District Loan Library, &c.; and Hants has done considerable Mission Work. The valuable

Without mentioning other Districts, it may be fairly said that good is being done in each; that losses are being endured with fortitude, and gains being anught with spirit. The METROPOLIS, however, gives cause for anxiety; while the smaller West Surrey Districts has a continuous record of harmonious advancement. In East and Mid Surrey District the admirable work of the past few years has been followed by an reactionary decrease of 600 members. This need not preve irremedial if the intelligent spirits who ve so much sustained the District in the past will still labour in this time of trial. The important District of Middlesex is our main cause of anxiety. comprises 47 Parliamentary constitutencies, having an enormous population, and, as I said last year, the responsibilities of its D.L. are proportionately great. In last year's report I suggested some methods with a view to its better administration, but I do not think these bave been attempted. but I do not think these have neen accompositely a failure to divide the work may partly account for a rising cry for the division District Lodge. During the past two years the net loss in this county reaches about 2,000 members, and this being so it is surely worth the while of this Grand Lodge to give attention to it or to empower its Executive to give special attention to it with a view to an improvement both in numbers and influence.

I shall unite with the Grand Lodge Executive in reporting our CRYSTAL PALACE FETE, which for two successive years has been arranged two successive years has been arranged with immense labour and great efficiency by our Metro-politan brethren, with such minor help as we could render. There have again also been very large seaside excursions arranged by our brethren at Bradford-on-Avon and Guildford, while river trips have been enjoyed from Cambridge and Plymouth, and many local and united festivals held in other and many local and united festivals held in other parts. These I do not particularise this year; leaving it to be taken for granted that we have played enough, whether we have worked enough or not.

The various committees will report on our excel-lent Orphanage, on our Sub-Lodge programmes, which our equal rights fellowship is abused by these who are multiplying, and, I trust, improving; and it will be found that the committee on new Hymn and Ode Book are making good progress in these extensive undertakings.

II .- THE REAL GOOD OF THE ORDER.

On the whole, it will be found that a considerable—though not a calamitous—uccessed autified during the past year. We may partly attribute our losses to the continued re-action from the exciting public efforts of late years. All other Temperance bodies feel the same thing. Yetwe initiate enough to secure a large increase, if we only able-though not a calamitous-decrease has been initiate enough to secure a large increase, it we only adequately tried to retain our enoverts. The main fault is within ourselves. While some Lodges have advanced in intelligence and culture, other Lodges have receded, and have been distracted by disputes, or tutored in frivolity, till sensible and sensitive peeple have left in despair. I do not justify, but blame, those who have thus left. But I repeat that Diame, those who have thus lett. But I repeat that the fault is mainly within the Lodges themselves; and it can only be remedied by more devotion to the Order as it stands. It will not be done by recasting our machinery; by altering our regalia; by abridging our ceremonies; by abolishing our developments. degrees, or by revising our constitution.

The Order calls for no great revolution in its rules, and no aweeping reform in its government. We need rather to form in its government. We need rather to "cease patching the machine, and get some more corn ground." "We want less play in the Lodges, and more work." The tendency is to expect that more latitude in amusement will enable the members to work batter. I do not believe it. I believe we must hold the standard higher—not lower it. In doing the former we may have yet fewer members; but what we mest want is better members; but what we most want is better members, even though they he fewer. We are in some districts thinning out, instead of winning, the middle classes. Our Order can never be complete without them. We have need to especially try to win and retain them. In some places they are barely welcomed—their very intelligence being almost objectionable to those who are too untutored to fully realise the many sided mission of our great Order. The G.W. Secretary of Scotland recently said that the Order there "was getting too respecsaid that the Order there "was getting too respec-table." I make no such complaint in England. In some places it is the respectable element which is some places it is the respectable element which is wanted, or has been almost climinated. I know this is not the rule, but the exceptions are too numerous to be ignored. The main-though not the entire—shortcoming is in the Subordinate Lodges—the very basis of the Order; and their improvement is of more importance than anything also which the Sub-Lodges at the Nitz Tuders are improvement is of more importance than anything else which the Sub-Lodges, the District Lodges, or the Grand Lodge could attempt to effect. I am almost induced to suggest that the Grand Lodge instruct the new G.L. Executive to take the initiative in this great task, and to call upon District Lodges to heartily co-operate in any efforts which may be devised. It would be worth calling special conferences, or a special session of most District Conserved to a special session of most pastrets. Lodges—in connection with some deputation from the Grand Lodge—to consider this one subject. Advice by circular to Lodges is not heard by all, and is only heeded by a few. To reach the general rank and file we need also to occasionally send for each separate member a special leaflet of counsel.

The Democracy of the Order is its great merit and its great peril. It is had when Democracy will not attempt to raise themselves to the level of respect for others, but who expect culture and refinement to efface itself to qualify for their fellow-A notable Temperance worker spoke to me ship. A notable Temperance worker spoke to me of this, and on my declaring it was an excrescence of the principle of Democracy in the Order—a principle in which I believed—he responded, "Oh yea, I believe in Democracy as a principle, but I would sconer be governed by St. Stephen's than St. Glied." We have room for St. Giles, but not to the exclusion of St. Stephen'swhich is, at least, as valuable—our Democracy notwithstending; and unless we speedily set to work to gain and retain the middle classes, as well as the working or poorer classes—whom we rightly welcome—we shall drift further from St Stephen's and nearer to St. Giles'. If the Order is to be respected everywhere, our members must everywhere respect the Order, and respect themselves, and be not only fraternal but respectful to each other.

The fault, however, is not confined to Subordi-The tault, however, is not commed to Subords nate Lodges. During my visits to District Lodges have found large assemblies, much interest, and due loyalty to, and respect for, the G.L. and its officers. But in a few cases I have seen just enough to shew that there was a slovenliness in enough to snew that there was a storeniness in administration, and an unconthuses in conduct toward others which boded no good to the Order. More than this; with the democratic tendency which has recently taken possession of the English people, there comes into the Order a spirit which is not one of "in honour preferring one another," but which thinks that present reform consists of discounting past workers. One some-times sees young workers ignored and even veteran workers, after years of toil, retiring unthanked by their successors. Truly good workers should keep working for its own sake, for a good conscience is their best reward; yet gratitude is due and should find u terance. For lack of this, sensitive men of worth are allowed to drift from us. I think they, too, are faulty in doing so. If ingratitude and misunderstanding he their cross they should patiently try to carry it. The Order is still snould patiently try to carry in the content seam great and good—even more good than great and good men should not practically desert an Order to whose grand principles they have pledged life long adhesion. Its principles still require those of "the Old Guard" to stand still require those of "the Old Guard" to stand by the Temple in which its teachings are enshrined. Some day the very existence of the Order may be imperilled for lack of their protection and assistance. Let the younger officers find that the veteran can again do duty in the ranks and file as of yore. The Order will itself be elevated and the veteran digniby such devotion to duty-a devotion which blind mortals may fail to recognise, but which will not go unrewarded in the end.

I write earnestly because I am not satisfied with the status and numerical strength of our army of about 75,000 adults, and 55,000 adherents of the junior branch. Others may regard 130,000 souls as a great army to be attached to our Grand Lodge of England, but it is our business not only to increase its numerical strength, but to increase its power for good in the land.

III.—OUR SOLDIERS ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

Our soldier Lodges are admirably looked after by their District leaders, and are continuously increasing. It will be remembered that about one half of the Military District left us about two years ago owing to internal differences. The losses have been far more than made up since : for the W.D.Sec., Bro. E. R. Smith, reports an increase of 57 per cent, between November 1883 and 1884, and an additional increase of 40 per cent. from November, 1881, to November, 1885.

Our remaining Lodge in Egypt and the Soud an appear in course of removal homowards. Some have an heroic history, and notally amongst them the Nil Desperandum Lodge in the Royal Sussex Regiment. This Lodge, in going up the Nile, was divided, under the military orders which divided the regiment for the time ; and the Lodge resolved, in spite of losses in battle or otherwise, in continus accuring adherents, and to come back stronger still. It divided its five rituals amongst the five sections of the Lodge, and empowered each to hold sessions up the Nile and initiate candidates These sections were eventually hundreds of miles apart from each other, but each etill worked with such regularity that when they were re-united it was found that on the same night the respective sections of this Lodge, with prayer and praise, had held sessions at Dongola; Debhah; Korti (General Wolseley's furthest head-quarters); in the desert at Gadkul Wells; and at Mettameh, where General Gordon's steamers were met below Khartoum. This Lodge has been warmly wel-comed at Portsmouth; as also has the "Old Forlicth," Lodge on its return from Aden, Arabia, with its Juvenile Temple whose "regramme in Aden was a model of what a proramme should be.

I may add that Bro. Flynne, G.W.C.T. of India, has sent me the names and home addresses of a large number of time-expired soldier brethren. have duplicated these names, &c., and sent them to brethren living in the respective localities, so that the returned brethren could be visited at their homes and retained to the Order. I know this has been extensively effected.

After correspondence with our energetic and devoted District Deputy of the Military District, energetic and Bro. Quartermaster Sergeant O. G. L. Jones, I wrote General Sir Goorge Willis for facilities for my Special Deputy, Bro. Bishton, to have access to home-coming soldier brethren on a rrival at Portsmouth, and was thus answered:—

"Sir George Willis heartily approves of the good work done by your society and will be most happy to render your agent any assistance on the jetty if he applies to the

The General kindly offered us other facilities in ogard to the placing of notice boards of the Order on Government premises. We are availing our solves of the opportunities thus afforded.

IV .- THE NAVAL LODGES AFLOAT AND ASHORE.

Our Naval Lodges are increasing in numbers, and the encrous task of keeping touch with them by correspondence is faithfully performed by the Dis-trict leaders, especially by Bro. W. Davey, the W.D.Sec., and the D.C.T., Bro. James Rae—who has bravely laboured on amidst repeated family bereavements. Besides the Lodges aboard 19 ships of war, and others at home porce, this Disships of war, and others at nome ports, this District now has attached to it sesport Lodges at Singapore (Malaysia); Victoria (British Columbia); Callao (Peru) Valparasiso (Chili); Alexandria (Egypt); Hong Kong (China); Aden (Arshia); Tincomalse (Ceylon), and the Islands of Bermuda and St. Helsna, the latter island having successful Juvenile Temple also.

The Naval District Lodge has enacted a bye-law requiring all applicants for membership to notify their ship efficers to withhold their grog rations. The District is harmonious and prosperous, and in that this Grand Lodge hereby I suggest that this Grand Lodge hereby authorises the new Grand Lodge Executive to furmish each of our faithful military and naval brethren who were out on active service, with a certified expression of its appreciation of their fidelity to the Order under trying circumstances— and in this connection I specially mention Bro. Palmer, who proved an exceptionally able corresponding "Visiting" Deputy during the campaign in Egypt and the Soudan.

V.—OUR CIVILIAN LODGES IN FOREIGN PARTS.

Our brethren in BELOIUM are losing by the re-Our brethren in Belouw are losing by the re-moval of the Sisters Gray to England. Sister C. A. Gray, our P. G. D. Marchal may, however, possibly return to promote Temperance on the Contient generally, and so still be occasionally helpful to our Order in Antwerp. The especially devoted manner in which she has laboured for our Order and cause merits our warmest t-hanks. We have had no recent in which she has laboured for our Order and cause merits our warmest branks. We have had no recent report from Rotterdam, Hollayo. Our ionglived Lodge in GERMANY, the "Port of Hamburg" Lodge, has removed to the German Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, and now meets every Wednesday and Friday nights to welcome English, and all other, visitors. We still have Lodges working among the natives and settlers of the West Coast of Africa, but we would like to have more frequent reports sent from them to the WATCHWORD. In the WEST INDIES, our Trinidad District holds on fairly, a new Good Templar Hall having been built at Port of Spain. In Barbados several Lodges are still working; and other Lodges continue in existence in the islands of Antigua, Granda, St. Kitts, St. Vincent, and Tobago. Our "Kietur" Lodge still survives in BRITISH GUIANA and publishes a capital programme. A notable event of the year is the formation of a Spanish speaking Lodge at Valparaiso while on the other side of South America our while on the other side of South America on Spanish speaking brethren in Uruguay are adding to their Lodges, and have issued as their organ The First Spanish Temperance Periodical in the shape of a neat monthly, entitled El Tem-plaric, No. I of which appeared on New Yaar's Day at Montevideo. It will be their Spanish organ for Uruguay, and the adjoining Republic of La Plata, where also new Lodges are springing into life. Bro. Rev. T. B. Wood, at Montevideo, and Bro. George Viney, at Rosario, La Plata, are continuing their devoted labours and their inspiriting corredevoted labours spondence.

VI. -OUR MAORI BRETHREN; AND PRO-HIBITORY ACTION

Last year we announced the initiation into our Order, under this Grand Lodge, of King Tawhiao and his chiefs while visiting this country. Since their return they so actively promulgated our principles that many thousands of the Maori people took the pledge, and the entire inhabitants of the took the piedge, and the entire inhabitants of the King's Country so persistently memorialised the British Government to prohibit the importation and saloof intoxicants amongsthem, that these potitions have been acceded to, and this, the finest of coloured mees, are thus emaneigated from the curse of the liquor traffic. The Australasian newspapers note this event as very significant and eminently gratifying, the Queensland Blue Ribben and Good Templar Gazette remarking that :-

"In New Zealand three million acres of fertile land ave been dedicated to prohibition for over. We are in-"In New Zakland three million acres of fertile land have been definited to prohibition for over. We are informed that this measure is founded upon a provision in the Licensing Act of the colony, that if the native sowners of any land on which a licence for the sale million to the first hand the licensing that the land account from the operations of the Licensing Act, the Governor-in-Council shall make predicted and celesing that no theose for the sale of this shall be granted within such areas. VII.—PARLIAMENTARY: PAST AND FUTURE.

I shall not anticipate the report of our Grand Electoral Superintendent, Bro. John Kempster, and of the Political Committee over which he presides. or the Political Committees over which he presides. It is due to Bro. Kempster and ourselves to note his candidature for a seat in Parliament as repre-senting Eufeld, and to say that although he was not successful, yet the large number of votes polled for him, and the handsome contributions of our for him, and the handsome contributions of our brethren toward his election expenses, indicated that he made a good fight, and had the hearty sympathy of the membership. I should have been most happy to have congratulated him on his returns, and am glad that he fought and deserved to win;

"Tes not in mortals to command succe Bot to deserve it.

We all must regret the temporary defeat of brave Sir Wilfrid Lawson's candidature—by a teetotal rival, too—and we must also regret that our honoured and estimable Bro. Benjamin Whitworth honoured and estimate Five Benjamin withwoods (chairman of the U.K.A. Executive) did not secure re-election. But the election of the two new Good Templar members of Parliament, viz., our P.D.D. for E. and M. Surrey, Bro. Dr. G. B. Clark, M.P. for Caithness, and Bro. Wilson, for a Durham con stituency, are gratifying events. The latter's notable help in pushing on the Durham Sunday Closing Bill in Parliament is an earnest of his future efforts. On the whole, the Parliamentary election gave the

on the whole, the varianteestary selection gave the temperance party a largely increased number of favourable members in the House, but Sir Wilfrid Lawson is wanted there as their leader. The recent return of Mr. Caine is our latest cause for congratulation. But there is need for the Tembodies generally to be united and prepared perance bodies generally to be united and prepared with a Bill of their own, lest the Government Bill be further delayed, or prove insdequate—as it almost certainly will prove to be. This is a matter of the gravest national importance. It is little use of the gravest national importance. It is little use for this, that, or the other one society to be producing separate Bills. We need a Bill to be formulated by, and in the name of, as many societies as possible; and for the "direct veto" to be its central point. We do not want to be "licames reformers," but inasmuch as, want to be "licence reformers," but masmuch as, even after the direct veto is enacted, many districts will be many years in putting it into force, we ought, for the benefit of such districts, to have minor vetoes or restrictions also provided for, as is done in the Bills adopted in Canada and Austrelia, which also include the direct veto. We have need of a devoted and plodding Parliamentary agent who can receive the ideas of this British League took the lead in calling the second G.L. and its officers, and so work them out as to Mouse, and help to move the whole of the M.P.'s inside the House. With all carnestness I urgs this Grand Lodge to take steps—and adequate steps—to Grand Lodge to take steps—and adequate steps—brovide means for the engagement of some one for this work. It is more important than any other. If we wisely and well worked this department our activity would give playing members some work to do, and would retain real workers, besides winning adherents of a solid sort.

VIII. -OUR R.W.G.L. OF THE WORLD AT STOCKHOLM.

Your representatives will report their attendance at this notable session, held in the Parliament House at Stockholm last midsummer; and will indicate the fraternal reception they met with, and the business ransacted there. Your kindness in sparing me to visit the Swedish brethren two orthree weeks before that session enabled me to travel 2,000 miles across that country and across Norway, and address meetings that country and across Norway, and address meetings almost daily. The welcome accorded I shall never forget; and the outing enabled me to return to duty in better health than for years past. You will note with pleasure a R. W. G. L. gain of 20,000 members since its preceding session in Nova Scotia; and will, I am sure, recognise the generous, unsolicited and unexpected vete by R. W. G. Lodge of £250 to this C. L. in aid of our Charter Lawsuit expenses. We need not now elect our representatives for next R.W.G.L. session, at Carnarvon, because this G.L. will meet again ere then.

THE INTERNATIONAL TEMPER-ANCE CONFERENCE.

From time to time-at intervals of several years there have been International Temperance Con-There have been international Temperance Conferences on the Continent, the last but one being in Paris, when the International Exhibition was there. The next was projected for London, but the Coutinentals were not ready for a semi-English programme, and the project dropped. The arrangements for an International Exhibition at Autwerp last year created in the minds of our friends in Belgium a desire to bring the sturdy Teototalism of English speaking peoples into contact with the less advanced teaching of the Continent, with a view to uplift the cause in Belgium and neighbouring countries. To our worthy sister, C. A. Gray, is largely due the credit of this project, which was warmly advanced by Dr. Moeiler, of Brussels, who is perhaps the only abstatiating doctor in Belgium. There were 17 English societies represented, including this Grand Lodge, and many Continental countries sent delegates, beside yet others from America. The Conference met in the Hotel de Ville, and was welcomed by the Burgomaster. Mr. Lehaye, Mr., was president, and he kindly translated and read in French the paper I had prepared on a "Goutury of Temperance Teaching," and in which our Order had fair prominence given. The papers and proceedings are now issued in French at the price of Is, only. Before the Conference cuded the president proposed that greater permanence be given to these Internabring the sturdy Toetotalism of English-speaking that greater permanence be given to these Interna-tional assemblages by constituting certain of those present into a committee to arrange for the place of next Conference to be held elsowhere about two Sister Gray and myself were years from then. years from them. Sister Gray and myself were made members of that committee, which includes leading spirits from the different British organisations, and from all the countries represented.

X .- THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE FEDERATION.

FEDERATION.

This Grand Lodge took a prominent part in founding the National Temperance Federation, and I have, as one of the hon. secretaries, given some little attention to its working, though its first hon-secretary, Mr. J. C. Clegg, of Sheffield, properly leads in this respect. I trust we shall be able it co-operate still more heartily with it, for the need of still greater unity and earnestness will soon be widely felt, and especially in regard to Temperance legislation. The Federation embraces most of the large associations which braces most of the large associations which enjoin Total Abstinence and Prohibition, seven enjoin Iotal Austinence and Frontoliton, seven-teen national and Denominational bodies being now federated. It has been suggested that sectional conforances on Temperance Legislation be arranged by the federated and other bodies. The first, for by the lederated and other bodies. The first, for the Northern counties, was largely promoted by out brethren and the Northern Lesgue, and this most representative Temperance Conference ever held for the four Northern counties adopted a declaration in favour of creating an independent Temperance political party. The for Yorkshire, Derby, and Nottinghamshire, and for torkship, Derby, and Nottingianishire, and this declared for thorough prohibitory measures, and against compensation, &c. This G.L. is asked to help to promote a third for the Midlands, and this, I trust, we shall heartily do; but it seems scarcely expedient to hold this while the public mind is concentrated on Cabinet disruptions and the Irish question. If, however, the Government does not speedily shew its hand in relation to Temperance, it will be essential that the Temperance people ance, it will be essential that the Tempe should show theirs—and ungloved too.

XI.-NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON TEM-PERANCE LEGISLATION.

Last autumn the Social Science Association invited our Grand Ledge to send delegates to join their council, with other delegates of Temperance bodies, and of brewers and licensed victuallers, to jointly constitute a committee to arrange a National jointly constitute a committee to arrange a National Conference on Temperance Legislation. This was held at London on February 25-6, when papers on "Licence Reform," "Compensation," and "Prohibition" were read and debated. No "Licenes Reform," "Compensation," and "Prohibition" were read and debated. No vote could be taken in a gathering so unique and varied in its composition. The occasion will be memorable to at least all who were present-delegates from 30 representative Temperauce bedies, and about 20 drink-trade societies, being among the number. In preparing one of the papers on "Compensation," I no t only culled the facts of British Temperance Legislation, as against compensation to drinksellers, but obtained against compensation to durinssenters, out obtained declarations from leading Temperance bodies in England, and valuable evidence from the Government officials and statesmen in Canada and the United States, &c. It is not for me to remark upon the reception of the paper by the Conference and the Temperance Posser, but the the Conference and the Temperance Press, but the research and labour it entailed will not be regretted now that the remarkable evidences the paper contains are having a wide circulation in a very cheap form.

XII .- OBITUARY.

GRAND LODGE MEMBERS DECEASED.

In Bro. George Charlton we had the foremost Temperance figure in the North; a worker of balf-a-century, and one whose worker of haraceteristy and one where homely, rugged, yet kindly advocacy never suffered by his elevation to the mayoralty of Gateshead, or his promotion to the aldermanic bench. As secretary of the Northern Temperance League he was ever active, while Temperature Design in was ever active, while his loyalty to the Order never wanted from, the night I convinced and initiated him, to the time he represented us in the R.W.G. Lodge of the World in 1877, and on to his death last year. The only man who is recognised as his successor in prominence in the North is his old comrade, our present G. W. Counsellor, Bro. Georgo Doddis—who has now succeeded him as a Vice-President of the U.K. Alliance.

Bro. Thomas Richardson, B.A., was a Bro. Thomas Richardson, B.A., was a true Christian gentleman. He was chairman of our G.L. Political Action Committee in 1873, and was a leading spirit in originating our "vote-for-vote and nothing-for-nothing" policy. He was brother of our P.G. W.Y.T., sister Hellena Richardson. He became a R.W.G.L. member at Boston, Mass, 1878. Hc, with his sons, originated the "Danielite" (Vegenarian) Order. Of late years, owing to failing health, he has lived at Jerusalem, and in Cyprus, but came home to die in London in Cyprus, but came home to die in London last December. His end was peace.

BRO. DONALD CAMPRELL was enrolled by our brethren at Reading many years ago, and was a grateful and ardent worker who never to sacrifice for the Order. He was ceased to sacrine for ine Order. He was D.C.T. for Berkshire for some years, until his death, and was a regular and woll-known member of this Grand Lodge. He was second to mone in his loyalty to, and interest in, our Order and cause.

Our BRO. F. WALLIS, of Kettering, was an honourable representative public man, and a notable Temperance worker, who had rendered us good service as D.C.T. of North Northamptonshire.

In Bro. George Sutherland, a past D.L. Representative of Middlesex, we lost one who had been a devoted officer of our Order for 14 years, and a Temperance speaker

45 years. His funeral was attended by over 1,000 persons. He was a former Representative to this G.L., and all his nearest relatives are Good Templars, his son being a representative to this Session.

Bro. W. H. Warrs, of South Northamptonshire, had been a devoted worker in the Order. He was W.D. Chaplain at the time Order. He was W.D. Chaplain at the time of his death, and had before been D.C.T., and manager of the Northampton People's Café Company,

Bro. Robert Impry, P.W.D.Tr., of Mid-Somerset, is one whose name need only be mentioned to centre our minds upon the well known and devoted "Quaker" family of which he was the worthy head; and whose widow and daughters have done so very much to uphold and commend our Order in this and other lands. As they are, so he was—true and devoted to the Order's highest was—true and devoted to the Order singlest welfare. He has gone, but they remain with us, and by their acts they say to him in Shakespeare's words, "We shall jointly latour on with your soul."

Bro. JAMES EDDY has been long known as a sturdy, houset and cloquent advocate, who served the British Temperance League and other bodies as agent for many years. He joined the Order early, and remained in fellowship till his death.

Bro. James Nicholls, of Norwich, was a devoted Good Templar and Temperance veteran, who, amidst failing health, could dare to stand alone for prohibition; and whose consistent life was testified to by the very representative character of his funeral.

Of the late SISTER WESTLARE, of Clevedon, it can be said that a sweeter spirit never blessed our Order with constant service and Christian devotion. Her worthy partner is spared to still labour in our midst.

Last year Bro. R. EDOYVEAN, of Porthleven, Cornwall, obtained our leave to receive the G. L. Degree in the G.L. of Scotceive the G. L. Degree in the G.L. of Sect-land, at Aberdeen, where his fishing vessel was calling. A few weeks ago his vessel was sunk in collision in Mounts Bay, when he, and his son, and bother (all Good Templars) and, another of the crew action of drowned; while another son and two of the crew—all Good Templars also—were at length rescued. Bro. Eddycan was superintendent of the Wesleyan Sunday-school, and his drowned son was W.T. of the Juvenile Temple. His bereavel widon is left with civic tellidron mostly vanny; and School, and his development of the his bereaved widow is left with eight children, mostly young; and his lost brother also leaves a widow. We cannot but deeply sympathisc with those thus suddenly bereaved.

There are yet many others who have given us many years of good service, as parof these, many have left sorrowing relatives, who still stand with, and strive for, the Order for which the departed ones loved to labour. May they be Divinely comforted and con-tinuously sustained in their efforts to follow in the footsteps of those who have gone before.

Herewith will be appended a list of all the Grand Lodge members who have passed away since we last met in Annual Session. While condoling the bereaved, we shall doubtless dedicate to those deceased a memorial page in our Grand Lodge Journal.

[The full list will be given next week.]

XIII.—THE PROPOSED PROVIDENT FUND.

As last G.L. Session endorsed the princple of a Provident Fund, I do not deem it in place argue as to its expediency or otherwise. The task of formulating a prospectus—much less all the necessary rules—was one involving much time and labour, and it could not be accomplished as seen as desired. The G.L. Executive felt it expedient to add me to the committee, and I have somewhat readd me to the committee, and I have somewhat re-luctantly had to devote considerable time and attention to it. While I do not share the fears of those who think that, when started, it will materially interfere with our legitimate L-dege work as Good Templars, I am, porhaps, leas sanguine than others as to great results quickly following its imaguration. I am satisfied that its incom-must be received by specially appointed sub-collectors, and in such a way as not to impede Lodge business; that the Provident business must not be considered as Sub-Lodge business; that the fundashould not pass through the Sub-Lodge accounts; that the business must be carried on without materially multiplying local meetings; that it must be started on such a sound National basis as to afford full security, and be so acceptable to the Registrar of Friendly Societies as to secure registration under the Act of Parliament.

My own conviction is that it may be well to now pronounce upon certain leading features of the prospectus, as (1) the possible insurance of even non-abstaining wives and husbands of members; (2) the insurance of such wives and husbands as do abstain; (3) the insurance of abstaining children; and (4) the suggested extra allowance to those who belong to both adult and juvenile Orders.

Having decided these points, and generally considered any further leading features, I think that the final settlement must be deferred till next annual session, before which time a committee could revise the prospectus, and draft full rules for your acceptance then.

XIV.—DECISIONS GIVEN.

I have had a considerable number of appeals to decide, and these have involved a good attention. The cases have, however, arisen rather from errors of form and lack of charitable feeling than from any really new points of law. The folthan from any really new points of law. The fol-lowing new rulings, however, have been given, and are reported for your approval or otherwise:

(a) Associate W.C.T.'s.—Associates must obtain the password for use as such from their ordinary Lodge. Lodge. But an associate W.C.T., whose ordinary Lodge has not installed its officers, can, at his own installation as associate W.C.T., receive the password to give to the ordinary members of his associate Lodge. Yet he cannot receive or use it afterwards till he obtains it from, or by warrant of, the W.C.T. of his own ordinary Lodge.

(b.) COMMITTEE'S REPORT .- A Lodge, in referring a matter to a committee, cannot forbid them to report until they are unanimous.

(c.) Good of the Order. - Under "Good Order" a visiting member is privileged to speak, but cannot insist upon it as a right; and the rule of not speaking more than twice should be still observed by all, save by special leave.

(d) Majority Votes.—Where any majority of votes is required, we do not count neutral votes, or blank ballots, but only reckon votes for and against. Thus if 36 members are present and 12 are neutral or east blank ballots, it would only require 16 votes out of the remaining 24 to constitute a legal twothirds vote.

(e) Suspension for Arrears. - Members suspended for arrears are re-instated without vote or Espemony, on payment of the dues owing at the time of suspension and of dues for the current

(f) VIOLATION WHILE SUSPENDED. -A member violating his pledge while suspended, or while out on card, is subject to trial by his Lodge (if on elearance card, by the Lodge granting the card), and, as in other cases, can be restored within four weeks of confession or conviction—failing which he is expelled and can only be re-admitted (after at least one month's interval) by election and initiation as a new member. Members who have left the Order and who have broken the pledge can also only he admitted by election and initiation as new members.

(y) VACATION OF OFFICE. - If an officer is absent three successive asssions, during which he sends no excuse, the Lodge can at once, by two-thirds majority ballot, declare the post vacated, and can elect and instal a successor.

(h) VIOLATION AND DEGREE MEMBERSHIP.-If a member violates the pledge he at once forfeits all titles, and also his Degree Temple, and D.L. membership. If restored in Sub-Lodge, he (after renewed probation) is re-registered in the Lodge as a Degree member; but he can only again become a member of the Degree Temple or District Lodge by being accepted as a new candidate for such membership.

XV.—THE POWERS OF DISTRICT LODGES OVER DEGREES.

My views of the present powers of District Lodges over Degrees are as follows :-

(a) The power to attach to or sever Lodgea from

(b) The D.L. may, by bye-law, still allow sub-Lodges (unattached to Degree Temples) to possess Third Degree rituals for the L.D. to confer the Third Degree; the Lodge itself conferring the Second. Or the D.L. may control the conferring of the Third Degree, by designating certain Depu-ties to confer it, in which cases the conferring of it ties to confer it, in which cases the does not confer D.L. membership.

(c) The D.L. may itself appropriate and confer the Third as the D.L. Degree on all members of Lodges unattached to Degree Temples ; or

(d) The D.L. may take from Degree Templea the power to confer the Third Degree, and itself wholly appropriate the Third as the D.L. Degree and confer it at regular or special aessions; and when conferred by D.L. it carries D.L. membership,

(c) Special D.L. Sessions, to confer its Degree may be called at any time or place by the D.L. or D.L. Executive—a D.L. Executive officer presiding to confer the Degree, and thus admit to D.L. membership.

I am sorry to find that District Lodges which have "settled" the Degree question, by thus taking over the Third Degree, again get disturbed taking over the Inita Degree, again get disturbed by the question; and perhaps, at a small meeting, have it all overturned. Thus, Third Degree rituals are again drifted about in the Sub-Lodges, to be vainly "called in" at the next "turn about."

I think it would have been best if this G.L. had decided that, when once a D.L has taken over the Third Degree, such action should stand until this G.L. or its Executive sanctioned its repeal. If it were understood that the D.L. was wholly responsible for the Third Degree, outlying Lodges would get a visit from D.L. Executive officers to hold a special D.L. Session and confer the Degree.

XVI.—SECOND DEGREE TEMPLES AND CONVENTIONS.

There are only 95 working Degree Temples in England. Of our 67 Districts 32 have no Temples. The remaining Temples would not have survived so long had they not had devoted adherents. The few that work well should be duly respected. Those that work irregularly should be put out of their misery or thoroughly reconstituted. The D.L.'s misery of thoroughly reconstituted. The D. are (wisely, I think) generally appropriating the Third Degree, and thus superseding Temples as Third Degree bodies. This, has, however, brought about a new state of things in some Districts. One Disabout a new state or things in some Districts. One Dis-trict was covered with Degree Temples; but, by com-mon consent, the D.L. appropriated the Third Degree as its own, and the Degree Temples thus became solely Second Degree bodies, the D.L. turnishing them with new Second Degree rituals. Thus they have the First Degree alone in the Sub-Lodges, the Second alone in Sub-District Temples, and the Third in District Lodge. In snother District, the Degree Temple and Convention have so the Degree Temple and Convention have so mutually merged that the Temple practically becomes a chartered Sub District Con-vention, working in, and conterring, the Second Degree. Now, if a Chartered Temple can work as a Convention, a Convention can work as a Temple; and so a Convention in another district desires a Temple Charter and Second Degree rituals onlyso that it can possess the dignity of a Charter and Degree, and yet do Convention work. I presume we shall be able to grant the Charter.

The existence of Degree Temples as Third Degree.

bodies has proved such a source of difficulty to District Lodges appropriating that Degree, that I recommend no further Degree Charters be issued with Third Degree rituals, save by special vote of G.L. Executive.

XVII.-ON GRAND LODGE LEGISLATION.

(1) Basis of Representation to Grand Lodob. Our D.L. Representation to G.L. is based on November returns-after their summer losses; November returns—after their summer losses; instead of February, after their winter gains. With the new method of collecting tax, it should be possible to hase D.L. Representation upon the returns of February 1, and the tax paid to G.L. in that month. This would stimulate Districts to work harder in winter months to increase their representation. If this be done, however, there are reasons why the "fractional part of 500 members" required to secure an additional representative should not be less than 50. representative should not be less than 50.

(2) DISTRICT LODGE MOTIONS FOR GRAND LODGE I sympathise with those who think that the busy naual Sessions of D.L.'s are not the best for Annual (a) The power to attach to or sever Lodges from Degree Temples is wholly vested in the D. Lodge deliberative purposes, and in D.L. Second the receive dictate and write to you and your associates when I calendar month's notice to the Temples and IO days' might even go further, and require that all fedges before they are thus dealt amount of the Lodge before they are thus dealt annual sessions, know the business coming up at given me a useful experience of its methods and

G.L., and be able to pronounce upon any matter of especial interest to them.

(3) DISTRICT LODG PRESS COMMITTEE.—As mere suggestions to D.L.'s to appoint a committee to report D.L. meetings to the public Press have largely passed unnoticed, I propose that in the suggested D.L. bye-laws we insert a provision for appointing such committee.

(4) Associate Members' Privileges and Pay-MENTS.—I carneally hope that the G.L. will maintain the rules which give associate members equal rights and properly requires equal payments in respect to them. To depart from this simple and spect to them. To depart from this simple and equitable basis is to create inequalities and complications—especially as some new Lodges at first mainly consist of associates.

(5) Severino Associates.

(5) Severino Associate Membership.—On our motion the R. W. G. L. has made it possible to dismiss troublesome members from the ordinary Lodge by presenting them with a clearance card. Our rules, presenting them with a clearance card. Our rules, however, contain no facilities for dismissing associate members until after formal trial, and the power to do that is limited. Scotland enacts that Associate membership shall cease on majority vote of the members present at any meeting." I propose that we enset that "After one week's notice given in Lodge, and to any associate member, his associate membership may be terminated at the next session of the Lodge by two-thirds ballot vote.

(6) ADMISSION BY CARD.—Last G.L., on my re-ecommendation, agreed that members admitted by clearance or associate card during the term the car was granted should be enrolled free. But as cards may be drawn just prior to installation, and dues be wholly avoided while both Lodges may have to pay tax, I recommend (a) that members drawing clearance cards at any time after the last day of the expiring quarter must pay the new quarter's dues before the card is granted—even though installation has not taken place. (b) That admission by card during the term at which tha card is granted be not more than 3d., unless the Lodge by bye-law makes a different charge.

(7) Longe by bye-law makes a different charge.
(7) Longe Amusements,—I recommend that our G.L. bye-laws be so amended as to distinctively prohibit "kissing games" at sooial gatherings connected with the Order. The G.L. of Ireland has a more comprehensive bye-law, which reads thus:—"Parlour games, involving forfeits of any kind, or any impropriety in word or behaviour, are unsuitable for Lodge entertainment, and are prohibited at any meeting in connection with the Order."

(8) LODGE DEBATES.—At least one Lodge has had a debate on "Disestablishment," and another on "Mr. Gladstone as a Politician." The bye-laws of other fraternities and societies interdiet party political, and sectarian subjects, and I think the G.L. should also interdict such topics.

(9) Longe Removals. -- We have no G.L. byelaw requiring Lodges to notify all members before taking any vote for the removal of a Lodge. I recommend that such a rule be enacted, and that it specify that the removal cannot take place till confirmed by the G.W.C.T.

(10) Lodge Deputies.—(a) Our rules allow any L.D. to be elected to any offices ave that of W.C.T. This latter prohibition was probably made because the LD, had to decide appeal cases against the W.C.T. and Lodge. As we have abolished the power of L.D.'s to decide appeals, I trust we shall also abolish this disqualification. Sometimes a small Lodge needs and wishes its L.D. to become W.C.T., and I think we should make this allowable.

XVIII.—CONCLUSION.

Some may think that I ought in my report to detail my individual labours, but unless the G.L. expressed a desire in that direction, I should be sorry to use my time and yours for that purpose. I have been with most of you this last year, and you can judge whether, while presiding in D.L.'s or speaking on your platforms, my restored physical vigour is accompanied by any diminution of mental vitality. My pen, too, has I think reached all of you every week in my many articles in our Warchworn; in the general Temperance Press to which, in the true interests of the Order, I make myself a very prolific contributor; in the general newspaper Press where I have had to fight for our Order; and in the many circulars and thousands of letters which I dictate and write to you and your associates.

membership. I know it has developed in me an ever-increasing affection for our fraternal bonds, and has created that high sense of responsibility while still subject to human error--ferbids the slightest conscious leaning towards partiality in the administration of its beneficient laws, rules or usages.

Yours most sincerely and fraternally, JOSEPH MALINS, G.W.C.T.

A NEEDFUL CAUTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE GOOD TEMPLARS" WATCHWORD.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER, - Permit me to offer your readers a word of caution concerning our old friend, the "National Union for the Suppression of Intemperance," whose agents are busy collecting money in various parts of the country by means of a system which seems very much akin to obtaining money by false pretences. The following advertisement is at present appearing weekly in the Christian World:—

AGENTS WANTED to canvass for the National

"AGENTS WANTED to canvass for the National Union for the Suppression of Intemperance.—James Taylor, Secretary, 9, Oxford-street, Manchester."

A copy of the communication sent to applicants for agencies is before me.

"It "duties" are exceedingly simple, viz. "(1) To canvass daily for donations or contributions to the Union. (2) To obtain signatures to memorials and petitions. (3)
To send each day a return stating the names. ddresses, and amounts of contributions received. (4) To send a weekly halance-sheet with postal order for the amount received, less the amount of commission." The secretary of this spurious society can afford to be generous, and offers his agents the liberal commission of "one half of the amounts received

The National Union has been known to Charity Organisation Society since 1878, and in the effort to repress mendicity has been advertised and exposed in the Times as unworthy of support. The advertisement referred to and other particulars may be seen at the offices of the C.O.S., 15, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

The balance-sheet issued for 1883-4, shews an income of £1,C46 17s. 9d. The expenditure is made up of the following interesting items :-

... 459 0 cretary and assistant 297 1 6 Collecting agents... ... Circulars, postages, &c. Rent ... 42    ... Audit ... 5 5 Meetings, travelling expenses, &c.

These figures plainly prove, as has often been said before, that the "National Union" does not satist to work for the suppression of intemperance, but merely te support its indefatigable secretary. The Bill in favour of which people are asked to sign memorials and give hard cash to assist in pro-moting has never been presented to Parliament, nor has any scrious attempt ever been made to get it introduced. The signatures collected are there-fore worthless. The draft of the bill and the memorials are merely pretexts to obtain money.

The Duke of Westminster, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the late Earl Shaftesbury, and scores of others whose names were appropriated by the secretary (without consent) as patrons, &c., have withdrawn, many of them publicly, repudiating all connection with the union.

During the past six or eight years a good deal of comment has been passed upon the "National Union" by the newspapers, but it continues to exist, and mulets the public each year of sums varying from £1,200 to £1,600. Many useful organisations are at present crippled for want of funds. I trust our friends will not be caught mapping, as many have been, and throw their monog away upon a useless society.—I am, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,

SKETCH OF NEWPORT, (MON.)

This year the annual session of Grand Lodge is to be held at Newport, the Norus Burgus of the Romans, the Castell Newydd of the Welsh, or, as it was put by several members in last G.L., "a little was put by several members in last G.L., "a little place somewhere in Wales," which was considered a good and sufficient description of the leading iron port in the kingdom.

Perhaps the fact that English history writers have een in the habit of handing Monmouthshire over to Wales, and Welsh map-makers so persistently returned the county to England, may account for some little ignorance as to the locality and character of its leading town, Newport, Or more probably it is the rapidity with which Newport has developed, from a town of 7,000 or 8.000 when the

upon it in '39, into a busy sea-port with a popula-tion of nearly 50,000, the seat of thriving industries with miles of river wharves, and extensive systems of docks and railways. A glance at a "Bradsbaw" railway map will shew that Newport is the point of convergence of a perfect net-work of railways.

Nothing has contributed more to the prosperity of the town than the splendid river upon which it stands, the River Usk, having the remarkable tidal rise of 40 feet. Few things are more surprising to the uninitisted than to see a difference of 40 feet in the height of a river in the course of a couple of

Along the banks of the Usk the town extends for about two miles, and stretches back from the river over the summit of Stow Hill.

The central street of the town is of good width and perfectly level and straight for a full mile-atone extremity of which is the new Town Hall, in which Grand Lodge will assemble. Many public and private street improvements have taken place recently, and the conversion of antiquated buildings into fine public and commercial edifices, is rapidly giving an imposing appearance to the ipal streets.

Although the name of Newport does not figure Although the name of Newport does not neuro conspicuously in the history of the past, it is never-theless a place of considerable antiquity, as is testified by the ruins still standing near the river brilge of the castle built in the reign of Henry I.

But in the "black industries" of modern days it is taking its place in the forefront. As already indicated it is the leading iron port in the kingdom. At the Alexandra Docks, thousands of miles of the Great Canadian and Pacific Railway, if they were not "coiled down the main hatch," for transport to the New World, and to-day there may be seen being shipped hundreds of miles of steel rails for the great Indian railway now being constructed.

As a coal port, too, Newport takes rank among the very first. An idea of the amount of coal leaving the port may be gained, perhaps, by just realising the fact that it is at the rate of reckoning every day of the year and every hour of the day and night. To see this vast quantity being shipped the visitor should stroll round the Alexandra Docks, and watch with what consummate ease the hydraulic lifts receive a ponderous weighing between 16 and 18 tons truck of coal raise it rapidly some 40 feet in the air, and then, in the most unceremonious manner, turn it very nearly upside down, thus shooting the coal into the mysterious depths of capacions steamships; then bringing the truck or co more into position, deftly turns it out on to tho high level rails, and comes down to receive another full one. Or, if the visitor wishes to see still more of the process, let him "square" someone on board a ship to allow him to take his stand with the gang of men who are down in the ship stowing the earge, and as the tons of coal come thundering down from above, with a cloud of dust as thick as a desert sand storm, he will receive avery practical lesson in the "black art," and certainly carry away an impression not easily effaced.

At Newport, too, is situated

THE LARGEST NAIL FACTORY in the kingdom, probable in the world; in addition to which there are extensive Engineoring, Glass and Chemical works.

Some of the views from the higher parts of the bwn are of great range and interest. Visitors who Some of the views from the higher parts of the town are of great range and interest. Visitors who are fond of rising with the sun, and taking a constitutional before breakfast, will be sure of obtaining an appetite and a view of a splendid panorama of sea and landscape at the same time, by turning to the neighbourhood of Stow Church or Stow Park. There, stretching away beyond the town, river, docks and shipping which lie at the foot of the hill, may be seen the Bristol Channel, away as far as can be seen to the east, narrowing into the estuary of the Severn, while to the westward the golden waters of the Channel broaden out into the mighty Atlantic. Away and beyond golden waters of the Channel loui into the nighty Atlantic. Away and the Channel are the fields and villa somewiset-hire. Eastward the fertile Is beyond villages of Somerset-hire. For those who will not be Lound by the "care's of office" to a strict attendance at G.L., the county is full of places of interest.

OUR GOVERNMENT AND INTOXI-CANTS AMONG SOUTH AFRICAN NATIVES.

By Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T.

Our Government, in annexing Bechuanaland, —a country as large as Spain—a year or two ago, permitted the sale of intoxicants to native chiefs and headmen, and Bro. J. B. Wheelwright, G.W.C.T. of Cape Colony, writes me that, as a consequence, it has become a "drink-ridden year the Government also formally annexed the Home Rule Scheme in the House of Commons the Transkeian territories to Cape Colony.

Prior to then, under a kind of protectorate, the Cape authorities had allowed drink licences, but some of these licences forbade drink sale to natives while the others only allowed sale to natives on the latter producing a special magiscountry ruled by brandy-sodden chiefs."

terial permit. Last October, however, after annexation, a proclamation was issued permitting all licence holders to sell specified quantities to any natives shewing special permits, and to sell without permit or limit to all chiefs, petty chiefs, or headmen. The London Times took the lead in denouncing this last, and I wrote the G.W.C.T. of Cape Colony, urging agitation for its withdrawal. Our Colonial brethren were, however, already on the war path, and a letter from their G.W.C.T., dated Cape Town, January 11, said:—"The Cape Alliance and other Temperance bodies agitated by public meetings and petitions against the preclamation. We have succeeded, for the obnoxious announcement is withdrawn, and the Transkeian natives are saved for the present."

Papers since to hand shew that on December 31, the Cape authorities "amended the proclamation" by prohibiting the sale to chiefs, petty chiefs, and headmen-save on their presentation of a special magisterial permit, as is the case with ordinary natives.

The above news I received about the end of January, and I waited in vain through February and March for any announcement in Parliament of this important event which had taken place on December 31. In the meantime Religious, Temperance, and Good Templar bodies sent memorials to our Government officials in London in January, February, and even March, and received for reply notice that the memorials were sent on to the Cape authorities-whose report was awaited. Not a word was sent by our Government to these English societies to indicate the victory of December 31; in fact our Home Government seemed in total ignorance of what had for weeks and even months been public knowledge in Cape Colony—a colony with which they have telegraphic communication !

I therefore asked Mr. Valentine, M.P., put a question in the House as to whether the Cape proclamation of October last was withdrawn, and if so on what date.

On March 26, the following reply was given in the House of Commons on behalf of the Government :--

Government:—
In auswer to Mr. Valentine,
Mr. Osborne Morgan said,—By a proclamation dated October 8, 1885, of the Government of the Cape Colony, and amended by a proclamation dated December 31, 1885, the sale of apritinous liquors to any native, unless he abundly produces a permit signed by a magistrate, a justice of the peace, or field conet, was probiblied in the Transkainn territory. These proclamations are still in force. There is no prohibition against the sale of other liquors to natives, although the importation of wine, beer, and other intoxicating liquors into the territory, except under certain conditions, is atrictly forbidden. Papera relating to the anbject were laid by me yesterday on the table, and will be circulated in a few days.

The character of this reply will be seen at

The character of this reply will be seen at once when it is noted that it pretends that the proclamation of October last, as well as the amendment of December, were both prohibitory, whereas in point of fact the first allowed free sale to chiefs and headmen, while the latter absolutely withdrew this-the worst part of the proclamation. Of the ignorance or reticence of the Government, as exhibited by their giving no hint of this during the nearly three mouths that had elapsed since December 31, nothing need be said, as it speaks for itself.

NEXT WEEK, in consequence of Good Friday, we shall publish this paper on THURSPAY, April 22nd, instead of on Friday. All communications should reach us a day earlier than usual.

WHAT IRELAND MAY EXPECT.-Speaking on

DEHIAN SUNDAY CLOSING BILL.—The following paragraph has a place in a circular issued by Bro. W. Dodgson, D.E.S., South Durham, convening a meeting to discuss this Bill:—"You are doubtless sware that the Durham Ceunty Souday Clesing Bill has passed the third reading in the House of Commons. The Bishop of Durham will take charge of the measure in the House of Lords after Easter. It is of great importance that steps should immediately be taken to give his lordship all the assistance which he may consider will strengthen his hands. Mr. Fry, M.P., suggests a rublic meeting in Durham city, and it may be desirable that meetings should also be held throughout the county."

PROHIBITION wities:—Allow me a few words of explanation, dyropos of your courtoons remarks on my paper in the Warehword for April 5. I intentionally made no mention of Rh. MacLagari Scotland Bill, as also of Mr. Johnston's Local Option scheme for Ulster, because, being merely sectional, they cannot be said to be "before the consideration of the country and the Temperance party" in general, in the sense of being offered for their acceptance, which is the sense in which I used the words. I fully admit that I ought, for strict accuracy, to have taken note of Mr. S. Howard's Bill, as that is a national measure, or, at any rate, one preposed for England, whose Temperance policy was my subject. But I believe the real cause of my having at the moment overlooked it was the fact that, though differing, of course, from the Government scheme, the two are yet so far akin as that the omission but little affects my argument. Both come under whatever objections may be felt to "logalising olective licensing boards," to the dangers of which you allude, so that it seems to matter comparatively little what form of elective or representative Option is preferred by the body of Temperance M.P.'s who reject direct option. I do imagine, however, that the large proportion of these (called "Local Optionists' in distinction to Direct Votoiats) have accepted the phrase "Lecal Option" in the sense put upon it, or to be put upon it by their Liberal leaders. I am far from undervaluing printed expressions of opinion on this matter, whether in leaders, pamphlets, &c.; but what is wanted is public discussion, official declarations and resolutions of Grand Lodge and ether corporate bodies.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

LAMBETIL.—The election of Guardians took place in the various divisions of this great parish last week. We note that Bro. John Mann was returned in the Norwood Ward. In the Brixton Ward Mr. J. H. Lile, a strong Temperance advocate, was returned at the head of the poll.

NEWPORT, MON.—Bro. W. H. Brown, D.C.T. (Monmouth District), has just been elected as a NEWFORT, MON.—Bro. W. H. Brown, D.C.T. (Monmouth District), has just been elected as a member of the Newport Board of Guardians. Bro. Brown is also a member of the Newport School Bord. Bro. Geuncillor J. R. Jacob, J.P., was, at a recent meeting of the Newport Town Council, elected to fill an Aldermanie vacancy by 21 votes to one. The Order has now two good representatives in the Council in the persons of Bro. Alderman, J. R. Jacob and Bro. Councillor M. Mordey.

Leek.—Bro. I. Heath, P. W.D.C. North Stafford,

LEEK.—Bro. I. Heath, P.W.D.C. North Stafford, has been elected a member of the Leek Board of Guardians.

STOKE,—Bro. A. Heath has been elected a member of Stoke Board of Guardians. It is very pleasing to note that at this place not a publican has been returned. One was nominated for Hanley Ward, but our brother polled nearly 300 votes more than did the publican.

FELLING-ON-TINE.—Bro. J. Hepper, of Dare to be True Lodge, has been elected to the Board of Guardians. This Lodge is new represented on the Local Board, School Board, and the Guardians.

Campire.—In the Roath Ward, Bro. Councillor

Candife.—In the Roath Ward, Bro. Councillor Beavan, W.D.Ch., East Glamorgan, and District Superintendent U.K.A. for South Wales, was returned second in a list of 13 candidates. A strong supporter of Temperance principles is thus added to the Board.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday, April 10, Bro. J. Shipman, of Angel of Mercy Lodge, Camden Town, was presented with a valuable gold watch by 224 employés of a firm of which he is manager, as a mark of their appeciation for his promptitude and coolness in eubduing a fire at the manufactory on February 3 last.

Bro. Rev. WILLIAM Ross, P. R. W. G. T., says over 5,000 persoos have taken the teetotal pledge during the last 22 months at the meetings in Cowcaddens Free Church, Glasgow, of which he is pastor.

Bro. T. N. G. CLARE, G.W.V.T., of the Bahamas, West Indies, moved, in the Legislature, the insertion of a clause in the Election Act, whereby drink-shops would be closed on election days. His amendment was adopted, and has become law.

IN MY LAST I named North Durham instead of South Durham, as having the following large Subordinate Lodges at the places named:—Lodge No. 999 (Tow Law), 132 members; 2146 (Howden-le-Wear), 120; 131 (Stockton), 107; 3245 (Stockton), 106.

THE FIRST ANNUAL REPORT of the Young Crusaders Juvenile Temple, Chelsea, is printed, and contains a splendid record of the year's doing, a balance sheet also being added. The Temple has a peony bank, and a tonic sol-fa class, and is looking to the formation of a library and cricket club.

A TEMPERANCE TOUR.—Bro. J. Pepper, of Lincoln, a while ago took a walking tour from Lincoln to Lendon and back. He is 67 years of age, and on one occasion he walked 29 miles in one day. He addressed several Lodges and Temperance meetings a route. The whole journey occupied but 11 days. On returning to Lincoln he addressed a meeting of about 2,000, and was heatfully received.

THE LEICESTERSHIRE AND DISTRICT TEMPERANCE UNION is managed by an Executive, two-thirds of whom are elected by our District. Lodge, Admiral King Hall is president, and Bro. Rev. F. B. Meyer, B. A., Bro. D. S. Hulme and Bro. Beckwith are vice-presidents; the agent being Bro. Hüllier, P.D.C.T. of the Isle of Wight. The report shewe an income of £350; an active propagation in every direction, and a large list of our Ledges affiliated.

THE Neucastle Daily Chronicle tells how the master and mate of the water-logged ship named The Ten Brothers refused in their drunken daring to be rescued and so were drowned, while others of the crew were saved by the Sarah Ann, of Hartlepool. The officers of The Ten Brothers ship were little like the sober leaders of The Ten Brothers Bodge, in Dennark, who began to build their own Good Templar Hall even before their Lodge was instituted.

Bro. George Orman, who for many years was the sgent of the Derby Temperance Society, has been appointed travelling secretary of the Sunday Closing Association in the Midlauds, and will reside in Birmingham.

PRESENTATION.—On April 12, Bro. Frederick Jenkins, of the Royal Windsor Lodge, "was presented with a handsome clock on the occasion of his marriage, hy members of the different Temperance organisations in Windsor. On the previous Sunday he was also presented with a handsomely bound volume of the "Life of Christ," by the members of the Bible-class he is connected with.

AN IRRUPTION OF FRENCH WINES.—The manufacturers and shippers of French light wines are anticipating an increase in the duty on their produce in the forthcoming Budget, and are shipping enormous quantities to this country, paying the duty on landing instead of bonding the wine in the usual course. Nearly 8,000 cases were landed at Dover on April 12, and about 20,000 more were lying at Calais awaiting shipments. The same activity prevails at other wine shipping ports.

THE MAY MEETINGS.—Friends visiting Lenden may find excellent day accommodation at the London Centrat Club, Bridewell-place, New Bridge-street, E.C. Lunchoons, teas, &c., at moderate tariff. Country subscriptions 10s. 6d, per annum. Reading and writing-reoms, &c.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNERS, Social Teas, Conferences, Evening Meetings of Companies or Societies, on reasonable terms, at the London Central Club, Bridewell-place, London, E.C., opposite Ludgate Hill Station. Strictly Temperance principles, SHUTTING Them UP.—At Blandford, on Thursday, the following resolution was unanimously passed by the Temperanec Society, on the motion of Bro. W. C. Amery, "That this committee rejoices at the recent diminution in the number of the very many seurces of crime, distress, and paperison, in Blandford, and expresses its thankfulness for the manifestation of philanthropy and public spirit on the part of the Hon. Miss Portman, by whose beneficent action in purchasing and cleaing the Portman Arms, that satisfactory result has been achieved." The magistrates at the last Licensing Sessions withdrew the licence from a beer-house where murder had recently been committed by the licence-holder.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Irish question has entirely absorbed public tention during the past week. The scene in the attention during the past week. The scene in the House of Commons on April 8, was one that will not soon be forgotten. The same may be said of Mr. Gladstone's wonderful oratorical effort. Tf all our legislators would infuse the same spirit and nobleness of purpose into their actions and speeches as that displayed by the Premier on Thursday week, much of the hitterness of political life would soon disappear. It is not within the prevince of these disappear. It is not within the prevince of these columns to offer any opinion on the question of the future government of Ireland. Yet the hope may be expressed that whatever action is taken, it may be such as will bind our sister isle more closely to us, and dispel much of the bitterness which has existed for so many years.

The vacancies in the Ministry created by the resignation of those disagreeing with Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy have been filled up with friends of Temperance. Sir Ughtred Kay-Shuttleworth has been appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Mr. Stafford Howard goes to the Indian Office as Under-Secretary, and Mr. Borlase succeeds Mr. Jesse Collings at the Lecal Government Board. These three gentlemen are in favour of the Direct Veto policy advocated by the Grand Lodge.

I am glad to see that Mr. J. Charles Durant retains his seat for Stepney. For 20 years he has been well-known upon the Temperance platforms of the Metropolis, and his presence in the House will be very welcome whenever our question comes on for discussion.

The concluding festival of the Lambeth Baths winter meetings was held on Saturday, April 10, under the presidency of Mr. Samuel Morley. During the season 203 meetings have been held, 116 of which were Gospel, Temperance, and experience. meetings, and about 1,000 persons have signed the meetings, and about 1,000 persons have signed the pledge. Since these gatherings were first inaugurated — 24 years ago — the character of the surrounding district has changed for the better, and numbers of the inhabithe better, and numbers of the inhabi-tants have been brought under good influences and are now living higher and holier lives. Too much praise cannot be given to the Rev. G. M. Murphy and his earnest band of workers, all of whom give their services in this good cause.

Those writers who are ever anxious to minimise the strength of the Prohibition Party in the States the strength of the Promotion Party in the States should study the American papers a little more, and they would soon perceive how mistaken they are in their views. No governor thinks of sending out his annual message without referring to the question, and those not in favour of extreme measures admit the justice of the demand for some curtailment of the traffic. The success of Georgia, Kansas, and Iowa has given an immense impetus to the movement in other States, and many are preparing to make prohibition the test question at the next election.

An illustration that the law is no dead letter in Kansas is found in the testimony of Governor Martin, who recently said:

Martin, who recently said:
During the past I weeks I have been through all parts of the Saste, speaking at fairs and renoises once or twice every week. Three gatherings bare nombered from 2,000 to 6,000 people. My opportunities for finding out the true status of the enforcement of the prohibitory law have been unequalled. Daring this time I have been struck with the entire absence of drankenness. In fact, loredible as it may appear, I did not see a dranken man through my whole circuit. Here in Topeks, at the renoinon, the largest gathering ever held in the State, where no lees than 100,000 people were present, only one case of intoxication came under my observation. It is my opinion that not more than one-tenth of the liquor is sold in the State to-day that there was before the passage of the prohibitory law. the prohibitory law.

Among the various efforts put forth at the present time to assist those who are suffering through the time to assist these who are sumering inrough the depression of trade, is a movement started by Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Lady Wolseley, and others. "Scrap" carts have been provided, which collect broken food in London. This is carefully cooked, being made up into puddings, stews, pies, &c., and retailed to the poor at a penny a dish.

The Excise law recently adopted by the Russian Government will have the effect of closing quite 80,000 grog saloons. Licences for the sale of liquor will only be granted to hotels and restaurants, and these will be limited according to the judgment of the Excise officers, and a fee of £45 charged for each. The Finance Minister says that "while experience has proved that the vice of drunkenness cannot be extirpated by legislative measures, it is certain that wise legislation can at least do much to lessen the evil, and contribute to the meral development of the people.

The latest novelty as a Pand of Hope The latest novity as a man of Hope instructor is supplied in this month's Band of Hope Chronicle, in the shape of a "Punch and Judy show." The writer says:—"Perhaps the idea has not occurred toyour readers that a Punch and Judyshow, made on the plan of the well-known street shows, may be made useful in children's entertainments. I have constructed one this winter, and wishing to make it instructive as well as amusing, have intro-duced a Temperance story. I find that very young children remember the thread of the story, and the moral, as well as the more amusing parts.

It will draw any number of children."

This is certainly a novel idea, yet I do not see why it should not be made very useful. We all, as boys and girls, have spent many minutes at the boys and girls, have spent many minutes at the corner of streets watching the adventures of Punch and his spouse; though I am afraid the dialogue put into their mouths by the "worker" is not often of an edifying character. But a reformed and regenerated Punch, anxious to make amends for all his past misdeede, and prepared to teach his auditors the truths of Temperance, is a vast improvement; and it is to be hoped the originator of this reform will computing to these some reform will communicate to others some further particulars of the working of this new "instructor." The Sale of Liquors to Children.—I am pleased to see that this matter is before the House of Commons, and trust the time is not far distant when a bill will be passed prohibiting publicans from selling to children under 13 years of age. To me it seems a crime, that children of tender years should be sent to public-houses, for children are all eurious, and, therefore, it is only childlike that they should taste what they bare been sent for. Now, how often that tasting leads to liking and liking becomes longing, and thus we have our children turn out confirmed drunkards; whereas if they had not been seat to fetch it in the first instance, they would have grown up respectable men and women. Parents have much to answer for in this respect. Here is a case which has come under my own notice. I am living opposite a beerhouse, and every Sunday dinner time there is a child of not more than three years of age, sent three or four times for beer, the child is so young that she cannot open the door herself, but has to wait until someone comes along to open it for her. This sort of thing the publicans, too, in this town, encourage children by giving them presents at Christmas; therefore I think it is quite time this was put a stop to, and I trust that all Good Templars, and Temperance societies will do all they can to bring this about.—George Branscomes, Birming-ham.

Lodges in Agricultural Districts. - Having for some years been an Executive officer, and latterly D.C.T. of what is probably the most purely agricultural District Lodge in England or Wales, I may be able to contribute something to this discus-In Radnorshire, our largest town (Knighton) has barely 2,000 inhabitants, while there are but two other places whose population exceeds 1,000. Notwithstanding this, we have nine Lodges in good working order in that district, the smallest having a membership of over 20, and these of course situate in places that can hardly be termed villages. One of our largest, oldest, and best Lodges is located in a village which has about 24 houses, and a population of 150. This Lodge has had a membership of tion of 150. This Lodge has had a membership of 140 at one time, and of course the members had to attend from long distances, the country around being only sparsely populated. Another Lodge has been working for 11 years, and this in a still amelier country village, hat without failing to meet every week regularly except on one occasion during the long period. Other of our Lodges in amall hamilets shew stimest an equally good record, but on the other hand the Lodges located in the small towns of the country at one time or another have utterly collepsed and had to be restarted. In the county town (Presteigne) the Lodge failed to meet eight or nine years ago, and all efforts to get it to work nine years ago, and all efforts to get it to work again came to naught. The experience of this district goes to prove that Good Templary can be worked most efficiently even in country stricts, provided we can get hold of members of the right atsmp in the various places who will attend interest themselves in their Lodges. No doubt we are unable to indulge in those fraternal where there are two or more Lodger, and that District officers have to be tolerably self-sacrificing, and willing to make long journeys in the winter evenings along dark and muddy country roads. In thia District, we have 320 adult members, and also 330 juveniles in seven Templos, out of a population of barely 30,000; thus we number more than one in 50 of the total inhabitants. I do not wish to crack up our District, but merely to point out that were our Order equally well represented through-out the kingdom, we should have a mem-bership (adult and juvenile) of about three-quarters of a million. No matter how small a vil-lage may be, rarely is it too small for a public-house to exist and flourish. Then let us, too, endeavour to plant our Lodges and Juvenile Temples side by side with these sources of evil, until our Order will form a vast network throughout the kingdom. Thus shall we hasten that good time coming when Britons shall be free from the vices which now enslave them.—D. CHARLES DAVIES, which now enslave to D.C.T., Radnorshire.

Associates of Good Templary .-- It seems

hardly fair to criticise Bro. T.B.C's scheme when so little is known of its details, but how will it remedy the difficulty of which he speaks—that of working the "social club" idea of our Order withont in the least impairing its character as a devoted working army-if the two classes of members are to meet in the same Lodge meetings as at present? In proportion to the distinction drawn between working members and those who, it is understood, come to be amused, would be, one would think, the stringency of the demand for amusement on the part of these alter. Are the associates to hold office, vote with the full members, attend District Lodge, &c.? Whether or no, either alternative presents grave difficulties. Then I fail to see how the exchange difficulties. Then I fail to see how the exchange of the Templar form of pledge for the Blue Ribbon one would lessen the oril of violation. Some poor victim of drink, after infinite pains and many prayers on the part of friends, takes pledge, "God helping" him, at a + 1 pledge, "God helping" him, at a Blue Ribbon meeting, and a few days after is seen drunk as usual. One feels inexpresis seen drunk as usual. One feels mexpressibly pained and shooked; I do not think it would be pressible to feel more so if the pledge had been made in a Templar Lodge, nor that the actual guilt and degradation are less than in the latter case. The fact is, all unconditional testotal pledges are "life-long" in the only rational sense. If one were to tell the people at a teetotal meeting that the pledge they are sigoing is not for life (a thing no one would dream of doing), they would naturally answer, "For how long is it then?" I cannot but answer, "For how long is it then?" I cannot out think that to give a Blue Ribbon or other ordinary pledge in connection with the Good pletign in contentation with the Good rempiral Urder, in order that breaking it may be less dis-graceful or serious than if taken in Templar form, would be to decidedly lower even the present standard of moral feeling with respect to Tem-perance pledges, and that the Templar obligation would really suffer with the rest. The only alternative where the resolution is known to be weak is the old device of an experimental or time pledge. Would it be possible to graft this on in the form of an associate section to the Order? I cannot tell, but if tried it strikes me that the length of the experimentshould vary with the wishes of the person making it, i.e., one might sign for a week at first, and then again, perhaps lengthening the time; while another signed for three or six months; but that the period should be equal for all before which the But in any case I hope no pledge will ever be administered with the sanction of our Order mutilated of its clauses against giving, buying, and selling. These present no great added difficulty to the majority of persons who join the Order To people of rank, &c., to banish drink from the table is open a far greater stumbling-block than the personal abstinence; but, as a general rule, the artisan who is honestly prepared for personal abstinence accepts with little difficulty the idea of not providing it for others, and finds his best means of keeping his pledge in washing his hands of the thing altogether. At the same time I firmly believe that in this quiet, matter-of-course assumption made by our Order, that a rational teetotal pledge necessarily means not giving, or selling, or making, by the same principle that it sening, or making, by the same principle has a means not taking, resides the real strength and forefront position of the organisation. To divide the pledge would be gratuitously to lower our standard and that without motive, since those who keep faithfully the personal portion comparatively seldom fail in the rest. —I. METFORD.

Associates of Good Templary.—I am much interested in the able letter of Bro. T.B.C., which appears in your number for April 5, on the Mid-Somerset suggestion of "Associates of Good Templary." I agree with him as to the original design of the L.O.G.T., that it was intended to form the advance guard of the Temperance army, but I do not suppose that any restriction was contemplated; any sifting out of such as would not be expected to march in the front ranks. No scheme to separate between tares and wheat has ever been successful, and the founders of our Order were, I think, too wise to attempt it. They took, were, I think, too wise to attempt it. They took, as we take, all who could be prevailed on to come; seeking to educate them into worthy members by means chiefly of the ritual, and to bring them up to the required standard. And if we could raise every member to that standard ours would be indeed a glorious work. But we cannot do all that we would; and the question simply is how best to do what we can. Do the "milk and bun feasts" what we can. Do the "milk and oun teasts" innor or help us? Our brother approves of them for associates. But the associates would gain nothing of Good Templer principles and influence if they were left alone to feast on the huns and experiment of total abstinence on their peculiar milk; and if we are to spend our time in feasting with them, then why not receive them into full membership with ourselves? The "double duty" of entertainment and instruction is to my mind the We may often great aim and end of the I.O.G.T. be of opinion that better entertainments might be chosen, better instruction given; but, like all other societies, the I.O.G T. must do the best it can with societies, the Jose I. must do the east it can will imperfect human instruments; and I think that hitherto we Good Templars have done well. Our foes were correct in their opinion that our organisation "meant war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt." And truly we have carried out our meaning. Wherever a decided stroke has weakened the enemy, our folks have had a share in dealing the blow. I doubt if a single Temperance society could be named where Good Templars were the most zealous and the best trained of its members. And if our foes now lull themselves to sleep, in the persuasion that we "mean only milk and bun feasts," they will surely have a rude awakening. But this is not so. They are already wide awake. They know us too well. The NIGE awase. They know us too wen. Inc. I.O.G.T. is, in their eyes, amongst the most bigoted, fanatical, and detestable of our Temperance organisations. And they have weighty reasons for their dislike of ns. It is remarkable that of those who leave our ranks, after any but a that of those who he we out thanks, which were were short term of membership, very few, comparatively speaking, break their pledge of total abstinence. The teaching of our Order is more effectual than that, I believe, of any other Tem-perance society which is not supplemented by a money interest, and our members though they may get tired of hard Templar work, or may unhappily take offence where they should have borne and forborne, yet mostly continue staunch abstainers for life. And I think that "T.B.C." would entirely for life. And I think that "I.D.O. would entirely agree with me in my view of the matter, but for one point, a point to support which he has, I fancy, hunted np his other objections. If I could persuade him that he was mistaken on this one point, he would at once waive all the rest. He is grieved at the adminstering of a life-long pledge to any who may not have realised what it means. I do not suppose that he really looks upon our obligation as an "extravagant prolooks upon our obligation as an "extravagant promise." It is but what Christian common-sense would dictate to us all, and what he himself, doubtwould dictate to us all, and what he himself, doubt-less, holds a strongly as I do. And the question really before us ir, whether more weak and careless ones would be rescoud if we took our members at first on trial with a pledge for a term, admitting them to our Lodge-rooms, but allowing them, I conclude, no voke. I greatly fear that many who now bless our Order for deliverance from intemperance, many brought over from moderation who are now zealous, hard-working members, would have been at this moment on the other side, but for our life-long pledge. I know some myself. There are not a few who once in their lives are willing to sign the pledge. Lose the opportunity, and you lose them entirely; take them for a term, and they go back at the end of it. Take them for life when they are disposed to come, and by degrees—in many cases by slow degrees—they become firm and decided. These will themselves tell you that had it not been for the life-long pledge, if they had promised but for a month, for three months for the content of the con if they had promised out for a month, for three months, for a year, it may be, they would anney have gone back. The custom of society, the influence of friends, the worry and disconfort would have been too much for them, if not the liking for the drink itself. And of those who break the the drink itself. And of those who break the pledge, it is but very rarely that their promise was lightly given, or that they misunder-tood in any way what they were doing. It is, as in all other broken promises, the weakness of humanity and the strength of temptation. It is, of course, a serious neglect of duty for any member to bring up candidate who is in ignorance of the rt of promise which he is about to ake. The same right of duty would operate sort of about to equally in the bringing in of an associate to take the full pledge without due instruction and explanation; and those who would neglect the one could hardly be expected to attend to the other. And it is very doubtful if an associate would find the Lodge meetings interesting, when he had no part in the management, no office, no vote. would have nothing but the husk, while the full members ate the nut; and he would judge Good Templary a very empty dry affair. Then the life-long pledge cuts a man more entirely away from temptation than does the pledge for a term. It gives him more support, pledge for a term. It gives him more support, and the reclaimed drunkard truly needs all he can get. For moderate drinkers who wish to try tho constitutions before signing for good, there are other societies which they can join as a sort of proba-tionary step, but I would if possible get them also to come straight in with us. A serious responsibility would be incurred by the refusal to the life-long pledge of anyone who was willing to make it. We cannot read the heart of those who between the tares and the wheat.—Yours very fraternally, Hellena Richardson. We cannot separate

OPINIONS OF PROMINENT AMERICANS UPON A SUBJECT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO EVERY REAL READER.

THE day for pretenders has passed. Men are now indeed by what they can do, and not by what they say they can do. The reading public of to day is too discriminating to be long deceived by the spurious. If an article has merit it will become popular; if it is unworthy it will sink into oblivion. For years the people of America have put to the severest tests a compound regarding which most ambitious claims have been made. Under such orders as it has been subjected to, nearly every known preparation would have failed, but this one did not. In the United States, Canada, and Australia, it is to-day the most widely known and popular of all preparations. In verification of which note the following:—

OF THIS COUNTRY

IS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-half of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in avour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases ander various names are the result of indigestion, and when this one trouble is emoved the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

FOUND DEAD IN THE SNOW.* A REAL INCIDENT.

During the great and terrible snowstorm of January 18. 1881, which left its mark on so many pages of domestic history,no less than 30 persons lost their lives on the far-famed Willshire Downs; but perhaps no se was more painful than the one upon which the following narrative is based.

Surrounded as must necessarily have been each instance with many sad and harrowing circumstances, the case we are about to to dwell upon outshines tham all, for not only had the widow to mourn the loss her husband, and the children their father, hut there was also the sad fact that but for the cursed drink he whom they loved so tenderly, and who loved them in return, might still have been alive to care for and protect them. When will the time come when men will learn that their drinking habits are not only dangerous to themselves, but also drag down those who are near and dear to But let ne tell our atory in its "round unvarthem? nished " simplicity, and the moral will reveal itself.

CHAPTER I.

"You won't be late to-night, Joe," said Mary Selman, as her husband hastily swallowed the fragal fast provided for him.

" No, lass; I reckon we shall be back about five. I mustn't he late, for I've got my flock o' ewes to see to, when I gets back. Master said I were to go wi' Bill to-day, for the roade 'ull aure to go heavy with this here snow as is comin' on; so I've got to help unload and we shall start off back as soon as ever we can, Dwoan't be afeard, lace, I shall be all right,"

And, with a few cheery words, Joe started off to the farm-yard where he found the carter ready with a grand team of four cart horses, and a heavy load of corn hehind them, waiting to start for the market town of Devizes. Now there were two ways of getting to Devizes ; one hy a circuitous turnpike road, nd one by a more direct route across the Downs, which latter made a difference of some two or three miles. This was generally chosen by pedestrians, but was not available for heavy vehicular traffic. On the morning when our story opens, the heavens were overapread with thick leaden-coloured clouds, and snow had been falling for some hours with a steady persistence that boded a heavy storm. It was, indeed, partly in consequence of this that the load of corn was got ready that morning, field work being impossible; and as it was hardly advisable that men and horses should remain idle for a whole day, the farmer thought It best to despatch some corn to the stores at Devizes. in readiness for the market. It was no part of Joe's regular work to accompany this load. He was a shepherd, but the flock was safely folded on the Downs, and as he had nothing particular to do that day, his master said he might as well go and lend Bill a hand. Joe was by no means disinclined for a journey of this sort; there was the chance of seeing something fresh-and, if the truth must be told, there was also a chance of his having a drop of the celebrated Devizes ale, For Joe, though in the main a good-hearted fellow, as the saying goes, was rather fond of his glass. True, he did not get very much chance to indolge his appetite, for he had a wife and seven children dependent upon him. There were certain occasions in the year-as for instance lambing time, club feast, harvest home, a wedding, or a journey to Devizes—when there were plenty to treat, or an extra shilling or two to spend. We have said there were seven children : so there were the eldest just old enough to be earning a shilling or two a week, but the remainder were helpless. At this time, too. Mary was, to use the homely words of Scripture, "great with child"; and it was this, perhaps, which caused her to be a little more than nanally anxious about her husband's journey in the snowstorm, and accounted for her anxiety that he should not be late in coming home. A neighbour looked in once or twice during the day, and with that rough sympathy so cheracteristic of our rural population, tried to cheer her up, and to while away the long tedious hours. Still the snow came noiselessly down, and as the large flakes piled one on another, the earth was covered with a deep white spotless mantle.

Five o'clock came; so did six, but still there was no sign of the returning waggon. The children got too tired at length to wait up any longer, and all except the aldest boy were sent to bed. A dull nneasy feeling prevailed in the house, and, try how she could, Mary Selman could not be at rest. First of all she would try to persuade herself that Joe would remain in the town for the night. Then she thought of the flock, and that hope died away, till at length she sat down almost overpowered by her conflicting feelings. She was aroused by a kindly neighbour looking in to see if Joe was got home yet.

CHAPTER II.

"Well ! this is a storm, and no mistake. I think we had better get rid of our load as quick as possible, and see about starting for home," said Bill, as at length they pulled up their smoking team in front of the Royal Oak, "I dwoau't half like the look of this."

"Oh! we shall be all right enough presently," was the answer. " I've a bin out in as bad weather as this afore. Let's go and have a drain o' aummat to drink. That 'ol warm os up a hit."

So the pair, after seeing the horses comfortably housed, and in a fair way of doing well, betook themsalves to the kitchen, and under the influence of the cheery fire, and a good substantial meal, seemed to forget the outside world for a time. But Bill was anxions to be on the move, and presently succeeded in getting Jos out of his cosy corner; and having unloaded the waggen, and put the horses to, everything was ready for the return journey.

"I tell thee what, Bill, I've got my swes to see to when I gets home, so I'll go across the Downs. Thee go on round the road with the team, and I shall be home first "

"No, no, man. Thee must be crazy to go across the Downs in this weather, I wouldn't go for a hundred golden sovereigns."

"Nor me, either," chimed in the landlord, "Both of you had hetter stop here all night,' seem afeard ov a hit o' snow. I bean't, and I shall go across the Downs."

"Why, what's the matter with ye all, to-day? Ye all seems to sing to the same tune. Anybody 'ud wife, w think you'd never seed a snow-storm before. You do search.

"Well thee allne wast a main stubborn chap, and I pose thee must have thee way, I wouldn't go. that's all.

"Come and have a drop to keep the cold out before you do start, then," invited the landlord, in mistaken kindness; and Joe, nothing loth, went accordingly, and added two or three others to the potations he ha already imbibed.

After another ineffectual attempt to induce his companion to accompany him, Bill started with the team, and Joe went off in the opposite direction, up through the deserted streets of the town to the road leading to the Downs over which he had to pass, Even here the struggle was terrible, and by the time he had reached the last public-house he would have to pass on his way, he decided that he must have "snother And so he did; and after a short rest he got up, and resumed his journey. Leaving the town behind, and setting out on to the high road, he met for the first time the full fury of the storm. He was not altogether unaccustomed to this, and fought his way bravely along, pausing for a micute now and again to let it break before renewing the atruggle.

"That's a man getting along up the road to the Downs, isn't it?" asked a butcher of his companion as they were hastily returning to the town, as sure as I'm alive, he's dronk!"

"I wouldn't go that way for a trifle to-night," was the response, "Let's offer him a lift back to town."

But the hospitable offer was either unheard or refused, and the hatchers, anxious for their own safety, hurried back home, one of them remarking, "You mark my words, we shall hear more of this preently.

Still on and on went the weary pedestrian, and down came the fleecy snow; the wind howled as if in derision at man's feeble efforts against the powers of nature-and Joe Selman was alone on the dreary

CHAPTER III.

"Tom, put on your cap, and run over to see if the waggon is got back yet. I feel dreadfully nervous tonight," said Mrs. Selman to her eldest boy, about even o'clock on the same evening.

In a few minutes Tom came running breathlessly hack, followed by Bill, who expressed the ntmost astonishment that Joe hadn't got home yet.

"Why, missus, I thought he'd a hin hours ago. He started off to walk across the Downs, and I came on the roadway with the team. I have had a time on't, and no mistake. Soon after I'd a got about half way I very near got lost, and I thought the best thing I could do was to hitch the hosses out and give 'em their own chance of getting home. One pair be got here all right, but t'othera be lost : and master and I and some of the men be going out to try and find 'em. We'll go up to the fold and see if Joe's there. He said he were going to see to his flock as he come back."

"Then, God help me, he is lost ! " was the agonise cry of the poor creature, sa she fell to the ground.

"Here some of you women, look to Joe Selman'a wife, will ye?" said Bill, as he ran off to help in the "Poor son, and ahe so near her time, too," said one of the kindly neighbours, as she proceeded to do what was necessary to help the unfortunate woman. "I'll stay along with her to-night, and belike, in the morning, her man "$\frac{1}{2}$! ited his way home."

Two days afterwards a neighbour looked into the desolate cottage. No tidings had yet found its way thither of the lost shephend. There was a look on the face of the new comer, however, that betokened news of some sort, and Mary eagerly came forward, saying, "Oh, what is it? I am sure you have some tidings of Jee."

"I am sorry to say I have no good news, my poor yoman," was the gentle answer.

But, what is it, tell me please. Has my man been

"God help thee in thy trouble, thy man has been found!" was the solemn reply, and there was something in the speaker's manner that told all.

Yes, Joe Selman had been found! But how? Search parties had been organised both in the village and in the town—for ill news flies apace—and every inch of the road examined, but without success. The missing borses, had, indeed, been found, and liherated, none the worse for their exposure; but no trace could be found of the lost shepherd, and it was feared that his bedy could not be found until a thaw set in. But a party working from the town end went out again, and at length, not a mile from where he had been last seen nilve, a halt was made.

here." The party all closed up around, and a shudder passed through all as one stapped forward and turned over the inanimate mass before them. Yes, this was Joe Selman, covered with three invites of same! He had died where he had fallen—not because he had got into a drift, and so perished, but killed by exposure. He had fought his way thus far, and then, overcome by fatigne, had laim down to that sleep from which there is no awaking until the last great day.

natgne, had lain down to that sleep from which there is no awaking until the last great day.
We daw a veil over the scene of agony in that little village home, from whence io, the prime of life and vigour, the head of the family had been cutoff. Nor isit for ne to say drink killed him. We only know this—that he was lured on to his death by a false courage begotten of the drop taken "to keep the cold out"; and we know that to-day the crise of the widow and fatherless go up to the tronger deed, and greater excressness of purpose in our wafraer against the foul demon who still stalks through our fair land, casting its withering blight on every side, and dragging down to perdition many and many a soul that might have done God service but for the curse of drink? Let us never courselves afresh for the struggle, and in the year just begun it may be our lot to be instrumental in saving more than one soul from the grasp of the templer. Let us use our opportunities as they are presented to us, and Got of His great mercy will give us the increase if we "sow and faint path."

THE CLERGY AND THE BREWERS .- Archdeacon Denison is sorely grieved at some rather strong language which has been used by the Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh in regard to the brewers, and he feels bound to utter his protest against it. Leigh, speaking at Birmingham on the brewing trade, said: "Yet this trade was recognised and honoured by the country, and the manufacturers of the artist electrons are the series of the artist electrons." the article obtained prominent positions in the country. There were 20 members of the fraternity in the House of Commons, and that morning he found that another had been elevated to the House of Lorda-elevated from the beerage to the paerage. They believed that the trade was a very selfish trade, and that it was the enemy of religion. It was twice cursed; it cursed him that gave and it cursed him that received." This strikes us as being very moderate language, considering the subject, and we are rather surprised that the Canon, who is an ardent Prohibitionist, exercised so much self-restraint. But the Archdeacon characterises rescript. But the Arendeacon characterises Canon Leigh's words as violent, coarse, unjust, and fanatical; and he also chides the Bishop of Ely, who presided, for not calling to order the rev. offender who made this "gratuitous, unjust, and slanderous attack on brewers as a class." One might almost imagine that the Archdeacon was a member of this class himself .- Christian Common-

How to Buy the G. L. Offices.—Bro. A. C. Townsend, of Aston, Birmingham, suggests the following plan to realise the above happy result. Says Bro. T. "We have 75,000 members (adult), each member contributing 1s, in the course of the next sic months, which to our poorer brethren will only mean 2d, per month, the sum is only a mere initiation fee. The result of such a gereral call would be $2.750 | I know some may refuse, or not get reached, or make an excuss, but such gaps would be more than made up by our richer brethren who would gladly contribute their guiness. By the editor's sail, by a special circular from G. W. C. To every Lodge shewing the marvellous result of 1s, only getting such substantial premises our orand that canker about Dr. and Cr. dispelled from G. L. Session once righted and started with annalous on the right side, good business men should be appointed to see no serve goes loss again. In order that this plan may have the benefit of the full resources of the Order, our correspondent further surgests "that all collections for Home and Negro Mission Fund cease until this vital matter is cleared."

The Middle Classes and Templary. question of great importance has been opened up by our G.W.C.T. with regard to the retention of with regard to the retention of members of the middle class of society in our Order, and extension in that class. I much admire the courage of our leader in attacking this difficult, and, in some quarters, most unpopular question, for such a subject is sure to be misunderstood by some persons, as an attempt to encourage "caste," and to create class distinctions in our Order. We may argue that all men are equal, and in some most vital respects this is true; but we do also feel, and in our inner consciousness believe, that social differences must exist, which it is no part of our mission to combat, but which may, if rightly approached, be used to aid our great Temperance reform. To use these social differences to aid our work, is not the introduction of any new principle, or the destruction of any rule which now exists, but is simply to carry out, in a methodical and rational manner, the motive which has influenced, and is now influencing our Lodges everywhere to obtain men of social position to be chair-men of public meetings, &c., &c., and if men of public meetings, &c., &c., and if we accept such and from men who are not abstainers, because of their acknowledged social we are illogical if we oppose any superiority, we are illogical if we oppose any scheme which will give us the constant and consistent aid of such men as members with us. To my mind the one, and only difficulty, is that of Jealousy. If we are to solve this question, we must face the fact that persons of different social circles have different habits, different modes of thought, and different forms of speech, and that the thing which will interest the professional man or well-educated tradesman, will, in many cases, be of wen-courcased tradesman, win, in many cases, us of no interest and tiresome, to the labouring man, and erce versal. Now, while some do not study their own enjoyment, but the public good; experience teaches us that they are the few, and that the majority will follow inclination, and I am of opinion the true way and do and do could be the majority will follow inclination, and I am of opinion the true way and do could be supported to the course of t that we may add to our strength, and do cona we may add to our strength, and an good service to our cause, by encuraging the formation of what I will term "Home" Ledges, which could take the place occupied by the "drawing-room" meetings of kindred societies.

Those "Home" Ledges would be a constant source of atrength to the more general Lodgea, and would draw persons into the Order who will not now join us, or if we do get them to join, it is only to leave us again at the first convenient opportunity. Of course these "Hone" Lodges would use the same kind of rituals, and conduct the formal part of their business in the same manner as other Lodges, but as ness in the same in private houses, they probabl-would not be able to receive visitors except by ary rangement, or on special occasions. I have given a good deal of thought to this question, and have been advised to put my theory in practice, but I should first like to get at the opinions of others who have thought on the subject.—W. H. Walfren D. C.T. (Rocks). who have thought on trong, D.C.T. (Bucks).

Foon ADULTERATION.—Mr. Cassul, lecturing at the Health Exhibition, said: "Homeopathic Coccas are wall named, as they contain the smallest quantity of Cocca." (CADBGAY' COCCOA is gurnarted pure, and we recommend the public to buy no other.—[ADVI.]

A GOOD TEMPLAR.

A man may be a Templar and not a Good Templar. If he merely keeps his pledge and does nothing else to advance the Order he is a Templar, not a Good Templar. If he is profane of speech, not a Good Tempiar. If he is protain of speech, violent of temper, and disposed to slander his neighbours, he may be a Templar, but is not a Good Templar. If he annoys his brothers and sisters in the Order by querulous conduct and angry speech in the Lode-room he is a Templar, but not a Good Templar. If he cheats in trade, tramples upon his contracts, and is unscrupulous in word or deed, the may be a Templar but not a Good Templar. If he cares more for himself than he does for the organisation to which he belongs, he is a Templar, but not a Good Templar. A Good Templar must be a good man, a gentleman, a man who is gentle, a man who loves his neighbour as he loves himself, a man a woman can trust and a child can kiss, a man who will not speak ill of you when your is turned, a man who will not be your friend with friends and an enemy with your enemies - you can trust him with open letters or with sealed packages, with your signature and your bank book. A Good Templar should combine the conscience of a Christian with the chivalry of a soldier. He should never lower his colours in the tace of the foe.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNERS, Social Teas, Conferences, Evening Meetings of Companies or Societies, on reasonable terms, at the London Central Club, Bridewell-place, London, E.S., opposite Ludgate Hill Station. Strictly Temperance principles.

POLE PERULEY CASE.—A large public meeting was held on Monday evening last, under the auspices of the Marylebone Temperance Federation, in the Trinity Rooms, Crawfordstreet, London, W., "to consider the Poole Perjury (I) Case." The Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh presided, and Bros. John Kempster, G.E.S., and Alderman J. J. Norton, of Poole, gave addresses. A resolution was unanimously adopted authorising the chairman to sign and present a memorial to the Home Secretary asking the clemency of the Crewn for Henry Williams and urging his immediate valesses.

RAND OF HOPE AND JUVENILE TEMPLE CHOIR CONTEST.—On Wednesday evening, April 7, a large audience assembled in the Drill Hall, Kingston-on-Thames, to witness a contest between seven choirs selected from the various Bands of Hope in Kingston. Mr. W. R. Selway presided. The president of the united Bands of Hope, the Rev. A. Cornford, was the instigator of the contest, and he very kindly offered for competition a handsome silk banner, which was to become the property of the best choir. The committee supplemented this gift by providing three acts of badges for the three best choirs, and a badge for each child in the choir. The committee selected one piece, "Let the hills resound," which had to be sung by each choir, and each conductor was allowed to choose one additional piece. Mr. Bonner, of The judges of the singing were Mr. Bonne London; Mr. Boniwell, of Surbiton; and Brandram, of Richmond. The competing of The competing choirs Brandram, or Rechmond. The compening colors were the Juvenile Templars, conductor, Bro. C. J. Parker; St. Peter's, Norbiton, conductor, Mr. W. Holt; Union-street Baptist, conductor, Mr. Percy Summers; St. James' road Wesleyan, conductor, Mr. A. Humphries; St. Luke's, conductor, Mr. J. Gridley; St. Paul's, Kingaton Hill, conductor, Mr. John Smithers; and the Buoyan Baptist, Queen Elizabeth-road, conductor, Mr. Creasey. A special gallery was erected for the occasion, running s one end of the hall, and capable of accommodating one throughout, and all the choirs acquitted them selves meritoriously in the pieces aelected by their own conductors. The banner was awarded to the St. Luke's choir, the second prize was taken by St. Paul's choir, and the third prize was carried off by the Juvenile Templars.

WE beg to call the attention of the readers of this paper to Bro. Raine's advartisament, which will be found in these pages.—[ADVI.]

It is not too much to estimate the number of Temperance men to the figure of 200,000, mostly to be found among the working classes. They have raised themselves to working classes. They have raised themserves to a good economical standing, and the majority of them are voters. Political questions, although not on the pragramme of the Good Templars, have of late begun to call for their attention and they have everywhere sided with the Liberal opinions. Liberal faction has by this got an immense help, for the Temperance men may be regarded as the cream of the people, which by its moral strength, its industry and ability, wields a great influence over the numerous classes of society to which it belongs. -Scandinavian Review.

"TRUSTING TO THE HOUSE OF LORDS."

The licensed victuallers of Northampton have The licensed victualiers of Northampton have been seeking advice on the important matter of trade protection, and they have got one response that doubtless is not very palatable. The sceretary of the Birmingham "Trade" Association replied that, in their opinion, teetotalers were so strong in the House of Commons that it would be unavailing to resist them, and that they had decided to "trust to the House of Lords." We admire the candour of this secretary, but we cannot admire his discretion. Never was a more fatal admission made in any controversy. In effect the Birmingham Association says, "We have fought out the question on the hustings, we have held meetings, we have interviewed candidates, and we have distributed leaflets, but it is all to no purpose. The People have decided against us, and we must now 'trust to the House of Lords,' confident that there we shall find comfort and sympathy." Doubtless many of the peers would like to postpone the settlement of this question, but the Upper Chamber, we venture to predict, will not dare to oppose the popular voice on a question of such supreme importance as this. There is a stronger and healthier Temperance sentiment in the House of Campana that stronger venture. healthier Temperance sentiment in the House of Commons than at any previous time, and with the Irish problem solved, the licensing question must speedily come to the front. We do not grudge the victualiers their latest crumb of comfort. They can "trust to the House of Lords,"—we will trust the will of the native accuracy at the pulling to the will of the nation, as expressed at the polling

HOUSE OF COMMONS. - APRIL 15.

THE BUDGET

We reproduce from the Chancellor of the Exchequer' etatement the following passages as affecting the Temperance cause; the more striking parts are printed in bolder type.

"The House will probably like to know the causes of the diminution in the Customs receipts.

"Upon foreign spirits there is a total loss of £12,000, but there is a gain on other spirits, principally Germas spirits of £70,000, thus making the total loss £58,000. On wine there is a loss of £77,000. This difference was not in the estimate sufficiently allowed for, but the actual yield for the two years is considerably above that of the year 1883-4, which was £4,270,000. Therefore there has been no actual fall upon tea. Tobacce has yielded £84,000 more than the estimate. Now as to the inland revenue, and I will speak first of the Excise. The Exoise receipts in 1884-5 were £26,50,000. And the estimate for last year was £26,53,000. The actual receipts were only £25.460,000 and that is less than the estimate by £889,000, or £1,140,000 less than the receipts of the previous year. This is a very important matter as affecting the revenue, though at the ame time it has another bearing. The decline is mainly due to the Isssened concumption of drink. (Hear, hear.) The receipts on alcoholic revenue is at the Excise and Customs were in 1885-6 below the receipts of 1884-5 by £1,000,000. Wine is below the estimate of 1885-6 by £77,000, and helow the estimate for 1884-5 £40,000. Beer is below the estimate for 1884-5 £40,000 the Beer is below the estimate of 1885-6 £95,000, and helow the estimate of 1885-6 £97,1000 upon last year; and below the estimate for 1884-5 £10,000; and the total alcoholic revenue loss is £971,000. upon last year; and below the estimates for the present year, £1,179,000. . There is a considerable dimination in the Customs, and a great deal in the Excise. That diminution has, of course, heen recouped in other items. A striking feature is the great falling off inthe alcoholic revenue derived from wine, heer, and splits and except the except of the production of the wine, beer, and splits ($15,10,000) the $21,753,000. The population in 1885-6 was $3,230,000 and therefore the venue was 19s, 1d, per head of the population. The decline is steod at £1,225,000; beer, £4,05,000; feerign spirits, £4,100,000; Exciss spirits, £1,310,000; therefore, the alcoholic revenue has less by £7,830,000 than it would have been if the consumption had been at the same rate per head. The period of 11 years, 12,000 metals at the period of 11 years. The decline last year was the largest ever known—that is £1,179,000. I do not use these figures as to dimination of alcoholic revenue as shewing that there is any decrease in the consuming power of the people. The revenue stands upon other heads at the same figure as it did hefore, and the less from alcohol has therefore been recouped from other sources. The revenue to did failt, tea, and tobacce is higher by £2,150,000 compared with the former period. In giving his figures for 1886-7, the Chancellor observed:—The Customs we take at the same sum as the actual receipte for last year; we take a decrease upon spirits of £335,000, and an increase upon the of £212,000. As to the Excise, we estimate an icorease of £45,000 upon bear, and of £240,000 upon spirits, making altogether £285,000, which just balances the estimated lose on the spirits in the costoms. I cannot undertake any serious remission of taxes, but there is one small thing that has been presed to the spirits and that I am eligible to shall be treamed. cannot undertake any serious remission of taxes, but there is a no semal thing that has been presend upon me, and that I am glad to be able to remedy. The revene loss it is estimated by this will not be more than £16 000, but it will afford relief to a great number of persons [restimated at $0,000 persons].

The fall in the alcoholic revenue is great and a continued increase in the expenditure of the country has led to an increase and not a decrease of taxation. It is no longer our revenue but our expenditure that increases by leaps and bounds, and if you want reduction of taxation you must go back not to drink but to economy."

In the debate which followed.

In the debate which fellowed,

In the dehats which followed, MIMCHAEL HICKS-BRACH said:—No one could be entprised at the difference which had occurred in the revenue from customs and excise, looking to the circumstances of the times. The Chancellor told them the falling-off in the heer revenue was $29,000 more than the estimate, and in spirits $1790,000 more than the estimate; and he attributed it to the mere than the debt in the mark of the monels and slae tann the estimate; and he attributed it to the more temperate habits on the part of the people, and slao to the prevalence on the part of the people of a habit of expending their money in other ways. A TEMPERANCE JUBILEE.

On Wednesday evening. April 7, a meeting of an on reunescay evening, april 1, a meeting of an entirely novel character as regards the County of Wits was held at Trowbridge, the occasion being the celebration of the teetotal jubilee of Mr. John Smith, a well-known and highly-esteemed worker omith, a well-known and highly-esteemed, worker in the cause of sobriety. The occasion was fell to be of noordinary nature, and the assemblage of friends from three counties, and one from Demerara, testified to the great esteem and respect entertained towards the the great esteen and respect entertained towards the veteran abstainer, whose work they were met to acknowledge. Conspicuous on the walls of the building was the banner helonging to the Trowbridge Temperance Society, hearing dato 1839, and looking as though it had seen better days; whilst in the centre of the room stood a huge jrbilee cake, with the motto, worked in sugar, "tond bless the Temperance cause." On the platform were sasted representatives from all parts of the county, and a good choir enlivened the proceedings. Mr. H. Sainsbury presided, and referred to Mr. Smith spatific, as giving the lie to the assertion sometimes made use of that the old Temperance advocates had not much Christianity about them.

Mr. BATCHEOR followed with an earnest address, and presented a Bible and illuminated address on behalf of the Temperance workers at Trowbridge. The Bible had a massive silver plate, on which we engraved a suitable inscription. The address was beautifully engrossed by Mr. Joseph Silcox, one of Mr. Smith's 'tectotal children,' and framed by Messra. Lega, as a work of love. Bro. E. Laver and Bro. W. H. Titcombe then presented a splendidly illuminated address on behalf of the Good Templars of Wiltshire.

Mr. Sarru feelingly responded, and made some deeply-interesting remarks on his past connection with the cause, urging those who were still young to work zealously for the promotion of the principles of total abstinence. Mr. Rodwsy, of Durham, and othere having spoken in congratulatory terms, an exceedingly interesting evening was brought to a close by a coffee supper and the distribution of the "jubilee cake."

This Rev. H. Elvet Lewis, of Hull, recently rendered most helpful service to the Clwydian Ledge, at Rhyl, by delivering an admirable lecture on "Empty Nests and Lost Birds." I am glad to know that the Euglish Lodges in North Wales are increasing, especially at Holyhead, Banger, and Rhyl. CHESTER.—On Thursday, April 8, a number of numbers of the Cestrian Lodge, accompanied by Bros. T. S. Crosthwaite, P.D.C.T., and John Davies, D.C.T., drove over to the village of Dun-hau-on-the-Hill, and held the first Good Templar meeting ever known in the village, at the Wesleyan Chapel. The chair was taken by Mr. John Williams, of Dunham, agent to Lord Shewsbury, an old Temperance advocate, and stirring addresses were given by the P.D.C.T. and D.C.T. Buo C were given by the P.D.C.T. and D.C.T. Bro. 4. Davidson, W.D.A.S. gave a recitation, and all the members wore regalia. Although not a sufficient number of those present were willing to start a Lodge at once, it is full yexpected that this effort will not be futile. By the kindness of the friends, refreshments were provided for the Cestrians, who returned home highly pleased with their outing.

Essex .- A second successful Temperance meeting was held in the Wesleyan Chapel in the village of Hadleigh on Monday evening, March 29. The meeting was under the auspices of Nil Desperandum Lodge, Southend-on-Sea. Bro. W. J. Francis, L.D. (P.D.C.T. Essex), presided. Bro. F. W. Freeman, W.D.Ch., and the chairman gave ad-Freeman, W.D.Ch., and the chairman gave ad-dresses (that of the latter being illustrated by d agrams). Sister Francis recited, and several Temperance hymns were sung during the evening. The chapel was well filled and 31 pled 40s were taken at the close, making a total of 70 at the two meetings. The inhabitants of the quiet village of South Benfleet were on the qui ruse on Friday evening, March 26th and bills and tracts having been previously left at every house stating that a Temperance meet-ing would be held in the Wesleyan Chapel on that evening by some members of the Southeud-on-Sea Good Templar Lodge. At the time for commencing the chapel was comfortably full, many working men being present. Bro. F. W. Freeman, W.D. Chap., presided. Sister C. L. Francis gave a recitation, and Bros. Croxson, Freeman, and Francis, P.D.C.T., gave addresses, which were interspered with solos and hymns. Twenty-three pledges were taken, five being from men engaged in the railway. At Hockley the Wesleyan Chapel was crowded on Monday evening, April 5, to hear Temperance addresses by Bros. Freeman and Francis of Southend. The members of the local Band of Hope assisted with recitations and singing and the meeting resulted in 11 pledges.

East and Mio Surrey. -The missionary effort on the part of the members at Reigate has been most successful during the last six months, being resuccessful during the last six months, being re-warded by initiations at alonest every Lodge session. Also in planting the Juvenile Order in that portion of the district on April 1. A large gathering of members was present, taking part in the institution of the Hope of Reigate Juvenile Temple by Bro. J. J. Edwards, D. S.J.T., and supported by Bro. C. Hill, Gounsellor; Bro. W. Shepherd, secretary, 20 invaniles and into adults care secretary; 20 juveniles and nine adults were initiated. Bro. J. H. Shergold was recommended as S.J.T. Addresses by Brcs. J. J. Edwards, Hill, S.J.T. Addresses by Brcs. J. J. Edwards, Hill, Shepherd, Inwood, and Shergold, who on behalf of the Reigate members thanked the District officers for their presence; much spirit was manifested and a very successful meeting closed to make way for Lodge session and Degree meeting.

HANWELL (MIDOLESEX) .- On April 8, the North umberhaud Lodge, which has not been working for three quarters, was re-opened at the coffee tavern, Diston-road, by Bro. T. C. Macrow, H.D. Three applicants joined as Ancient Templars; three by and two were initiated. Election of officers Smith, W.V.T., Sister E. Hughes, W.S. Officers installed by Bro. T. C. Macrow, assisted by Bros. B. Wheatly, and Bro. T. Sargant. Other names given in for membership. Every prospect of becoming a good Lodge.

YARMOUTH, (NORFOLK). -On Monday, March 29 a public meeting was held in St. Mary's School-room, Southtown, when Bro. W. Winton, D.C.T. of Middlesex, gave a capital address upon the Order. On Tuesday a united meeting of the five Order. On Tuesday a united meeting of the five Lodges wons held win the Good Hope Lodge-room, the chair was occupied by Bro. T. a new Lodge, to be called the Southtown Lodge, with 24 members and several names for the next meeting. Bro. C. Stacey Watson is the first W.C.T., Bro. Nicholson is L.D., and Bro. Madderson is W.Sec. The prospect is very hopeful, as the District has been quite neglected through the want of a room to hold meetings.

DEVONPORT .- On Tuesday, April 6, the members of the various Lodges meeting in the Temperanec Hall, held a public meeting and entertainment, the first of a series arranged for the purpose of reviving the Order in the town. There was a grand muster of members in regalia and the general public. Bro. T. H. Hamiey, D.C.T., presided, and gave a very Moon were the speakers, and gave telling addresses. The Star of Morice Town Handbell Ringers, conducted by Bro. George Prouse, rendered in a very creditable style three selections; Bro. J. H. Stephens also played three selections upon his fairy bells; duets by Mrs. George and Miss Jago; recitations by Sisters Litten, Elworthy, and Bro. Calloway. Miss George presided at the harmonium. An increase in membership is looked for as a result of these entertainments.

LIVERPOOL.—On April 12 a Lodge was instituted in 209, County-road, Walton, to be called Walton Happy Home. Eight members were initiated and 15 joined by clearance card. The members and friends met an hour before the meeting and sat triends met an nour octors the inceeding and sat down to acup of tea, &c., served by Brc. Inkerman. The installing officer was Bro. R. W. Kirkus, P. W.D.S., assisted by Bro. M. Jones, W.D.Sec., and Bros. Bullman and Gilmore, of the Hepe of Al Souls' Lodge. A very successful opening with prospect of great success. One brother has succeeded in getting his whole family, servants, and two workmen to join, and several others who had looked upon Good Templary shyly and tried moderation have abandoned this and put on the armour and express their determination to do all in their power to help in the noble cause.

WILISHIRE.—On March 29 Bro, Bramley com-menced a two days' masion at Salisbury; Mr. J. Moore presided. At the close a Lodge session was held and six candidates were initiated, and several others proposed, including the chairman of the public meeting. Another large meeting was held, So great presided over by Mr. J. Herring. So great was the success that a week's mission was arranged. On Wednesday, 31st, a hree days' mission commenced at Whiteparish, where both the Ledge and Temple had ceased working owing to various circumstances, but Bro. B. not only awoke the old members but initiated several new ones, and the Lodge and Temple are now again fairly at work. This District has already found the advantage of a permanent agent, and has proved a great help to weak Lodges; and it is pleasing to note that Temperance societies and Bands of Hope are all working unitedly to spread the cause.

N. E. Lancashire. —The District Executive met at N. E. Lancashire. —The District Executive met at Rawtenstall on April 13. In the evening a meeting of the Blue Ribbon Debating-class was held, at which Bro. C. Winnigd, D. T., read a paper on Good Templary. A good discussion ensued, in which Bro. Fowler, D.C. T., Bros. Rev. J. Jefferson, Winfield, M. King, and several other brothers and friends took part. It is felt that good results will ensue.

BOLTON. -On Saturday evening, April 17, a public meeting was beld in the Bolton Arms Coffee favern, under the auspices of the Good Templars of that town. Bro. the Rev. Richard Lambert pre-sided, and urged the Good Templars to greater effort sated, and urged the Good Tempiars to greater effort in the way of aggressive work, and rejoiced in the reduction of revenue from alcoholic drinks. Bro. Edwards, P.G.W.C.T., gave an inspiriting address. Bro. Bennett, P.D.C.T. moved, and Bro. Howarth seconded, "That this meeting rejoices in the formation of a Bolton Temperance Union, and pledges itself to do all in its power to assist such in the work it has undertaken to do." GOOD TEMPLARS' WATCHWORD. MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1886.

THE WORK OF THE SESSION.

Our week's Parliament is about to assemble to settle the affairs of the nation. In many respects it will be an example which the House of Commons itself might copy with advantage. Its deliberations will be conducted upon a system that we would not exchange for the form of procedure of the National Parliament, and while our debates will be less long-winded, they will be equally pertinent, and be addressed to less prejudiced minds, so as more effectively to influence upon their merits the decisions arrived at.

The work of the session is not very formid able. It is true there are 86 resolutions on the Digest, but many of these are either duplicates or contradictions, so that a whole group will be settled by the adoption of a single motion. There is no very burning question to be solved; the one topic that should be most absorbing is the old one,

How to stop the declension, and how to increase the efficiency and enthusiasm of our members for efficient Temperance work. The minor questions are, of course, more or less contributory to this one result, for life is made up of small things. The life-long pledge is to be reconsidered, it being contended that the time of a member's initiation is too early to impose so sacred an obligation upon him. The Provident Fund will be reported upon and discussed, and probably advanced a stage towards adoption or rejection. The tax question will come up in several forms, both as to tion will come up in several forms, now as to its amount and the time and method of its col-lection. The methods of obtaining District Lodge, Grand Lodge and Right Worthy Grand Lodge Membership will be reviewed. Some object to property qualifications, some would dispense with personal attendance, and some would almost dispense with personal service. It is proposed to base Grand Lodge Representation upon the February instead of the November returns. It is desired to repeal the prohibition of character dress in connection with Good Templar entertainments; and some propose to restrict it to the performance of approved Temperance pieces or plays. It is desired that Lodge Deputies be not disqualified for Worthy Chief Templars. It is recommended to make the bye-law permissive only which re-quires that tax and returns be forwarded before password is sent. Some Lodges wish to receive fees on receiving or enrolling clearance cards. The ballot is suggested to be used in recommendation of Visiting Deputies. In the competition for the Challenge Shield it is suggested that the increase of members should be inde-pendent of Clearance, Associate, and pendent of Clearance, Associate, and Ancient Templar cards, and of Lodges transpendent ferred from other Districts. It is proposed that lapsed members who have not violated their obligation should resume their Degrees on rejoining the Order. Juvenile Templars are proposed to be admitted to Adult Lodges at the age of 14. It is suggested to make the Juvenile pledge life-long. Monthly make the Juvenile pledge life-long. Monthly pass-words are suggested for the Juveniles. Power is asked to establish Juvenile Lodges with a pledge similar to that used in Adult Lodges. It is suggested to abolish Degree Lodges. It is suggested to abous Degree qualifications for office in Sub-Lodge-The Degree question arises in various forms. It is recommended to board out orphan children in Temperance families rather than extend the existing institution. The vaccination question crops up again, and Grand Lodge or Executive is asked to find a remedy Lodge or Executive is asked to find a remedy in the case of the difficulty which arises from the existing law. Provincial Grand Lodges are suggested. Kissing games are frowned upon. The discussion of party political [other than Temperance we presume] questions in the Lodges is objected to. Safeguards are suggested against the hasty or irregular removal of a Lodge. The Lodge Guide is again urged. Free advertisements in the official organ of Good Temperance drinks, also of sham ones, is recom-mended. It is proposed to dispense with the confirmation of D.L. resolutions for the G.L. Digest. Canvassing in Lodges for benefit or Insurance Societies is objected to. Steps are proposed to prevent the appointment as postmasters of persons holding drink licences. The G.W.C.T. is desired to visit every District Lodge once a year at cost of Grand Lodge. The Ritual is desired to be made public. The political work of the Order is desired to be done outside, but in conjunction with, the Order. The support of prohibition is urged without respect to political parties. The tinkering of the Constitution is objected to, and freedom of action to subordinate bodies is claimed. Summer time is urged as more suitable than Easter for the Grand Lodge session. And, finally, Sunderland and London compete for the honour of entertaining the Grand Lodge at its annual session in 1887. We can only hope that all these knotty questions will be satisfactorily settled, and that a new impetus may be given by the session to the rescue of the perishing and to the uplifting of our common humanity.

THE LATE GEORGE THORNELOE .- We are desired THE LATE GEORGE THORNELOE.—We are desired to draw attention to a very interesting series of meetings to be held on Good Friday at the Albert Hall, Albert-road, Peckham. By that date, the obelisk erected at the grave of our late Bro. George Thorneloe in Nuchead Cemetery, will be completed and as the Cametery Company's rules. completed, and as the Cemetery Company's rules do not allow unveilings or demonstrations in their precinta, a memorial service will be held at 4 o clock in the above-named hall, which is within a short walk of the burial ground. Afterwards those present will proposed to the company of the c walk of the burial ground. Afterwards those present will proceed to the grave and inspect the obelisk, returning thence to the hall to a tea provided by the Peckham Lodge, I.O.G.T. In the evening a public meeting will be held. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large attendance.

A TRUE DRINK TRAGEDY.

BY BRO. J. OLIVER.

could some poet's mantle fall on me, His heaven-horn inspiration fill my soul, Then would I to the listening world declare
The black co-mingled horrors of the bowl.

The how!—that little lake of abjuvecked life.
Of hopes and prespects drowned within its rim,
That minio whirlpool 'gulfag human soals,
Drawn to its vortex from the shining brim.

But since the poet's art I dare not claim,
Lest I be deemed nearper of his crown,
I would in simple language now relate
About one home by drink in rain thrown.

About one life crushed like a tender flower— Yes, like a flower decied Peath's resting-place; And of a monster heath the demon's power On whom humanity scarce left a trace.

Far to the Westward, where the esting sun
Its evening blush reflects upon the water,
In a new England city, lately dwelt
A wretobed drunkerd and his fair young daughter.

From biting wintry mora to weary eve.
That fair young girl her hirding needle plied,
Away from that dull place she called her home,
That they might be with needful things supplied.

Yet daily from her meagre pittanee he Would filch a part, with drink to get supplied, Till,—elipping on the ice one eve she fell, And in a hospital she pined and died.

Then came the burial;—one heatted man Followed to see her placed hencath the mould; But e'en a floral wreath by friends bestowed. To grace the coffin, he for liquor sold.

Nor was that all; as if by demons spurred, A deeper orime within his mind found birth; One sight he sought the newly-covered grave, And tore his daughter's body from the earth.

He bore it off in triumph from the place,
Then—deed of deeds! how horrid and cold-blooded,
Sold it for dollars, at a bideous place,
Where man's anatumy is taught and etudied.

Then with the correct coins he shuffled off.
And drank the price of her dishonoured elay;
Here let the curtein fall upon the scene,
Our souls with sickened horror turn away.

Let Fiction try her best inventive skill,
Methinks her wildest phantasies would pale,
Compared with much by simple Fact revealed,
Witness this true and deeply mounful tale.

O, Christians, patriots, brothers, all arise.
And drive the hateful liquor curse away, Then shall sobriety supremely reign, And usher in a bright and better day,

CONCLUSION.

6. I regret that it falls to my lot to report a decrease in membership—the continued depression in trade may doubtless largely account for this, still I asmost but think that we must not attribute it to this cames alone. The time of this Grand Lodge cannot be better cooppied than in considering this question, even if it should be necessary to shorten the discussion of less impacts at the shorten and the contract of the contrac

An incentous man is said to be making a for-tune in the prohibition States of America by a very crafty sort of pump. Worked by barmon, beer comes out; but should an officer of the law take a hand at the pump, the only product is water.

Bishof Wordsworth, of St. Andrews, presching at Aberdeen on "The true perspective of Christian duty," said: "There is the device of Good Templare, and in their case I would desire to think and to say nothing but good of men who form themselves into a fraternity for a good purpose. But here, again, if there is seen—as there is wont to be-sny rivalry dieplayed, as though they would claim to mould a type of moral character beyond what the ministry of the Gospel is supposed beyond what the ministry of the competent to form, ought we not to feel jealous of the honour of our holy religion, and decline to give attention to such pretensions." To the we reply, there would be no need for any moral reformation societies if the Church did her daty, but in the meantion Springburn's story about the date man in the pulpit is to the point, "Come awa" up, minister, there's need for us baith."—Sootch Good Templar.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Much curiosity was exhibited in political circles as to how Sir W. Harcourt would get through the ordeal when the time arrived for him, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, to present his financial proposals to the House of Commons. The general opinion seems to be that he proved equal to the occasion; and even if the Budget is a commonplace one, yet it contains many interesting features, particularly the statistics of the receipts from Excise and Customs duties. It is gratifying to notice the continued falling-off in revenue from alcoholic drinks; but better still to learn that as such income decreases that derived from other sources, such as tea, dried fruits, &c., has steadily advanced.

As there is so much in Sir William's epeech having reference to the state of the drink traffic during the past year, I have no doubt copious extracts will be given from it under the heading of Parliamentary intelligence. But I hope every member of our Order will carefully study the whole speech, and they will then he able to perceive how clearly it is demonstrated that the consumption of strong drink is surely declaning. It must also be remembered that the decrease of revenue to the extent of £1,179,000 represents a much larger falling off per head of the population; for had the consumption per head continued at the rate it had reached in 1875 6 the income from this source last year would have been £7,850,000 than it was ten years ago. Then we were drinking to the extent of 19s. Id. per head, whilst last year the average was 14s. 9½.

Some writers, however, will not admit that any of this decrease has come about through an increase of temperate habits amongst the people, and assert that it simply means that whereas in 1875 the nation was experiencing great prosperity, latterly it has been suffering from equally great adversity. It is also said that should any great revival come to the commercial world, the drink bill will very soon run up again. One paper goes so far as to advocate that the beer tax, &c., should have been reduced, so that the working man could obtain as much liquor as in former years for less money. But the "poor man" does not cry out for more beer; he asks for work so that he may purchase those "other comforts" to which Sir William Harcourt referred, and also belp him to train his children to walk in a better path than he has traversed in the years that are past.

Not only has the demand for the "other comforts" increased, but the deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank have also movel steadily forward. In 1875 these amounted to £07,575,000, or £2 1s. 3d. per head of the population, whereas in 1885 the savings had reached £94,156,000. To this must be added £3,150,000, invested for depositors, making a grand total of £97,500,000, or £2 13s. 6d. per head. This, to my mind, conclusively proves that the money of our wage-earning population is finding its way into a better channel than the publicar's till. And, as year by year they experience the benefits of increased thrift and sobriety, so the probability of any reversion to the old ways will be lessened.

This latest budget is a sign of the times which the meet bigotted and narrow-minded opponent of progress cannot fail to read. Let us, as Good Templars, see that its effect is not lost, but exert every nerve to still further reduce the national drink bill, and multiply the blessings already experienced by those now awakening to the fact that Eagland will be better, brighter, and happier just in proportion as it adopts habits of sobriety and thrift.

Many of the large West End clubs are reporting a falling off in their income for 1855 as compared with previous years. In nearly every case the greatest decrease is in the profits derived from the sale of wines, spirit, &c. As the demand for the spirituous liquurs has declined, that for lighter and non-intoxicating beverages has improved. May we not take this as a sign of progress amonget the upper classes?

The acence enected at the Old Balley during the "W. Ebor," answered his Grace (Ebor being the trial of Mrs. Bartlett are a disgrace to English ancient name of York, and the usual spature of womanhood. The idea of ladies of education and that See). "Ah "said the landlord, as he pocketed refinement (!)—dressed in the height of fashion and the cheque, "I thought you were talling me a lie, provided with novels, open glasses to gaze upon when you said you were the Archbishop of York."

their unfortunate aister in the dock, packets of sandwiches, &c., and small bottles of wines and spirits, as if they were going to a piente-assembling daily to watch the proceedings of a case, many of the details of which were too disgusting for publication, is so revolting that it is no wonder Mr. Justice Wills gave atterance to some very strong language in condemnation of their conduct. It is to be hoped that in future those having charge of our criminal courts will have the courage to prohibit the presence of these unwomanly women during such trials as the one just finished, and thus prevent a repetition of conduct which would not be tolerated in any ordinary place of amusement.

The Social Science Association is to be dissolved, and the interesting congresses which have been a feature for so many years will exist only in history. One of the last acts of the association was to arrange for the "Happy Family" aghering held at Princes' Hall some two months ago, and which helped so largely to show to the world the strength of the Temperance position and the weakness of that taken up by the representatives of the trade. The announcement of dissolution, however, may create fresh interest in social science, and men and women may come forward prepared to carry on the work. Many of the improvements enjoyed to-day in the administration of local affairs were originated at social science congresses, and there is still room for development in these matters.

On Saturday last a conference of workers in the penny dinner movement was held at the London School Board offices. It was announced that the Comnell had received 13 reports, and on analysing these it was found that on the average of every hundred dinners there was a loss of only four per cent; but it was thought that when they got more accustomed to the work this loss would be turned into a profit. It was generally fourd that if rooms were obtained rent-free 120 dinners a day would render a branch self-supporting.

Some time ago an able minister surprised his congregation by announcing his text from one of the daily papers of the past week, giving out the paper, page and column, and the following words: "A chance for some man.—For sale, a corner liquor shop, opposite a factory where there are 800 men employed winter and summer." Text and sermon were not soon forgotten by the hearers.

The Temperance World sees something very dreadful in the festival held by our brethren in India on Christmas Day in the "delapidated tomb of some departed Mussulman." It starts the quotation from official organ in India with the words, "Whatever new horror are we about to inaugurate!" For my part I see nothing very outrageous in a party of total abstainors meeting together and celebrating Christmas in true English style, even if their rendezvous is an old disused heat-len temple. Better to do that than spend the day in the canteen drinking, smoking, swearing, and perhaps quarrelling. Some people, however, appear to take a delight in groping after "warev" nests," and this is the second one that has been found within the last few weeks. I suppose the "horror" would not have been discovered, had the party, "the been Good Templara.

Mr. Samuel Morley, as president of the U.K.B.U., has propared an appeal to parents, nrging them to refrain from sending their children to public-housees for beer, &c. It has been decided to issue a million cepies of it, and arrangements are in progress to distribute them at the homes of the working classes on Saturday, May 15, Such united action counct fail to prove effective. The local unions are asking for volunteers to carry out this work, and it is to be hoped a sufficient number will be forthcoming.

Many years ago the present Archbishop of York, who used to be an ardent fisherman, betook himself for a few days to a Yorkshire village, which boasted a good trout stream, and put up at a clean but modest hotel. His Grace, on his arrival, informed the landlord who he was, and, on leaving, wrote a cheque for his bill, and handed it to his host. The Yorkshireman closely scanned the aignature, and asked, "What name is this?" "W. Eber," answered his Grace (Ebor being the ancient hame of York, and the usual signature of that See). "Ah," said the landlord, as he pocketed the cheque, "I thought you were talling me a lie, when you said you were the Archbishon of York."

THE NEW GRAND LODGE OFFICES.

As we have previously made known in the Watchwon, these offices have been removed from the corner of Congreve-street, to more commodious and extensive premises in Edmundstreet, Birmingham. It was felt, therafore, that a gathering of friends of Temperance might fittingly take place in commemoration of the opening Accordingly, Bros. J. Malins, G.W.C.T., and Josiah Derrington, G.W.M., issued invitations to a goodly number of friends representing the Temperance and other movements, to assemble and take the interpretation of the company assembling at 6 p.m. to partake of pleasant repast, which had been prepared by Bres. Alfred Hughes, of the "Garden" Restaurant. Tea being over, addresses of a congratulatory nature were delivered by gentlemen representing the different societies. Several G.L. Executive officers

Bro. Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T., speaking of the growth of the Order, said that 20 years had elapsed since he first became acquainted with the Order, and 18 years had rolled by since he returned from America to Birmingham and planted the Order by forming the first Lodge in a little tiny chapel in Regoe-street. The little seed since growing up into a mighty tree till its branches conted in England alone 1,600, holding 2,000 meetings every week. They had grown from strength to strength, till at Manchester last year, on the occasion of the G.L. Annual Session, Temperance sermons were preached from 276 pulpits. He remarked that it had long been felt desirable to acquire more suitable premises for carrying on the work. He concluded by saying that they would shortly have a Lodge meeting there, and those present might consider themselves fortunate if they were allowed to retire without a promise to become members—when they would have their "irons" heated—(laughter)—and commence the work of initiation.

Bro. JOSIAP BERLINGTON, G.W.M., was pleased to meet so many friends with whom he had laboured for upwards of 40 years in Temperance work and other kindred social movements. Their experience had taught them that they not only wanted great social movements, but that basides it was indispensably requisite that they should have a foundation of thoroughgoing total abstinence. This had been the experience of the School Board officers when going among the people, whose improvidence was mainly caused by their spending money in drink. They were, therefore, glad they had another centre of moral forces, and another building added to the very few possessed already.

to the very few possessed already.

Mr. JAMES WHYTE, secretary United Klogdom Alliance, remarked that on making known the invitation he had received to headquarters in Manchester, they were very glad to allow him to represent them, and he was, therefore, present in their name to wish the Order Godspeed. The Good Templar Order had a very definite aim in view, he felt the country was being alowly but gradually leavened with those principles which would accomplish the reforms they believe to be necessary. He believed the Good Templar organisation had done a great deal of work. He wished, however, to make one observation, which he trusted would be rightly received. He felt that Good Templary had acarcely the power it ought to have, and he could wish the Order had a little more power to dispense and send forth to the extremities of the world their teachings, which would be extremely valuable if the money was forthcoming. The machinery was very perfect; but he felt they could grind a deal more corn if they had a little more ateam. (Laughter.) If they were able to keep going half-a-dozen good missionaries it would be productive of great good. Somehow he thought, too, they ought to try and accomplish that object.

REW. CHARLES LEAGH, who was introduced by the chairman as "representing the west side of the Birmingham School Board," said he rejoiced to be with them, and expressed a hope that God would bless them, so that they might be even more successful in the new premises than they had ever been in the lold. He regarded the Good Templat movement as a religious movement, and he had no doubt that at that moment there were thousands who owed their start along the lines of Christianity to their association with the Order. He hoped when next he met them the report would be still more encouraging.

Bro. Professor Andre, of the Alpine Choir, next spoke, and created some amusement by stating he firmly believed that if the movement he had atarted to foster and encourage good music and ainging became successful, that there would be no necessity to build Penperance music-halls, because people when accustomed to superior music would absent themselves, and that, therefore, in consequence such halls would become bankrupt and they might, he humerously remarked, step in and buy the lot. He advocated the teaching of music among the Juvenile Temples and in Bands of Hope.

Countries with Harr (Birminghau Town-Council) expressed surprise at the progress of the Order and its powers, till that night he had no idea that Good Templary was so useful in promoting Temperance. He was pleased to learn what were the principles taught in the Juvenile Temples, and he should look forward to the next generation being both wiser and better. He had always taken a hopeful view of the movement, because the Chancellor of the Exchequer had by figurea he had brought in plainly shewed that the consumption of intoxicants had been much reduced during the last few years. He wished them auccess, and hoped all other branches of Temperance work would put on their armour, being assured that by-and-by would come the victory.

BRO. J. M. Goode-Hub, secretary Gospel Temperance Mission, desired to add his word of congratulation to the Order in having attained to such a very commodious building as they possessed at the present time. He regretted that the local Temperance societies had never yet been able to unite together in possessing a building where all the Temperance organisations might have a fraternal home, so as to associate together. He hoped the time would come when thase or still more commodious premises would be secured for that purpose. He was delighted to know that the Order was more and more dispensing literature. He hoped the members of the Order would avail themselves of the pledge rolls of their Union so as to get into the Lodges many of those who signed the pledge.

Bro. the Rrv. W. KIELING COx, Diocesan Sccreary C.E.T.S., wished them very heartily God speed. It was, he felt, a grand thing to have such suitable rooms as those they were met in. He most sincerely trusted that the Order, which had a position among the Temperance organisations, would press on. It was doing a vast deal to get people from the drink. He believed the Good Templar body stood absolutely far and above any other Temperance organisations. Nothing could do the work of Temperance better than our Good Templar Lodges.

Bro. E. C. Brameley, District Superintendent U.K.A., spoke of the introduction of the Order and of the work done by Bros. Malins, Kempster, and others. Rev. Charles Joseph, Mr. T. Hewins, and F. Mille Secretary, Brimingham Temperance Society, Bro. J. Phillips Midland Temperance League, Bro. T. Humpherson, P.D.C.T. (District Secretary Rechabites), Mr. Roffey (Sons of Temperance), W. Hussey (secretary, Birmingham U.K.A.), also apoke. There were also present: Bros. J. B. Collings, Gw. Sec, Edward Wood, G.W.T., W. J. Glover, D.C.T. (Warwickshire), A. Rowley, D.C.T. (South Stafford), Sister Townsend, D.S.J.T. (Warwick), and others.

MIDDLESEX DISTRICT LODGE.

DEBATE ON THE PROPOSAL FOR A DIVISION.

THE MOTION DEFEATED.

Shall Middlesex be divided ? Shall its District Lodge, which for years past has been "one and un-aivided," be cut in twain? Shall the jurisdiction which stands at the head of the Good Templar Districts of England, not only in numbers but in influence, be separated? Shall the grandest District Lodge in the world cease to be one, and be formed into two smaller bodies with results which nobody can foresee? That was the question which on Saturday evening last brought together 386 members of all grades at South-place Chapel, Finsbury—a question felt by many to be fraught with the most serious import, not to the metropolitan county alone, but also to England itself; for if any good grounds could be shewn for dividing the D.L. of Middlesex who should say that the same arguments would not weigh in favour of a division of the Grand Lodge of England? The gathering was one not likely to be forgotten by those who took part in it. Entering the spacious building shortly after 6 one could not fail to be some stirring incidents in con-Duilding shortly after 6 one could not fail to be reminded of some stirring incidents in the history of the Order in the county and the country at large. In the chair of the presiding officer sat Bro. William Winton, the respected D.C.T., who 11 years ago, stepped or was forced by circumstances, into the breach the office was practically going begging; who was speedily called upon to take his stand in the fight on the great Negro Question which agitated the Order throughout the world, and who by his persistent labours day and night succeeded in saving Middlesex from becoming the stronghold of the enemy. By his side sat Bro. W. Sutherland, W.D.Co., who was a prominent actor in a fight o yet earlier date, when the question of Provincia Grand Lodges was being discussed throughout England with a degree of warmth remembered only by a few. In various parts of the hall were to be seen other good men and true; aye, and women, too, who had stood by the Order in many a trial, and had assisted it in weathering many a tria, and braving many a crisis. There was also a large number of comparatively new members, to whom the burning questions of earlier days and the history of past years are practically unknown. Pre-liminaries disposed of, Bro.E. Wood, G. W. Tr., is announced, introduced with honours, and conducted to the seat of the D.C.T., Bro. Winton taking a seat by his side. Important as is the question that has called the body together, no inordinate length of time is to be taken up in discussion, so 9 o'clock is fixed upon by vote as the hour at which the opener of the debate is to reply, 9.30 and 9.45 being also proposed and rejected. An understandthe opener of the usuale is of the proposed and rejected. An understanding is also arrived at that nobody unless by vote shall be allowed to speak more than 10 minutes. Then a brother moves the proposition from Citizen Lodge, "In the opinion of this Lodge, the Middlesex "In the containing nearly 150 Lodges, is too large an area to be worked by so small a body of officers. It is desirable that this District Lodge make application to Grand Lodge for two charters to suit requirements of Subordinate Lodges. Linea of demarcation to be from Postal Guide. Having regard to the Good of the Order, we believe it would help to improve our numbers and stop the leakage."

This is the special motion which the meeting has been summoned to discuss, but the mover confines himself to reading a written statement that it emanatos solely from the Citizen Lodge, and has been instigated by nobody outside, and that in proposing it the Good of the Order has been the ruling motive. Some few seconds elapse and then a brother formally seconds, after which everybody looks at everybody, wondering what next, and next. Have the supporters of the motion turned tail or are they waiting for an absent champion to advocate their cause! Time goes on and presently it is moved and seconded "that the vote be now taken," and that within less than three-quarters of an hour of the opening of the session, Bro. Colbert comes to the rescue, however, and withcut supporting the motion suggests that the heavy declensions in the Order call for consideration with a view to a remedy. This appears to encourage the more timid spirits of the promoters of division, and one enthusiast'c and demonstrative brother, denounces the sins of the promoters of division, and one enthusiast'c and demonstrative brother, denounces the sins of the series of division, and one enthusiast'c and demonstrative brother, denounces the sins of the series of the series of division, and one enthusiast'c and demonstrative brother, denounces the sins of the series of the promoters of division, and one enthusiast'c and demonstrative brother, denounces the sins of the series o tive. Bros. Vincent, Blinkhorn, Fisk, Raintive. Bros. Vincent, Bliakhorn, Fiss, Kalliford, Grigaby, A. Brown, O'Brien against the motion, and Bros. Dabbs, Macrow, and Page in its favour, follow. Bro. Insull then spoke, and commences by disclaiming any pretension to the title of champion, denies that he had been up and down the District agitating the question; says he only visited four Lodges, and that at their invitation; cites the report of the G.W.C.T. in support of his contention that two D.L.'s are required; points out that at one period D.L. s are required; points out that at one period in its history, Middlesex numbered 10,000 members, and argues that the D.L. is quarrelling with him and not be with it, and that it is impossible for one D.L. to cope with the requirements of the county. Having spoken for 20 uninutes, by permission, Bro. Insull resumes his scat. The previous decision to call upon the opener at nine reconsidered, and Bro. Sutherland rises to reply to Bro. Insull, being in the anomalous position of having to answer arguments not advanced, which he urges should have been given. This brings Bro. Insull again to his feet with an explanation that he had meant to conclude by reading off his 12 reasons, and that he had an amendment, Ing on its I reasons, and totat the had an amonament. Bro. Sutherland resumes, asking when, as stated elsewhere by the previous speaker, D.L. first became inefficient? The motion, if carried, will strike a blow not at the unity of Middleser only, but of the G.L. of England. Then Bro. Moloney shews that the declension in membership is not so large proportionately as that of England as a whole, the latter having decreased 70 per cent. since 1874, while Middlesox has diminished 33 per cent. only. Bro. Rev. T. R. Couch is not satisfied that D.L. should simply vote the proposition down, and there-fore moves an amendment: "That in the opinion of this Lodge any division of the Middlesex D.L. would be prejudicial to the best interests of the Order." Then Bro. Wiuton's rising was the signal for a long-continued ovation, shewing the esteem and respect entertained for him by those he has served so well for 11 years past. Not for a little would be endure again the anxiety of the last three weeks, bearing, as he had, the attacks made upon him, not where he had opportunities of reply, but in his absence. Bro. Insull has told D.L. he only visited four Lodges, but they were representative gatherings, circulars inviting members having been sent far and wide. The Executive are charged been sent far and wide. The Executive are charged with inability, but who has brought the D.L. to its present position? Who has watched over and tended th of the tree and made it the admiration of the world? Who introduced the V.D. system? Bro. the world? Who introduced the V.D. system? Dro. Winton. He was present at the planting, so to speak, of the tree, and had protected it ever since and will still. Bro. Insull had spoken of promoting rivalry, but he never knew a man cut himself in rivalry, but ne lever knew a man cut himself in two to make a rival. [The expression "a healthy rivalry," we learn was used.—Eb.] The brother has engaged in Blue Ribbon missions, but throughout the whole of them never asked the co-operation of the District Executive. Good Templars were conspicuous by their absence from his platform. As to his references to the G.W.C.T.'s report, he said nothing of the loss of 600 in E. and M. Surrey. He (Bro. Winton) sought the office of D.C.T., and M. Surrey. if his re-election should at any time be successfully opposed would retire, but will not be kicked out by a side wind, and in the words of Wolseley cries "Hands nff!" to those who want to divide. Bro. Winton, who has been frequently cheered, receives a second ovation as he resumes his seat after 20 a second or a minutes. The D.L. is now impatient to vote, and 173 vote for and 22 against the amendment. On its being put as a substantive motion, Bro. Insull offices an amendment: "That this D.L. respective to appoint offers an amendment: "That this D.L. respectfully requests the D.L. Executive to appoint a special commission of inquiry into the declension of the Order in this District, and make such report and suggestions as may appear in their wisdom necessary for the good of the Order, including a recommendation or otherwise for a second D.L. charter." This is ruled out of order, as in the only point in which it touches the motion it is a direct point in which it to denote the motion it is a direct negative. The D.L., on appeal, sustains the de-cision of the chair, and Bro. Insull gives notice of appeal. As a substautive motion Bro. Conch's of appeal. As a substantive motion but. Comens a amendment is carried, and the yeas and nays are demanded, with the result—81 yeas and 20 nays. Thus Middlesex has emphatically declared against division, and the members, after an excited debate, troop out, and the hall is speedily cleared.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

THE UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE OF AN AMERICAN GENTLEMAN

AND ITS VALUABLE RESULTS.

(New York Correspondence, London Detroit Free Press.) Tex crigin, growth, and final success of any enterprise are causes for the greatest public interest, whether relat ing to public institutions or private ventures. The Western continent has been especially marked by examples of this nature, and I am glad to record one which is so prominent as to be of universal interest. Several year ince Mr. H. H. Warner, residing at Rochester, New York, became aware that what he supposed was an iron constitution, was becoming rapidly undermined, and that something of a mysterious nature seemed to be eapping hie vitale. At first the indications were elight, consisting principally of frequent headaches, dull paine in various parts of the body, unaccountable lassitude and occasional nausea. He thought that perhaps these symptoms were the result of a cold, and gave them but little attention; but they increased and finally became alarming. Concultation with two prominent physiciars revealed the fact that he was suffering from an cute attack of kidney disease, and to say that he was alarmed would be only to partially express his feelings. Under the most careful attention of the physicians. however, he failed to improve, and, in fact, grew worse constantly. His symptoms at this time were most serious. The slight troubles which he had first observed increased, and finally became intense. What originally were simple pains became the greatest agony. Occasional headaches and a lack of energy eventually resulted in the pains and horrors which eventually resulted in the pains and horrors which unly such troubles can brine. It was at this critical time that he heard of a tropical plant, which was reputed to be of great value in similar troubles. He had little faith in its power, but reselved to try it, as nothing else seemed in any way to relieve him. He therefore ceased taking the medicine of the dectors, began the use of the article referred to, and was aware in a very short space of time that it was greatly benefiting him. He continued here slightly, and as a result became permitted that the sum of the United States ever since, and is to-day a picture of perfect health.

Mr. Warner's experience caused him to thoroughly and most carefully investigate, and as result be discovered that the majority of common diseases could be traced in their origin to disorders of the kidney or liver. This was a revolation so startling in its nature that, as a duty of the control o

EXPULSION FOR NON-PAYMENT OF DHES

The following letter from Bro. R. Sands, of Whitehaven, has previously appeared in our columns, and its proposals have had the consideration of the G.L. Executive. As the subject will doubtless come up for discussion at Newpert, we republish the letter at the suggestion of the Executive:—

"It is with a view to retain as many of our members as possible that I desire to make a sugmembers as possible that I desire to make a suggestion in a direction rather different from anything hitherto proposed. At last G.L. Session a proposition was made, that "No member should be suspended or expelled for non-payment of dues." This was not adopted, because, I thiok, of the conditions are added by the text are responsed by rms was not adopted, because, it think, of the condition appended, viz. I that any member duly notified who shall neglect or refuse to pay, when able, may be charged with contempt. It is, however, I think, a sound principle that no member should be suspended or expelled for non-payment of thes. I these as permetal the context is the context of the c of dues. It seems somowhat inconsistent to impose on members a life-long obligation, and to initiate them with all the secrets of our Order, and then, althoughthey remain faithful to the pledge, if they are either unable or unwilling to pay the subscription we cast them off leave them to do as they like regarding the life-long pledge, and cease to have any supervision or control over them. Now the remedy I suggest is this:—To provide a place within the suggest is this:—To provide a place within the Order for members who from any cause whatever cause to pay their quarterly dues. This might be done by amending the constitution so as to provide:—1st. That all persons joining the Order shall romain members for life, except they are legally expelled or resign their membership in writing. 2nd. After all has been done which the law requires for obtaining the quarterly dues, and failed, the names of those who are two quarters in arrear shall be reported to the Lodge and (unless it is deemed prudent to adopt Lodge, and (unless it is deemed prudent to adopt any special means) they shall then be transferred any special means) they shall then be transerred to the roll of non-subscribing members. Non-subscribing members would not be entitled to the password, and could not therefore attend the regular meetings of the Lodge, on any matter of business, but in lieu of this they might be fornished with a non-subscribers' card, which would admit them to one or two aesa sions each quarter, set apart for their reception, and being in possession of the unwritten work, the business of the Lodge could proceed as on any other Lodge session: but on such occasions it would be Lodge session; but on such occasions it would desirable to have as much time as possible appropriated to the good of the Order, when the non-subscribing members might be invited to take part, and have their names on the Lodge programme. They should be regularly visited, say, once a quarter, an should anyone be known to have violated th should anyone be known to have violated mobiligation, he should be reported as any other member, and be dealt with in precisely the same manner, and be at liberty to come up to any regular Lodge session for re-obligation. Should regular Louge session for re-obligation. Should any non-subscribing member wish at any time to resume his priviledges of full membership, he could do so by paying the current quarter's dues, when he would receive the password and have his name transferred to the roll word and have his lame transferred to the ron of ordinary members. The advantages will be as fullows:—1st. The members would understand that abstentien from the Lodge and non-payment of dues would not deprive them of membership or absolve them from their life-long obligation. 2nd. We should have a much larger membership, 2nd. We should have a much larger membership, and thus gain the advantage and influence which numbers can give. There would be no difficulty as to the payment of tax as the returns would show the number of regular and non-subscribing members separately, giving a grand total of the whole. 3rd. It would put us on an equal footing with other societies such as the footing with other societies, such as C.E T.S., whose subscription is merely nominal. I might mention other advantages but the above may suffice. I shall be glad to hear what can be said for and against this scheme, and if it should ultimately lead to the adoption of a well-considered method, adding to the strength and efficiency of our noble Order, my object will be accomplished." - R. SANDS.

GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND, LO.G.T. ANNUAL SESSION. HELD AT NEWPORT, MON., EASTER, 1886.

The Annual Session of our Grand Lodge was opened on the aftermoon of Easter Monday, in the Royal Albert Hall, Newport. A number of Reps. and visitors had arrived during the previous week, and some bad visited the picturesque scenery of South Wales, and enjoyed rambles on the Mon-mouthshire Hills. On Saturday evening, the 24th was held as the first public meeting in connection with the Grand Lodge Session, in the Royal Albert Hall, in support of the Juvenile Order. The attendance was large, and a right good start was made. E. Greve, Esq., who presided, welcomed the Grand Lodge to Newport, and alluded to the town as having a population of 45,000 and over 180 public-houses. To get rid of these licensed temptations they needed enthusiasm, which, he hoped, they would derive from the meeting of the Grand Lodge in their town. The claims of the Grand Ledge in their town. The claims of the Juvenile Order were shly advocated by Sister Walshaw, G.S.J.T., Bro. Samuel Insull, Rev. Joseph Aston, G. W.Chap, Rev. J. McNah, Rev. C. Ayliffe. Amongst those present we noticed Bro. and Sister Eccles, Bro. and Sister Stacey Watson, Bro. P. G. Whitshand Rev. I Walshay. G. Whitehead, Bro. J. Walshaw.

GREAT JUVENILE DEMONSTRATION

The Juvenile Templars, about 400, were present.

wearing the regalis of the Order, and gave selections of music in a spirited style, reflecting great credit upon themselves and upon the conductor and accompanist. During the evening the children listened very attentively to the addresses, and were far beyond the generality of this addresses, and were evidently interested equally with the adults, and far beyond the generality of children, and their behaviour was a credit to their teachers.

At the close of the meeting it was stated that Monmouth had for the second time won the Juvenile Templar Challenge Shield. The announce-on Easter Sunday a large number of Temperance sermons were preached in the various places of worship.

THE OFFICIAL ANNUAL SERMON

was presched in the afternoon by the Grand Worthy Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. Joseph Aston, in the Town Hall. The platform was well filled, and the singing led by the Blue Ribbon Choir. Bro. Robert Mansergh, P.G.W.C., conducted the opening service, and Bro. Rev. J. Thornley, of Sheffield, offered prayer.

Bro. Rev. Joseph Aston took for his text the 16th verse of the 17th chapter of Acts: "Now while Paul waited for them at Athens his spirit as stirred in him when he saw the city wholly given up to idolatry."

The following is a condensed report of the addre which was listened to with close attention :-

The Apostle Paul had such a grand conception of the importance of the Mission to which God had called him, that it was impossible for him at any time to wait in idleness. The work to be done was so vast, and the time to de it in so short, that his heart ever burned to be engaged. Hence we find as he waits at Athens for Silss and Timotheus to come to him, he busied himself to ascertain the condition of the people in that city. Passing along the streets, his spirit was stirred in him; a paroxyam of agony seized his whole nature as he gazed upon the great number of idels, which as he gazed upon the great number of idols, which were exhibited everywhere; these led him to the conclusion the whole city was given up to idolatry. Our historian tells us in ancient Athens the gods were so numerous it was easier to find a god than a man, there were so many the city was full of them. Paul being a Jew, and knowing the com-mand "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image or any likeness of anything that heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth," could not that is in the water under the earth, could not look upon the many images in Athens without feeling stirred. Any sense of art beauty which he may have had was everpowered by his horror at the thought that men bowed down and worshipped these idols instead of the true God. I have selected these words as a text upon which to base a few remarks on Temperance, as I consider they very aptly express the feelings of all Good Templars and Temperance refeelings of all Good Tempiars and 1 emperance re-formers as they look upon the traffic in intoxicating drinks, and at the misery and wee attendant upon the same. Paul eaw God dishenoured in the city of Athens by the idolatry of the people. We ace God dishenoured by the intemperate habits of the reache and God farbit that we should look upon people, and God forbid that we should look upon these things without feeling our hearts stirred in us.

We rejoice in the progress made by the Temperance movement during the last half-century. The pioneers of this movement found the ministers half-century. of the Gospel with few exceptions out of sympathy with them, if not opposed to them, and the pulpits with them, if not opposed to them, and the pupirs of our churches and chapels nearly all closed against those who desired to advocate this cause. Now it is just the opposite, we are pleased to recognise the fact that the Christian Church has aroused herself to stem the tide of intemperance, and to said the Transparence cause. This is not the and to aid the Temperance cause. should be, for ministers of the Gospel have as their text-book the Word of Ged; and as we look over our Bibles we find throughout intemperance and our Bioles we and throughout intemperance and drunkenness condemned and Temperance and asbriety taught. Solomon in his Proverb says, "Wine is a mecker, strong drink is raging, and whoseover is deceived thereby is not wise," chap. xx. 1; and in another place he attributes were accommendated in the authorizations habiling and butes woe, sorrow, contentions, babbling, and wounds to drinking. Isaiah pronounces a wee upon drinkers, v. 11, and Habbakuk a wee on those who tempt others to drink. ii. 15. Jesus bade His disciples to take heed lest at any time their hearts disciples to take need lest at any time their hearts be overcharged with drunkenness. Luke xxi, 34, and Paul in his Epistle to the Coriuthians tells us no drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of God. Our gathering to-day represents a Gospel Temperance organisation, consisting of men and women of all ranks of ecciety, and of boys and girls, who are banded together to do their utmost to remove this great evil of intemperance from our We notice

All Temperance workers feel their hearts stirred in them as they look upon the evils of intemperance.

We have those with us to-day who have felt stirred for years past, and to-day they are noved as much as ever, for in spite of all the efforts of the past 50 years the evil is in our midst to-day. Everyone will admit that intemperance is an evil, a fruitful source of poverty, misery, disgrace, crime and death. Admitting this to be the case and comfort sink, and degradation and misery rise We have in this drink traffic an evil which causes more misery and serrow and more deaths than pesmore misery and sorrow and more deaths than pes-tilence, war and famine combined. As we have read the accounts of the sufferings and deaths caused by pestilence and famine, we have been moved to pray that the Lord would remove the scourge. As we have pictured the horrible scenes, which eye-witnesses behold on the battle-field, and have thought of the sufferings and sorrow which would follow we have prayed, "Oh, Lord, hasten the time when war shall be no more." But dreadful as the horrors of war may be, and we admit they are dreadful, yet compared to the horrors attendant. dreadful, yet compared to the Holland. If it can on intemperance they are insignificant. If it can be said of war it slays its thousands, it may be said to the said of war of thousands. We see we see but a small percentage. There is far more we see but a small percentage. There is far more that we are never permitted to look upon. Loving hearts hide much: husbands with crushed spirits, and wives with broken hearts when in our pre-sence put on a smile and appear to be happy, and the time their burden of sorrow is almost more than they can bear. Parents, bowed down with sorrow owing to the intemperate habits of a loved son, will not let us know how much they have to bear, or how bitter their cup is. This evil is one which robs home of all its attractions and comforts, and many ence happy homes are te-day desolate. Families once united by the tenderest ties of love Families once united by the tenderest ties or love have been scattered by this foe, and those who were once the pride and joy of home have been disgraced and ruined. We have heard much about the "bitter ery" of outcast London and of "Horrible London," We ask what causes the bitter cry. We answer, to a very large extent, "drink."

Hearts crushed cry out in bitterness and the misery and shame which follow make it horrible. It is an evil we all have suffered from more or less. No evil robs the Christian Church as this, it has entered her pulpite and dragged down her brightest etars and most elequent ministers, and to-day they are hiding away from society in shame. It has entered our colleges and cursed those who were studying for the ministry; it has degraded some of her most useful officials and members, and has proved the ruin of thousands of Sunday-school scholars. It is a great hindrance to the spread of the Gospel both at home and abroad; it is the great stumbling-block that we desire to have removed.

Our jealousy for God's glory caused our hearts to s stirred within us. We see God disheroured, be stirred within us. and man who was created in His own image, and who has an infinite soul degraded and ruined body and soul for ever and ever. We pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven." but here is a great evil in our midst, which hinders the spread of His Kingdom.

Our compassion for the suffering ones causes our hearts to be stirred in us. We think of the brokenhearted wives, whose days are days of sadness and sorrow, we think of parents dragged down to the grave with the bitterness of grief, we look at the poor neglected, cruelly-treated, half-starved little ones with no one to care for them, and our heart is stirred within us as we look on such sights.

The thought that our own loved ones as they grow up will be exposed to danger stirs our hearts. So long as this evil is allowed to exist there is a danger that crime and death. Admitting this to be the case [as this evil is allowed to exist there is a danger that the wonder is that more are not stirred to our sens and daughters may be cursed by it. That earnest efforte to remove the evil. We know that boy who is to-day the pride of his father, and as the drink-tide of a nation risee, happiness whose life seems so full of promise, is in danger of being dragged down and ruined by this foe. That daughter, who is the joy of her mother, and beloved That by all, is in danger of being led astray by this evil, and the pure and innocent one is in danger of being stained and polluted. There is a possibility of your loved ones, parents, being cursed. Can you think of it and be unmoved? God forbid! Can you think of it and be unmoved? God forbid! but may all feel stirred to action. We are charged with being too enthusiastic and with shewing too much earnestness. Those who prefer the charge surely cannot realise the greatness of the evil. I am satisfied that if we all saw this evil in its true light, instead of lessening our earnestness we should be far more earnest.

II .- Temperance Workers being stirred put forth Efforts to Remove the Evil.

When Paul felt his spirit stirred in him he did not return home and sit deploring the state of things which prevailed in the city, but he determined to exert himself, and, if possible, effect a change. In the next verse we read, "He disputed in the synagogue with the Jews, and the devoit persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him." He with the Jews, and the devout persons, and more market daily with them that met with him." He pointed out the error and taught them a better way, preaching Christ unto them. In so doing, we see his consistency. There was the evil; he saw it, and put forth efforts to remove it. As Temperance vaccious it should be our determination to get as Paul. workers it should be our determination to act as Paul acted. Let us be consistent : we see the cvil, let our aim be to remove it. There are many people who declare themselves in favour of Temperance, and profess to be deeply concerned for the progress of the Temperance cause, who do little to extend its principles. They content themselves with grieving principles. They content themselves with grieving over the evil, and the misery and woe caused by intemperance. Let all unite for the overthrow of this evil, and, with God's blessing, the victory ere long shall be ours. If you would help in the removal of this evil, let me remind you that, first of all, it is necessary you yourself shall be free, otherwise you will have no influence. Had Paul to the least extent patronised the evil he saw in Athens, when he declared himself opposed to it, his words would have been as idle words to those who listened. So with those who would help in removing the evil of intemperance from our loud, it is important that they shall not in the least pattonis that which causes the shall not in the least patronise that which causes the intemperance they deploy, The moderate drinker will never be a successful advocate of the Temperance cause -his examp'e is on the wrong side. you first abstant yourself you are not the one to war against "strong drink"; you are not the one to go to rescue the perishing, and to shew to the poor drunkard a safe and better way. Depend upon it your way is note as few way for the drunkard to walk in. He will never be safe until he takes the path of abstinence. Let all sign the pledge, and then stand out boldly for the cause they have espoused, and do their utmost to aid in the spread of Temperance. As you look at the poor fallen ones, who are the victims of strong drink, remind yourself they are your brothers and sisters, fallen though they are, are your brothers and sisters, fallen though they are, and let that compassion which moved the Savieur to come to save you, move you to do your utmost to save them from the evil which has curred them. And if you would do your utmost you must sign the pledge. We want the spirit of Paul when he said, "If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no fiesh while this world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend," (I Cor. will 13.) You may worself be strong but for viii. 13.) You may yourself be strong, but for the sake of your weak brother become as one that the sake of your weak property of the sake of your weak pan him. And remember, many of those who are to-day with the fallen ones once made their beast that they were strong; but once made their boast that they were strong; but also the strong one has been overcome. Again, if you would do your witnow to remove this cell, join hands with those who are engaged in this warfare, connect yourself with some Temperance organisation. Thus connected, you will be able to accomplish more than you will do by standing sloof. As a nation, we owe much to the Temperance societies that exist. The late Lord Shaftesbury said, "But for Temperance societies we, as a nation, should have been plunged into such a flood of drunkenness and immorality as to render our country uninhabitable." If I must recommend you a society, I would most If I must recommend to you a society, I would most heartily recommend the overepresented here to-day, the Independent Order of Good Templars. It has been pronounced the most complete of any; it is an Order which recognises the universal brotherhood of man, and is a thorough Gospel Temperance organisation; knowing that our success depends on God blessing our efforts, our Order requires all its members to believe in His existence. Our weekly meetings are all opened and closed with prayer, and over all that joint prayer is offered that they may be strengthened in the hour of temptation, and be kept faithful until death

In our efforts we are encouraged, and though the evil still exists to a very alarming extent, our trust is in Gol. In His name we go forward and labour on, assured that victory shall ore long be proclaimed on our side. The foe is strong, but with God on our side we have no cause for fear; we march forward to sure and certain victory. The day shall come when the foe shall be vanquished and our land shall be free. May God haste that day.

THE GRAND LODGE SESSION was formally opened on Monday afternoon at 2.30. We postpone a report of the proceedings, so as to make it the more complete in our next issue. After the Grand Lodge Degree had been conferred upon the evening.

After prayer by Bro. Rev. Joseph Aston, G.W. Chap, the chairman, E. H. Carbutt, Esq., M.P., who was very heartily received, said that he was pleased to be present in order to welcome the Carand Lodge of England, a society that was doing its best to wage war with the evils of intemperance -which the Prime Minister said had done more —which the Prime Minister said had done more to cause poverty than "war, pestilence, and famine," and there was no doubt the present House of Commons was in earnest to do all it could to further the Temperance movement by legislation. Unfortunately, they had lost their leader, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, but they hoped soon to see him back in his place again. Although only three months have passed since Par-liament, bed here in session, one Sanday Closing liament had been in session, one Sunday Closing Bill had passed that House—that of the County of Durham; that had now to go to the House of Lords. He was glad to know that Good Templars had opened Lodges in Balgium, in Hamburg, and also in Norway and Sweden and other parts of the world; but hore, in this country, they were mostly engaged out note, in this country, they were amostly engaged and doing good work. He was glad to have met their Grand Chief—Grand Master—(laughter)—Mr. Malins. (Applause.) He had had much correspondence with him, but had never met him till that day. It was always a pleasure to meet a correspondent. He had great pleasure in welcoming him as their Chief that evening. (Applause.)

Short but hearty addresses of welcome were also given by Edwin Grove, Esq., Rev. J. H.
Poppleton, Henry Phillips, Esq., J.P. The speeches of welcome were responded to by Bro.
Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T., who expressed the hearty thanks of the Grand Lodge to the chairman and those who had spoken on behalf of the local societies for their cordial welcome, but Mayor.

was the worst man in the world to called upon on such occasions as these. He was always a much better man at the close of a G.L. Session than at the beginning; for the out. It had been rightly said that many of them were captains and leaders, which was true; for every one of the representatives present had been elected to represent 500 good and true Good Templars, so that each represented a host of individuals, everyone being a troop of 500-and such a. rtcop—(laughter and applause)—some of them—sll of them people of merit—more or less—(laughter)—mostly more—(laughter)—many of them people of culture, and some that cannot be polished any way. (Laughter.) There never existed in any way. (Laughter.) There never existed in this world an assambly so completely representative of society as Good Templary; for it received the shoeblack and the orangewoman as well as the member of Parliament and the marquis. Bro. Malins then gave some sketches of members present and the work they were engaged in.

The meeting was also addressed by Bros. Gilbert Archer, G.W.C.T. of Scotland, Geo. Dodds, John Kempster, Sister Walshaw, Sister Gray, R. W.D.M. (late of Antwerp), &c. The meeting was in every sense a most successful one, the hall was patked, the specches short and hearty, and the audience

Foote, the comedian, travelling in the West of England, dined one day at an inn. When the cloth was removed the landlord asked him how he liked his fare. "I have dined as well as any man in England," said Foote. "Except the Mayor," cried the landlord. "I do not except anybody whatever," said he. "But you must!" screamed the host. "I won't!" 3. UNFINISHED BUSINESS FROM LAST GRAND LODGE.

The Grand Lodge referred several resolutions to us at last session, which were dealt with as follows:—(Digest) 99 and 100 (referring to the claim of a transferred P.C.T. to the P.C.T.'s chair) claim of a transferred P.C.T. to the P.C.T.'s chart) not adopted, as the R.W.G. L's decision in 1875 was in accordance with Grand Lodge action. No. 101 (Transfer of Naval Lodges), not adopted. No. 102 (Transfer of Military Lodges). The Executive were in favour of the Naval and Military being on the same footing, except in cases when the regiment is transferred for a known period exceeding six months. No. 103 (in favour of R.W.G.L. fixing uniform fees for G.L. Degrees,) not adopted. Nos. 104, 108, 106 (in favour of R.W.G.L. fixing uniform fees for G.L. Degrees,) not adopted. Nos. 104, 105, 106 (in favour of Lodge Directory). The Executive were of opinion that it was undesirable to issue a Lodge Directory, inasmuch as the former publication of one was not Insuline as one increase phoneauon of one was not largely supported, and resulted in considerable loss. No. 107 (Visiting Deputies at disembarking stations for Naval and Military Lodges) referred to the G.W.C.T., with powers. No. 108 (publication of list of D.Scen.). Resolved to print in Watchworp. No. 1124 (Temperance Sermons), adopted. No. 1134 (urging the use of the Press), first paragraph adopted. No. 114m (Special Programme Committee) adopted. The C. L. at last session favoured the issue of a pocket certificate, on which a member of full service in his Lodge or Lodges could be duly certified; and the same has, after consultation with R.W.G.L. officers, been prepared and will short y be issued.

5. INTERNATIONAL TEMPERANCE CON-FERENCE IN BELGIUM.

The G.W.C.T. and Sister Gray, P.G.D.M., presented their G.L. at the conference at Antwerp, and wo learn that in addition to the conference— which was conducted in French—an English Juvenile meeting and an English adult meeting was beld; a women's meeting was held, resulting in the formation of the first Women's Abstinence Society on the Continent; and soon afterwards another meeting followed at Brussels, where the first native General Abstinence Society in Belgium was formed.

6. NATIONAL TEMPERANCE FEDERATION.

This G.L. has during the past year been represented on the Federation by Bros. Malins, Kempseter, Hilton, Mann, and Maloney. Since Grand Lodge the Rechabites have withdrawn, owing to their heing a non-political benefit society; while the Methodist Free Church Temperance League, and Primitive Methodist Temperance Society have and Primitive Methodist Temperance Society have joined. Early in the year a communication was sent to every Member of Parliament, wherein all the federated societies protested against the proposed mutilation of the entire Sunday Closing Bill In the summer the Federation vainly sought to induce the Premier, Mr. Gladstone, to receive a deputation, and it subsequently sent him a joint memorial clearly demanding the inclusion of the Direct Veto power in any Government Local Option measure, but no reply was received prior to the sneedy change of Government. Local Option measure, out no representations for the speedy change of Government. At the Federation's Autumnal Meeting at Manchester, a Sunday Closing and Direct Veto Manifesto to Federation's Autumnal Meeting at Manchester, a Sunday Closing and Direct Veto Manifesto to electors on the pending General Election was adopted, and was widely published—no such united call for prehibitory political action having previously been issued. Separate memorials were promoted and collectively presented from the Federated Societies in relation to the Poole Perjury case. The Government was interrogated and counsel's opinion was sought with a view to stop the hawking of intoxicants on railway platforms, but the replies scarcely warranted legal proceedings. The Federation has secured the names of different new M.P.'s to back their Bill to so Amend, &c., the Truck Act, as to prevent patso Amend, &c., the Truck Act, as to prevent part-payment of Agricultural labourers wages in in-toxicants. The Bill has been considered at the conference of Temperance members of Parliament; and certain difficulties in the way Bill, it is hoped, be soon overcome. The Federation, at its annual meeting, agreed to consult the federated societies as to whether, in view of Government delays, a Bill embodying the Direct Veto and other restrictions should be drafted; whether it would be wisest to should be dratted; whether it would be wisces, to press a Bill to suspend the further issue of drink licences, pending the enactment of Local Option; whether Mr. M'Laçan should be pressed to not once extend his Scotch Local Option Bill, so as to inextend his Scotch Local Option Bill, so as to in-clude England; or whether it is expedient to first concentrate support on Mr. M. Lagan's Bill for Scotland. The carrying out of two successful sec-tional conferences, under the anspices of the Federation, are dealt with in the G. W. C. T.'s Report.

7. NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CONFERENCE.

On the invitation of the Committee of the Social Science Congress, your Executive designates Bros.
Malius, Kempster, and Wood to represent the G.L. at the National Conference of Drink-trade and Pemperance Delegates, held in London, Feb. 25, 26, when Bro. Kempster led off in the first debate, and Bro. Malins contributed one of the papers on "Compensation." The latter, an exhaustive document, has appeared in full in the Good TEMPLARS WATCHWORD and in the Alliance News. The desire for its issue in pamphlet form has been so marked that your Executive determined to issue a large edition of 32 pages at one penny, and of this the United Kingdom Alliance has ordered 5,000 copies. Your Executive urge the immediate and general circulation of this as the cheapest and most complete paper ever published on a question, which may be paper ever published on a question, which may obstrongly pressed by our opponents in the near future. Your Executive were glad to find that the D.L.'s of Beds, Cambridge, Oxford, and West Kent sont delegates, and wish that other nearer D.L.'s had also been represented.

8. HOME MISSION FUND,

In consequence of the vote of last Grand Lodge your Executive were compelled to give their very earnest consideration to this department. The work of Bro. D. Y. Scott, Superintendent of Home Missions, was evidently greatly appreciated by the various Districts, and the constant demands upon his time were very heartily responded to. The fact, however, remained that the contributions fell ract, nowever, remained that the contributions for so far short of meeting the expenses incurred, that your Executive felt they had no alternative but to terminate the engagement with Bro. D. Y. Scott, as there seemed no prospect of the income increasing sufficiently to warrant the continuance of his services; at the same time conveying to Bro. Scott their high appreciation of the very valuable services rendered to the Order by him, and their regret that the financial position of the department was not such as to enable them to retain his services.

Bro. J. Wrathall has continued to do good work in the Northern counties. It is, however, only just to state that had the continuance of this mission work depended upon the contributions of the Lodges in these counties, it would have been given up long ago. The personal contributions through the efforts of Bro. Woods, P.G.W.Sec., have largely sustained this branch.

The financial statement presented with the secounts will shew that the debit balance of £119 odd against this fund has increased during the year to £267.

Your Executive cannot but think that by a little more regular and systematic effort on the part of District Executives to interest the Subordinate Lodges in the fund, the amount contributed might be largely increased, and both the District Exemitive and Grand Lodge Executive be enabled to extend the work.

9. REMOVAL OF OFFICES.

Your Executive, finding that the premises in which the business of the Grand Lodge has for many years been conducted were likely to be pulled down for town improvements, thought it wise to at once inquire for suitable offices elsewhere, rather once inquire for suitable offices elsewhere, rather than wait to be turned out. A very suitable and excellent block of buildings in Edmund-street, near Snow-hill Station, were vacant, and were officred for sale under such very exceptionable circumstances as rendered them a most desirable investment. After foll consideration it was decided to purchase the buildings, providing suitable arrangements could be come to and this was decided. to purenase the bundings, providing suitable arrangements could be come to, and this was done; the following brethren acting as purchasers on behalf of the Grand Lodge:—Bros. Malins, Wood, behalf of the Grand Lodge :—Bros. Mains, Wood, Mansergh, Derrington, Kempster, Collings, Eccles, Mann, Tyndall, Walshaw, and Poulter.

The terms of purchase have been so arranged that the yearly expenditure of the Grand Lodge for rent will not be increased, but probably decreased, while at the same time the Grand Lodge or the state of the same time of the grand Lodge. will have premises unequalled by any Temperance organisation in the country.

On completion of the purchase, the necessary structural and other alterations had to be made to render the premises suitable for our printing plant, and to conform to the provisions of the Factory Act, under which we work. This will Factory Act, under which we work. This will involve an outlay of about £200; and your Executive have to acknowledge the very generous way in which Bro. J. Derrington, G.W.M. has advanced the sum necessary to enable the work to be completed. It is hoped that this will speedily be cleared off.

DECEASED MEMBERS AND FRIENDS.

Your Execuive sent letters of condolence to the families of the late Boss. Geo. Charlton, H.D., James Eddy, H.D., and Donald Campbell, P.D.C.T. The G.W.Co. and P.G.W.Sec., Bro. Woods, repre-sented the Grand Lodge at the funeral of Bro. Charlton.

Your Executive acknowledge contributions already from Bro. G. H. Graham, D.C.T., of 17 volumes of the "Temperance Worker," and they very cordially invite others to follow so good an example.

prosperity and happiness.

(a) Badge of Merts.—At the last session of Grand Lodge it was decided to found a medal, in gold, silver, and bronze, as a distinguishing honorary badge of the Order; such medals to be worn only by those to whom they have been presented by Grand, District, or Subordinate Lodges, in recognition of faithful service for the good of the Order. Your Executive invited Bro. R. P. J. Simpson to submit a design, which he kindly did, and estimates were obtained for producing the same. It was found that the cost of the dies would be £7, and that then the medals could be produced and sold, in gold at £6, silver 12s., and bronze 3s. 6d. each. As there seemed no evidence of any demand for them, your Executive did notses their way to incur the expense, and await further instructions from Grand Lodge. Poulter their desire that he should withdraw it. A subsequent interview, however, having proved unavailing, the resignation was accepted, and a re-arrangement of office duties was necessary, which, it is hoped, will prove satisfactory, and at the same time reduce the expenditure. Bro. Poulter carries with him the hearty wishes of every member of the Executive for his future success.

(1) PROVIDENT FUND .- The special committee appointed to prepare this scheme consisted of Bros. J. J. Woods, J. Malins, J. Harrison, C. Stacy-Watson, W. Williams, and F. W. Dimbleby, and we refer their revised report to the Grand Lodge.

THE GRAND LODGE MOUSE.

The Grand Lodge Times published some playful tit-bits from an anonymous contributor calling himself the "Grand Lodge Mouse." We quote the performances of the little vermin:—

"A Welcome.—The 'Grand Lodge Mouse' fraternally and cordially offers a paw of welcome to fraternally and cortainly oners a paw or wecome of the Grand Lodge officers, Representatives, Past Representatives, and all visitors on this most auspicious occasion, and while tendering this sound of welcome, 'Mouse' begs to say he is on the alert, and watchful, squasks of approval or disapproval will from time to time be duly noted and recorded in the daily organ.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. J. M. SKINNER, P.G.W.M.

At the quarterly conference of the Oxfordshire Band of Hope and Temperance Union, on April 23, Bro. J. M. Skinner was presented with a purse containing £25 and an illuminated address, chiefly in recognition of his valuable services as hon. sec. of the Oxfordshire Temperance Union. Bro. Skinner has removed from Oxford to Beckenham, having been Superintendent for the United Kingdom Alliance in the Oxford District six years. He now takes Superntendent for the United Kingdom Allaine, in the Oxford District six years. He now takes charge of the Kent, Surrey, and Berkshire District, and Bro. J. R. OF JUVENILE TEMPLARS

THE G.L. OF ENGLAND, NEWPORT. MON., EASTER, 1886,

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

Herewith is the usual statistical return, shewing the present number of members to be 48,743, against 49,252 reported last year, a decrease of 509.

New Return Forms.—Last year 1 intimated

New RETTEN FORMS.—LAST year 1 intimated that a change of report forms, such as would give the C.S.J.T. an oversight of District statistics, would be advantageous. This has proved so, and has provented sleeping Temples being reported has prevented sleeping Temples being reported quarter after quarter as working.

DE-BRANES.—In two District the effects were certainly startling—Lanes. S.E. being reduced 1,900 members, and Yorks. S.W. 626. In neither District has there been any loss of Temples to account for the decrease—Yorks S.W. baving exactly the same number of Temples and its members of the service of the bership for the past six months steadily increasing, and Lancs. S.E. with its membership more rapidly increasing and but one Temple less. On the introduction of the new report forms Kent Mid was reduced 367.

The following Districts shew large decreases, with-

The following Districts shew large decreases, without any satisfactory reason:—Kent E., 61 per cent.; Somerset M., 62 per cent.; Shropshire, 61 per cent,; Yorks, E., 45 per cent.; whilst Dorset, Hunts., Kent E., and Surrey W. have gone down quarter by quarter.

Last year had the pleasure of reporting Cumberland E. as working again. Since then it has died, but has sprung into life once more since February I.

We have one Temple now working in Carliale February I. in Carlisle.

CHALLENGE SHIELD AND INCREASES.—The District of Monmouth, which won the Challenge Shield last year, is again entitled to it, having made an increase this year of 63.22 per cent.—it has now 679 members in seven Temples. Monmouth is followed by Cambridge, with 54-15 per cent. increase, and Yorka Central with 50-12 per cent. increase. There are four Districts whose increases. per cent. are higher than the above, but each having less than five Temples could not enter into the competition for the shield. The Districts are Northampton M., increase 457 57 per cent., Devon N.; 167 16 per cent.; Cornwall W., 90 per cent.; and Naval, 78 16 per cent.

The following Districts also shew large numerical increases deserving special notice. Durham N.; Durham S., Kent W., and Northumberland. Nine other Districts have made stoady progress, increasing every quarter, viz.: Bucks, Cambridge, Cheshire E. and M., Devon E., Lancs, N., Somerset W., Stafford N., Warwick, and Wilts.

New Temples .- Eighty-six new Temples have New Temples.—Eighty-six new temples have been instituted during the year, eight other applications have also been granted, and 10 dead Temples have been brought to life, whilst many sleeping Temples have been awakened.

Communications.—During the year I have re-ceived nearly 5,000 communications, and despatched close upon 9,000.

Foreign Temples .- The most unproductive part of my labour is in connection with the Foreign Temples. At the last Grand Lodge we were suppendies. At the last Grand Llouge we were sup-posed to have 13 Temples in nine Districts, with a membership of 699. Every Temple (excepting one I could not find) have been communicated with MONTHLY, QUARTERLY, and SPECIALLY. Eacepting Belgium, I has not received a single report for either November or February. Three only re-MONTBLY QUARTERLY, and SPECIALLY. ported in August and two in May. Seven have not reported at all and so I must consider the Juvenile Order dead in the Districts of Antigua, Argentine Confederation, British Guiana, Grenada, and St. Kits.

I cannot understand why the G.S.J.T. of England, with her hands quite full, should have the care and worry of these Foreign Temples, which really should belong to the R.W.G.L. of the World, to whom I recommend they be transferred.

NATIONAL PRIZE EXAMINATION.—The National Prize Examination arranged to be held last April was carried out. There were fewer competitors than the previous year, and I accordingly withheld one-half of the amount voted for prizes. Feeling assured that competitions in separate Districts would be much better, with the consent of the Grand Lodge Executive, I have made no arrangements this year for a National Competition, but have urged D.S.J.T.'s to push the matter in their several Districts.

Bro. Howarth, P.G.W.M., who acted as his colleague in the adjudication.

STAU-WAYSON SENIOR TEMPLE COMPETHION.—
August last concluded the year of competition amongst Senior Temples for libraries so kindly offered by Bro. C. Stacy-Watson. The first library value £6, was taken by the Excelsior Temple, No. 841, at Farnworth, Lancashire, S.E., Bro. Joseph Cooper, S.J.T., and the second library, value £4, by Connecting Link Temple, No. 366, at Littledcan, Gloucester N.W., Bro. Rev. C. J. Reskelley, S.J.T. Each library is a good selection of books chosen by Bros. Stacy-Watson and R. P. J. Simpson.

Decisions.—During the past year I have given the following decisions:

1. That the Juvenile Pledge is life-long.
2. That the principle of the G.L. bye-law upon Lodge amusements applied in the juvenile Order and character dress could not be allowed.

SOUTH-EAST LANCASHIRE. - The District of S.E. Lancs, has been for the past 12 menths and still is a source of great anxiety, there being no D.S.J.T. since the resignation of Bro. Wilson in September The brother nominated by the District council being in my opinion a very unsuitable man, I have opinion I intimated to District Lodge, who refused to hear my letter and endorsed his recommenda-

RECOMMENDATION OF D.S.J.T.—The above state of affairs shews a necessity for a change in the present method of recommending, installing, and commissioning this representativo of the G.S.J.T. I therefore recommend that the D.S.J.T. shall not be installed until his recommendation has been endorsed by the G.S.J.T.

The importance of this will be further illustrated when I inform you that 20 days after I was supposed to have commissioned all my D.S.J.T. s, and they actually held commissions I did not know the names and addresses of 24 out of the 64 officers commissioned, and I had to apply to others for this information. Indirectly I obtained the names of information. Indirectly 1 obtained the names of some, and yet 10 days later I had to make a second appeal to 13 Districts for this information.

Assistant S.J.T.'s.—The creating of the office of A.S.J.T. was one of the most important items of A.S.-J. was one of the most important terms of legislation for the Juvenile Order, having proved one of the most beneficial. To my knowledge it has saved dozens of Temples and prepared many for the office of Superintendent. To all who holder have held office as A.S.J.T. the special thanks of this Grand Lodge are due,

Thanking you for the trust reposed in me and also all the brothers and sisters who had rendered me their willing aid .- I am, sincerely yours.

BRO, THE REV. FORBES E. WINSLOW, P.G. W. Ch. is credited with devising a novel plan to outwit pickpockets. Says the Sussex Daily News, "It seldom happens that humour shews itself from the pulpit, but an instance occurred on Sunday last, when the Rector of St. Paul's Church, St. Leonards (the Rev. Forbes Winslow), after referring to the lose of money from one of the boxes, humorously warned the congregation that at that season of the warned the congregation that at that eason of the year, when the places of worship were crowded, there were a good many light-fingered gentry among the congregations, and that they were addicted to relieving their victims of their money, especially when leaving. He suggested, as a means to obviste so undesirable an event, that the visitors should give all their money to the collections when the plate was passed!"

REPORT OF THE GRAND ELECTORAL SUPERINTENDENT.

G. W.C.T., OFFICERS AND MEMBERS,

The past year has been an eventful one politically, and has involved arduous, snxious, and almost incessant labour on my pert in the interest of our great cause.

THE PARLIAMENTARY ELECTION.

The great political event of the year was the election of a new Parliament. It is certain that the election of a new Parliament. It is certain that the members of our Order exerted a powerful influence hoth before and during the contest, and that the extended franchise placed a large number upon the voting lists who had been imbued with our teaching, and were amongst the most carnest, intelligent, and active workers in the various political conflicts. To this fact the seed-sowing of intelligent, and active workers in the various political conflicts. To this fact the seed-aowing of past years, the influence of the Lodge-room, the results of our numerous and largely attended public meetings, may largely be traced the healthy public sentiment in favour of Temperance legislation which Parliamentary candidates so readily detect, and which so largely directs their sympathies and workers that allerted. conduct when elected.

The Temperance census of the new Parliament claims that 350 members are in favour of Local Option ciaims that 350 members are in favour of Local Option in some form, and that of these 204 are prepared to yote for the direct local veto. The local optionists of one kind or another may be presumed to include the supporters of Licensing Boards, or of "Local Control" as proposed by Mr. Stafford Howards.

to include the supporters of Licensing Boards, or of "Local Control" as proposed by Mr. Stafford Howard's Bill, or of whatever scheme may be proposed by the promised Government measure. Our losses in the Parliamentary campaign were severe if we take in to account the value and importance of individuals, but no previous Parliament had contained so many earnest Temperance reformers as the present, and we should do our utmost to obtain from it that much desired measure of Local Cotton which will earsh a retowers anywhere to Option, which will enable ratepayers anywhere to prohibit the liquor traffic by a direct veto when they so desire. The absence of Sir Wilfrid Lawson they so desire. The absence of Sir Wilfrid Lawson from the House of Commons inflicts irreparable injury for the time. Mr. B. Whitworth and Mr. Arthur Pease are also trusted and valiant leaders, whose absence from Parliament is a calamity. Not less regrettable was the defeat of Mr. Caine, in Middlescx, but we have cause to rejoice that the honourable member for Barrow-in-Furness, Mr. Caine, is again in his place under circumstances: that should encourage him to lead the Temperance party of Parliament with hold front. In reference to myown canliament with a bold front. In reference to my own can-didature, I need only here remark that I wish it had disture, I need only here remark that I wan it had been successful, and express my hearty thanks to brethren and sisters throughout the country, who evinced a warm practical sympathy, and greatly encouraged and helped me in the contest. This personal reference may call for some further remarks in the course of the Session.

WHAT THE NEW PARLIAMENT HAS DONE.

Temperance legislation has not been entirely ignored by the new Parlisment. Sir J. W. Pease's Sunday Closing Bill, as it is called (framed for some-Sunday Closing Bill, as it is called (framed for some-what curtailing the Sunday traffic); the Durham Sunday Closing Bill; and Mr. Conybeare's Bill to Protect Young Children, have all passed their second reading, and the Durham Bill will shortly be considered by the House of Lorda. Mr. Conybeare's Bill is threatened in committee, and strenuous efforts will be made to except from its provisions children who are sent to buy drink for their parents. I trust Grand Lodge will petition Parliament to pass the Bill in its en-lited; and that our members exerywhere will use buy drink for their parents. It trust frank Lodge will petition Parliament to pass the Bill in its entirety, and that our members everywhere will use all the influence they can command to secure its speedy adoption. An earnest and active committee of Temperance politicisms in Parliament has been formed, which had already promoted a deputation to Mr. Chamberlain, while the right hon gentleman presided at the Local Government office, asking him to lay on the table of the House the proposed Government measure.

Mr. Chamberlain declined to pledge himself, but expressed a belief that the tendency of the measure would be to place the entire control of licensing in the hands of popularly elected bodies. Surely every enlightened Temperance Organisation should combine to oppose such a measure. It may involve the control and even the estrangulation of Local Option. To give absolute power to any body whatever (whether Imperially appointed or popularly elected) to curse the community in whose midst it exists, the community in whose midst it exists, is a species of tyrainy and corruption which every true Temperance reformer should withstand to the utmost. A more anomalous isparture towards misgovernment could hardly be suggested. Such a scheme would effer the strongest possible inducements to corruption of the worst kind. It would be only a pretence of Local Ontion. and under this pretence the licensing system would possibly strike its roots more deeply and multiply its victims on all hands. Local Government itself would be degraded and dishonoured, and good would be degraded and disnonoured, and good men would more and more keep aloof from the municipal conflict and worry to which such a system would subject them. I would urge the formation of a National Council representing all parts of England, which should collect expressions of opinion from political, religious, and Temperance bodies, and communicate such opinions by means of an influential deputa-tion to the Government. The direct popular veto must be demanded and enforced; and to this lend that to demanded and emerce; and to chis shut the Temperance party needs better organisation, so that votes shall only be given for members of Parliament who will apport the direct veto, and so that the fate off any Government shall be en-dangered by withholding it.

FUTURE LEGISLATION.

I am of opinion that every step in the direction of I am of opinion that every step in the direction of licensing by the people, or by elected representatives of the people, will be an aggravation of the evils of the existing system; and I see great danger lest Temperance reformers may be lured to support a very delasive and mischlevous form of Local Option, by the bait of the Direct Veto being held up to their imagination as a possible addition to some unsuend scheme. They may thus find themselves the victims of elected Licensing Royals and discover that they have been parties Boards, and discover that they have been parties to the forging of a new and more formidable licensing system than at present exists, without having secured the only measure worth working for, the power of the inhabitants to prohibit the for, the power of the inhabitants to prohibit the traffic by a direct local veto. Every effort to fasten a licensing system upon the people should be attenuously opposed, and true Temperance reformers should stand out firmly and boildly against any legislators and any Government that may introduce a measure reformers should stand out urmly and boung against any legislators and any Go-vernment that may introduce a measure failing to confer complete prohibitory power upon the people in their several localities. It is high time that a clear issue were started and It a high time that a clear issue were started and fought out. Members of Parliament and Cabinets should now be brought to take sides, and declare themselves. The main question it issue should be whater they are with the publicans or with the whether they are with the publicans or with the people. The transference of licensing an evil traffic from a judicial authority to a popularly elected body would be a woful example of ruling incapacity on the part of the British Government. Parliament might as well, and with less tendency to curruption and disorder, ask the people of themselves, or by their local representatives, to sanction bad sanitation, dishonesty, crime, the pollution of rivers, the licensing of values of the form of social avil vicious resorts, or any other form of social evil.
This is an unheard of violation of the prime duty of a strong and righteons Government, and a strange abortion of Mr. Gladstone's own doctrine that it is the duty of a Government to make it easy to do right and difficult to do wrong. On the other hand, so long as Parliament shall continue to legalise this evil traffic in any shall continue to legalise this evil traffic in any form and upon any conditions, alleging in justification the claims of public convenience or requirements, it is intolerable that any law or any tribunal should be permitted to force the traffic into neighbourhoods where the inhabitants protest saginst its existence. A traffic, whose evil consequences render it an infauny and a curse wherever exists, ought not to be endured even by a protesting minority; but to impose it upon an outraged majority is a species of tyranny and wrong for which there can be no excuse and no compensation. I would, therefore, again most respectfully and urgently press this one measure upon our membership, and ask them to concentrate their best efforts upon and ask them to concentrate their pear educa-the demand for a DIRECT POPULAR LOCAL VETO.

the demand for A DREET FOULAR LOCAL VETO.

Many minor legislative proposals may suggest themselves as deserving our assistance, and I would heartily recommend the support of every effort, however small, in the right direction; but we must not overlook the danger of blocking the way by small proposals. We may thus wastefully absorb time and influence, and detract from the force needed to ensure the success of our efforts to obtain the right of the direct veto.

THE CASE OF EX-DETECTIVE WILLIAMS.

was signed at our last session in Manchester by was signed at our last session in Andresser or representatives from every county in England, was duly presented by Mr. Benjamia Whitworth, M.P., and I lost no opportunity of informing the public and bringing influence to bear upon Parliament so long as any hope remained. I have addressed a number of large meetings in London, and others in Birmingham, Nottingham, Derby and Leicester ; whilst numerous other meetings were held in various parts of the country as the official organ. The change of Ministry and the general election hindered the continuance of these efforts, but as soon as the new Parliament had settled to its work I was enabled, in conjunction with the Hon. Sec. of the London Committee, to enlist the valuable aid and influence of Mr. Lewis McIver, M.P. After conference with that gentle-man I prepared a memorial from Mrs. Williams praying for the clemency of the Crown. HONOURING DECEASED TEMPERANCE VETERANS

THE LATE JABEZ INWARDS.

On Good Friday afternoon, in the presence of an estimated assembly of some 8,000 persons, a drinking fountain, erected at the junction of Great College-street and Kentish Town-road, in the northern part of the Metropolis, as a memorial of the late Mr. Jabez Inwards, was unveiled and dedicated to the use of the public. The Rev. G. M. Murphy presided at the ceremony, and the following address was read and presented to the rev. gentleman :-

"Sir,-In asking you to dedicate to the use of the public this memorial fountain erected by the friends public this memorial fountain erected by the friends of Temperance on ground generously given by the Vestry of St. Paneras, the design being furnished by the Metropolitan Drinking Fonntain Association, the committee desire to place upon record their profund gratitude to God for the git of a life so noble as that of their late ever-to-he-lamented friend, to whose memory this fountain is dedicated. He was a prince among men, of sterling and infexable principles, who feared God and working the sterling and the statement of the sterling and the statement of the sta mising, and in its advocacy powerful and untiring. He was a genual companion, a lover of all good men, and the friend of all true reform, amongst whom he and the friend of all true reform, amongst whom he was a ginst in mind and intellect. In passing away he has left a gap not eavy to be filled; but his life and lahours will be cherished, and the memories of the past will spread a sweet fregrance among those whom coming generations will honour for their steady endeavours and persistent efforts to rid England and the world of the shame and curse of drutkenness. He was faithful unto death; he rests from his lahours, and his works do follow thin.

After Mr. Murphy had replied to the address, Bro. Rev. G. W. McCree moved the following re-solution:—"That the thanks of the friends of Temperance are due and are hereby given to the churchwardens and members of the Vestry of St. Pancras for the free gift of the eligible site on which the memorial fountain to the late Mr. Jabez Inwards is erected."—This was seconded by Mr. R. Rae, of the National Temperance League, and carried by acclamation.—Mr. T. E. Gibb, M.P., carried by acclamation.—Mr. T. E. Gibb, n.r., replied in appropriate terms, and was followed by Mr. Beavis, Vestryman of St. Paneras.—Captair Revell moved, Mr. William Saunders, M.P., seconded, the following resolution:—"That this demonstration of tectotalers and others sincerely thank the Drinking Fountain Association and the subscribers to the memorial fund for their kindly efforts which have culminated in the dedication of so handsome a founts in to the public use."—This was carried by acclamation. Mrs. Jabez Inwards then unveiled the fountain, amid lond and continuous cheering, and, having first the contract of the drunk of the water, Mr. Murphy proclaimed it opened for the use of the public for ever. The Doxology was next sung, and the proceedings ended. The fountain is 18it, 6in, high, width at base 10it. 4in, surmounted with an urn of grantie marble. The inscription on the one side runs. The inscription on the one side runs : "Erected by the friends of Temperance to the memory of Jabez Inwards; born April 23, 1807; died at Kentish Town Dec. 21, 1880," whilst suitable Scripture texts are inscribed on each of the other sides.

THE LATE GEORGE THORNELOE.

THE LATE GOORGE HORNELOES.

Good Friday also witnessed the honouring of another lamented worthy, our Bro. George Thorneloe, whose remains lay in Nunhead Cemetery. It is not necessary to dwell at length upon the work accomplished by our late brother. Those who knew him knew him as one of the most indefatigable workers in the Temperance cause. His powerful advocacy was at the service of all sections of the movement. Of late years his whole time was devoted to the work, and not only his time but his means also. Thousands of miles he travelled each year that he might appeal to the people in the remote parts of our land, and great blessings invariably followed his fervent addresses. As the founder and conductor of the mission amongst the common lodging-houses of the Mint, in the South of London, his name will continue green in the memory of many a family of which some member has been raised from the lowest depths, by hie sympathetic care and helping hand; in the hearts of such he will ever live, but, says the committee, we desire that coming generations shall find a witness to the esteem in which he was held by those who knew him—esteem for his singleness of aim in the cause of abbriety, and the patriotic devotion of his talents to the best interests of his country.

Soon after Bro, Thorneloe's decesse steps were taken to perpetuate his memory. A committee was formed, amongst whom were Mr. G. W. Johnson, and Bros. N. W. Hubbard, P.D.C.T. (chairman), and C. Pinhorn, D.C.T. (secretary), and subscriptions were solicited, originally with the intention of placing a drinking fountain on a spot on the vicinity of the deceased's labours, but, from some cause or other, contributious did not flow in as was expected other, contributions did not flow in as was expected or as such a good object descreed, and it was eventually decided, by the leave of subscribers, to erect a memorial over the grave. The selected design is a broken shaft of polished Aberdeen granite, about 10 feet high, on a solid square York-staging base. The cost is £57, the expenses totalling some £63. Towards this about £52 has been promised and received.

As the rules of the cemetery company prohibit demonstrations of any kind in the grounds the next best thing was done, and a memorial service was held in the adjacent Albert Hall, Albert-road, Peckham, on Good Friday afternoon at four p.m., to signalise the consummation of the work. Bro. the Rev. W. Mildon, P.W.D.Ch., who was a colabourer in the work of Bro. Thorneloe among the common lodging-houses of the Mint, &c., approprintely conducted a short and impressive service. priately conducted a short and impressive service. Bro. Supt. Foster presided, and gave an address. Mr. G. W. Johnson, Bro. C. Hill, and Bro. Mildon also spoke. Sister Marion Hyde, of the Royal Normal College for the Blind, sang with excellent taste, "There is a green hill far away."

After a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was proposed by Mr. Dankley, seconded by Bro. J. Hodges, W.D.S., and carried unanimously, these present proceeded to the cometery to inspect the

En Memoriam. GEORGE THORNELOE,

Born at Groby, Leicestershire, May 17th, 1826. Died at Kennington, Surrey, June 26th, 1884, Erected by friends, as a mark of esteem for his intense devotion to the Temperance cause during a period of 34 years. April 23rd, 1886.

Taking advantage of the occasion, Peckham Ledge, No. 5, which meets at the Albert Hall, had provided a tea for the visitors, and on their return from the cemetery some 00 friends sat down to an excellently served tea, to which hearty justice was done. The Lodge is to be congratulated upon the success of the effort, as the experience of former Good Friday ventures was not at all an encouragement.

Tocrown a well-spent day a public meeting was held subsequently to the tea, over which Bro. T.C. Macrow, subsequently to the tea, over which Bro. 1, O. Macrow, H.D., presided. Addresses were given by the chairman, and Bro. F. W. Dimbleby, P.D.C.T.; Mr. W. Bell, of the U.K. Band of Hope Union; Bro. W. Ventris, of the Rechabites; and Bro. C. Pinhorri, D.C.T. Bro. W. E. Hooper, W.D. Co., sang "Where is my Wandering Boy to night," and 1914 Wit. Peabut governies in the control of the property of the pro sang "Where is my Wandering Boy to night," and little Miss Barbut gave a recitation in a manner to well merit the applause she received at its finish. Thus ended a good day's work.

THE FRIENDS' SOCIETY AND TEMPERANCE, -On Good Friday the annual meeting of the friends and supporters of the London Quakers' Teetotal Association was held at their meeting-house in St. John's-lane, Clerkonwell, under the presidency of Mr. T. Scott. The chairman explained that on that day they celebrated the 109th anniversary of the opening of that place of worship, which during its chequered career had been devoted to enterprises having for their aim the amelioration of the spiritual, social, and material condition of the industrial classes of the Metropolis. It was a gratifying fact that during the past decade dustrial classes of the Metropoils. It was a grau-fying fact that during the past decade of its existence some well-known members of the Friends' Society — such as Mr. Pease, of Darlington, and Mr. Fry, of Bristol —had taken part in their meetings, the influence of which, he had no doubt, permeated the working classes of Clerkenwell with a happy result. At the conclusion of the chairman's address, which was frequently applauded, a service of song was efficiently rendered by the choir, and the proceedings terminated with a cordial vote of thanks to Mr. Scott for presiding.

KILBURN TEMPERANCE COUNCIL.

ITS SECRETARY CHARGED WITH LIBEL BY A PUBLICAN,

At the Marylebone Police-court, on April 24, r. Arthur Ernest Canney, hon, secretary of the Mr. Arthur Ernest Canney, hon. secretary of the Kilburn Tempst Canney, hon. secretary of the Kilburn Temperance Council, was charged with unlawfully and maliciously publishing a defamatory libel concerning Mr. Georgo Shield, landlord of the Lord Palmerston public-house, High-road, Kilburn, —Mr. Maitland, solicitor to the Licensed Victuallers Association, appeared to prosecute, and Mr. G. Candy, barrister, was for the defendant.—In stating the case for the prosecution, Mr. Maitland said the case for the prosecution, Mr. Maitland said the libel complained of was contained in a paper called the Beuton, the official organ of the Kilburn Temperance Council. In the paper was a paragraph headed, "Dare You Drink Again?" which ran as follows:—"A horrible occurrence at the Lord Palmerston.—On Saturday night last a disgusting scene was witnessed at the Lord Palmerston. A poor unfortunate girl, who had been supplied with drink to excess, was thrown out: her language and screams were hourible, and three policemer was drink to excess, was thrown out: her language and screams were horrible, and three policemen were not sufficient to carry her off. After a scene which was too disgusting to be described, a stretcher was fetched, the girl thrown in, strapped down, at rushed off, amidst the jeers and laughter of a cowardly and mean crowd, nearly all of whom had been drinking. We protest against the base and abominable behaviour of the cowardly landlord of the Lord Palmerston, who bribes the police three and four times a day with beer to throw out these unfortunate creatures when he has got all their money, and made them drunk." That was the libel complained, of. Whatever may have occurred was at a neigh-

With regard to the other part of the article, he might be able to justify it at a future time.—Mr. Canney was committed for trial, but was admitted to ball in one aurety of Rome and the American Liquor Traffic.— The decrees of the council of Roman Catholic bishops held at Baltimore upwards of a year ago have been confirmed by the Pope and returned to America. On the subject of Temperance, however, says the Christian Leader, the Baltimore decrees mark an advance, and this is all the more commendable considering the accessors. mark an advance, and this is all the more com-mendable considering the enormous power of the liquor interest among the Roman Catholic popu-lation in New York and the other great cities of America. IMPROVED GOOD TEMPLARS.

An Improved Order of I. O. G. T. is advertised whose improvement consists in not having any

MAY 3, 1886.

A still further and more ingenious and invigor-A still reriner and more ingenious and invigorating improvement is suggested, viz., let every individual be his own Lodge, and stay at home, and then he will not be transled with either Grand Lodge or Subordinate, and his Temperance organisation will not cost him a cent, but he will get the whole benefit of the society himself.

In the north-eastern portions of this continent, where the beaver used to be abundant, those animals always had a society which regulated the animals always had a society which regulated the whole beaver economy; and the society built their dame, and demiciles, and dormitories with every necessary procaution of escape from danger, and always made a success of their colony; but there was occasionally found an improved order of beaver, who either wanted to be independent of the Grand Lodge of Beavers, or was kicked out of the color, and the color of the color Grand Lodge of Beavers, or was kicked out of the society for bad behaviour. That odd beaver always lived alene, and just bored a hole in the bank anywhere, with only one entrance; he lived an independent life there, had his own way, and no per-capita tax to pay, and was supremely happy, but the first Indian hunter that came along that way was sure of one eaver skin, without any trouble, and that tribe never increased. And that is just about what will happen with these new improvements that don't want to have any leaders or helpers, for fear that they might possibly be a help to somebody else but them-selves. A society that cuts adrift from all others selves. A society that cuts adrift from all others in that way is a perfectly selfish one, and carries in itself the sure elements of self-defeat. No society formed upon any such principles ever amounted to anything beyond making a little temporary chieftainship, and a dive into the pockets of its dupes for charter fees fired in the air, for all the good they do to any but the sharps and charlatans who pocket them.—A. D. Wood, California.

OBITUARY.

Bro. Stockdale, Windsor.—It is with the most sincere regret that the Itoyal Windsor Lodge has to record the death of Bro. Stockdale a charter member, he having joined the Order at Windsor 14 years ago, and who has ever been a devoted worker in the Temperance cause in the town and neighbourhood. Bro. Stockdale was also a member of the Windsor Local Parliament. His remains were interred on Thursday, April 22, at the Windsor Cemetery. A procession of Good Templars in regalla followed him to his last resting place, as did also several members from other institutions to which he belonged. HULL SCHOOL BOARD,—The contested election has just been fought here, and has resulted in a great victory for the Good Templars and the Temperance party. Sometimengo we were called together by the D.E.S., East Yorks. (Bro. G. Hayler) to consider what action the Good Templars should take in the ceming centest. It was determined to him the temperance of the contract take in the coming contest. It was determined to bring out a candidate on distinct Temperance principles, with a view to same being taught to the children. Mr. Mills, an old tectotaler, was nominated, and after holding meetings all over the town, assisted by Bro. J. A. Wade, J.P., and others, we have succeeded in getting our candidate elected.

BRO. MANSERGH, P.G.W.C., ON GRAND LODGE PROCEDURE.

In a letter to the Grand Lodge Times, Bro, Mansergh writes :- "I am very anxious for the success of our Grand Lodge Sessien, and jealous of its prestige and importance. It is our Annual Parliament. The representatives have been duly elected, and at considerable expense have been brought from the extremes of our jurisdiction, and are really there to transact the business of our Order. JUST FOUR DAYS IN A business of our Order. JUST FOUR DAYS IN A FERR ARE ALLOWED FOR THIS WORK. My object in thus addressing you is to beg of the Rep-resentatives to use that time konestly, and not fritter it away with useless chatter, and small talk which ought to be beneath the dignity of the Grand Lodge. Past Representatives, too, are much to blame in this matter, as well as the Representa-tives. Since I became a member of the Order in March, 1871, I have only been absent from two annual essents. annual essions, viz.: Plymouth and Southampten; and I have had perhaps the best means of and I have had perhaps the best means of judging the attendance, and am satisfied from close observation that year by year we lose the influence and help of true friends, who make up their minds, owing to the waste of time, never to come again to the G.L. Sessien. Some of these, nay I should say many, have told me so at that time and in fact have never been again seen. Business men, with whom time is mooey, and who are in the habit of husbanding it and getting as much done as possible in the shortest time, cannot bear done as possible in the shortest time, cannot bear with patience, the annoyance of listening done as possible in the shortest time, cannot bear with patience, the annoyance of listening hour by hour to useless points of order and discussion on questions that they have made up their minds about a score of years ago. Now I cannot, with all my admiration and love for our G.W.C.T., exonerate him from some blame. He is a little too fond of seeing and hearing of the table of the stable of the seeing and hearing Diame. He is a little too rond or seeling and nearing a 'fratch' (excuse this bit of Laucashire) on a point of order, when he should come short and sharp down on the speaker and finish it. Last year at Manchester I was truly ashamed of the waste of time on Tuesday and Wednesday, and visitors from my own district laughed at the idea of the Grand Ledge meeting to do business and not doing it, and I wished they had been at home. Now, brethren, let us be sensible, let us meet to do and do the work at Newport with some common-sense and dignity."

PRESENTATION OF LODGE FURNITURE AT SPENNY-PRESENTATION OF LODGE FURNITURE AT SPENNY-MOGE.—On Wednesday evening, 21st inst, at the Triumph of Hope Lodge, Bro. Bro. W. Ayton, W.D.Sec., Sister Berrionan, L.D., and Bro. J. Smith responded on behalf of the Lodge, and a Smith responded on behalf of the Lodge, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the committee for their services. Several members of the committee (including Sisters Venners, P. W.D. V.T., J. Fleming and M. Fleming, and Bros. Syme and J. Ayton), briefly addressed the Lodge. Music was supplied in an efficient manner by Sister Law and Bros. Law. Hirst. and Patterson. The meeting Bros. Law, Hirst, and Patterson. REPORT OF ORPHANAGE COMMITTEE

TO THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND. NEWPORT, MON., EASTER, 1886.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

Your Committee have to report that there are now in the Orphanage 54 children, representing 14 English counties. The number includes one boy for some time a member of the Juvenile Temple tor some time a member of the Juvenile Temple meeting in that city. Fourteen children have been removed from the institution during the year, and 12 others—nine boys and three girls—have been admitted. The health of the children has been good and their progress in scholarship satisfactory, as indicated by the report of H.M. Inspector, following his annual examination. The school has again received a grant from the Government Education Department.

The income of the year apart from the building fund has been £988 5s., of which the collections from English Lodges and Juvenile Temples amount to £023 18a. 1]d., a falling off from the previous year, when the receipts from the same sources were £675 5a. 6]d. The total receipts for the general fund are £65 below those shewn in last report. fund are £65 below those shewn in last report. This decrease may be partially accounted for by an alteration in the method of book keeping, in consequence of which various amounts which would, under the former arrangement, have appeared in this year's receipts will now be included in next year's accounts. All expenditure is now charged to the general fund, including interest on mortgage and bank charges amounting to £143 10s. 4d. hitherto placed to the building fund. This arrangement will indicate clearly the financial condition of the institution, and its result is to swell the expenditure of the and its result is to swell the expenditure of year, as shewn in the general account; but the debt year, as shewn in the general account; buttne dest upon the building is reduced to the full amount of suma specially given to the building fund, to which no outlay will in future be charged. The expendi-ture of the year is shewn to be £1,269 ls. 2d., 'being £230 in excess of the receiots; but the debt upon the building is now £3,320 lls. 7d., as compared with £3,482 2s. 3d. shewn in last report. Towards the building fund £152 lth. 8.3d. beau received during the year. report. Towards the building fund £132 (bs. 8d. has been received during the year, of which £132 bs. 8d. was the proceeds of the bazaar held at the Orphanse during the summer, and £10 voted by the Crystal Palace Fête (1884) Committee, supplementing the sum of £50 voted by that body the previous year. The total receipts have been £1,140 15s. 8d., and the expenditure £1,260 ls. 2d.

In addition to the bazaar held at the Orphanage, another was organised by True Unity of Tonbridge Lodge, 842, which resulted in £35 6s. being added Gloucestar District have also remitted £25 5s. as the result of their efforts in the same direction. The institution would receive material aid if our members in other parts would do their best to obtain funds in similar manner.

We feel the necessity of earnestly appealing to the members of this Grand Lodge, and the members of members of this Grand Lodge, and the members of the Order throughout the country to support the institution by their gifts and collections. Many candidates are awaiting admission, whom the Board would gladly receive at once did the funds at their disposal permit. The regular income of the Orphanage is insufficient to maintain it in its present condition, and must be increased if the Board is to be spared the necessity of reducing the number of children. We trust that increased efforts will be put forth during the coming year to improve the financial position of the institution and strengthen the handa of the Board in the work they have undertaken.

OF THIS COUNTRY

IS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous. irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive: the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured. depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food. sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-half of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

THE

Testimonials from Thousands of people speaking highly of its Curative properties prove this beyond all doubt.

Our Orphanage - A Suggestion .- Our Good Templar Orphanage is in urgent want of funds! It appears by the Grand Worthy Secretary's present report that we have in good standing 75,000 members, and this being so, I make an earnest appeal to them to substantiate their claim to the word good by paying with their coming quarter's Lodge dues the small sum of one Penny, for the benefit of the above very deserving institution. I would also urge that each Lodge Deputy should use his utmost endeavour to see that every member good on his Lodge books be invited to contribute this small sum, and I entreat my fellow L.D.'s, if necessary, to join in this labour of love, by collecting from absentee members their mite. Now, if this were done heartily, and every member paid, the small 1d. would amount to the respectable total of over £312; and in order that our Bro. Rolfe, the hon. 2.512 and in order that our Dro. Kone, the non-sec, of the Orphauage, might be relieved of present anxiety in regard to funds, each Lodge should promptly send in its contribution, and get re-ceipt for same. I simply put the sum at 1d. because I believe it to be within the reach of all, and even should it not be so, surely in every Lodge there will be found some brother or sister largehearted enough to pay for those whose misfortune will not let them pay for themselves. "Forasmuch will not let them pay for themselves. "Forasmach as ye did it unto these little ones, ye have done it unto Me."—W. J. HILTON, L.D. Shaftesbury Park Lodge.

THE REPORT OF THE G. W.C.T., which has already THE REPORT OF THE G. W. C.T., which has already appeared in our columns, was then discossed. Bro. Brooks (York, S.W.) took exception to the political references to Yorkshire, and Bro. E. Wood, G.W.T., moved to omit the clause making special reference to Middlesex, shewing that it implied censure upon the District authorities, and was calculated to cause division in the District. Bro. Winton, D.C.T., seconded this, and a warm discossion ensued, in seconded this, and a warm discussion ensued, in which Bros. Rev. J. Deans, Moloney, A. Robinson, S. Insull, W. Sutherland, E. A. Gibson, Kenapter, McNab, and the G.W.C.T., took part. Ultimately this section of the G.W.C.T.'s report was adopted, excepting Section VII., relating to Parliamentary Action and other clauses which were specially referred to in the Digest of Resolutions.

The Report of the G.S.J.T. was then considered. The section relating to national prize examinations was discossed at some length. Sister Walshaw, G.S.J.T., stated that, out of 50,000 children, under 200 from 40 Lodges took part. Bro. T. W. Smyth (Dorham S.) moved to amend by urging upon G.L. Executive the desirability of assisting by money or votes of prizes to such Districts as might adopt prize examinations. He suggested District competitions, but a national set of questions. Sister Green, P.G.W.V.T., seconded, and Bros. Forder, (Worcester), Bell (E. Cumberland) and others took part in the discussion, and the amendment was adopted.

S.E. Lancashire.—A lively discussion arose upon the question whether the G.S.J.T. was really empowered to refuse to endorse the Commission of brother or sister recommended as Superintendent. Bros. E. Bro. Waine (Nottingham), moved, and Bro. A. Robinson (Northumberland), seconded, that the installation proceed as hitherto, but if not subsequently approved by G.S.J.T., the installation to be void. The motion and amendment were both lost, and the report as a whole was postponed for forther consideration in connection with the report of the committee on the Juvenile Department.

THE G.W. SECRETARY'S REPORT was then taken

The G. ELECTORAL SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT was then considered. Bro. J. B. Collings asked if the proposed National Council meant a in the negative. Bro. Amery regretted the report did not convey more censure to these E.S.'s who had not done their doty. Bros. W. Mart (Derby), Forster (Cleveland), John Mann (E. and M. Surrey), Cook, W. (Comberland) Derrington, G.W.M., and

Bro. Kempster was received with hearty cheers and suitably responded.

THE G.L. EXECUTIVE'S REPORT was then discassed. Ero. D. Y. Scott took exception to the clause in the report stating that because the contributions fell so far snort of the expenses the Executive had no alternative but to terminate the engagement of the Superintendent. He characterised the conduct of the Executive in somewhat strong terms. Bro. George Dodds, G.W.C., replied, shewing that the Executive had really no alternative, and that they had endeavoured to act in a very considerate spirit, and after the most careful deliberation. Bro. Scott's amendment was negatived by an overwhelming majority. Bros. Winton and Bowen recommended the Home Mission work in its present form to the hearty Bro. WEDNESDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

By previous appointment Wednesday morning had been fixed for taking up the resolutions upon the Digest, and this order was now observed.

The Life Love Plence.—Bro. Hyatt, Mid-Somerset, moved, and Bro. Davey, Naval, seconded, a resolution to provide that the life-long obligation be not administered in the Sub-Lodge Degree. Bro. Hyatt argued that to administer the life-long pledge to many who were sure to break it lite-long pledge to many who were sure to break it was an encouragement to lying. Ils claimed that nearly all the leading spirits of Good Templary had first taken the ordinary abstinence pledge which did not specifically bind them for life, and he wanted those who had never had their training to take a preliminary pledge and have a time of probation before taking so solemn an above a time of probation before taking so solemn an action of the solemn as the solemn and obligation. Bro. Davey urged that some candidates refused to take the pledge for life, and were thus lest to the Order. Bro. Brown, Monmouth, moved No. 2 sgainst any alteration in the life-long pladge. It had accomplished what other pledges had failed men broke their pledges—as in the case of matrimony-it was no excuse for refusing to take the pledge. Bro. Rev. Church, Warwick, seconded. Bros. Turland, Re . S. J. Southwood, Beds., G. Olarke, Lanc., S.W., and Dodson, Durham, S., continued the discussion, and Bro. Kempster moved a further amendment, not to alter the G.L. Obli-gation, but to authorise some plan of providing a probationary period for those whose circumstances or conscientious scruples required it. Sister C. Impay seconded this amendment, and argued that the marriage over rather proved the necessity for probation, as people did not marry at first sight. She instanced cases in which fighters had been brought to the Lodge. They were really wishing to reform, but when the life-long obligation was put to them they said, "it was too bad to ask a fellow so much as that." It was somewhat explained away that they were only understood to promise that by God's help they would endeavour to keep the pledge for life. Ero. Cooke (N. Cumberland) opposed. He thought it would cause strife in the Lodges. Bro. D. Y. ing to reform, but when the life-long obligation endeavour to keep the pledge for life. Ero. Cooke (N. Cumberland) opposed. He thought it would cause strife in the Lodges. Ero. D. Y. Scott also opposed. He thought Bro. Kempster's propeal was simply burlesquing the thing. Bro. Rev. H. 'J. Boyd replied in support of the first resolution in favour of some more efficient preparation before being admitted to full membership. If more care were taken to impress on candidates the nature of the obligation, more would romain. The bledge needle to be more fully underremain. The pledge needed to be more fully under-steed. Candidates should realise that they bind themselves not to reveal the password, nor to break the rules, such as that prohibiting character dress, and so violate their obligation. The vote was then taken and it was resolved by a large majority to make no change in the existing method of obligation

The PROVIDENT FUND was then discussed. Bro. Bartlett moved No. 7, protesting against the forma-tion of any Provident Fund in connection with the tion of any Frovident Fund in connection with the Order, as committing the Order to financial re-sponsibilities which it is not justified in undertaking. Bro. Rev. H. J. Boyd seconded. In England, he said, their members had every opportunity of joining a benefit society, and there was not the smallest need for a new one. If it failed the Order would be blamed and they would all be committed to it. One attraction of the Order to him and to others was that it was a non-beneficiary society. They joined it for the good they could do and not for what they could get out of it. The Rechabites and the Sons of Temperance were doing no Temperance work, and this Order would ten in that direction if pre-occupied with financial business of this kind. Bro, Miller (Cambs.) said there were no benefit societies at work in many country districts, and it would be a great advantage to have one in connection with a country Lodge where they had not the advantage of the populous towns. Brc. A. Robinson followed, and Brc. J. Davies (W. Chesbire) urged that the and Brc. J. Davies (W. Onesoire) trigod that the benefit system would absorb time and work needed for the good of the Order. Bro. Padfield (Gloucester, W.) opposed, as not likely to gain members for the Order. Bro. Mansergh also opposed. Who was to manage it at headquarters, and who was to transact the business in the Lodges? Did their returns indicate that the work would be well done returns indicate that the work would be well done? Grand Worthy Marshal.—For this office there Bro. George Dodds replied for the! Executive, were 16 nominations:—Bros. W. Mainprize The report only reported progress. The committee (Lincoln), S. Insull (Middlesex), G. H. Graham asked for further time to submit the entire scheme (Kent, M.), B. Tree (Sussex), W. Woodall (Yorks, to the membership. As to who would manage it, E.), W. Hobkirk (Northumberland), W. H. Brown it would not be managed by the Order, though Monmouth), W. J. Phillips (Kent, E.), F. W.

the Juvenile work, including questions raised in associated with it. The members would make their own rules subject to the Friendly Societies' Acts, and elect their own officers to manage it, and he submitted they could do it as well as other similar societies. It was true that other Temperance benefit societies did little or no Temperance work, and that was a reason why we should keep our own members connected with the Order and combine the two advantages of good Temperance work and the two advantages of good Temperance work and provision for sickness and death. The report was then voted upon by sign vote and was adopted by 116 against 85. The yeas and nays were demanded, the result being 109 for the aloption of the report and 70 against. The report was accordingly adopted and the scheme will be further considered and submitted to the membership for fuller examination prior to next annual Session.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

now intervened, and was proceeded with till com-pleted, the discussion of the Digest being resumed at intervals of counting the votes. We will, howat intervals of counting the votes. ever, now give the complete report of the elections and afterwards resume the report of the legislative husiness

THE DIGEST RESUMED.

TAX ON MEMBERS IN ARREADS,—Bro. Cave, Wilts., moved No. 13, to rescind regulations by which Sub-Lodges are denied password or compelled to pay tax on all members not in turn compelled to pay their dues, and not even liable to suspension until two quarters' dues are in arrear .-Bro. Turner, Essex, seconded, and suggested that no tax be paid on those whose dues have not been paid for the previous quarter. The proposal was tabled

Forder (Worcester) explained that the Degree was conferred outside D.L. planned that the Degree was conferred ordine D.L. in his District by the attendance of D.L. officers. The G.W.C.T. said it was illegal except in special sessions of D.L. The proposal was tabled. PRESS COMMITTEE.—No. 15a. from G.W.C.T. & Report, to make provision in D.L. Constitution for

PROBATION FOR RESTORATION.—No. 20, Derby, to reduce probation for members previously restored from three months to one month, and to confer Second or Third Degree one month after restora-ition, was discussed at some length by Bros. Mart, Davies, Dimbleby, E. A. Davies, and was lost.

Basis of Representation.—Nos. 21, Somersot, E., and 21A (G.W.O.T.), to base representation upon February instead of November returns, tion upon February Instead of November returns, &c., were both tabled.

Character Dress.—Bro. A. Robinson, Northumberland, moved No. 22, to rescied bye-laws prohibiting character dress in connection with the Order. He detailed the methods by which the law that the character dress reported with the content of the content Order. He detailed the methods by which the law is evaded, and that the newspapers reported as though in connection with the Lodge. He believed the byc-law was violated in all parts of the juris-diction. They should either have the Constitution enforced and capable of enforcement or do away with the restriction.

Bro. Jones, Military, seconded.

Bre. W. H. RICHARDSON, Durham N. No. 23, to permit only approved pieces, authorised by G.W.C.T., to be performed in character dress.

by G.W.C.T., to be performed in character dress.

Bro. C. Ginson seconded.

Bro. Erows, Monmouth, moved No. 24, to permit character dress for Temperance pieces.

Bro. Lamerkr, Middlesex, moved 25, for a special committee to consider and produce suitable pieces, and to rescind bye-law accordingly. Bro.

Lambert spoke strongly against allowing character dress in the Order. He said they introduced a brother dressed in a gown in "John Barleycorn," Whet part Dress senera, and all the accessories What next? Pross, scenery, and all the accessorie of a theatre. He would rather send hi daughter to the theatre to see the real thing He was told that clergymen allowed it in the Church of England. They were masters in their own school-rooms, and could regulate it. It was not so with our Order. Then there was th difficulty about licences; they came in contact wit the law and risked untold injury to the Order.

Bro. Gover asked as to the law, and made for admission a licence was required and penalties might be enforced. He also argued strongly against the practice. It would drift us into a more entertainment society. We should lose ministers, deacons, and serious-minded persons we could not afford to lose. At present Sanday-schoolrooms were open to us, but this would close

Bro. Donns, G.W.C., opposed character dress in the Order. In time past he had expressed opinions against turning Lodges into "penny gaffs." It was a nice specimen of Gospel Temperance. He would not let his danghter go to such perance. He would not let his daughter go to such a place. They were too old, but he had grand-daughters and great-granddaughters, and he would be a place. It was a have the Lodges fit for them to enter. It was a have the Lodges fit for them to enter. It was a poor argument that because the law was broken therefore they must legalise wrong. Suppose they carried that to its logical conclusion. Men broke the Gommandments; therefore they should repeal the Commandments. If the thing was wrong, they should put it down, and keep it down. The consequences of such performances would be fatal to our Order. A congregational minister told him of a girl who began with amateur acting and was now an actress in a playhouse. Had the Lodge any right to make money out of character acting for the support of Good Templary?

Bro. Witneys said the proposal to allow characters.

Bro. Winton said the proposal to allow character dress came from Middlesex by a majority vote.

He had always fought against it and would continne to do so. He did not ask the Lodge to provide entertainment for his child. It caused disunion at home. If they began with character disunion at home. If they began with character dress they would go on to scenery, and they would want the property man for the Lodgo-room soon. No, their work was to ennoble and to raise. He had worked as a missionary in the slums of London, and he knew the mischief this kind of thing had done, and dare not connect himself with an institution whose tendency it would be to mislead and ruin.

The proposals to allow character dress were then majority.

The G.W.C.T. remarked that he thought the new Executive would take that vote as a clear in-dication of the mind of Grand Lodge, and that they would not allow Lodges by any mere quibble to evade the law, but would regard it as bonesia of the law, but would regard it as illegal to got up such entertainments outside for the bonesit of the Lodge.

Bro. N. W. Hubsaro, Surrey E. and M., spoke of the difficulty, and referred to the Alpino Choir performances as being in character. The G.W.C.T. performances as did not so rega performances as being in character. The G. W.C.1, did not so regard them, and Bro. Eccles defined those wearing character dress as appearing to be what they are not. A clergyman dressed as a clergyman; a Good Templar as such, and so on. It was retorted that English girls dressed as Swiss children of the control of the c girls for effect. G.W.C.T. said he would give no official raling at once on a specific case, but he was satisfied in his own mind as to the will and intention of Grand Lodge, and any specific case would have his careful attention with the counsel of the Executive.

Bro. POULTER, Warwick, thought G. L. did not Bro. FOULTER, Warwick, thought G. D. did not represent the feeling of the membership, but that their feeling was utterly false and delusive. He protested against the irritation and interference. He knew that a Gospel Temperance Society gave dramatic entertainments, and that clergymen, ministers, and evangelical laymen took part in

Bro. J. B. Collinos said it was no good laying down a law they could not carry out. If they said no money should come to their funds from character dress outside the Order they should go acter dress outside the Order they should go further and prohibit members from taking part. The G.W.G.T. said he would hold over any de cision without prejudice to the right and dnty in conjunction with the Executive to form its judgment in such cases, and to give effect to the decision of Grand Lodge.

PRESENTATION OF THE CHALLENGE SHIELDS.

On reaching reference to this subject in the Executive Report, the Presentation of the Adult Shield was formally made to the Military District, and of the Juvenile Shield to the Monmouth Dis-

Bro. Walshaw replied that if a charge was now the privilege of receiving the reward of their own merit on their own ground. He had great pleasure in presenting it as an emblem of the Grand Lodge visit and in testimony of their successful exertions.

Addressing the Military Representatives, he said he had now to perform the more thorough-giving duty of making over to them as the absolute property of the Military District the Shield they had won three times under the conditions laid down by the rules. The Military District had been sub-ject to removals and changes, and had won the shield by sheer hard work and industry. The reward was richly deserved. He was glad to learn that their highest officers were proud of their temporary victory: they would be still more proud now that they were the permanent owners of this important trophy.

Bros. Brown, D.C.T., and Davis, D.S.J.T.,

received the Juvenile Trophy on behalf of their District. Bro. Brown remarked that its receipt gave him great pleasure. He told the Grand Lodge last year they intended to keep it. As a District, they were all specially interested in Juvenile work, and they worked well together. Bro. Davis also and they worked well together. Bro. Davis also acknowledged the sward. He said they had prayed for it. They must forgive the Welsh for long prayers; their prayers had lasted two years, and they should still go on praying and secure the shield. (Applause.)

Bros. O. G. L. Jones and E. R. Smith received the Adult Shield. Bro. Jones said they did so with the Adult Shield. Bro. Jones said they did so with deep veneration as a tribute to hard work. The shield had the honour of a public reception last year at Colchester. General Mute had paid an eloquent tribute to their hard work as Good Templars. He (Bro. Jones) had attended every meeting of his Lodge during the year except the one held that night, and had, single-handed, conducted a Juvenile Temple. He was very thankful for the generous gift of this trophy. Bro. Smith years are that one feature af reverte was that there remarked that one feature of regret was that there was no shield to offer next year, but they would still work for the good of the Order, and if they were not first next year they would be second.

Ballot Election of V.D.'s.—Reverting to the Digest, Bro. Parkinson, Yorks, Cleveland, now moved No. 33 for recommendation of V.D.'s by ballot vote at the annual session of D.L. This was tabled.

ADDRESS BY BRO. GEORGE DODDS, G.W.C. As the G. W.C. was obliged to leave Grand Lodge on the following morning, he now asked leave to address a few retiring words to Grand Lodge. He on him during the last two years by electing him to the proud position he held. He had done his best to serve the Order as an Executive officer. He was not so young as he once was, but he had travelled almost every month to the Executive meetings, generally held in Birmingham, a distance of about 450 miles, passing two nights on the rail. He was conscious that he had done his duty since he joined the Order. He had been Lodge Deputy about 13 years, and he was pleased to wind up his 50 years of labour in their service. His jubilee year of Temperance work was close at hand. He had prayed God to grant him 50 years hand. He had project Temperance work was no meand his drink. The Gospel kept his heart right, and Teetotalism kept him sober, and so he had two and recotains kept nim soor, and so as and two strings to his bow. Some one had said the new pledge kept more than the old. Well, those could say most who knew most about it. In 1836 be joined the committee of the Newcastle Temperance Society. There were 12 of them and every one of them had served faithfully and the string the source of them had served faithfully and the string the source of them had served faithfully and the string the source of them had served faithfully and and every one of them had kept the pledge, and worked for God and man, and now the last left of the 12 was the humble individual before them. (Applanse.) He would like to imbue them, especially the young now rising up, with the spirit those early workers were but must prove to the world that they were better as men and as husbands, and in all their relations, They would not win by frivolity, and that they worked with a single eye, with God and for God. He would like to live to see the Bill passed that would give them power to put down the evil traffic. They would then have work to do to go into their Districts, and use the votes that Parliament had given. Might the richest blessings and of the Juvenile Shield to the Monmouth Dis-trict. The Representatives having been called np. of High Heaven rest upon them. Head served The G.W.C.T. remarked that it was his duty to the cause religiously and pecuniarily. He had given make over to them the prizes they had won by it half his life. He had gene forth with his bell their exertions. The Monmouth District had guined and his tracts, and had lived to see the a great increase in the Adult as well as the Juvenile sections of the Order, and had now won the Juvenile Shield for the second time. They had might take the road once more. Might Heaven lead them into the richest paths. This might be the last time he would meet them. The doctor told him not long since that he was going home: he had been making for home a long time, but if he had health and strength he should hope to come back another year, and they would hear the old man's voice once more. The address was received with deep feeling, and was one of simple cloquence and power. At its close hearty cheers were given, and the Doxology was spontaneously and very

Bro. MALINS, G.W.C.T., then responded. He said he felt that the words of the "grand old man" called for some words from him in addition to the spontaneous response of the members. Those words had been so eloquent they would all feel that words had been so elequent they would all reel that a blessing was remaining with them. Their bother looked back and wished he could renew the struggles and trials of the early days. Bro. Dodds linked this Order—one of the youngest—with the oldest and earliest form of Temperance effort. They would, as a Grand Lodge, wish to be represented at his jubilee, and they would more definitely acknowledge the service Bro. Dodds had rendered. he, Bro, Malins, looked back upon what they had passed through, he wondered it had not turned the colour of their hair. They had stood true to one another, though they had rent saunder some of the dearest ties of personal relationship. Bro, Dodds had stood by they had rent saunder some of the dearest ties of personal relationship. Bro, Dodds had stood by they add they have a submitted by weather a with the had stood by them although he regarded with the friendship of a life-time those who severed from us. We greatly prized his blessing and his fellowship, and hope that both would still be with us,

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS. PRESTON CLUB BREAKFAST

The seventh annual reunion of members who were present at the Preston session of the Grand Lodge held in 1872—the first great national gathering after the Order assumed national proportionsing after the Order assumed national proportions—which was held in the Liberal Association Room, Hill-street, on Thursday morning. The "Preston Club" was formed at the Birmingham session in 1880, to perpetuate the friendships formed at Preston, to keep in view old former members of the Order, and to bring the influences of the early the Order, and to bring the influences of the early days of Templary to bear on its current needs. After breakfast on Thursday morning, Bro. J. Malins, G.W.C.T., took the chair. Letters were read from the following absent members:—Bro. Revs. J. Mackenzie, J. J. Woods, Rev. W. Mottram, Rev. E. Franks, R. P. J. Simpson, J. Wakefield, Liverpool, who, from ill-health, had left the Order. T. Legwing, Letter, who still cheeken. Wakefield, Liverpool, who, from ill-health, had lete the Order, T. Leeming, Lettle, who had also re-tired, Sister E. Pall, Bros. T. W. Richardson, Isaas Smith, R. B. Whitehead, T. B. Clark, Joseph Thomas, R. W. Duxbury, George Calvert, Clement Malins, Sister Bliza Malins, Robert Bragge, T. Wilmshurst, G. Hastings, R. Sands, Rev. J. Fletcher.

Bro. J. J. Woods referred to the club as "the Old Guard of the Order," and expressed the hope that the members would feel that they must endeavour to raise the Order to the enthusiasm it possessed at the time of the Preston session. The Prestonians had enough power and influence to we possessed at the time of the Preston session. The Prestonians had enough power and influence to revive the Order. Would they do it? Bro. Malins said there was good news from four members of the club who had gone abroad—Rev. H. W. Parsons (late of Brighton, now of America), Miss Field (Birmingham, in New Zesland), Bro. George White (residing now in Tasmania), and Rev. Peter Aston (Queensland). All were prospering. Bro. Malins remarked on the fact that the Order had extended to new localities, exhibited ding the distractions of the late elecnotwithstanding the distractions of the late election. Speeches of about a minute each were then made by the members present. The general tendency was to press on all efforts to revive the work in full faith in the principles and mission of the Order. Among those who took part were Bros. J. Kempster, G.E.S., R. Mansergh, P.G.W.G., D. Y. Scott, P.G.W.C., J. D. Collings, G.W.S., W. Woodall, P.D.C.T., W. Dodgson, P.D.C.T., J. Mann, H. J. Osbern, P.D.C., and James Rae, P.G.M., J. Rewcastle Woods, E. A. Davies, C. Pichorn, J. W. Williams, W. Smith, and Sisters Mrs. Mansergh, Eccles, Woodall, and Mann. work in full faith in the principles and mission of Mann.

On the re-assembling of Grand Lodge, and after the opening ceremonies, Bro. Rev. J. Deans, chairman, introduced the report of the SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE SUBJECT OF THE D.S.J.T.'S COMMISSION IN S.E. LANCASHIRE,—As personal matters are involved we do not propose to report details, except to state that no reflection whatever was made upon the official from whom the Commission was withheld, and that the com-mittee upheld the right of the G.S.J.T. to refuse to sign the Commission. After considerable discussion the report was adopted, and a strong feeling was expressed that it was desirable that a Grand Lodge officer should visit the District to endeavour to remove such feeling as existed and to restore harmony.

OFFER OF ANOTHER CHALLENGE SHIELD.

A letter from Bro. R. P. J. Simpson, Past P.G.W.C.T., was read, stating that he had no desire to monopolise the honour, but if no other desire to monopoise the nonour, but in council brother felt called upon to do so, and the Grand Lodge approved, he should be happy to offer another shield for competition upon such terms as Grand Lodge might approve. The letter was re-Grand Lodge might approve. The letter was re-ceived with applause, and the kind offer was accepted, the conditions, &c., being referred to the Executive.

EXECUTE.

CHALLENGE SHIELD.—Bro. DIMBLERY, E. and M. Surrey, then moved No. 34 on the Digost—to base the increase of adult membership in any "Shield" competition upon the addition of members, irrespective of Clearance, Associate, and Ancient Templar Cards, and of Lodges transferred to or from a District to or from a District.

Bro. Harrison, W. Cheshire, moved an amendment, to put the contest on a basis of a three years net increase.

Bro. Poutter, Warwick, moved as an addition to the original motion that the increase be calculated to the content of the conten lated upon not less than 250 members

Bro, Rev. H. J. Boyn moved to dispense with challenge shields, and urged that they needed a holy enthusiasm to work for humanity and not for

Bro. Winton seconded, and said they were being reduced to little children, and such work was un-solid and unstable. It led to mere excitement and cultivated the lowest motives.

Bro. Baldry, (Naval), thought the remarks on this subject had not been characterised by charity. Whilst they had the trophy in the shield they saw greater trophics in the lives of the soldiers, many of whom had reason to be thankful for the stimulus thus given. As to its being childish, they needed to be more childlike, and it would be better for hem if they were.

Bro. KIRKUS, (Lanc. S. E.), believed in work and faith, and contended that a testimonial acted as a healthy stimulus.

Bro. POULTER's proposal was adopted, as was the whole of Resolution 34, except as to Ancient Templar Cards, which was withdrawn.

THE COMMITTEE ON JUVENILE WORK then introduced their Report, and its discussion with the various items on the Digest relating to Juvenile work occupied the remainder of the morning and a portion of the afternoon sitting, with the following result :-

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON JUVENILE TEMPLARY.

The Committee on Juvenilo Templary consisted of Sister Walshaw, G.S.J.T.; Bro. T. W. Smyth, D.S.J.T., Durham, South; Bro. D. Gover, D.S.J.T., Middlesex; Bro. J. Wilshaw, D.S.J.T., Stafford, N.; Sister H. M. Carter, D.S.J.T.,

Their report dealt with the notices of motion relating to the Juvenile Order. The following action was taken thereon :--

CHARACTER DRESS.—The bye-law applicable to the Sub-Lodges was made to include the Juvenile Temples.

Upon re-assembling after tea, the G.W.C.T. announced the names of the appointed officers who had been nominated by the G. L. Executive, and invited Bro. W. W. Turnbull, R. THE G.W.C.T.'S INSTALLATION ADDRESS. Upon the completion of the Installation ceremony, the G.W.C.T., being the last installed, proceeded, as is his wont, to address the Lodge. He said he had spent nearly half his life and the whole of his manhood in working for the Order. What a history the Order had been, and how great a good it was now. Could anybody doubt the Order was doing us good? Every Grand Lodge was more or less remarkable for one feature or another. time the spirits of some men of power and ability had departed from us there had been no lack of and departed from his there had been to lack or such during our present session. There did not exist any deliberative body that dealt with ques-tions in the calm and able manner that was displayed in this Grand Lodge. Never in his experience had he witnessed the same direct-ness of speech and readiness to catch points, or such administrative ability, whilst they had also a conspicuous illustration of the harmony that Good Templary gave. He would say only a word or two about himself. They knew, he knew, that through all these years he had plenty of faults; he was not infallible; but he had tried to justly administer the port this was passed.

THE DIGEST RESUMED.

THE TAX.—No. 47, proposing to reduce G.L. tax from 1/d. to 1d. (Durham, W.), was tabled. No. 48

Perhaps they did not know why, but only supposed when he was not with them he was somewhere else. No sooner had Grand Lodge risen last year than he went for two or three weeks to Sweden, prior to the R. W.G.L. Session in Norway, and he was some five weeks away. When he came back he found considerable arrears of work to arrange, and found considerable arrears of work to arrange, and then came the turnoil of the general election. That passed over, and he then had the toil of preparing the Provident Fund Report, and with daily care for some weeks he toiled at it to the early hours of for some weeks he toiled at it to the early hours of morning. That over, he found himself pitted against the champions of the drink traffic in pre-paring a paper upon a question that had not been thoroughly handled before. Our Order could not afford to fail in such a work, so he gathered material from all parts of the world, from ancient material from all parts of the world, from ancient and nodern Temperance history, material enough to fill a big book, and he had to condense it into a little pamphlet. Judging from its reception then and since, he was thankful that the task had proved that it was settled for ever that we certainly owe nothing. to the drink traffic, as they do to us. Then there came the labour of removal to our New Grand came the labour of removal to our New Grand Lodge Offices. They did not know how much he had to do with that; if they did some of them would be amused. He was not ashamed that he had been a workman, a handicraftsman. He never saw a painter at work with his brush but his hands itched to take it from him; so he varied his work by making overtime, and did many yards of oakgraining and decorating their new premises. He had reason to thank God that after years of considerable trial he came amongst them after long siderable trial he came amonget them after long hours of excessive toil stronger and fresher than during the past dozen years, and he hoped God would give him strength for the work of the coming year. His colleagues they knew.

Bro. Edwards (G.W.C.) was pre-eminent as an organiser. He was not much given to platform work, but was an indefatigable correspondent. He could organise and carry through a mission as it should be done. He would notify every one of his duty for lines awar-sher than anything should his duty IO times over rather than anything should be neglected. No detail was omitted. They knew him in that respect before they visited his District Lodge last year. (Cheera.)

Bro. Walshaw (G.S.J.T.) had rendered the G.L. percial services. During the past year when they wanted legal advice they found out a good way of getting it: they avoided Bro. Walshaw as a solibut referred the matter to the G.S.J.T .citor. (cheers)—and they obtained direct from her residence advice equal to the first they could have. Our brother they saw had fair hair, and if he were poetically disposed he should say:

Our Brother is flaxeo, His wife is waxen, And his child's name is Saxon.

(Laughter and cheers.)

He need not introduce Bro. Kempster (G.E.S.). If ever he had to do that it would be as Bro. Kempster, M.P. He was their Parliamentary representative, known far and wide about as well as himself. At the opening of our offices about a week ago a brother now engaged as an Alliance Superin-tendent told a story about Bro. Kempster when he tendent told a story about Bro. Kenipster when he (Bro.M.) was rather a stripling, nearly 20 years ago. He said, Bro. Kempster and I were both addressing a little meeting in a little chapel, and young Malins was there, almost a beardless boy, and wanted to read a paper about Good Templary. Bro. Kempster was the speaker of the evening. There was no Lodge then, but my (Malins') speech was about my plans for forming one; and when I had read a page or two, Kempster one; and when I had read a page or two, Kempster one; and when I had read a page of two, Konipseow wanted to speak, and he wanted to get off his speech early enough to get it reported in the next morning's paper. So he said to Bro. Brambley, "This won't do, you know; you must stop him." So as Brambley knew Kempster was dying to get his speech reported in time (and no doubt he reported it himself), I had to give in. Then Bro. Kempster blazed away, and his speech, about some licences he was attacking, was reported in the paper next morning. It was in this little chapel in Cregoe-street, in August, 1868, where I read my little paper, and a week or two later I succeeded in starting Columbia Lodge No. I. We should wonder how Grand Lodge would get on without wonder now Grand Looge would get on without Bro. Kempeter; just as in the House of Commons, we look for Sir Wilfrid Lawson, so we should feel something was missing without the sturdy form and ringing voice of Bro. Kempeter. (Cheers.)

I need say scarcely a word about Sister Impey (G.W.V.T.). She is one of those quiet souls who lets us know without saying anything except what she does not want us to know. When I meet her I always feel that I must have had a great grandfather somewhere who was a Quaker, for I can scarcely speak without saying thee and thou, and the words come to my mind "Thy words do savour of much wisdom, and I will even do as thou hast said."

Bro. COLLINGS is sharp as a needle, and, like Bro.

Kempster: for if Brc. Kempster boxed my cars I would sooner go away than risk an apology from him. We have been greatly blessed for years past with a good secretary. Our secretaries have been model men, and we have needed them, for it is no light post. It is an immense relief and help to know that the details will be fully attended to by the holder of that post.

Bro. Derrington (G.W.T.), I have known since I was a lad, as hon, secretary of the Birming-ham Alliance Auxiliary, when first I went to its offices for tracts and petitions. He is respected by his townsmen who placed him in the Council. But he prefers to work in the County of Worcester where he resides. He is the life of his Lodge and originated a mission that has resulted in a church which has grown out of a Lodge. He has a church which has grown out of a Lodge. He has a warm heart, and kept going a revival like a Primitive Methodist preacher. He is associated with a large business, and in our recent removal and alterations of the new office he has been clerk and alterstants of the new once he mas been derived of the works, and made it easy for us to accomplish the great work of getting installed there. (Cheers.) It is a source of solid satisfaction to see Bro. Winton (G.W.Ch.) in that post. For years I have had a warm heart to welcome him on our Executive. and I am glad to see him there. He is a represen-tative man of real power. I have sent him hundreds of miles in different directions to reprehundreds of miles in different directions to repre-sent the Order, and he has given valuable service as a voluntary worker. His praises ring where hearts have been stirred by his natural eloquence, If he were not so good he would not be the chief of 6,000 Good Templars. I have every hope that his District will feel the honour conferred on them and him, and fervently hope they will continue by amall degrees to advance the interests of the Order in that great county.

Bro. Marspraze (G.W.M.) is that ritualistic-looking young elergyman. He will turn Churchman and become a bishop yet. When I first met him he looked a merelad, but he was married, and I first heard his fame as having preached a remarkable sermon that was the talk of the District. He is the leader of the largest District in England, that meets only twice a year; then they have a two-days session, and are accommodated by the inhabitants of the town for two nights. Their afternoon session is devoted to the Good of the Order and it is a unique District Lodge.

There sits Bro. DEANS (P.G. W.C.T.). I'll tell you a pretty thing about him. When I first saw him in Manchester I did not think he was a minister. That District offered three prizes for essays. They were sent in sealed with acparate envelopes con the envelope for the third prize was opened, and the name read out, Joseph Deans; the second, Joseph Deans; the first, Joseph Deans. From Manchester 13 years ago he moved to the Essex District Lodge. When I was introduced there I heard the Vice Templar speak, and I said, "Joseph He has since moved into one of the hardest Districts, one that was torn over the Negro question, and he has so earnestly co-operated that they have successfully captured one place after another. He is a successful chief, an old worker, and the clearest of thinkers.

and the clearest of thinkers.

Bro. Woodall. (G. Guard) is just himself and nobody else. If you go to Hull and ask for the most through and rabid tectotaler they will take you to Bro. Woodall. If you ask for the testotal blacksmith they will take you to him; and a letter addressed, W. Woodall, Esq., will find him. letter addressed, W. Woodall, Esq., will find him. He loves the Order, and has wrought for it. He has been not only a District officer, but has nobly led a Lodge of 300 members, of which he is the proud chief. He taught the Order to Captain Reymalds, who took it to Norway and to Dommark, and my mission has since spread it in Sweden. I am glad to see him where he is, and a good deal is due to his good wife. Good Templary is bred in their children, and some of their family have suffered too for the Tamperpuce always. too for the Temperance cause.

Bro. Thomas (G.Sentinel), is the representative of a remarkable District, the Welsh District in Lancasbire, admirably administered. They assemble 700 to tea, and distribute £30, £40, to £50 annually in prizes. They trouble me so little that I scarcely have 10 letters from the District in a year. They are nationally in Wales, but geogra-the Challenge Shield, and we delight to promote their leader.

Bro, PLYMEN (A.G.Sec.) comes from a District you know nothing about. Of all I know none where the discipline is so perfect, or that has such an average of bright intelligence and capacity. It could furnish a dozen D.C.T.'s to order at any time, and he is one of their finest spirits. He is a schoolmaster, and works all round the District. It gives no trouble, and the first bard word has yet to be spoken in West Surrey.

Sister Payor (G.D.M.) is from East Devou, an admirable District, and she is an earnest devoted sister, who has served the Order with real zeal and earoestness.

Bro. Brown (G. Messenger) has had a hard Distriet to work for a good many years. We desire to honour more brethren than we can find places for, and our good brother has narrowly escaped visiting Birmingham as an Executive officer.

I thank you for giving me such colleagues. We have worked on the Executive in peace, scarcely ever coming to any but a unanimous conclusion. I rejoice that it is so. And now I repeat what I said about the character of the present session, its thorough earnesters. Those little realise the capacity of the Order, what its determination will enable it to do, and what it is capable of doing, who imagine that any little disturbance will destroy the Order. God grant we may be worthy to do the work He has given us, and that we may do it with our might.

NEXT PLACE OF MEETING.

London and Sunderland were the two places London and Sunderland were the two piaces which invited the Grand Lodge. London was proposed by Bro. Winton, and seconded by Bro. Dimbleby. Sunderland was moved by Bro. Gibson, and seconded by Bro. Wardropper. The speakers did justice to their respective localities, but Sunderland doubless lets some team which the decourses. land doubtless lost some votes which the eloquence and personal influence of Bro. Rev. J. Mackenzie might have gained had he been present. In the result Sunderland had 80 votes and London 119. London was, therefore, selected.

RESUMING THE DIGEST.
Section XV. of the G.W.C.T.'s report was then adopted, as was also section XVI.

POLITICAL AND SECTARIAN TOPICS, -No. 65B, from the G.W.C.T.'s report, was now discussed, involving a ruling that party-political and sectariar tonics be not allowed in connection with the Order. Bro. Kempster urged to include words to except Temperance politics, which were really the work of the Order. This was accepted. The discussion was continued by Bros. Wilson, Poulter, Hodges, and Hopkins.

Bro. Malins replied. The regulation, he remarked, was already a well understood usage of the Order. Chase's Digest contained decisions on these lines, and it was the rule in nearly all fraternities, or and it was the rule in nearly all fraterinities, or members would import the bitterness of party strife and rend the Order in pieces. During the past year a Lodge had added Conservatives to its numbers until at one time they would not let Temperance politics into the Lodge. These Con-servatives discussed Disestablishment, the Life of Beaconsfield, the Primrose League, Mr. Gladstonenot in his relation to Temperance politics-no, but as a party politicisn-a splendid topic, but this kind of discussion was interdicted by every fraternity, and could not be permitted in our Order. The resolution was adopted by an overwhelming majority.

REMOVAL OF A LODGE.—NO. 65c (G.W.C.T.), requiring Lodges to notify all members before the removal of a Lodge, and to require the G.W.C.T.'s endorsement, was amended to require the D.C.T.'s endorsement, and was adopted.

Addresses by Bros. Turnbull and Potter. The G.W.C.T. now intimated that Bro. Turnbull, R.W.G.S. and G.W.S. of Scotland, was about to leave, and they would like him to say a few words. He might also inform them that this was Bro. Turnbull's birthday, and in their name he would wish him many happy returns of the day. The also be glad of a few words from Bro. G.W.C.T. Bro. Turnbull was received with cheers. It had been his pleasure to attend several of their sessions. He was at Bradford, and all since except Newcastle and Plymouth. Several years ago they forbad parlour games, though he feared sometimes the law was evaded. He acknowledged their kindness in recognising any little service he could render. It was a pleasure and delight for him to be associated with their G.W.C.T. in the work of the Order. He was glad to tell them the Order was prospering in some parts. He joined the Order, having of course given up drink-selling, and this alone had considerable influence in extending the Order. There were now influence in extending the Order. There were now 16 or 17 Lodges. He (Bro. T.) was very much interested in their proceedings. Their G.L. was not the House of Commons. He endorsed what had been already said, that the debating in that House was very much below the level of our Grand Lodges. (Cheers.)

Bro, POTTER was also received with cheers. It Bro. POTTER was also received with cheers. It gave him much pleasure to bring them the fraternal greeting of the Channel Islands. He congratulated them upon re-electing their G.W.C.T., and he was much pleased with the earnestness of the speeches and debates. They were characteristic of a noble band of workers, and he should go to his little island home with a fresh inspiration for individual earnest work. Let them put their shoulders to the wheel, one and all. He heartily wished them success in their noble work, and trusted that in the coming year the leakage would be stopped and there would be a fruitful increase. (Cheers.)

Bro. Malins requested Bros. Turnbull and Potter to convey the hearty greetings of the body to their respective Grand Lodges. (Cheers.)

STEAMBOAT EXCURSION.

On Thursday the Grand Lodge resolved to accept the very kind offer of Bro. Councillor Mordey, a Newport shipowner, who placed two steamboats at the disposal of the Grand Lodge, and invited them to take a sail down the River Usk into the Bristol Channel. For this purpose the Grand Lodge rose soon after 12, and the members formed quite a large soon atter 12, and the members formed quite a large procession and marched, in regalia, to the 'docks, where they embarked. The weather was fine, and all seemed in remarkably good spirits. Both steamers were well laden, and it was decimed advisable not to 'allow all to go, and so to avoid risk. The sail was greatly enjoyed, and, in returning, the procession reformed, and, headed by a "scratch" brass band, which included some of the members of Grand Lodge, marched back again to the Town Hall, which was reached at about a little before 3 o'clock. A hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Councillor Mordey was adopted with acclamation, and Bro. Mordey suitably responded.

POLITICAL WORK OF THE OFFICE.—Dro. E. A. Davies moved, and Bro. Searle seconded, No. 79 (Devon, S.), recommending that the Political Work of the Order be worked by a Political Council outside, but in conjunction with, the Order. Bro. Kempster protested that this proposal was outside the Order. One of the vital and fundamental councils. mental principles of the Order was that they were landed together to destroy the liquor traffic. Ithen read from the "Platform of the Order"

THE REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE was again taken up. Section 10, as to deceased members and friends, was adopted. Section 11. Finance, was held over. Section 12, Miscellaneous, was adopted as a whole

PRESENT FROM THE U.K.ALLIANCE .-- A letter from the secretary of the U.K. Alliance was now read, conveying a handsome present to the Grand Lodge Library, of a set of volumes of THE ALLIANCE NEWS; the series of MELICIA, and other volumes. The gift was cordially received, and the Miscellaneous Business Committee ordered to frame a suitable acknowledgment.

Giff from R.W.G.L.—Upon the report of a donation of £250 from the R.W.G.L. towards the Charter Defence Fund, a cordial vote of thanks to that body was unanimously adopted.

THE REPORT OF THE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE was now taken. A lively discussion arose upon the question raised by the Committee, as to whether the sum of £100 voted to the Committee whether the sum of $100 voted to the committee at Leicester in 1884, with specific instructions as to the method of its disposal, and re-voted at Manchestor in 1885 by in-clusion in the estimates, was intended by G.L. to be at the disposal of the committee for the work prescribed, or subject to the veto of the G.L. Executive. A motion to table this section of the report was lost. Upon a sign vote the view and action of the committee were supported by 88 votes against 81. The year and navs being called. 70 voted for the contention of the committee, and 69 against. The roll was then called, and resulted in 85 votes for the committee and 75 against. The committee therenpon, with consent of Grand Lodge, withdrew that portion of their report, and the report was nitimately adopted as

RESOLUTIONS.

ELECTED LICENSING AUTHORITIES .- Your committee recommends the adoption of the following resolutions: 1,—This Grand Lodge declares its any legislative proposal in direction of placing powers of licensing the drink traffic in the hands of the people or their elected representatives would be a disastrous perversion of the true principle of local self-government, and would tend to degrade and corrupt our municipal institutions; and, further, that all decisions respecting the withholding or granting of licences should emanate from a judicial tribunal which, while independent of local election, should be bound to act in accordance with the law; and that it should be made illegal to grant or renew any licences in opposition to the proved wishes of a majority of the inhabitants of any district.

2.—The Direct Local Veto.—This Grand

Lodge is more than ever convinced that no measure proposing to deal with the licensing system can afford the community adequate protection from the tander the community adequate protection from the crime, social evils, trade depression, pauperism, taxation, disease, and deaths everywhere and always associated with the traffic in intoxicating liquors, which does not proved an effectual local veto upon the issue and renewal of licences by the direct votes of the people; and this Grand Lodge would urge all patriotic citizens by every lawful means to oppose the election of legislators who refuse to grant this protective power to the people.

3. That this Grand Lodge re-affirms its conviction that the time has long since arrived when England was entitled to a Smiday Closing Act, at least as complete as those of Scotland and Wales, least as complete as those of Scotland and Wales, and that the passing of such an Act would be the best remedy for any difficulty in the administration of the Welsh Act on the English borders, that petitions in favour of total Sunday closing for England be adopted and signed by the Grand Lodge Executive, and that E. H. Carbutt, Esq., M.P., and Lord Aberdare, respectively, be asked to present the same.

4. That in view of the present unsettled condition of political parties, and the possible early approach of a general election, this Grand Lodge urges upon Good Templars and Temperance reformers throughout the country, to exercise such vigilance in their respective constituencies as will vigilance in their respective constituencies as will insure an increased representation of Temperance electors in the next Parliament, and thus secure sarly legislation conferring upon localities the power to prohibit the liquor traffic by the direct votes of the people.

Upon the motion of Bro. Kempster, a memorial to the Home Secretary praying for the elemency of the Crown towards Henry Williams, and his release from penal servitude, was adopted, and ordered to be signed by the Executive on behalf of the Grand Lodge.

THE ANNUAL ESTIMATES.

SALARY OF G.W.C.T .- Bro, BELL moved and Bro. SALRY OF G.W.C.I.—Both Department and the Topo seconded a proposal to reduce the salary of the G.W.C.T. to 2350. This was suggested not in disparagement of the value of the G.W.C.T.'s services, but in view of the financial condition of the Order, "to cut our garments according to our cloth," and because the estimated expenditure exceeded the income of some £50. Bro. Collings replied shewing that the estimated expenditure was reducible by the amount named, and the motion was tabled.

TESTIMONIALS.—It was proposed to discontinue the practice of presenting illuminated and framed addresses to retiring Executive officers. This was tree's report adopted as a whole.

THE REFORM OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE REFORM OF THE ORDER was then introduced by Bro. Poutter, but at this advanced hour of the session it became apparent that Grand Lodge was hardly in a position to deal adequately with it. A motion to table was portion of it was naturally resented. And it was ultimately resolved that the best thanks of Grand Lodge be presented to the committee for their ardnous labours and valuable report; that the comardinous labours and valuable report; that the committee be continued, and that the report be printed and sent to every District Lodge for consideration prior to next Grand Lodge.

THE REPORT OF THE ORPHANAGE COMMITTEE THE REPORT OF THE ORPHANGE COMMITTEE which appeared last week was then received and adopted, and No. 63 on the Digest (M. Somersec) in favour of a system of boarding out children, was referred to the Orphange Board of Management.

VACCINATION AT THE ORPHANADE.—Bro. J. H. HOREINS moved No. 64 (Gloucester, E.) regretting that "insurmountable" obstacles exist in the way of admission of unvaccinsted children, and calling upon G. L. or Executive to find a remedy.

Bro. WLASHAW seconded, and withdrew the word "insurmountable." He explained that in one District the Gnardians had been informed that the law

trict the Guardians had been informed that the law would not be enforced by proceeding for penalties.

This leniency might be extended to other Districts, and then the Orphanage Board could meet the wishes of anti-vaccinators

On rising after Bro, Walshaw, he protested against this debate being permitted. They were not called upon to sit there and suffer a debate upon a quesdebate being permitted. They were not caited upon to eit there and snifer a debate upon a question entirely outside the province of that Grand Lodge to discuss. It was a political or sectarian question beyond their right to deal with, and they had shready in that ession ruled that all such discussions are prohibited in their Lodges. The proposal either urged them to break the law or to repeal it. (Cries of "No.") It must be one or the other, for there was no other way out of the difficulty. Whichever it was it was quite out of order to discuss it in that Grand Lodge. He spoke as an anti-compulsory vaccinator, but, if this were allowable, any other political and sectarian question might be discussed. He moved a declaration that it was out of order, and that G.L. decline to discuss the matter further. Bro. Rev. T. W. P. Taylder seconded the motion, and it was carried by a very large majority. The yeas and nays were called, but upon testing the call only one member rose, and the subject was dismissed. and the subject was dismissed.

Before the closing coremonies,
The G.W.C.T. tendered the most sincere thanks of Grand Lodge to Bro. Brown, chairman of the Local Reception Committee, and to his colleagues, for the admirable manner in which they had pro moted the comfort of Grand Lodge under great difficulties. It was feared that the requirements of G.L. would overtax the resources and powers of so small a District, but they had done admirably, and had disappointed them by one complete success which had attended their efforts, and he would convey to them the sincere and hearty thanks of the Grand Lodge.

Bro. Brown and Bro. Jones suitably responded. The minutes of the concluding sitting were then read, and the closing service was conducted at about 5 p.m., with befitting feelings of thankfulness and solemnity. Thus closed one of the most practical and useful sessions of the English Grand Lodge.

Bro. W. Winton, D.C.T. Middlesex, presided. WESLEYAN TEMPERANCE.

The Temperance Committee of the Conference, after considering the subject for years, are of opinion that the time has now come to move for the appointment of a Connexional Visiting and Organising Secretary. It would be a great advantage if the May District Committees were to express their judgment upon this were to express their judgment upon this important matter, and if they would also consider whether the proposed secret ary should be a layman or a minister, what should be the scope of his duties, and how he should be supported. The vast Temperance work of Mathodism can never can give his whole time to this work. We have now reached a position from which no can give his whole time to this work, we have now reached a position from which no further progress can be made unless such an appointment be sanctioned. We hope turther progress can be made unless such an appointment be sanctioned. We hope all the friends of Temperance will bestir thomselves and get the District Committees to favour this easential step. The Temperance Committee also intends to suggest to the Conference that the morehers of the District Temperance St. Committee. members of the District Temperance Sub-Committee shall be ex-officio members of the District meetings, like the members of the other sub-committees. THE GOOD TEMPLAR PARLIAMENT.

A RETROSPECTIVE VIEW.

"THE best session ever held." Such was the verdict passed upon the Newport Session of the Grand Lodge, when at the end of last week the representatives turned homewards, after five days' close application—a holiday devoted to hard work, only relieved by a two hours' pleasure run by steamer down to the Bristol

the la

The present writer, having had personal experience of 15 such yearly gatherings, if unable to assent to the proposition in its fulness, is yet in a position to appreciate some of the grounds on which it is based.

There was a larger attendance (of non-representative members) at most, perhaps at all, the preceding sessions; but that difference is accounted for by the fact that the place of meeting was in the extreme edge of the English jurisdiction-on the border of Wales, where said. That the recent session resembled the another Templar authority reigns-far from the great centres of population.

For all that the session was well entitled to be called the "Good Templar Parliament." For it was as widely representatives as any previous one. There were representatives from every English county—besides fraternal delegations from Wales, from Ireland, from Scotland, and from the Channel Islands—and every representative spoke and voted, not as a unit, but in the name of 500 co-workers at home. The rugged north of Northumberland and Durham joined hands with the sunny south of Sussex Downs and the Isle of Wight: romantic Cornwall and lovely Devon in the west with the Lincolnshire Fens and Norfolk Broads of the east. Teeming Lancashire and shrewd Yorkshire, the great Metropolis, and the grimy Black Country, the cider counties of Somerset and Gloucester and Hereford, and the Kentish hop gardens, the Cumberland hills, the Essex marshes-each and all contribute their quota to make up these hundreds of men and women gathered in the busy export town on the Usk to deliberate upon and legislate for the interests of the Good Templar Order.

Nor is the personnel less diversified than the contributory area. Both sexes, of course, are here, for the Order boasts its equality no less of sex than of race; youth and age, for a leading feature in Templary is its facility for utilising talent regardless of years; clerics and laymen, nearly as great a variety of the one as of the other; Church and Dissent, fast bound in brotherliness; the cultured and the unpelished, the well-born lady and the farmer's daughter, the banker and the rural postman, the merchant and the office clerk, the high church clergyman and the city missionary, the Parlia-mentary candidate and the cabdriver, the newspaper editor and the working blacksmith, town councillors, poor law guardians, lawyers, public accountants, schoolmasters, postmasters, re-porters, shopkeepers, artisans—these and many others possessed of nearly as great a variety of gifts, all devoted to the Temperance cause, and to what they believe to be its best method-Templary. All voluntary workers; yet all united in a remarkable devotion to the one paid man among them, who has for 17 years been their freely chosen head and chief.

Many members have become regular attendants at these yearly meetings; and a chief charm about the gathering is a certainty of meeting old friends, making new ones, and renewing old friendships around which pleasant memories cluster, for it is true in this case that as "iron sharpeneth iron so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend"; while the warm greeting accorded each new member wins his heart, so that the closing hour of one session finds him wishing for the next.

Variety of personnel, of occupation, of manner, of dress; the charm of woman's presence, the gay colouring of the Regalia worn ; all tend to give piquancy and novelty to the scene. The deep interest which is not inconsistent with frequent flashes of fun; the deep appreciation of humour that now ripples on the surface and again peals forth in hearty health-ful laughter was there, but an almost entire absence of the turbulence, and of cut and dried arrangements sometimes seen at other conferences. The variety of idea, originality of illustration, freshness of argument, readiness of speech, quickness of repartee and of perceptionthese things strike one, but some of tham are to be expected, since nearly all are Temperance speakers in their own locality, and serving to cement the widely varying component parts into one great institution, to its principles of total abstinence and prohibition, and to its chosen leaders, and at the same time to graft a new enthusiasm upon the experience of the past.

new House of Commons in being more practical and decisive has also been remarked. A proposal to relax the law of the Order, which posal to relax the law of the Order, which forbids "character dress" performances and dancing, was negatived, and "kissing games" were prohibited with a decision which proved to demonstrate the firm conviction held that the Temperance battle "could not be won by fiviolity," as an honoured veteran put it, and also marked an intensity of moral feature great removed by the developed spirity feeling only surpassed by the devotional spirit which burst forth into spontaneous singing of the Doxology at the close of a high-toned fare well address by a veteran worker. Firm Sunday closing of public-houses, direct local veto over drink licences, petitioned Parlia-ment against the sale of drink to children, and declared against handing over licensing to local councils.

The full exercise of free choice caused some peculiarities in the election of officers; yet every election was acceptable to all. The chaplain chair -hitherto held by clerics, new of the Establish ment, again of one or other Dissenting body-was this year given to a layman, a London city this year given to a layman, a London cry missionary, while, there being no lack of the cloth, two other posts usually given to lay-men were conferred on ministers. That theology did not influence choice is proven by the pre-sence on the Executive Board of Churchman. and Quaker, Baptist and Wesleyan, Sweden borgian and Primitive Methodist. Nor die Nor did locality or distance interfere, for city, town, and village alike contribute officers since London, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, and Leeds unite with Hull, Halifax, Newport. Cleethorpes, Street, and Broad Clyst in that regard.

The Order does not now number as many adherents as it once did, but that is no proof that teetotalism is receding. The growth of denominational and other societies has drawn many away. But it still holds its way in many towns and villages of the land, carries a great influence, both socially and politically, and in proportion as the Subordinate Lodges and members pursue their work in the spirit and tone which marked the last Grand Lodge will their efforts meet with their due appreciation and with success.

MR. CONYBEARE'S BILL.—We learn that this bill is likely to be considered in committee on Friday night, May 7.

THE committee of the Temperance party in the Heuse of Commons held a meeting on Friday, May 7, to consider the steps to be taken for the furtherance of the Temperance legislation before Parliament.

THE ARTICLE on "The Good Templar Parlia-ment" reprinted above was contributed by Bro. H. J. Osborn, of Bristol, to several daily newspapers which had been supplied with daily reports of the proceedings during the session at Newport.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND TEMPERANCE SOCIETY announces its anniversary meetings in another column. We would direct special attention to the announcement of this series of most important nectings, to be addressed by speakers of great power and eminence.

THE CROYDON CONGRESS .- A Temperance Congress was opened at the Skating Rink, Croydon, on May 3, in the presence of a large audience of the various Temperance bedies of Croydon and the neighbourhood. Canon Ellison, in the absence of the Archbishep of Canterbury, gave the inaugural address. The Congress concludes on Saturday, May 8.

with the great evening public meeting. The celebrity of the speakers and the attractions of the cause will doubtless draw throngs on the occasion.

We worth beaw attention to an advertisement that Bro. the Rev. Andrew Edward, B.A., is to that Bro, the Kev. Andrew Loward, B.A., is to preach at Crawer Chapel, Foubert's-place, Regent-atreet, W., on Thursday, May 20, at 7.15. Our brother was for many years an active worker in the Order, having joined the St. Paneras Lodge in 1871. His later career is somewhat remarkable. With a desire to give himself to religious work he commenced studying for Holy Orders. To give himself time to attend college he had to resign a good pesition on the London Press; fer over two years he worked as a journeyman printer, studying years he worked as a journeyman printer, studying hard meanwhile, and fluully passing high in honours. He is the author of several powerful theological essays. As a journalist he has a wide knowledge of life, and a deep sympathy with hunan nature and serrow. We are informed that his orstory is worth a long journey to hear, so we trust that Craven Chapel—perhaps the largest Independent ohurch in West London—will be crowded on the 20th inst., to give our brother a hearty welcome. welceme

NOTES ON THE DOINGS AT NEWPORT.

Easter week is always a "red letter" time with the Good Templars of this country, and the eyes of all are turned towards the spot where the Grand Lodge is meeting in annual session. There may be some people who question the utility of these gatherings, but these taking part in the prothese gatherings, but those taking part in the pro-ceedings, and who daily are mads to feel the in-terest taken in their doings by friends at home, can asfely assert that their value is inestimable, and that the spirit infused into the proceedings of Grand Lodge finds an echo in all corners of our land. If the session be a good one, and zeal and enthusiasm are present in the deliberations, the representatives are sure to return to their respective districts, anxious and willing to infuse the same fire into their own and neighbourinfuse the same fire into their own and neighour-ing Lodges; and so the tired are aroused, the weary are refreshed, and the laggard ones answer to the call for service with renewed energy and quickened interest. To gain such an end every earnest worker should sim, and the annual session, which fails to strike the keynote of revival, falls short of its purpose and mission.

 The seventeenth annual session was decidedly up to the average, in fact, many think it was above the average. Some of the debates were very animated, occasionally the criticisms offered were, unquestionably severs in their character. At times the excitement was intense—netably when At times the excitement was intense—necasty when a critical division or election was being taken. Members hit out, as it were, straight from the shoulder; yet throughout the proceedings there shoulder; yet throughout the proceedings there was a spirit of unity and charity, which clearly demonstrated that whatever difference might exit as to details, upon the fundamental principles of the control of the co exit as to details, upon the fundamental prin-ciples of our Order the entire Grand Lodgo stood like a rock, firm and im-movable. The old battle cry had lest none of its charm, and the position of Good Templary with regard to the liquor traffic is as uncompromising as ever, viz., "War to the knife, and the knife to the hilt."

The Juvenile Templar demonstration, held on the Saturday preceding Easter Monday, was very successful, and did infinite credit to its prometers, mere especially when the comparative smallness of the Monmouthshire District is taken into consideration. The cheir was an excellent one, and consucration. In consir was an excellent one, and well merited the warm enlogiums passed upon it. There was a sweetness and also a richnesss of tone infused into the music seldom obtained in choirs gathered from various parts. The speeches on the whole were good and to the point, Sister Walshaw, GS LT. Whole were good and to the point, Sister washaw, G.S.J.T., being especially successful, ther expressive and taking delivery being very acceptable to beth adults and children. When it was announced that the Monmouth District had won the J.T. challenge shield for the second time in succession, the audience fairly shouted with delight. The meeting was a new feature, and I hope it will become a permanent item in the ostinence and prohibition, and to its chosen adders, and at the same time to graft a new enaught and a same time to graft a new enaught and the same time to graft a new enaught and the same time to graft a new enaught and the same time to graft a new enaught to ender the position of the past.

That the Order is a democracy has often heen continuing with conference at 2.30, and ending our members are assembling in force.

Monday's proceedings presented a strange contrast to those at Manchester on the corresponding day of last year. Instead of 1,000 members presenting themselves for the Grand Lodge Degree. only 75 candidates appeared. I heard a few disonly 7.5 candidates appeared. I neared a tew dis-paraging remotes on the smallness of the number. But when it is remembered that the Man-chester District contained last year nearly 4,000 members, as well as being sur-rounded by several large Districts, and that Monmouth only has about 400 members, the number was as large as could have been expected. London must try and make up the deficiency next year. It will, however, be very hard if our weaker Districts are to be debarred from inviting G.L., because they can only expect to bring forth few candidates for the Degree. What the assembly lacked in numbers it made up in earnestness and enthusiasm.

The reception meeting was not what it should have been. This was not the fault of the local friends, for the large Royal Albert Hall was crowded with a sympathetic and enthusiastic audience. But with one or two exceptions the speeches were not up to the mark. Of all the meetings held under the auspices of the Order, the Grand Lodge reception meeting should the Grand Lodge reception meeting should pre-eminently be the public gathering of the year, and the speakers representing us should endeavour to appear at their very best. Trivial generalities should not be indulged in, and "chaff" might be should not be indulged in, and "chaff" might be retained for a more appropriate season. The speeches should be thoroughly well prepared, and perhaps it would be better if, in future, subjects were given to the orators instead of, Micawberlike, "waiting for something to turn up," to provide them with a theme for their remarks. I am afraid our respected G.W.C.T. set a bad example on this occasion, for he admitted he no "notes," in other words, no speech. I know the meeting was described as a "splendid success," the meeting was described as a "spiritud success, but I can assure my readers many of our members thought otherwise, and they did not hesitate to express themselves the next morning.

At the roll call on Tuesday morning nearly every representative responded, and we were very soon at work with the consideration of the G.W.C.T.'s report. As was expected, the very first section gave rise to a very warm discussion, it being felt by some of the Reps. from Middlesex that one of the paragraphs contained an uncalled for censure, besides favouring the division of the District. Bro. Winton took exception to the words com plained of, and in doing so spoke with much feel-ing and warmtle. For two hours the battle raged. Once a speaker let fall an expression to which unce a speaker let tall an expression to which exception was taken by the members calling out "No, no." Bro. G. Dodds, G. W. Co., who was presiding, brought down the gavel with a crash, and said "Order, this is not the House of Commons." Eventually, after the G. W. C. T. had replied, in which he remulisted now these of compute the section. which he repudiated any idea of censure, the section was adopted.

The other officers' reports were taken on Tuesday afternoon, the only one giving rise to special dis-cussion being that of the G.S.J.T. Considerable exception was taken to the paragraph referring to S. E. Lancashire. This special case was referred to a small committee, who upheld the action of the G.S.J.T., but the Grand Lodge instructed the new Executive to send a special commission to the District to settle the dispute, which appears to be a very scrious one. Nobody doubted the right of an officer to refuse to grant a commission, but there was a very wide divergence of opinion as to how this right was to be exercised. From what I heard, a radical resolution on the whole subject of commissions may be looked for next year.

By vote of the Grand Lodge the Political Confer ence was not held. I cannot see the utility of either the Juvenile or Political Conference, or of the committees appointed on these matters. whole thing has to be discussed over again in full session. Besides, it is not fair to Districts. For example, the committee recommend that a certain resolution be not adopted, the representative of the District sending up the proposal, can only move it as an amendment and is cut off from the This is an injustice, for our rules right to reply. This is an injustice, for our rules of order say the mover of the original resolution only has this right, and this must be the motion upon the digest. Again, is it competent for anyone to move the rejection of a resolution before it has been muved, seconded, and put from the chair? FREE LANCE.

WARNING AGAINST AN IMPOSTOR.

R. N. Sisk, who we some time ago announced in the Watchword as in the neighbourhood of Chertsey, has recently been again performing in Bedford and other places. He is notable as a remarkably short man, and sometimes signs his name as Harriss. He carries various papers signed by different D.D.'s. I repeat, any member who has given him relief should give him in charge. He is about 5 feet 2 inches in height, and is probably nearly 60 years of age.

AN APPEAL BY MR. SAMUEL MORLEY TO PARENTS.

Mr. Morley's appeal referred to in our "Notes of the Week" in the Watchword for April 26, is as follows :-

as follows:—

"34, Grosvenor-street, W., April, 1886.

"Attention has recently been called to the large number of children who are constantly sent by their parents and friends to public-houses to fetch beer and spirits, and who are thus exposed to great temptation, and are frequently the witnesses of seenes of a most degraded character, which must have a bad influence upon them.

"Were parents fully to realise the danger to which they are exposing their children, it is believed that many would avoid the practice and thus preserve their little ones from familiarity with sights and sounds which are certain to weaken the effects sounds which are certain to wasked the cheeks of all religious and moral training.

"As one deeply interested in the welfare of the young, and intimately associated with several of the societies established for promoting it, I earnestly appeal to perents and friends of children to do all in their power, both by precept and example, to dis-courage this dangerous custom, and thus to remove one at least of the many pitfalls in the path of the one at least of the many protests.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.

ANNUAL MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of the League was held on Monday evening last at Exeter Itall, Strand. The Bishop of London (the President of the Lengue) Bishop of London (the President of the League) presided, and among others present were the Rev, William Bray (Newport, Mon.), the Rev.J. Marshall Lang, D.D. (Glasgow), the Rev. Urijah R. Thomas (Bristol), Sir Llewelyn Turner, J.P. (High Sheriff of Carnarvon), Mr. J. W. Probyn, J.P. (Crawley), Mr. T. Fry, M.P., Mr. J. Leicester, M.P., Surgeon Major R. Pringle, Mr. S. A. Blackwood, C.B., Mr. George Palmer, Mr. George Williams, the Rev. G. Murphy, the Hon. C. Dillon, the Hon. and Rev. Carr Glynn, Canon Fleming, and Mr. Robert Rae.

Mr. RAE read an abstract of the annual report, in which the Committee observe that the past year has been one of steady growth rather than of rapid advancement in the Temperance cause. Perhaps the most striking proof of that advancement is to be found in the recent Budget speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, though the directions in other directions. The decline in the last year is the tions. The decline in the word was the bas ever been known—due, in the tions. The decline in the last year is the largest that has ever been known—due, in the opinion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to the 'voluntary Temperance of the people.' Twenty-five years ago the most prominent, if not the only representative of total abstinence in the House of Commons was Sir Edward Baines. In the Dadi's ommons was Sir Edward Baines. In the Parliament elected last year, under the extended franchise. ment elected latyear, under the extended franchise, there are over 40, several of them being life abstainers; and to emphasise this fact, which cannot but be regarded as an indication of the progress of the cause throughout the community, an important meeting was held by the League on the 14th January, in the Westminster Town Hall. The Bishop of London, as president of the League, took the chair, and the meeting was addressed by 10 members of Parliament who are abstainers, whilst letters were received from 17 who were unable to be present. The oral and written testimonies were of a character notto be gainsaid. The continued progress of the medical profession such the continued progressol the medical protession towards the views propounded by total abstainers is most gratifying to the committee, seeing that in this they are but reaping the reward of much earnest flabour in the past. In a remarkable article, entitled, "The Truth about Alcohol," which appeared in a recent number of the British Medical Procession and the Committee of the British Committee of the Briti Medical Journal, nearly all for which abstainers have contended is fully accorded. This journal admits that intoxicants are not a necessity of healthy existence; and that though sloohol has its place as a medicinal agent, yet its therapeutic range is becoming more and more narrowed as greater experience is acquired. The Committee have continued to develop, as much as they could, the promotion of Temperance in connection with the educational institutions of th country. They attach much importance to the labours of Mr. Frank Cheshire, who, during the last six years has delivered 900 lectures in metropolitar schools—last year's contribution being 128 mentions in his report that from first to mentions in his report that from first to last no fewer than 162,000 children and 3,000 tenchers have been present at the lectures, and that 55,000 essays or reports have been written by scholars. Mr. J. L. Fenn has given in small towns and country villages of the home counties 115 addresses in elementary schools; and in 35 schools in Mid-Bucks, here prizes were offered for the best accounts of his lectures 4, 500 children competed, 38 prises being of the state of took place at Bradford on Easter Tuesday, and was addressed by Mr. Henry J. Wilson, M.P., as chair-man; Canon Bardsley, vicar of Bradford; and Principal Fairbairn, D.D., of Oxford. An excellent impression was produced amongst the teachers, many of whom are total abstainers. An important conference of teachers was held in May last at Bristol; and several training colleges for teachers have been visited by Mr. Frank Cheshire and Mr. T. Marchant Williams. The League's Temperance work in the Royal Navy, superintended by Miss Weston, is carried on with vigour, and an Miss Weston, is carried on with vigour, and an encouraging measure of success. Many encouragencouraging measure of success. Many encouraging measure of success. Many encouraging testimonies have been received from distant with the question of total abstinence upon moral stations as to the improved conduct of British seamen at foreign ports, and the change is freely recognised as an evidence of the reality and power of the Temperance work which has been carried on in the Navy. The Committee continue to receive satisfactory evidence of the good resulting longer short trips.—Industry of the continue to receive satisfactory evidence of the good resulting from their efforts to promote Temperance in the British Army; and they believe that if the military pledge roll could be accurately completed it would comprise at least 25,000 members, to which might be added many hundreds who have fulfilled their term of service, and are now active pro-moters of the Temperance cause in civil life. The Committee have held several gatherings of what may be termed an " international " character. One of these took place last July, when Dr. Cuyler. president of the National Temperance Society of the United States of America, was received by a large number of Temperance friends, the Lord Bishop of London presiding. A month later a reception was given at the house of Sir William McArthur, K.C.M.G., to the Hon. James Munro, an earnest total abstainer and a friend of Temperance legislation in the colony of Victoria. An International tion in the colony of victoria. An international Temperance Congress, "against the abuse of alcoholic driaks," was held at Antwerp in September last, when the League was represented by Mr. John Taylor and the Secretary. With on any of the committee are be-coming increasingly convinced of the importance of their Publication Department, which has been efficiently maintained during the past year; and it is encouraging to find that the continued commercial depression has but slightly diminished the amount of business done, the sales for the year ending March 31 having amounted to £8,323 3s. 114d. The new publications of the year include several important contributions to the scientific and educational aspects of the Temperance reformation, and the League's weekly, monthly, and quarterly periodicals have been growing in favour and widely-extended usefulness. The past year has not been particularly prosperous in regard to funds. The total subscriptions and donations for the year have been £2,518 1s. 3d.—£128 less than the preceding year; and the gross receipts of the general and publication departments combined have amounted to £11,206 3s. 33d. The CHAIRMAN, in his address, said it was a matter for congratulation that there had been during the year 1885 a greater falling off in the revenue derived from intoxicating liquors than in any preceding year, as far as could be traced. (Hear, hear.) This was a fact that would characterise hear.) in 1885 in all their recollections, and which emphatically marked the progress which had been emphatesity marked the progress which had eep made, and marked in a way that corresponded with the special work which the National Temperance League had undertaken to do. While the League did its utmost to support all legislation in furtherance of the Temperance cause, their special work was to remove the temptations which their weaker-minded fellow-creatures by inducing them to voluntarily become abstainers. (Hear, hear.) They desired so to change public opinion and public practice that the legislation they desired should simply be the seal upon the work which was so much desired. If they had not shut up the drink shops they had converted men, and brought within their body a larger number than it had ever before been able to command. Every convert was a great gain, for everyone had a certain amount of a great gain, for everyone had a certain amount of influence, and directly they became abstainers they exercised it for good. They were always glad to receive money support, but he would rather that a man gave himself to the cause, than that he gave them £10,000 to support it. (Chiers.) They had already got Sunday Closing in Ireland and Wales, and he believed they would carry the measure of Sunday Closing for Durham, which had already passed the Commons through the House of Lords passed the Commons, through the House of Lords. It would be wise for the Peers to join the representatives of the people in this matter, and he believed tatives of the people in this matter, and he believed they would do so. (Cheers.) Addresses were also given by the Revs. M. Lang, U. R. Thomas, Mr. J. W. Probyn, the Rev. W. Bray, Mr. S. A. Blackwood, and Surgeon-Major Pringle, and the proceedings, which were interspersed with singing by the Temperance Choral Society Choir, closed with prayer.

INVISIBLE POISON.

CERTAIN CONCEALED DANGERS BROUGHT TO LIGHT THROUGH THE EXPERIENCE OF A VOUNG MAN.

If the men, women, and children of Great Britain could see the danger that is larking around them each day and on every side, the most courageous would lose heart, appetite, and sleep. Air, even in the most open localities, is loaded with poison. Water is liable to contain animal matter that will develops and grow after being taken into the system. Food is almost certain to be adulterated, while accidents are always imminent. It is, perhaps, a merciful provision that few of these things are seen merciful provision that few of these things are seen and fewer railed—but their oanger is all the greater for this very reason. Most people who read these lines are simpest certainly on the threshold of what may be a serious possibly a fatal, danger. The forces that go to make lift may be snapped inatantly or by gradual degrees. The greatest dangers are often the mast silent and least observed, and no one can situred. to neglect even their slightest appearance.

These truths were strikingly illustrated in the experience of a young man whose acquaintance the writer chanced to make some few weeks ago. Said he: "I was conscious that something was silently her: "I was conscious that someticing was sileatly but surely working against my life. At times I would feel shooting pains in my extremities; and then, again, my musoles and joints would fairly throb with agony. I was feverish, uneasy, and lost my smbition in life. These troubles grew until what were, at first, minor pains and uncoyancies, became actual burdens of ugony. It seemed as though I could feel the disease growing, and creeping to every portion of my body. I finally became so bad that I bad to abandon my college course and return to my home, where I laid for several weeks, hovering between life and death, with what the doctors called typhoid-malaris. Recovering somewhat I returned to my college duties but hovering between life and death, with what the out-tors called typhoid-malaria. Recovering somewhat I returned to my college duties, but was again seized with congestive chills, and had to give up. Being with congestive chills, and had to give up. Being determined to learn the cause of my trouble, I looked about the room in which I lived and finally looked about the room in which I lived and finally discovered an old abandoned sink actoally recking with sewer gas. The mystery was explained. The malaria had found an entrance through the drainpipe, and bad permested every fibre of my being. I returned to my home and dragged out a miserchie existence for nearly a year, getting no relief from the physicians I employed and the numerous mediciones I took. Finally my mother induced me to try 'Warner's Safe Cura.' The first bottle that I took drove away that tired feeling and after taking five, or existence for nearly a year, getting no relief from the physiciass I employed and the numerous medi-cines I took. Finally my mother induced me to try 'Warner's Safe Cure. The first bottle that I took drove away the tired feeling, and after taking five or six bottles I was catively restored to health."

"You certainly had a most wonderful experience," we remarked, "but was the cure permanent?"

unu certainly had a most wonderful experience," "Entirely so, it is nearly two years ago that I was cared, and I have had no return of the maindy. The 'Warner's Safe Cure' seemed to drive the poisen satirely out of my system."
"Would you object to the publication of this statement?"

"Note the least. Indeed, I have written to Messra, H. H. Warner and Co., 47, Farring flow-street, Lundon, E.C., stating my osse in full, and giving them permission to make whatever nue of it they see fit. I only regret that I am not a duke or an earl, that I might publish to the world how much this wonderful medicine has done for me. If you publish this interview I wish you would etake that all letters regarding my case, addressed to George S. Roberts, 14, Norfolkstreet, Strand, London, will receive prompt attention. I consider it a duty I owe to all who may be suffering as I did for three low years, to let them know that they can be cured. A man who has been benefitst by the use of this man who has been benefitst by the use of this years, to let them know that they can be cured. A man who has been benefited by the use of this medicine, as I have been, and would not tell others of it, would stead bread from the starving. Do not think my expressions extravagant, for all that I have said to you I truly feel. Not one person in a million ever comes so near death as I did and recover; but the mea and women who are diriting to wards the same mee and women who are criting towards for same end are legion. To note the slightest symptoms, to realise their significance, and to meet them in time by the use of the remedy which has been shewn to be as cellicat, is a duty from which there can he no escape. They are fortunate who do this; they are on the sure road to death who neglect it."

But one conclusion can come to all fair-minded readers from the above facts; it is this: Malaria is omnipresent in the palaces of the rich as well as the omnipresent in the palaces of the rich as well as the hovels of the poor. Good plumbing and correct sanitary regulations cannot always keep it away; but it can be removed from the system and kept out by nsing the medicine above mentioned. No one can afford to overlook these facts—like may depend upon them; health and happiness certainly will,—Sunday Words, May 2, 1886,

MAY 3.—CUTES AND THE EXCISE REVENUE.

Mr. AGG-GREDNER (for Sir E Lechmore) asked the Cliancelor of the Exchequer whether, looking to the falling off of the revenue arising from the excise, he would place political and private clubs are not be same footing, in reference to the excise, as public-houses.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said the The CHANCELLOR of the ENCHEQUER, said the falling off in the excise revenue had arisen from a smaller consumption of alcoholic drinks, and not from the slight decrease which had taken place in the issue of licences. The putting on of additional licences, whatever other efact it might have, would not tend to increase the consumption of alcoholic drinks, and would not increase the revenue.

NOT HIS BUSINESS!

A STORY WITH A MORAL FOR "MODERA-TION" CHRISTIANS.

By LAWRIE LORING

"Good morning, colonel! Just the man I wish to see !

"Say on, Lloyd. We've seven minutes before the train is due. You can condense much into that period of time."

"I'd like you to head a paper I have here, Colonel Bond. We wish to get up a course of Temperance lectures, and with your help we are sure to ance lectures, and with your help we are sure to make the thing a aucosas."

Lloyd Thomas, in his esgerness to carry out his pet plan, failed to notice the coolnes creping over the face of the colonel, the atraightening of the already erect form, the haughty poise of the prond head. But when the paper was finally drawn from his pocket, and he was handing it to the colonel, he felt, as well as saw, the change.

"No use," and Colonel Bond, coolly, "I don't maddle with such affairs. That is the proper work meddle with such affaira. That is for you Christian Association men. "That may be true. We will o That is the proper work but we want your influence thrown in."

"And my money, too, I auppose," was the sar castic response.

"We hope to get the public aufficiently interested to that they will take tickets enough to pay expenses. If not our association is pledged to meet all deficiencies. But we hoped you would favour

I never favour any fanatical ideas. I carry too cool a head on these shoulders. The hue and cry which you reformers make about the Temperance question is for all effect. A man with a grain of common-sense, or a particle of will about him, can drink a glass of wine or let it slone, just as he pleases. But a senseless drunkard will drink, and all the powers of earth and Heaven combined can't stop him. That is about the length and breadth of the whole subject. Now if you enjoy spending your strength for nothing, I shall not object; but don't count on my help. I'll give as much as any don't count on my help. I'll give as much as any man in town-yes, double the amount of any other man—for a regular course of lectures. But I let this question alone. It's none of my business," and the colonel turned abruptly away.

As Lloyd Thomas sprang on board the train, which slowed up at that moment, his head was bright and in the according as the colonel's. He poised well-nigh as proudly as the colonel's. poised well-nigh as proudly as the coloners. He really felt indignant at the snubbing he had re-ceived; and urged on by his hot young blood, he resolved that he would never ask a favour of Colonel Bond again. But he had cooled somewhat before he reached the City; and he realised as he had never done hefore that those which we have had never done before, that those who succeed, especially in an unpopular cause, must labour patiently on in the face of much opposition, and that is often hardest of all to bear, cool indiffer-

Lloyd was a clerk in the City, yet he preferred to live in his own home in the country; so he took this trip daily. He often mat the colonel, but something in his manner prevented Lloyd from asking his aid again. One and another of the committee attempted at various times to enlist his sympathy, but his snewer invariably was:

"Not my business, gentlemen."

A few weeks after Lloyd's conversation with

Colonel Bond, he reached the depôt one morning, just as a handsome carriage and span drove up. The coloured driver sprang down and opened the door with a flourish. Colonel Bond stepped out first, then a daintily-clad little girl-his daughter first, then a daintily-clad little girl—his daughter Florence. Last, a dark, handsome boy, y ear or two older—the colonel's own son, every feature and gesture plainly proclaimed, but a wide-awake boy for all that. Spying Lloyd he called out:

"Going to Silver Lake, Lloyd? I'm in ——"
"Richard?" interrupted his father, in a tone of surprise, "do you permit ladies to carry wraps and satchels?"

"Oh, I forgot! Excuse me, Flossy, I'll take those," and with almost the case and garee of his those," and with almost the case and grace of his father, he relieved his sister of a small satchel and an elegant wrap, then led the way to the ladies' room, and found her a comfortable seat.

"Thank you, Dick. Now you can find Lloyd if you wish, but come back soon, please.

"Yes, in half a minute," and he rushed away, while the colonel lingered near his pet and darling, as every word and look clearly indicated.

Florence, or Flossy Bond, as her friends lovingly called her, had a face not perfect in outline, but rare for its winning sweetness. It told plainly that petting had not spoilt her

The most noticeable thing about Flossy was her luxurisnt golden hair, which rippled over her shoulders, and fell below her waist. Her dress, a soft grey, with pale blue trimmings, was all that wealth and exquisite taste could make it. There was that delicate finish to everything, which at once charms and satisfies the eye.

Colonel Bond, apparently, was fully awars of all Colonel Bond, apparently, was inily awars of all this feminine perfection, even though so soldierly in his bearing. His eyes searcely left his child for a moment. But while Flossy was his darling, Dick was his pide. And one could heafly blame the colonel, after seeing the boy as he came hurrying to his sister's side.

"Lloyd can't get off!" were his first words.
"Too bad, isn't it?"

"Yoo bad, isn't it?"
"Well, Dick, you must not expect to play all your life," said his father, before Flossy could speak. "I believe in work—good, solid work.
Your time will come by-and-bye." This last was your life," said his father, before Flossy could speak. "I believe in work—good, solid work. Your time will come by-and-bye." This last was said with a smile, which did much to soften the colonel's rather stern face.

"I'll be ready, father. I am going to West Point, and they have to work very hard there, everybody says."

"Well, play while you play. I've no serious fears that my boy will shirk. And be sure that you statend to Flossy to-day, Richard, I put her in your care remember. There's the whistle. Good-bye Flossy, Papa'll be glad to see you both home again." again.

He saw them both on board the train, then raised his hat to Flossy as deferentially as though she were a grown-up lady. The colonel had governed his children wisely—wisely for the world—not after his children wisely—wisely for the world—not after the popular fashion of the day. His daily example was worth a thousand times more than all the precepts in the world. True there were one or two serious flaws in his character, but thus far they had not affected his desrest treasures.

He did not condemn wins, or any of the choice quors. Yet they did not adorn (?) his table. He In the late of the Dick, with their many young friends, started on the excursion to a charming lake 25 miles distant, and the colonel had no foreboding of danger as he bade them good-bye.

But as Lloyd was returning from the City that night there were rumours of an accident before he reached his own station. His train had stopped to let the excursion train pass, but a telegram had just arrived, saying that there had been a collision 20 miles beyond. An engineer had forgotten orders, and had recklessly run his train on the track of the returning excursion train. It was only five miles from Lloyd's home to that station, and he It was only five was soon standing with the anxious crowd gathered at the denot.

Colonel Bond's white, stern face was the first he saw as he stepped from the cars. He was consulting the station-master.

Soon a message was sent over the wire asking the superintendent for an extra engine. He would give hundreds of dollars for the reas. for its use.

was the short yet decisive answer which flashed back.

Was he, Colonel Bond, to be refused in this peremptory fashion?

"I will give a thousand dollars for the engine, was his next message. Surely the money which had always procured the heart's desire of each member of his family would enable him now to reach his precious children.

"The only train we have at command has already gone with surgeons," was the answer which the Colooel read with a face visibly paling. Surgeons? He knew from his army experience only tou what their duties wore. He shuddered to well what their duties wore, well what their duties were. The shaddered to think that, even then, his Flossy's tender delicate limbs might be under the cruel knife; or his brave Richard be shorn of his noble strength. Oh, was there no way he could reach his darlings?

Anxiously he passed the station to and fro. He had hitherto always compelled circumstances to yield to him, now they compelled him to wait where each moment seemed like days of exquisite torture

After an hour of such waiting, an hour which seemed to hold years of anguish in each of its slow passing minutes, the train arrived. Colonel Bond was the first to step aboard. He passed quickly from car to car. In the last car he found his once from car to car. In the last car he found his once handsome boy—his brave Richard. But it was a mangled, slmost lifeless, body which he bent over, Dick was nuconscious—uterly unable to answer his father's scarcely articulate question:
"Is Plossy slive?"
"Flossy is in the tender with the other dead bodies. It was the conductor who answered

The Colonel staggered forward. He knelt beside his dead child. She looked, if anything, more lovely than when her father's eyes last rested on the sweet face. Her death must have been instantaneous. A ghastly wound on the back of her head shewed that it was caused by an injury to the brain. The dear face was untouched. Her father felt thankful for that—if thankfulness for anything could fill the parent's heart in such an awful hour.

She lay as if asleep. One hand was raised and partially hidden by the wealth of golden hair. Alas ! it was hardly golden now, dyed, as much of it was, with her heart's blood. The pretty blue syes were closed for ever. But it seemed to the agonised onatituted differently.

| father as if they must open to his heart's call and It was with light, happy hearts that Flossy and smile into his own once more. He tenderly raised a lock of the beautiful hair. Would it never again form a hale about the living face of his little danghter

As the Colonel took the precious remains in his arms-he would permit no one to touch his darling -he tottered beneath the light weight. Could she be dead—the child who had left him only a few short hours before in all her budding leveliness.

His Flossy killed like the child of any poor man ! The Colonel was dazed. Both his children taken from him in one day! For ere they could remove Dick to his father's carriage his fluttering breath had ceased. How could be take these lifeless bodies, in place of the joyous living children, home to their fond, waiting mother? How could he? Yet he must.

The Colonel's princely dwelling was the saddest in all that village. In many a home one light had gone out; in some two; but no other parents sat down in such utter darkness. They were

All that love could do for the dead was done Colonel Bond and his almost heartbroken wife. But the bodies must be laid away. They were dead—dead! They could not be retained, even to soften the gloomy splendour of that proud home. Colonel Bond could not centrol death—could not, even with his invincible will, withhold from the grave.

But when he was once more master of himself, he bent all the energies of his resolute, indignant spirit to the investigation of the sad affair.

He was a large stockholder in that road, and a person of commanding influence. He felt that he had a right to know, if it were possible to know, the truth. And what did he learn was the cause of the fearful accident? What had cast a gloom over so many homes.

A bottle of whisky!

A railway employe, forty or fifty miles away, had been intoxicated. He had forgotten or neglected orders, and the terrible accident was the result; as, prebably, in many other instances, similar results could be traced to similar causes.

The association of which Lloyd Thomas was a member had arranged for five lectures, and partially so for a sixth. They wanted a big gun fired, as Lloyd expressed it, the last night, and nreu, as moyu expressed it, the last night, and they were not quite so sure of success as they wished to be to warrant so large an expenditure of money. One lecture had been given, but the night was stormy and there was not a crowded

On the night of the second many were surprised to see Colonel Bond and his wife enter. The lec-ture was a good one. The next morning he met ture was a good one. The next morning he met Lloyd and at once introduced the subject of the lecture.

"That was a clear and convincing argument last night. Think I never saw anything plainer than the errors of the licence system, as he presented them. And he touched a vital point when he said that the ease with which now was a fruitful source of accidents and crimes. Here a tremor crept into the Colonel's voice. But soon he went on, steadily, "How many lectures soon he went on, steadily, "How many lectures have you arranged for, Lloyd?" "We want six, but are hesitating over the last.

The fact is, Colonel, we want a big gun, and can

"What shall you be obliged to pay for the biggest gun you can fire?" hundred dollars," answered Lloyd,

One promptly.

"That all? You may command me for that amount at any moment. And if you can find twice as large a gun, I'll pay twice that amount for as eventul lecture. I was willing to give a thousand for the use of an engine to take me to my dying children. Had I given the thousand, years before, disseminating Temperance truths and principles, had I done what I could do to Lelp enciples, had I done what I could do to Lelp enciples, the strength of the strength o amount at any moment. And if you can find twice joined the ranks of the reformers. He made it his business now to aid by precept, example, and a liberal use of money.

After two years of dreary loneliness, God, in his After two years of dreary loneiness, God, in his loving kindness, sent another son to cheer the hearts of Colonel Bond and his wife. He did not come with the dark rich beauty of Richard; rather with the winning sweetness of Florence. But the parents were well content. Their home would once more echo to the merry voice of childhood.

This tiny gift did what their great loss had never done; it drew them to the loving heart of God. They could now see His hand in the deep sorrow, as well as the new joy. And when, a few years later, a dark-eyed little daughter came, they felt that their cup was again running over. Did the Colonel think now it was now it was none of his business whether his children received thorough instruction on the Temperance question, or not

By no means.

His little Fred was scarcely four when he joined children's Temperance organisation - an organisation founded and earnestly supported by the still wide-awake Colonel. And it was a proud day for Master Fred when he led his sister Alice to ene of the meetings, and helped her print her name.

Let us now see what one strong, earnest man can do to stay or sweep back a tide of evil. At the time of the accident there were seven druggists in the town, and seven times seven places where liquor was sold, either openly or in secret.

was soid, cutner openly or in secret.
Within two years a strict prohibitory law was passed. For want of trade, the druggists gradually dwindled from seven to four—one for each large village—and none of these sold anything that could intexicate, except when a doctor's prescription was handed them.

handed them. The small, pestilential liquor saleons had entirely disappeared. If any still existed their life was lived in profound secret: for wee be to the man detected in unlawful selling. The Colonel hunted him down with the unerring instinct of a blood-hund. He showed on pages to supply He was hound. He showed no mercy to such. He was determined, so far as his influence went, that the town should be cleansed of the plague.

He made an unalterable law to govern his large manufactory. No man could enter who used any intoxicating driuk. But he was an upright employer, and dealt fairly by all who obeyed this However good the workman, if he took even a social glass now and then, "No Admittance" was over the door for him. As there was steady work and sure pay with the observance of this rule, it and sure pay with the observance of this rule, it soon became a strong motive to urge men on to etrict Temperance habits.

One thing more Colonel Bond had never lost sight of; he had determined never to give up the contest until the railroad officials passed a law which should effectually prevent any place of trust and responsibility on that road being given to one not strictly temperate.

Here he met with some opposition and more in difference. But he never wavered, and at last, by the blessing of God, his measure was carried.

If every voter should make it his business as theroughly as Celonel Bond did, after his eyes were open to the dangers threatening our homes, how long, think you, would it take to rid our land of this curse?

"And when you give the P.W.C.T. a bob you can take your seat," so said a W.C.T. last week. The candidate looked as if he thought us an expensive society, and the officer in question a lucky deg.—N.S.W. Good Templar.

BRANDY FROM SAWPUST .- We are sorry to learn, BRANDY FROM SAWRUST. — We are softly or chair, says an American paper, that a German chemist has succeeded in making a first-rate brandy out of sawdust. We are a friend of the Temperance movement, and we want it to succeed; but what chance will it have when a man can take a rip saw and go out and get drunk with a fence rail? is the use of a Prohibitory Liquor Law if a man is able to make brandy smashes out of the shingles on his roof, or if he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs of his kitchen chairs? You may shut an inebriate out of a gin shop and keep him away from taverns, but if he can become uproarious on rrom taverns, out it no can inscense operations on boiled sawdust and dessicated window sills, any efforts at reform muet nocessarily be a failure. It will be wise, therefore, if Temporance societies will butcher the German chemist before he gets any "Spend this wisely, and there'll be more when it is gone," were the Colonel's last words.

A remarkable impetus was given to the Temperance movement in that town when Colonel Bond the public to buy no other,—[ADV1.]

REPORT OF G.L. NEGRO MISSION COMMITTEE.

[Norg.—This is simply a committee for raising funds and is quite distinct from the Committee of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge (International) which slone conducts the operations of the Missionary work of the Order in America.

To the G. L. of England, Newport, Mon., Easter, 1886.

G. W.C.T., OFFICERS AND MEMBERS,

Our report this year is not, we fear, particularly cheerful, although perhaps less discouraging than might have been feared in these times of commercial depression.

As will be seen by the balance-sheet, the net receipts amounted to £38 less than last year. Th receipts amounted to Loo less than last year. There has, in fact, been a falling off in our receipts to the extent of about £54—viz. from Lodges £20; from personal subscribers, £9 and from no bazaar being held, £25. But to set against this reduction using near, 220. But to see against this reduction of income, the working expenses have been reduced by about £15 (by holding no meetings of our com-mittee, £10; and £5 by less postage and printing, &c.), so that the net decrease is reduced to something under £40.

Last year's report shewed 191 Lodges contribu-ng. The past year only shews 153—a decrease of 3 Lodges. The number of Juvenile Temples conting. The tributing keeps nearly the same as before, namely, 66.

The District in which most Ledges contribute in proportion to the number of working Lodges in the District is little Huntingdonshire, where two Lodges out of their five subscribe. Our next best Lodges out of their new sustaine.

District is Norfolk—five Lodges out of 14 subscribing. Leicestershire comes third, and thanks to the earnest help of Sister Rixon, D.V.T., 11 Lodges out of 32 have subscribed this year, the District Lodge also contributing.

Then follows the Isle of Wight with four Lodges giving out of 12, but following close upon it are the Districts of Surrey West Kent East, Cumberland West Sussex Kent Mid. Essex, and Yorks S.W.

The Lodge sending the largest amount is the White Rose of York (Yorks, N.) The District sending most is West Surrey, where eix Lodges have sent £2 12s. 8d. (See table appended.)

on behalf of the Mission we warmly thank all who during the year have helped with their money, or with their gifts of illustrated Temperance literature, er by sending on their weekly copies of the Watchword to some far away brother or sister in America.

It should be noted that the Mission Committee of the R.W.G. Lodge continues to supply the Temperance Brotherhood (the American organ Temperance Dontermon (the American Capa-of our R. W. G. Lodge of the World, published at Boston, Massachusetts), to all annual subscribers of 10s, and upwards. This paper can also be had from Sister Impey, post free, for a year, for 1s. 6d.

trom sister impey, post tree, for a year, for its out. The fact that most seriously presses upon our attention is that about fourteen hundred of our Lodges habitually do northino to help the Negro Mission! I fitness 1,400 non-contributing Lodges would give but one shilling each per year, it would at once add £70 to our income.

at once and £70 to our income.
We believe the causes which prevent this help-from being given could be removed with compara-tively little trouble if a few members, such as these attending our Grand Lodge to-day, would be willing to speak a good word for the Mission when the appeal is read in their Lodge.

anssen when the appeal is read in their Lodge. May we not remind you, and all who may read this report, that our Negro Mission is not a thing to be ashamed of. Year after year our Order is trying to befriend the men sud women who are being grievously wronged and despised by others. We have tried to let it be known—and it is known and felt in America—that English Good Templars held its size to up your and results.

Templars held it a sin to turn men and women away from such an Order as theirs because they happen to be of a different colour or race from themselves, or because they are more "backward in civilisation." We believe it is God's will that in civilisation." We believe it is God's will that we should be riend these unfortunates—these outcasts-and frankly own them before all men as our brothers and our sisters.

The Mission work halts at times we know (though more often from lack of funds than any other reason), but bit by bit it presses on with its friendly aid and message of love and fellowship.

aid and message or love and tellowship.

After the long pause during which the R.W.G.
Lodge Committee has been lunbanding its funds, there seems fair prospect of good work being done this autumn, both by further organising Ledges among the coloured people in the South, and by carrying out the long talked of deputation to the people of New England, &c., in the North, in which Bros. Lane and Artrell propose to unite.

The condition of the coloured people varies greatly in different parts. In some parts the ground is good and the new planted Lodges grow and flourish; but far more often the people whom we "mission" are so destitute of education and of all social influence that they cannot for long bear up against the countless difficulties from within and without which beset every Good Templar Lodge—especially perhaps those in country districts.

We think perhaps the reason why many of our Lodges fail to support so worthy an object is this, that the only appeal that reaches them is in the shape of a printed circular, and circulars even at the best are apt to be a little stiff and dull. Sometimes, too, even a good L.D. is not the most interesting of readers, and of those who are, many lack interest in this subject, or think their Lodge has already been overdone with appeals for help and so fail to read our circular at all, and thus the Lodge is cut off from us entirely.

Perhaps if they thought of the pains that is taken to get up these appeals—the cost (about 3d. per packet) of printing and postage—the long days of labour in folding, addressing, and sending them out—they would, out of very sympathy for our willing and unpaid workers, at least think twice before throwing the napers in the waste basket.

Brothers and Sisters of the Grand Lodge, we appeal to you to help us to awaken a nobler and better feeling towards the Mission than as yet prevails. We appeal to each one present who fools that he or she could and perhaps ought to be doing something to forward the Mission—either by apeach or by gifts, or in some other practical way—to send their names to our secretary, who will gladly furnish them with suggestions of how they may do good service to this much needed Mission.

HOUSE OF LORDS MAY 11,-DURHAM SUNDAY CLOSING BILL. The BISHOP OF DURHAM, in rising to move the second reading of the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday (Durham) Bill, explained that its object was to close the public-houses in the County of Durham all day on Sunday to all, except their very old and very prevalent friend, the bond-fide traveller. The measure had not been before their traveller. The measure had not been our recom-lordships' house before, but it came now recommended by a preponderating majority in the other house—a majority of two to one. It involved no new menaed by a profit of two to one. It involved no new principle and no new experiment. Sunday closing Acts were familiar to the Legislatures of other familiar to the Legislatures. They countries as well as of our own colonies. They had had experience of them far nearer home Scotland had for many years past reaped the ad-Scottand had for many years past reaped the savantage of such a measure; still more recently measures had been passed affecting Ireland and Wales, which last in all such matters was as much a part of England as the County of Durham. Nor, indeed, was the number of persons affected by the Bill so very different. The popular lation of Durham at the last census amounted to pality of Wales, and probably it was increasing in a greater ratio. Wherever Sunday closing had been a greater ratio. Wherever Sunday closing had been tried before the results had been good, and no community which had once had the benefits of such a measure had felt disposed to hark back or undo what it had done. To those who were scepabout the effect of legislation in such tical about the effect of legislation in such matters, he would say look at Norway. A generation ago travellers reported of Norway as a people of inebriates. You might now travel there for weeks together without seeing the slightest signs of intoxication. This result had been effected, signs of interaction. This result has oben enected, he would not say entirely, but very largely, by legislation, and by legislation was included not only a Sunday closing but also a festival closing measure. It was not wise to legislate in such matters in advance of public opinion, and he could well assure their lordships that the present measure was ap-proved in the locality and by the classes whom it would chiefly affect. That evening he had presented no fewer than 98 petitions from divers bodies—some official bodies, others divers bodies—some official bodies, others representative of different religious communities, others advocates of the Temperance movement of different branches, others manating from public meetings in the great towns and in the villages of the county. But these, after all, were only the efforescence of a movement as it was initiated three years ago, At that time the measure was first brought before the House of Commons, and it massed the second reading the second r and it passed the second reading by an enormous majority; but somehow it foundered in the quicksand of obstruction. Public meetings were held in 133 towns or parishes throughout the diocese, and those meetings were reported to be practically unanimous on the subject. These towns and parishes comprised the whole of the County of Durham which had not been canvassed in another way. Then, again, a house canvass was undertaken in 25 different centres throughout the diocese, and of the voting papers returned 60,000 were in favour of Sunday sing; only 2,440 against it, and 2,144 neutral There were petitions from every board of guardiane througout the county and from every corporation but one in its favour. There was another test, When the motion the other day was before the Commons it was approved by not less than 15 of the 16 representatives of the county. The remaining one, the member for the city of Durham, had since found himself in conflict with some of his strongest and most influential supporters on that very ground. These were very striking facts, and, so far as his own observations no one measure since he had been connected with the County of Durham had drawn to itself in the same degree persons of all opinions. It united Churches and sects-Churchmen and all religious Roman Catholics, Nonconformists, Sabhatarians, and non-Sabhatarians. It enlisted both political parties—Liberal and Conservative; it united all adherents of Temperance legislation, the advocates and opponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remark-

and poorer classes. In the city of Durham, for instance, in the household canvass, the proportion in favour of the Bill throughout the city was, if he remembered rightly, as seven to one; but in some of the worst parishes where the poorest people dwelt it was in one as 14 to 1, and in another as dweit it was in one as 14 to 1, and in another as 16 to 1. It was urged that it was ungracious in those who had their club and their well stocked wine-cellars to put this restriction upon their poorer and less-favoured neighbours. That sentiment was highly creditable to the heart, but it altogether lost sight of the practical issues. The very continuous heart of the processing was the sentiment was the sentiment was the sentiment when the sentiment was the sentiment of the sent atogener tost sight of the practical issues. The working man looked at the question from a wholly different point of view. The climate of Durham, his arduous employment, the atmosphere of the mine, the heat of the iron foundry all predisposed him to the use of stimulants. The Sunday came, he had his time on his handle from where he would he had his time on his hands to go where he would ; he had money in his pocket, for he had been paid his wages the evening before. The public-house door was open to him, and it was the only door open to him. Were they surprised if he yielded to the temptation? The working man looked upon legislation and a thir sealing man looked upon legislation and a third sealing man looked upon legislation and a third sealing man looked upon legislation and the sealing man lo tion such as this as a helping hand stretched out to him when he was struggling in the ways of temptation, and it would be a sorry comfort to him to told that they were actuated by sentiments of generosity in not stretching out that helping hand, and leaving him to be plunged into the abyse below. This Bill as affecting only a particular locality was condemned by some as piecemeal legislation. Their lordships had already embarked, as he had shown, upon piecemeal legislation, and the further they went in that direction the less piecemeal their work would be. He would very much sooner that a Bill were introduced affecting the whole kingdom; but half a loaf was better than no bread. There were, no doubt, objections on special grounds to such a measure. There was the difficulty about the frontier, a difficulty which they could not altogether remove; but he felt quite sure that if they passed this measure Northumberland and Vorkshire would follow quickly in the wake of Durham. Movements had been already stirring those counties in this direction and their lordships could stimulate them. Then it was said that the intention of such a measure would and leaving him to be plunged into the ahyss below. was said that the intention of such a measure would be evaded through the clause which excepted the book fide traveller, and that it would encourage private drinking. He did not contend that this Bill or any other Bill would reclaim the inebriate, but what he did claim for it was that it would keep the waverers straight, and would remove the initial temptation from many besides. It required a different act to store up drink on Saturday night for consumption on Sunday. It demanded a certain effort to walk three miles out to gratify a propensity. These very things put difficulties in the way. He advocated the measure in all confidence, because he felt sure that he had at his back the very strong, serious, and enthusiastic approval of the working men of Durham. He advocated the Bill in all earnestness because he believed that it would confer a substantial boon on a large class whom during a residence of seven years in Durham he had learned to appreciate increasingly for their very sterling qualities. He could not expect that their lordships would feel the same interest in the matter that he did, but he entreated them to hold out a helping hand to the members of a community to whom they themselves, directly or indirectly, were largely indebted for the comforts and necessaries of life—namely, the miners and ironworkers, the artisans, and the shipwrights of Durham. (Cheers.) He begged to move that the Bill be read a second time.

but one in its favour. There was another test. When the motion the other day was before the Commons it was approved by not less than 15 of the 16 representatives of the county. The remaining one, the member for the city of Dunham, had since found himself in conflict with some of his strongest and most influential supporters on that very ground. These were very striking facts, and, so far as his own observations went, no one measure since he had been connected with the County of Dunham had drawn to itself in the same degree persons of all opinions. It united all religious Churches and sects—Churchmen and Roman Catholics, Nonconformists, Sabbatarians, and non-Sabbatarians. It enlisted both political parties—Liberal and Conservative; it united all religious Churches and sects—Churchmen and non-abbatainers equally. But there was one remarkation of Tomperance legislation, the advocates and opponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation and proponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation for the believed that drink was to a great extent injurious to health, to thrift, and to such the same degree persons of all opinions are the county of the same and opponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation and opponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally. But there was one remarkation and opponents of Local Option alike, abstainers and non-abstainers equally between the county of the same and option and the county of the same an

That potition would show their lordships that the recital in the preamble of the Bill to the effect that the people of Durham desired it was not quite accurate. In the memorial which had been presented to their lordships there were some remarkable statements. It was said that there was a strong and special anxiety for the passing of the Bill for Durham, as drunkenness existed to an alarming extent among the rural population. then were signatures obtained to those petitions? The only way of accounting for that was that people signed the petitions in order to be kept from temptation. It was also said that many publicans signed the petitions in favour of the Bill, but cans signed the petitions in favour of the Bill, but what was there to prevent them alutting up their shops if they wished to do so! He admitted that it was possible that the majority of the people of Durham would like this Bill to pass, and he admitted that the majority must bind the minority in a matter in which the community must act, but he protested against the majority binding the minority in a matter which was of no concern to the society or community itself. When action was necessary the opinion of the majority must provail, but when there was not a necessity for action it was simply tyranup in the majority to action it was simply tyranny in the majority to enforce its views on the minority. The supporters of the Bill might say that it was intended to meet the the Bill might say that it was intended to like to case of those who drank too much; but how un-reasonable was it to debar those who did not drink too much from the enjoyment of a glass of wine or beer merely because others abused their opportunities. It was unreasonable and unwarrantable to interfere with the enjoyment of persons who did no wrong but drank in moderation because others absorbed fermented liquors in excess. He did not believe that the measure moderation in excess. He did not believe that the measure would promote sohriety. It was, in the first place, of no use to pass laws with which the conscience of the right-minded public did not go. Then this legislation could easily be evaded. Drink would be taken into homee overnight and would be con-sumed in private, and the influences which were likely to restrain men from taking too much in public-houses would be altogether absent. That troublesome person, the bend fide traveller, would still remain, and travel he would in search of drink. (Laughter.) At Swanea the Welsh Sunday Closiog Act was in force, and the consequence was that on a Sunday the trainways between Swanea and the Mumbles were crowded with bond fide travellers to the latter place. Extra trains were also run to the Mumbles, where many of the Swansea people drank so much that they experienced a difficulty in finding their way back to the station. (Laughter, Another result of this legislation would be the extension of bogue clubs for labouring men. At Cardiff there were more for labouring men. At Carditi there were more than 60 such clubs. Newcastle, as their lordships knew, was in Northumberland, and Gateshead, with its 50,000 inhabitants on the other side of the River Tyne, was in Durham. It the Bill should become law the people of Gatestal will be the control of the River Tyne of Catestal will be the control of the River Tyne of Catestal will be the control of the River Tyne of Catestal will be the control of the River Tyne of Catestal will be the River Tyne of head will only have to cross a bridge in order to drink their fill in Northumberland. The measure would thus be one for the encouragement of Newcastle publicans. Why, he should like to know, ought they to shut up the public houses on Sunday more than on any other day? If it was not wrong to drink a glass of beer on Saturday, why was it wrong to drink one on Sunday? But their lordships outbut to be a lord of the sunday? ought to bear in mind that the Bill would not only pr hibitthesale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday, but would make it illegal for the keeper of a public house to sell a cup of toa or even a glase of plain soda-water. He believed that the measure would not prevent the sale of beer. Its sale would be effected on the He believed that the sale of beer. Its sale would be effected on the sly, and many indictments for perjury against publicans on the one side and policemen ou the publicant of the august of follow. This legislation other would be sure to follow. This legislation was an unwarrantable interference with the liberty of the individual, and led to mischievous evasions of the law, and he hoped that their lordships would not countenance it. (Hear, hear.) not countenance it.

Lord Norron could not support the second reading of this Bill, nor could he approve the principle underlying it. Legislation of this kind was an attempt to put down the abuse of intoxicating liquors by legislating against their use. Publichouses had their legitimate and necessary uses for refreehment and rest, and should not be closed during hours when they might be so wanted.

The LORD CHANCELIOR said that, having represented the city of Durham in the other House, he thought that he ought to tell their lotdships what he had been able to ascertain about the sentiments and visws of the country of Durham with regard to this question. He had had considerable means of informing himself upon the subject, even more than his noble friend who had moved the rejection of this Bill. He did not intend to deal exhaustively at that hour with the whole of this subject, because the arguments which had been addressed to their lordships against the Bill were very much those which had been used with regard to previous Bills; and, if he might say so, without disrespect to the noble and learned lord, were the stock arguments of that society which was good enough to instruct ot that society which was good enough to instruct them from time to time as to how they were to vote, and of which the noble and learned lord was a distinguished member. He quite admitted that for a long time after he had gone to the city of Durham he had been indisposed to vote for any such heristing at this cash he ded always felt that such legislation as this, as he had always felt that it was not a matter which affected himself or those who were able to live in the same way and provide themselves with refreshments and that it would be a themselves with refreshments, and that it would be a monstrous thing from oes o wm views of comfort or morality to vote against the wishes of the class of the community that precically was affected and inconvenienced. But he could say without heaitation that these were the very people who were most eager for this Bill, and he could assure the noble and learned lord that if he had mixed with the werking men and talked with them as he had himsorting men and taked with them as he had him-self he would not have used some of the arguments which he had used to-night. It was true that there was in the County of Durham a great amount of drunkenness, but this was regretted not merely drunkenness, but this was regretted not merely by the Temperance societies, but by the people themselves, and those who had most im-pressed on him the expediency of this Bill had been men not particularly of the religious class or the extremely respectable class, but men of the working class who felt the strength of the temptaworking class who left the attention and the difficulty of resisting it, and who knew that when public-house after public-house was open in the street on Sunday they went in was open in the street on Sunday they went in and drank in a way in which they never would have done if they had had to provide themselves with drink on Saturday night. The noble and learned lord had spoken of Swanesa and the Mumbles, but it did not follow because certain persons went to the Mumbles for the purpose of drink that there should not be Sunday closing. He thought that the noble lord's argument went He thought that the noble forte argument went too far. It was really an argument against having any restriction at all in the hours during which drink was to be sold. (Hear, hear.) It was prac-tically eaving that any man had a right not to have his liberty interfered with in the matter of getting the liberty interfered with in the matter of getting drink when he wished. He was afraid, however, that all political parties in this country were committed to the view that it was the legitimate function of Parliament to limit the hours in which intoxicating liquors might be sold. It was impossible now-a-days to argue that it was not so. It was thought to be in the general interests that certain restrictions should be put upon the sale of liquor. There was no new principle in a Bill of this kind; it merely extended the principle which dis exist before the certain other hours, and this principle which dis ciple which was here extended was one which had long been recognised. An important question was what public opinion was on this subject in the County of Durham, and how it was to be ascertained? The first and most reasonable mode, was to ascertain the views of those elected to represent the constituency. But it might be said that parties were so evenly balanced that some crotcher would turn the scale. Nothing of the sort was the case in the County of Durham, and mere crotcheteers had no chance of turning the scale. He maintained that it would be rather dangerous for that House to disregard the views of the elected members of a constituency as expressed the elected members of a constituency as expressed in the House of Commons and to say that they would go behind those views because they knew better. As against those views, what did the noble lord say? He said that he had presented tonight a very extensive petition. For his own part, he thought that it was perhaps fortunate that the petition had arrived so late and that there had not been any possibility of investigation earlier because a great many notitina which were presented. because a great many potitihus which were presented as having a large number of eignatures turned out upon investigation to be far less numerously out upon investigation to be lar less numerously signed. He must respectfully submit to their lordships that no petition should be considered as of importance against the evidence afforded by the views of every member for the constituency except one, and, with one acception, of every corporation.

there might be great advantage in such legislation, because it enabled them to try experiments which, if unenccessful, did no mischief. They could not go far beyond public opinion in this matter, but in Durham public opinion went as far as this Bill, although that was not the case in every part of England. It was not, therefore, expedient to pass such a Bill for the whole of England, but he hopped that the House would agree to the second reading of the Bill which was now before them. (Hear, hear.)

The MARQUIS OF SALISBURY said he had listened with some interest to the neble and learned lord laying down a doctrine which had been laid down with great emphasis in another speech in another place, that they should defer to the opinion of the representatives of the inhabitants of a particular district. But he was surprised that the noble and learned lord did not observe the flaw in his argument with regard to this particular Bill. County of Durham outside the city of Durham had pronounced in favour of the Bill, butthecity of Durham through its propagately a who had a constitute of the Bill, but the city of Durham through its propagately as who had sm through its representative, who had succeeded ham through its representative, and lord, had pro-in unseating the noble and learned lord, had proin unseating the noble and learned lord, had pronounced with equal emphasis against it. Why should the city of Durham be made sober because there were no more cakes and le in the county? Just as Ulster had a right to be excluded so this principle from the county. But that was a small matter. He desired to explain in a few words why, if the noble and learned lord opposite went to a division, he should vote with him. It was very interesting no doubt to learned lord opposite went to a division, he should vote with him. It was very interesting no doubt to watch the growth of this particular feeling, which had acted so much on the Legislature of the country. It was impossible to ignore its existence. He did not say that it inspired so much admiration in his mind as apparently it inspired in the minds of many other people. He did not know that it was a perfectly admirable sight to see persons who did not use public-houses shutting them upagainst those who did. But there was a Nemesis awaiting those who were read-to-miles. did. But there was a Nemesia swaiting those who were ready to use the terrors of the law to make their fellow-subjects more virtuous. The effect of this legislation had been to multiply clubs to an enermous extent in various parts of the country—(hear, hear)—and these clubs were becoming more and more of a nueiance, and more and more demoralising and injurious, and the complaints which came from the police and magistrates on this head were becoming every deep more imperious in their tone. (Hear, hear: magistraces on the nead were becoming every day more imperious in their tone. (Hear, hear.) He fully locked forward as this legislation pro-ceeded to Parliament dealing with the working men's clubs, and when Parliament had to deal with the working men's clubs it would have to deal with the working men's clubs it would have to deas with the rich men's clubs also, and he should look to see the same unanimity of opinion when it was pro-posed to close all the rich men's clubs on Sunday. (Laughter and cheers.) Though he felt the practical importance of the matter he confessed he felt him-self unable to take his stand on the high platform of theory which the noble and learned lord occupied with so much ability. It was no use to argue on what was consistent with sound principle. He never found that it had the slightest effect on the Legislature. They generally asked themselves as a matter of fact what was the force of public opinion which they had to follow and observe, and undoubtedly tact what was the force of public opinion which they had to follow and observe, and undoubtedly those who watched public opinion eaid that in particular parts of the country that public opinion which looked after the polls had become so powerful that the other House of Parliament could not resist it very long. His own opinion was that to save a part they must give up hoping to save the whole. Nay, all bope of saving the whole had gone long ago, for Scotland, Ireland, and Wales had been given up, and if they were to prevent a general Sunday Closing Bill—a result which he should look upon with anything but satisfactionthey must provide some arrangement by which those who were willing to give a trial to a particular schome may do so and sea how it succeeds. Then the noble and learned lord might say "Why not vote for this Bill?" His answer was that this Bill did not allow them to try it as an expart, he thought that it was perhaps fortunate that the petition had arrived so late and that there had not been any possibility of investigation earlier because a great many potitions which were presented as having a large number of eignatures turned out upon investigation to be far less numerously signed. He must respectfully submit to their lordships that no petition should be considered as of importance against the evidence afforded by the views of every member for the constituency except one, and, with one exception, of every corporation. Then his noble friend said that this was piecemsal legislation. He confessed that, for his own part, he had not the eame objection top ieversum of the present of the constituency and the most of the presence of the present of the presence of the presence of the presence of the constituency except and, with one exception, of every corporation. Then his noble friend said that this was piecemsal legislation. He confessed that, for his own part, he had not the eame objection top ieversum exceptions of the presence of the unreasonable movement.

He believed it was merely a temporary cruze. It was in the nature of man to try to use the authority of Parliament to force others to become moral or theological according to their own standard. If the learned prelate had lived some centuries If the learned prelate had lived some centuries ago he would, no doubt, have forced people to sign some article of religion, and he was going now to force people to adopt a particular part of his ethics, which he approved, and compel them to abstain from intoxicating liquors. It was a weakness to which the teachers of suition had going to the control of the contro from intoxicating liquors. It was a weakness to which the teachers of religion had always been exposed, but it was not a view which they were able to impress for any large to the state of to impress for any length of time on their lay brethren. Though for a time, in view of some great scandal, they might carry the community with them, the public in the long run would cease to follow them. He looked for a revulsion of opinion on this ques-He looked for a revulsion of opinion on this question, and he believed they should leave to men liberty what they should eat and drink, that this excess and paroxysm of paternal legislation would pass by, and therefore he was anxious while willing to gvie way to public opinion to leave a way of retreat open, and that the local authority in each district should have power to deal with this matter as they thought fit. That, he believed, was the sound solution of the question, and with the view of leaving the ground open for that he should vote of leaving the ground open for that he should vote with the noble lord. (Hear, hear.)

The EARL of KIMBERLEY said he was not going

The EARL OI AIMERREET said he was not going to trouble the House at any length, but he wished to make one observation on the particular part of the noble marquis' remarks as to leaving it to the local authorities to make regulations. That was what noble marquis' remarks as to leaving it to the local authorities to make regulations. That was what they wished to come to pass under the Local Government Bill, but their great Local Government Bill never did pass. Now the present outlook in political affairs was not particularly calm, and it was comewhat hard that these particular localities should have to wait until this great principle was adopted. He would euggest as a perfectly easy way to meet the difficulty of the noble marquis that they should pass the second reading, and limit the operation of the Bill to three years

Their lordships then divided, when the number

THE FALSE APOSTLE IN THE CHAIR OF THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

THE Rev. Edward White has advecated some strange views from the presidential chair of the Congregational Union: views which seem to us to indicate very false, not to say ignorant, notions of the revelations of God's law, and the harmony of the natural and the Divine law for the reproof of sin and the guid ance of man into the paths of righteousness. So original a genius is Mr. White that though So original a genus is Mr. White that the unuga-his brethren agree with him in one con-clusion, he darts off so diametrically en-some kindred subject that it would be most unsafe to predict where you will find him. Intensely dogmatic in style, he writes and talks like one who has a great faith, the sum and the essence of which are included in two articles—the Almighty and the Rev. Edward White. No wonder that such a man, by force of character and dint of self-asser tion, should rise to the chairmanship of the Congregational Union. But his presence there, and the blind dogmatism with which he talks on the subject of the "Total Abstinence go a long way of themselves to solve Reform." the problem he raises as to how little 90 per cent, of the skilled workmen feel called to what we call our Divine services." The address before us is a life - like reflection of its author-bright, original, talented, learned, dogmatic, eccentric, inconsistent, devout yet trifling, and a curious mixture of truth and error.

He treats, in a manner that commands our full sympathy, of the errors of celibacy as an sun sympacny, or the errors of ceilbacy as an escape from the vice of impurity, and he puts upon one footing the practice of the avoidance of marriage, and that of abatinence from injurious and poisonous drinks. If this singularly gifted man cannot see the enormous difference between the application of the law, of abstinence in these two essentially different cases, what are we to say of his perceptive faculties? Why simply that by some cause or other (and we know nothing about his personal tastes) he is so blind as to be incapacitated for the post of a public teacher upon this one subject at least. Surely there is great need, if Mr. White expresses the views of any large portion of the Congregational ministry, for a new society to be formed, and a special effort to be set on foot, for the conversion of Congregational ministers. We remember hearing a story of a former president of the Union, of rather dark complexion, who, in preaching a missionary sermon, made such an impression upon one old lady who had previously objected tosending money away while there werese many heathens at home, that she said she willingly gave to the collection when she saw what the Lord had done for that poor Hindoo. We fear a reactionary effort for the conversion of the heathen at home must follow what Mr. White says about the higher platform and nobler Christian virtues, of drinking small quantities of drugged and poisenous liquors; for that is really what his teaching amounts to Working men of common-sense and common faculties of observation can see the truth for themselves, which they have so well taught long since to leading scientists and theologians; and when it goes forth that a picked man of the Congregationalists talks such utter rubbish. wrapped up as it is in such a guise of apparent learning, and polish, and Scriptural authority, Mr. White does about as much as one man can do to make the working classea despise religious teachers generally and parsons in particular.

We remember hearing of a rough character who had felt the gall of bitterness that comes of Mr. White's teaching of the virtue of drinking small quantities of intoxicants, who had discovered the higher platform of total absti-nence. But one day he was confronted with Paul's advice to Timothy, to "take a little wine," &c. He thought a moment, scratched his head, and said, "What's t' use to take note o' that, hand said, which is the to cake note o that, beint the parsons fools now, and why warn't they then?" Truly, Edward White, with all his learning, has so uterly misapplied the letter and mistaken the spirit of Ohrist's teaching that the heavily and begin in the case of th teaching, that he could hardly do more to undermine the authority of the one-manministry. But after all this may not be an unmixed evil, and it may be no permanent hindrance to the advancement of truth and righteousness.

Dean Plumptre, in a recent article, told a story of a British workman lying down on a bank and sunning himself on a Sunday morning and commencing his religious ruminations with the expletive, "Damn the priests." We do not quote these rough stories, either as approving the language, or as adopting the opinions of the men we quote. We simply do it to remind Edward White, and such like learned yet ignorant men, that rough, and even in some sense degraded, men may have truer and higher conceptions of God's laws than have some of the professional teachers who involve immoral teaching in a maze of theological dogma and, who seek to glorify a breach of one of the simplest and plainest of God's laws as the very perfection of the higher Christian rovelation. Neither time or space will permit us, in this issue, further to deal critically with Mr. White, for his paper reaches us on the eve of going to press; but we reproduce his words in another column to speak for themsolves; and if some of our friends will utilis etheir Band of Hope training and send us replies of a more critical and thoughtful nature, within readable limits, our columns will be open to them.

W. Meanwhile, Mr. White's teaching will do its deadly work. Christian men and women who like intoxicants will quote White and the Bible as their authority, and though they may escape, their children may, and in many cases will, go helpless to perdition, and Mr. White's gospel will be responsible for their torments in this world and in the next.

. Bro. J. Malins, G.W.C.T., will, we understand, attend the quarterly session of E. and M. Surrey District Lodge on the 15th inst.

DURHAM SUNDAY CLOSING BILL.—The Liberty and Property Defence League sent a letter to every member of the House of Lords requesting apport to Lord Branwell's motion for the rejection of the Durham Sunday Olosing Bill.

Mr. STRUENGOY'S RESOLUTION in favour of total Sunday cleaing, which was the second motion on the orders of the day, on Tuesday last, was not moved; Mr. Stevenson having been advised by the authorities of the House that it cannot be considered while Sir Joseph Pease's Bill on the same subject is before the House.

AN OMISSION.— Bro. Beckwith, D.E.S., Leicestershire, justly complains of the omission of an acknowledgment of his returns in the report of the G.E.S. The report was given to the G.E.S. in person on his visit to Leicester, and detailed admirable work, but coming through so direct a channel, was accidentally mislaid, and thus escaped mention.

A CORRECTION.—In our report of the political debate in Grand Lodge the division on the financial portion of the committee's report is erroneously stated as 75 for the committee and 85 against. The G.W.S. corrects this, and the official record is doubtless enrect, viz., 75 yeas (for the committee) and 85 nays (against). The context of our report will shew that it was simply a clerical error, as the committee afterwards withdrew that section of the report.

Mr. S. Morley's Appeal.—On Saturday, 15th inst., 1,000,000 copies of Mr. Morley's appeal, calling attention to the evils consequent upon children visiting public-houses, the text of which we published last week, will be distributed from house to house throughout the kingdom; and on Sunday, the 16th inst., special reference will also be made to the subject by clergymen and ministers of all denominations. We understand that a similar effort is being organised by Cardinal Manning. We trust great good will be accomplished by this effort.

DRINK CLUBS AT CANDIFF.—A special meeting of the Cardiff Watch Committee was held on Wednesday, 12th iest, to consider whether any more stringent measures could be taken to suppress sham clubs. The head constable reported that there were now 109 clubs in Cardiff, all doing a large trade on Sundays. There were beades a number of private houses at which beer was sold on Sundays. Six clubs had been proceeded against and convicted since the commencement of the year for selling beer to persons not members, and fines amounting to nearly £100 inflicted; five persons had in the same time been convicted for selling beer on Sundays without a licence, and fined £46. Since the passing of the Sunday beer on Sundays had been convicted, and fine inflicted amounting to £750. The town clerk reported that he had examined the Acts, and could not find any suthority to give the police power to enter private clubs and demand to see the books. The Inland Revenue were powerless, and they could not be dealt with under the Nuissness Removal Act; the police were doing all they could to suppress them. A resolution was passed expressing the opinion that further legislation with regard

THE AGRICULTURAL LAGOURERS OF SOUTH SUFFOLK have not much to thank Mr. Quilter for, as the mover of (No. 3) Beer Adulteration Bill. As their Parliamentary representative he stated that many of them exist entirely on beer, and that being unable, from their low wages, to buy meat for their wives and families, they have beer for breakfast, for dinner, for tea, and for supper. He then quoted some lines from one of Hogarth's prictures:

"Besr, happy produce of our soil,
Can sinewy strength impart;
And, weary with fatigue and toil,
Can cheer each manly heart."

We have no objection to the passing of Mr. Quilter's Bill, but we have not much sympathy with its author's frame of mind, which seems to us to be much too beery for that of a good legislator. We regard Mr. Quilter's testimony to the habits of his constituents as slanderous, and should consider Mr. Quilter much better qualified to give evidence upon great financial transactions in the City; how capital is obtained from investors, and how it is ultimately disposed of. The labourcor of Suffolk will do well to enquire into such matters, and to get more trustworthy evidence placed before Parliament than Mr. Quilter seems to be possessed of. The Beer adulteration Bill passed its second reading on Wednesday last.

ALL THE CHARTER MEMBERS of Tower of Refuge Lodge, Manchester, which was formed 13 years ago, are still total abstainers.

A JUVENILE TEMPLE is affiliated with every Subordinate Lodge in the County of Wilts. How many other Districts can match that? The untiring zeal of its D.S.J.T., Bro. Davis, is the main cause of this distinction.

Question: Is it proper for a W.C.T. to ask visiting members to serve as officers proc. term. when there are members of the Lodge willing to serve?

Answer: It is fully within the discretion of the W.C.T., and it may be a proper act of courtesy to thus invite visiting members to occupy the vacant

Question: If an associate member of the Lodge presents his clearance card to it, and is elected a regular member, need he again go through the ceremony of reception by card in that Lodge?

Answer: No. The W.Sec, should simply enter in the minutes that the member was elected and accepted as a regular member, and the W.F.S. should enter opposite the name the date of acceptance as a regular member.

MORE NOTES ON THE G.L. SESSION.

It was resolved on Easter Monday, that the Digest should be the first business on Wednesday morning, and by 10 o'clock the resolutions referring to the life-long pledge were under consideration. The only real point at issue was as to the desirability of administering the present obligation to candidates on their admission into the Order. The debate was a very interesting one, and clearly demenstrated that the advocates for giving candidates the simple total abstinence pledge on joining were doing so because they bolieved that a three months' probation would better fit the new members for taking the solemn life-long pledge, and also lessen the number of violations. Their opponents never took up a weaker argument than when they brought forward the marriage vow as analogous to the life-long pledge, and the quiet way in which Sister C. Impey reminded the Lodge that "people did not get married at first sight," was very rich indeed. If her speech could have been listened to by the membership at large, I am sere it would have made a profound impression upon them, as it did upon all who heard her. But the Mid Somerset resolution was rejected by a large majority.

Whilst I should be sorry to see our flag lowered, at the same time I think it would make our Order stronger if something could be done to more definitely impress upon the minds of candidates the serious nature of the step they are taking when they subscribe to the life-long pledge. This refers more particularly to those who come to us, as it were, direct from the public-house. In such cases, I certainly think some probationary term should be established, and if this cannot be spent in the Lodge, would it not meet the case if three months total abstinence was a necessary certificate to obtain membership in the Coder.

Attention of the control of the control

Although the Grand Lodge retused to make any alteration in the Subordinate Lodge pledge, it as emphatically declined to uphold a ruling given by the G.S.J.T., viz., "That the four-fold pledge is life-long." In this the representatives acted discreetly, for whilst any pledge taken for an indefinite period may be said to be for life, it is not always wise or excedient to declare such to be the case. Juvenile Temples and Bands of Hope are not to be valued so much by the pledge they adopt as by the teaching they inculeste. It should be our aim to fill the minds of our young brothers and sisters with sound Temperance teaching, and then, when they arrive at years of discretion, invite them of their own free will to adopt the most solemn, definite, and binding Good Templar lifelong obligation.

The report and motions upon the Provident Fund gave rise to the expression of very diversified opinions, and in the end the yeas and nays were called on the question as to whether such a fund should, or should not, be established. The feature of the division was the solid "yea" vote of Middlesex, which elicited loud applause, as well as the expression from the G. W.C. T., to "After that, the Millennium." Before referring the matter hack to the committee, it was resolved that the fund must be for abstainers only, and also that no extra allowance could be made to members belonging to both branches of the Order. It should also be stated that the original report of the committee had been amended, and when it re-appears before next Graod Lodge, I have no doubt it will be still further altered, and made more in accordance with the views and requirements of the membership.

Another matter that came up for consideration on Wedoesday, was the bye-law referring to character dress. Perhaps this was the most one-sided discussion of the whole session. Some seemed as if they could not find words bad enough in condemnation of those who suggested that the bye-law on this matter should be revised. I dare-cay many members will be surprised to learn that should they take part in any dialogue or sketch, in which the smallest approach of character-dress is assumed, they are starting on the road to "vice, immorality, and ruin." Streams of "fervid oratory" were poured forth upon these lines, and the majority were carried away. Bro, Poulter implored the members to favourably consider the request to enact Temperance pieces; but without avail, and the bye-law was re-affirmed by an overwhelming majority.

The matter came up again on Thursday morning, when the committee on Juvenile Templary recommended the adoption of the motion from N.W. Yorks: "That this bye-law should be extended to the juvenile branch of the Order." Bro. F. W. Lewis begged the Grand Lodge to pause before it enacted a law which would have the effect of driving from the Temples a large number of young people who, by their elocutionary and delineatory people who, by their elocationary and defineatory powers, were not only a credit to the Order but also efficient helpers in the Temperance cause. Was it just, he asked, that Temples should be liable to have their charters revoked because in a dislogue a girl should put on an spron to make herself appear as servant to another, whilst at the same time Ledges might engage professional same total possessing the engage patterns and singers to appear in special costume, and thus add attraction to their fruit banquets and public meetings? Sweral others joined in this appeal, but the N.W. Yorks resolution was adopted, still the division was closer than on the previous night.

I have dwelt at length on this question because I know it is of more importance than many deem I know it is or more importance than many deem it to be. I have taken pains to get the opinion of members in all parts of the country, and I do not healtate to say that not one in 500 desire permission to perform any but Temperance pieces. me put it another way. There are large numbers of members who cannot speak in public, but who of members who cannot speak in public, but who are endowed with electutionary talents of no mean order. They are desirous of utilising these gifts in the Temperance cause. If you debur them this privilege in the Order, they will go elsewhere and perhaps mix with company likely to lead them, into the very warils Good Templary. go elsewhere and perhaps and with company many to lead them into the very evils Good Templary would fain protect them from. Is it not worth would fain protect them from. some concession to save these?

The Wednesday evening sitting will long be remembered by those who remained to its close. Whilst we were awaiting the result of the last ballot for G.W.M., a sudden calm came over the assembly, as Bro. Georgo Dodds, P.G.W.Co., rose to take farewell of the G. Lodge, as he was rose to take latewell of the conditions. His words were so solemb, so earnest, and touching, that when many other features of the session will be forgotten, this one will remain rivetted in the minds of all present.

In last week's WATCHWORD a full account is given of the election of officers. The most popular success was the almost unanimous selection of Sister C. Impoy as G.W.V.T. No sister in the Order is more greatly respected and beloved than Sister Impey, and her election was none other than an expression of gratitude and thanks for earnest, an expression of gratitude and thanks for earnest, gealous, and increasing labours for the "Good or the Order." It is needless to say that the Middlesex Rops, were more than pleased with the election of their ohief to a seat on the Executive; when the result of the final ballot for G.W.Ch. was announced, the W.D.Sec. of the largest Metropolitan District waved his hands and cheered lustily, his delight was so intense. The results of the other elections were all well received—Bro. Edwards, of S.E. Lancashire, and Bro. the Rev. W. Mainprize, of Lincolnshire, are both new members of the Executive.

The decision to meet in London next year appeared to give general satisfaction. The reps of the four Metropolitan Districts were unanimous on the root mercipoman Districts were unanimous on this question, and if their intentions are carried out we may look for a glorious time next Easter. In fact, I am informed an effort will be made to book "all previous records."

Reverting to Newport, I must say I think the Reception Committee did their work admirably. Their one desire was to make everybody happy and comfortable, and I did not hear a single complaint of bad accommodation. Bro. Brown, the chairman of the committee, proved a most efficient officer, and richly deserved the many thanks he received.

Those members who arrived in Newport a few days before Easter spent a very pleasant time in scouring the surrounding country. Some went to Cardiff, others further into Wales; whilst not a few feasted their eyes upon the beauties of the Wye Valley, Chepstow Castle, and Tinterden Abbey. Many visited the great Alexandra Docks, and saw that marvellous apparatus in operation coal is emptied from the railway trucks into the vessels for despatch to all parts. The favourite walk during the midday adjournment was up Stow Hill from which a magnificent panoramic view of the town was obtained.

Pledges were taken at all the mestings, and good Pledges were taken at all the mestings, and good has been done, although the mission has not been a success as a whole. Bro. With singing, reciting, speaking, &c., a pleasant evening soon passed away. During the evening Bro. Muskett, of the London Scotts Lodge and London Scottish Rifes, presented the W.O.T., Bro. Harden, of Wimbledon, with a silver and glass cruet stand, as a small token of esteem from his fellow Templar Volunteers, and also wishing Stster Harden and himself teers, and also wishing Stster Harden and himself happiness and prosperity in their married life.

Bro. Harden suitably responded.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION UPON TOTAL ABSTINENCE REFORM.

Some danger of an analogous sort, I venture to submit, fies before our own eyes in the conduct of of the Total Abstinence Reformation by its un-wiser advocates. You cannot save souls unless you save bodies at the same time. The too violent reaction against monastic asceticism in all its departments, of chastity, fasting, and abstinence from drink, has plunged nominally Protestant nations, the English, Scandinavians, Germans, Swiss, and Americans into an abyss of measureless sensual indulgence, in which careful teaching on the keeping under of the body by habitual or occasional abstinences from lawful enjoyments has nearly disappeared. A vigorous but wise discipline of all the bodily appetites formed a very prominent feature of primitive Christianity.* Against gluttony, and of primitive Christianity.* Against gluttony, and some other prevailing carnal indulgences, we hear too little definite teaching in Protestant England

But a vigorous attack has been made on the one vice of over-indvlgence in fermented liquors. Total abstinence from these is good as a habit for all the young, and perhaps for most adults; but assuredly it is the one hope of physical and eternal salvation for drunkards of every degree. The value of this movement in its ever increasing Inevalue of this movement in its ever increasing force and volume requires no celebration, and I shall not presume to praise it. As a counsel of perfection adopted also by Christians, in order to assist the reform of a population drenched with alcoholic stimulants, until they are spiritually degraded and impoverished beyond former experience, the mayonant descrease his hall introduced the second of the control of the contr perience, the movement deserves a high rank in the history of heroic self-denial. Nevertheless, absolute and universal abatinence from all fermented liquors and universal abstinence from all termented liquors even the weakest (for claret and brandy are not identical drinks), is surely neither a law of nature nor a reavealed law of God. It was not required at Sinai by any one of the Ten Commandments, nor by any one of the 613 precepts of the Mosaic law. It was not practised by the Lord Jesus Christ. The world of God for Jew and Gentile, both in the Old and New Testaments forbids Drunkenness; that is the wicked beclouding of the reason and excitement of the passions by ardent spirits, or excessive use of weaker liquors; and it forbids this excessive use of weaker inquors; and it forms this on pain of ETERNAL DAMNATION, and nothing less, as defeating every right end of human life DRUNKARDS, says St. Paul twice, SHALL NOT HHERIT THE KINGDOM OF GOD. (Gal. v. 21;

1 Cor. vi. 10.)

But the large majority of total abstainers will admit that the Divine Revelation neither in conscience nor Scripture threatens the awful doom of perdition to the man who drinks a glass of cisret or a glass of ale, any more than to the man who drinks a cup of tea or There clearly is then, in the judgment of coffee. God, nothing less than an infinite difference in moral quality and destiny between a temperate and an intemperate man, a sober man and a drunk To speak therefore of or to a strictly temas in training for intemperance, or to confound Temperance in any way with total abstinence, you will admit is to trifle all at once with language, with fact, with character, and with the moral interests of mankind. The results of such confusion of thought and language are most disastrous, just as in the history of the clerical celibary. They are disastrons as respects general tenahing, and as respects the effect on the drinking classes. If 1 insist that strict Temperance is of the same genus with intemperance, and if I have a right to hustle a really sober man with my innendocs as to his insobriety, then all religious teachers of mere Temperance ought to be rebuked and silenced, and will be silenced by the remonstrance of total abstainers. But with what result? With the result of feaving all families, schools, and churches, who are not taught what is represented as the prime and normal duty of total abstinence, without any teaching whatsoever on the

"The nation has recently had reason to learn afresh the need for pleiner moral teaching of youth in thus department; an object to which the leaders of our churches ought lend a steady but prudent support. I say a prudent support, since some forms of recent effort fill the air with the germs of evil, and poison as many souls as they save. We are quite sale in the hands of those of our brethren who have chiefly influenced Congregational spinion hit is regard. See a pen from the March last, by the Rev. A late of the seed of the see question of alcoholic liquors. Now this has been I fear the result wherever total abstinence-the counsel of special local prudence, or of perfectionhas been set forth by its less thoughtful advocates has been set forth by its less thought in account accounts as the original and obliging Divine law as to formented drinks. Unless ministers of religion, schoolmasters and heads of families are total abstainers there is now, I apprehend, comabstainers there is now, I apprehend, com-paratively little public teaching on intemperance and the eternal destruction of drunkards. Nearly all sober, and temperate teachers have been reduced to silence, as blind guides, by the persistent ridicule and denunciation of Temperance the unwiser wing of the and moderation by abstinence reformers.

But very erroueously have such teachers of sobriety submitted to be silenced by these missourcey summered to be sincheen by these mis-chievous perversions. For whatever a man's opinion may be on the expediency of the Rechabite movement, all moral teachers are under infinite obligation to God to define drunkenness, and to set forth before old and young that drunkards, and the set makers of drunkards, shall infallibly be consigned to the abyss of perdition. This is an awful and imminent doom, too seldom heard of on total abstinence platforms, or, I fear, in pulpits; but it is the truth of things according to the doctrine of Christ. And surely this is the most powerful argument which can possibly be used to arrest the habits of private drinking, and daily to arrest the names of private drinking and any spirit-tippling in bars and parlours, and to warm the victims of their danger. Let then all non-abstaining but temperate Christian men who care for souls refuse to be silenced from crying night and day to the brain-soaking multitudes that they shall not escape the judgment of God. Let them believe in the Gehenna of Fire, of which Christ so emphatically and alarmingly speaks; let them speak distinctly, as if they believed it, of the "indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish," which St. Paul says is coming at the resurrection of indement on every soul of man that doeth evil; and there are few evils more germinant, suicidal, and damning, than the wicked habit of dis-abling the brain by repeated doses of stupefying and passion-inflaming stimulants and narcotics. The general conscience will respond to this warn-The geoeral conscience will respond to this warning. But if men hear nothing slee than the universal obligation of total abstinence, because forsooth "intemperance begins in moderation," and because "a glass of als is a training for large potations of gin and brandy," the probability, nay the certainty, is that the majority of wort-people—specially if you also hold out to them the delusive prospect of universal salvation—will break loose, as they have done throughout England, from all instruction on the subject, and will drink gin and brandy to perdition. But their blood will I require at the watchman's hand. at the watchman's hand.

Whenever you habitually minimise the vice of the sinner by laying the chief blame on the temptathe samer of laying the cent blame on the tempta-tion, or whenever you teach that which is only a counsel of perfection as a moral law of universal obligation, you do not really warn the wicked man of his wickedness. We are sent to teach men that God will judge them by ordinary moral laws-not by counsels of perfection—and in this case the moral law is that DRUNKENNESS is the damning sin. I respectfully pray therefore the erring section of total abstinence reformers never for one moment to class their best allies, the really sober and Godfearing part of the community, in the same category with its most disgusting criminals—the drunkards. We are not under law but under grace." is not thou shalt not drink, but be drunken, and that only. It is grace which may lead a man to total abstinence for his brother's sake, or prudence for his own; yet the must neither speak nor act so that grace shall be no more grace," but become a demoralising law, a new and man-made command-

LONDON SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

The 18th annual meeting of the London Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance Friendly Society was held at the South Metropolitan Temperance Hall, Blackfriar-road, S.E., on Wednesday, May 5, 1885. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Theodore Fry, M.P., T. Robinson, G.W.P., S. Hawley, P.G.W.P., C. H. Gorringe, P.G.W.P., and others. The hall was well filled. The Grand Secretary, Bro. J. Vincent, read the annual report, from which we learn that the membership at December, 1885, numbered 3,869. The sick fund receipts for the year amounted to £4,254 17a. 5d. December, 1885, numbered 3,899. The sick rund receipts for the year amounted to £4,254 17s. 56., and the claims paid to £2,433 18s. 2d. The funeral fund receipts amounted to £1,050 13s. 4d., and the claims paid to £380, leaving a balance of £2,491 12s. 7d., to be added to the reserve of the benefit funds, which added to the reserve of the benefit funds, which now amounts to $21,842, and, being invested in freehold ground-rents, produces over 4 per cent. per annum interest. Seventeen per cent. of the membere declared on the sick fund, the total average of sickness for the year being five-and-a-half days; the death-rate being under 6f, per 1,000, a rate that will bear a most favourable comparison with any other sick benefit society. During the evening a resolution was passed unanimously as follows: "That this meeting heatily aupports the Sunday Closing Bill for the county of Durham." This was signed by the chairman of the meeting, and sent to the Lord Bislop to present to the House of Lords. A choir and string band gave some capital singing and music during the evening. some capital singing and music during the evening.

Mr. Conybeare's Bill.—The G.E. Supt., in his report to the Grand Lodge, referred to Mr. C. A. V. Conybeare's Bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquora to children. He said Mr. Conybeare's bill is threatened in committee, and that strenuous efforts will be made to except from its provisions children who are sent to buy drink for their parents. That is the most important clause in the bill. If it is altered so as to allow chilin the hill. If it is altered so as to allow chil-dren to buy drink for their parents the bill will be destroyed. We have a thorough-going Tem-perance man in Mr. Conybeare. He believes in going to the very root of the evil to destroy it. Knowing there is oppo-sition to the bill, we, as Good Templars, ahould do our best to support Mr. Conybeare in trying to protect the children from the greatest ahould do our best to support Mr. Conybeare in trying to protect the children from the greatest curse in our land—the liquor tunffic. We can write to our Mr. Pt. asking them to support the bill. And if the L.E.S. of every Lodge had a petition form and got all the members to signt it and send it to the D.E.Supt. and they send it to the G.E.Supt., who would get it presented to the House of Commona, a petition with the signatures of 74,000 Good Templars would assist Mr. Conybeare with his bill.—SAMUEL CRISIN, W.C.T., Help and Refure Lodge Reshuth. SCEPTICISM is a deplorable thing, especially when it leaves the mind on a stormy sea without anchor or hope of havon. days than it did in the past, but we hear more of it because of the publicity given by the secular Press. Some minds are so constituted that they cannot accept anything without proof, and yet they do not necessarily demand that the proof shall have the stamp of highest authority. They recognise merit for itself, and accept it gladly, knowing that eventually it must gain general recognition. The legal and medical professions, as well as the esclasiatical, are slow to adopt what may conflict with their notion of self-interest and right. Now ideas are almost always distarbing, but venually they become a stamp of the state of their notion of self-interest and right. THE

THIS COUNTRY OF

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit or the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eves are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous. irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness.

All these symptoms are in turn present. population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

REPORT OF THE G.L. COMMITTEE ON PROGRAMMES.

G. W. C. T., SISTERS AND BROTHERS,

Your committee appointed to examine and re-Your committee appointed to examine and reporton (a) the extent to which the published pregrammes indicate the character of the "Good of the Order," (b) the Temperance education promoted by the Lodges, and (c) to make suggestions thereupon, beg to say that in locking over a large number of Good Templar programmes they could not fail to be etruck with the quantity and variety of programme literature, unequalled probably by any other organisation.

The organity will be somewhat understood when

The quantity will be somewhat understood when it is stated that nearly 1,000 programmes in use in the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England, have been forwarded for inspection and comparison. Many of these are published in the interest, or by the authorisation, of District Lodges, and in addition to detailed Lodge quarterly programmes, many of them contain some or all of the following information:—List of Right Worthy Grand Lodge, Grand Lodge, and District Lodge officer; District Lodge and Grand Lodge representatives; names and Lodge and Grand Lodge representatives, hand the addresses of Visiting Templars, and the names of Lodges they are appointed to visit; a complete Lodge directory, giving cardinalers of names, places, days, and names of Lodges they are appointed to visit; a somplete Lodge directory, giving particulars of names, places, days, and hours of meeting; Lodge Deputies and Electoral Superintendents' names and addresses; a Juvenile Temple directory, with names, places, days, and hours of meeting; names and addresses of Superintendent Juvenile Templars, and Visiting Superintendent Juvenile Templars, and Visiting Superintendent Juvenile Templars, and Post of members in good standing in each Temple; Lades assain and officers' reports, with a list of Lades assain and officer's reports, with a list of Lodge session and officers' reports, with a list of Lodges, and detailed statements of gaine and losses, and financial accounts.

One of the most complete directory-programmes opears to be that of the District of East Kent, appears to be that of the District of Last Addi-containing, as it does, all the above-mentioned items, with some 24 Lodge and Temple programmes in full. It consists of above 50 pages, and sells at the modest price of one penny. The edition, of the modest price of one penny. The edition, of 1,200 capies, costs some seven guineas, and is met somewhat as follows:—Sale of books to Lodges, £3 10a.; payment by Lodges for insertion of programmes, £2 10a.; District Lodge payment of D.L. news, notices, &c.,£2; general advertisements, £1, thus leaving a balance more than sufficient to pay for the expense of packing and post-ing. Your committee feel that what is possible in ing. Your committee feel that what is possible in this District is equally so in many others, by the casercise of an ordinary amount of pains, patience, and persistence. Further information will be approximately inquiring member gladly supplied to any anxiously inquiring member or District desiring to follow so good an example. Another book of programmes deserving special anotice is that for the District of W. Surrey, containing particulars of about 16 Lodges, and is in taining particulars of about 16 Lodges, and is in paper, type and style, a choice little production.

A larger book of over 50 pages, with nearly 30 Lodge programmes, is the official Templar Handbook for the four Districts of Warwick, Worcester, Stafford, and Salop. This book has now been giblished for several quarters, and has become indipensable in the Districts surrounding Birmingham. The responsibility of its issue is accepted by a small committee on behalf of the local convention. The book is practically self-supporting, and sold at a penny. If an extension were made in the advartisement direction, the book would become a valuable financial property to the responsible committee.

The Leicestershire Good Templars' Pocket Guide has a circulation of 2,000 copies quarterly, and is in many respects a model directory. Its programmes are more than 40 in number; its literary selections are well made; and the shape of the book is convenient and presentable.

The E. and M. Surrey multum-in-parco Guide gives, in addition to nearly 60 Lodge programmes with list of officers, some racy and readable gossip.

It is a wonderful pennyworth of 64 pages.

The Middlesex Pocket Guide, of the same size, with good large type, supplies to any Lodge one page of programme and 100 copies for 6s., or 50 for രദ

The Notts District Guide deserves notice for its handy and convenient size, and not least for its full information respecting the registration of voters, &c.

The 68 pages of the S.W. Lancashire Guide contains but four pages of advertisements, and it is not easy to understand how its well-known compiler and publisher is able to sell it at the modest and popular penny. It is replete with local information, and be of great service to the 40 Lodges whose programmes it gives

The Central Yorks District shews its enterprise by issuing a valuable official organ, well printed and in good type, with a Good Templar diary of events filling up seven pages of interesting and handy information.

The S.E. Lancashire Guide is perhaps the largest published, consisting, as it does, of more than 100 pages and 60 programmes. What and how the District could do without it would be difficult to say. Its circulation is 3,000 quarterly. Other valuable guides are here mentioned, though not vauuone guines are nere mentioned, though not necessarily in their order of merit:—Berks; Cheshire, E. and M.; Isle of Wight, Dorset, Someraet, E.; Devon, S.; Glos., W.; Lan-cashire, N.E.; Monmouth, Norfolk, Cumberland, E., Cumberland, W.; Stafford, S.; Worcester (this comparatively small District distributes 1,000 conie quarterly), and Yorke, Cleveland. Several no less very admirably arranged handbooks are issued by various groups of Lodges, the largest and one of the best being that for Sheffield and District, one of the cest ceting that for Shement and Discret, emanating from the town convention. One of its valuable features is "Events of the Quarter," where the eye takes in at a glance the fixtures for the whole term. It also contains two or three pages of names of original papers prepared by var members who are willing to place them at members who are willing to place then disposal of other Lodges in the District. This is a judicious arrangement, and may be wisely copied elsewhere. Papers that have been carefully prepared are worth reading in more than one Lodge. The advertising element here must be financially valuable.

The Stockton-on-Tees Directory, editorship of the D.E.S., is of much merit, and contains features of permanent value and interest. The Hartlepcol towns also publish a model guide, which favours its readers with prize programmes, the result of a money competition.

S. Hants produces three creditably managed guides, one for Southampton and neighbourhood, well sandwiched with advertisements, and one for Lodges favoured by location in the Rournemonth area; both of these productions are packed full of local information. The third book is for use in local information. The third book is for use in Portemouth and its environments. The last-named has no advertisements, and cheapness in its production has been, therefore, an important consideration.

others coming in this "group" category, and deserving of notice, are Brighton, East London, Cateshead, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Tunbridge Wells, Woolwich, Wakefield, Felling-on-Tyne, The Potteries, Rochester, &c., Todmorden, Sunderland, and Chalta-Mark. and Cheltenham.

The exterior appearance of individual Lodge pro-The exterior appearance of individual Louge programmes is varied enough to suit all fastes and fancies; some consist of a single card, differing in shape, size, and colour; some of a double card, and others of a three-fold card or paper, while there are others multigraphed by some industrious brothers or sisters on a sheet of note paper. Lodges adapt magazines, or issue supplements to magazines, of Lodge news and programmes.

The Templar Messenger of N.W. Yorks. District, represents another distinct class, combining, as it does, both magazine and guide, and serving as a very useful District Lodge organ.

For combined neatness of appearance, careful arrangement, interesting contents, and well drawn up programmes, many—indeed too many for the apace at our disposal—deserve special and hearty commendation.

Your committee have felt that two principal conaiderations are involved in order to make a guide permanently efficient and successful, viz., that the permanently enterent and successful, viz., state and information should be as complete as possible, and that it should be pecuniarily profitable. The former, in the case of a District, can be met by obtaining the programme of every Lodge, by omitting no Good Templar information of use to any section of the membership; making it the organ of communication between the District of the membership; massing the communication between the District Lodge Executive and its members; giving full official lists of all officers and their work; including, as far as may be, particular, and its individual kindred Temperance organisations, with their programmes and announcements of meetings; and as far as practicable, all items of news, crisply composed, relating to the Order and the cause of Temperaoce, particular and personal, public and general. To this can be added, when thought needful, time and tram tables, and other similarly useful information.

And then there is the making of the handbook a source of income. This can be done in every case if a serious endeavour be made to obain advertisements. Whenever it has been set about in a business-like fashion, it has succeeded in making the publication reasonably remunerative. Not only Temperance, but non-abstaining tradesmen will give, with but a little trouble on the part of a canvasser, an order for a book of this kind, which is one of reference for three months and has a circulation reference for three months and has a chounstain yearly of from three to 12,000 copies, amongst a sober, thrifty, and intelligent class of the com-munity. This success has been obtained by many an active brother on behalf of some of the handbooks named, and is awaiting the efforts and enter-prize of others. It should be borne in mind that he larger the number of advertisements secured, the greater amount of money is available to make the handbook complete in its information, and of respectable and attractive appearance.

It goes without saying that in all cases the handbook should be shapely in form, of convenient importance, exact and reliable in its information. our committee in reporting upon the character Your committee in reporting upon the character of the programmes, regret that in many cases the extremely vague and indefinite titles make it difficult to estimate with any accuracy the character of the meetings; such notices as "Paper by Bro. A.," "Sister B. responsible," may from the known local reputation of those members be an assurance that useful information or entertainment will be given; but to non-residents in the immediate locality but little mean-ing is conveyed; while such titles as "Five Minutes" Ghost Stories," "O my! Come and See," do not indicate a high tone of excellence in the provision and for the mental instruction and moral aximolus of the members. The weekly session Good of the Order programme deserves and demands the best and brightest energies and resources of the membership. It is not even sufficient to draw up a list of items that will simply look well in print, if no systematic and continuous effort be made to see to its spitable fulfilment

It may be inevitable that the programme should It may be inevitable that the programme should shew some sameness, but there is surely far too much of such fare as "Brothers provide catables, sisters drinkables"; "No refusal, or pay a penny"; "Mock auction"; "Reading and recting"; "Try our lucky bag for 1d", "Come and buy". "Sawdust pie, 1d. per cut"; none of them shewing any great fartility of thought or refinement of feeling. he following are of a dubious kind, and noither use "Bachelors and Bachelottes"; "Married Night";
"Syncocorray"; "Ceme and See, bring Id. and spoon"; "Bricks and Ground Beans"; "Nail-driving Contest by Sisters."

arrying Contest by Sisters."

The programmes are by no means improved or the Iodge clevated by "Exhange of Presents";

"Parlour Games"; "Needle-threading Contest—no Tailors admitted"; "Fun and Frolic";

"Brothers' Darring Stocking Contest"; "Peasoup and Roast Potato Night—bring your own salt."

Very few of the foregoing can in any way make the Order admired by its Iriends, respected by the community, or feared by its enemies.

Felicitous phrasing too is sadly wanting, as in the question, "Are our sisters of any use in the Order?" The need of some kind of intelligent supervision over what is sent to the Press is here sufficiently demonstrated.

Your committee feel that the programme should of the Lodge is to disseminate Temperance truth, and should, therefore, not infrequently announce a public meeting undertaken with the full co-operation of the Lodge by a committee, the members of which should take some pains and expense to make the meeting successful. Many Lodges would find also that a few meetings in the quarter, opened to the public or to abstaining non-members at a certain hour, would be very useful. It is not so difficult now-a-days as it once was to convey instruction of a Temperance and general character looking at the ever accumulating stores of history, biography, travel, and the departments of ever-varying human life and experience, all of which readily furnish subjects and suggestions. Might not local gentlemen, not yet members of the Order, accus-tomed to public speaking, be occasionally invited to lecture, or lead a discussion, a recess being allowed for the time being? Some Lodges have adopted this with considerable advantage, and it will sometimes result in securing the speaker as a member.

Your committee desire especially to record their conviction that unless we have more systematic Temperance teaching in our Ledges, we shall still year by year have to lamoot heavy losses from our ranks. Our work is to rescue the fallen, and prevent others from falling; we should, therefore, make it our chief aim to instil into the minds of our members the truth as to the nature and pro-perties of alcohol, which may serve their need in the hour of temptation and trial. We should instruct them in all the Temperance bills introduced into Parliament; and when an account is given of a aummer tour on the Continent or elsewhere, let the licensing laws of the country, or the character and working of the Temperance organisa-tion be a prominent feature in the report; or, if an "Evening with the Poets" be the entertainment for a session, let the selections be somewhat what one or more poets have said in favour of abstinence, thus familiarising our members with the Temperance facts and opinions expressed in poetry. If District Lodges will purchase liagrams (which can be procured for 18s. the set) size, tasteful in colour, and what is of still more illustrating the effects of alcohol upon the human body; also the collection of specimens illustrating the composition of various articles of food and drink (price £2 2s. the complete set, or separate sets can be bought at 3s. to 6s. the set) prepared by Messrs. Sonthall Bros., Birmingham, placing them at the disposal of some member willing to prepare short addresses and deliver in the Lodges, much useful information would be imparted; if prizes were offered for the best papers upon the addresses, an impetus might be given to the Lodges to arrange for them. The diagrams and specimens might also be utilised for public meetings when a charge is made, thus assisting the Lodge funds; and, further, they would prove invaluable in instructing the members of the Juvenile Temples.

It is necessary also that all sections in a Lodge should be interested, and the more varied and farreaching the programme, the better; it should not be too high or dry, petty or profound; and never was it easier than now to steer clear of both was it caser than now to steer crear of book miscellany and monotony. Many of the programmes are in themselves an education. The following are culled as samples of what is wanted:— "England's Portrait Gallery," is wanted: — Engan.
Work of the Temperance "Work of the Temperance Societies, U.K.A., LO.G.T., C.E.T.S. B.R.M." (each society being spoken to by a different member); "Leading Article in the Good TEMPLARS' WATCH-word, with Criticisms," "Temperance as a Power in Holiday Rambles," "The Quiet Eye of a Teetotaler in his Holiday Rambles," "Ways of Making a Happy Home," "Heroes in "Adam Bede,"" "Poetry Glean-Holiday Itamores, "1975 Hornes in 'Adam Bode," "PoetryGleanings," "Short Papers on Good Templary, (1) its history, (2) principles and aims"; "Good Templar Discipline," "Elocution by Brothers, Harmony by Sisters"; "How can the Lodge and its Meetings be still Farther Improved?" "Stump Orations on the Quarter's Work," "Newspaper Cuttings on Temperance," "Some Choice Book Companione."

Lodges should also aim at making the musical element prominent in the sessions; when an earnest member starts a choir in a Lodge, what a waking up of dry bones ensues! In these days of cheap music and simple methods of learning to sing, what facilities exist, and what vocal music is available ! facilities exist, and what vocal music is available? To form a singing class for learning, and giving at sessions and public meetings, glees, madrigals, part-songs, and choruses, would be to create a source of constant interest and instruction, which would be always at hand to furnish the required "go" and life that some of the Lodges are now

In conclusion, the searches and studies of your committee make it evident that a printed programme is generally approved by our Districts and Subordinate Lodges; that a few of those in circulation show considerable moral carnestness and happy inventiveness on the part of the compilers; that they serve by their frequent use and wide distribu-tion as a periodical reminder of the existence, claims, and mission of the Lodge, and of its claims, and mission of the Lodge, and of its regular fixtures, and to the general public of the character, activity and versatility of the Good Templars' organisations. Your committee know well enough, however, that something more is required than a good programme to make a good Lodge but it is also true that even a good Lodge will never long succeed without a good programme. A specimen programme is herewith included, with particulars as to price and style, by the help of which the most inexperienced members in an isolated Lodge may get some hint and suggestion in arranging and getting printed a programme, which may be one of the means to the end, all Good Templars worthy of the name, should ever have in view, viz., the Good of the Order.

For ordinary purposes the best shape for a Lodge programms is undoubtedly the three-fold one. Such a one is printed by the G. W. Sec., for instance, who would send to any applicant a specimen copy The three-fold shape gives six pages—three out-side and three inside. Nos. 1 and 3 outside pages, and No. I and half of No. 3 inside pages can be and no. 1 and nar of No. 3 listide pages can be used for advertisements. The vacant pages for this purpose, if 200 copies be printed, are worth 3s, each to tradesmen. The half of No. 3 inside pages can be utilised for four sister Lodge announcepages can be utilised for four sister Lodge announcements, say name, time, and place of meeting, at 6d, each; or to a tradesman for 2s., or two at Is. each. The other half of the page will give apace enough for the names and addresses of the W.C.T., W.Sec., W.F.S., E.S., L.D., and the conveners of the various committees. On No.2 "outside and No. 2 inside pages respectively, will be printed what is given below. In a four-leaved programme therowould be, of course, room for more advertisements. This suggestion being carried out, the result would be best shewn in the secretary's balance shect :-

An appeal is hereby made to the whole member-ship in the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England, that the object of our existence be ever kept on the forefront of the Lodge programme; the goal is, not the diminution of drunkenness the goal is, not the diminision of drunkeaness merely, but the banishment of the drink, and the extermination of the traffic; and to do the part expected of Good Templars in its accomplishment, much more careful preparation for, and thoughtful and whole-souled teaching in the weekly Lodge session is importatively more convenient. session is imperatively necessary.

THE PUBLICAN!

BY BRO. JOHN ADAMS (Victory Lodge, Dresden, Staff.)

Oh, round and rosy publicao, With genial, shining face. With genial, shining face.
Well may you smile; you golden pile—
The prefits of your place—
Swells day by day to make you gay From mis'ry and disgrace The woe of others is your weal-Their squalor, want and crime. Those wasted features that reveal The ravages of time; The forms that sink, berne down by drink, Go far to make your prime. Behold you haggard wretch who glares Within your brilliant room, With fifty winters' load of cares To 'whelm her face in gloom, Who seeks to drag, with tears and prayers, Her drunken hosband home. Behold those children in the street. Benoid those children in the street,
That shivering await,
Hung with thin rage, with naked feet,
And nought to hunger sate,— Save mouldy scraps, by want made sweet,— Ay, scraps the dogs disdain to eat, At home an empty grate.

At home ! Contrast their home with yours, Where, through your cursed tap, Her golden treasure Fortune pours Unceasing in your lap; Your laughing girls with flottering curls, Your dame with ribboned cap.

Your lander plenteously stored, Your ingle bright and warm; The mighty joint to erown your board, Your snogly-padded form, And no wide chink to make you shrink The howling winter storm.

Your ourtained room and downy bed-You cellar damp and deep, Where huddled children lay their head On the hard earth to sleep, Or cronching hours in cold and dread, Their darksome vigil keep.

In dread of him, their father vile, Whose fury oft is spent On their weak frames. Before your smile

He drank to his content, And stagger'd there, not half a mile From your establishment, From your establishment, mice host,

The haunt of sin and shame—
You, who grandiloqueutly toast
Your "Suvereign Lady's" name;
And largely mouth your British boast Of liberty and fame

Yon, with your reputation pure, A man of good estate, A warden of the church, be sure, With slow and pompous gait— Maybe a guardian of the poor— Those poor your class create.

On Saturday, with placid smile, Your weekly gains are told; At church, in ostentations style, The weekly plate you hold, Nor ever blush that you defile God's Honse with Satan's gold,

Religious interest you affect,
The world's regard your drift,
Behold, o'er tithes of fortune wrecked
The cleric hands uplift; Oh, publican, do you expect A blessing on your gift?

A messing on your gire?

May the drink-made widow's deep despair
Ring in your offered coin;
May the drink-made orphan's briny tear,
Taste bitter in your wine,
When with oup and plate you celebrate
A sacrifice Divine!

Well may your sign be raised on high, The rampant lion crowned; Your house his den, where foolish men

Are willing victims found, Shielded by law, his greedy maw Spreads desolation round. But for the wretches that repine,

For blighted heart and brain,
For eyes with maniac fire that shine,
For misery of the same;
The vulture is your fitting sign
That broads upon the slain.

The ghastly, fithy bird that fite
Upon the mangled brow that site
By death but lately sealed,
The flesh that pulls from gory skulls,
In battle shock that recled.

9 o'clock the members began to assemble in London road, and headed by the City of Liverpool Good Templar Brass Band, under the leadership of Bro. Finney, Standard Ledge, marched to the appointed place to join the main body, and although the Good Templars were last in the order of march, they were not the least in prominence. After the band came a "lorry," which was made to represent "The Drunkard's Home," the character of the drunken "woman" being assumed by the Reve Reven of the Moray Entertries Ledge. by Bro. Beeson, of the Mersey Enterprise Lodge, whose wretched clothing and uncombed hair, of a carrotty hue, needed no explanation; and by her side sat an equally drunken specimen—her hasband and a ragged and dirty-faced urchin, their child. "hey had certainly a "roof to their heada," but —and a ragged and dirty-taceu uronin, and other heads," but the only furniture they possessed consisted of two old chairs, minus bottoms, an old jug, and a gridiron, which was used more to beat the "wife" than cook a steak. cook a steak. The moral of this illustration was plain. After this came another "lorry," representing "The Teetotaler's Home." Here were grouped well-dressed men and women, with three or four incely dressed children. The furniture of this home consisted of a sofa, hair-seated chairs, and harmonium, all of which were typical of the teetotaler's house. Both of the illustrations were witnessed with interest by thousands who lined the streets, and could not fail to do good. The arrangements for the Good Templar part of the procession were carried out by a joint committee of Good Templars and Rechabites, our Order being represented on the committee by Bros. M. Jones, W.D.S.; Pickersgill, D.E.S.; Room, Denny, Fisher, Newby, Jakeman, and others.

TRICYCLISTS AT THE GOOD TEMPLAR ORPHANAGE. The usual Saturday run of the South London Tricycle Club was taken to the Orphanage, at Sun-bury, on the afternoon of the 15th inst., when 23 members and six visitors attended, a number that would have been exceeded but for the unfavourable morning and strong wind. Eight ladies were included in the party. Tea was provided in the schoolroom of the institution. Shortly after eight morning and strong wind. Eight ladies were in-cluded in the party. Tea was provided in the schoolroom of the institution. Shortly after eight o'clock, the long procession of tricycles and tandems left the building for the homeward journey in the bright moonlight and favoured by the wind which had so retarded the ride down. The route taken was from the club headquarters at Loughborough Junction, S.E., over Clapham and Wandsworth Commons, thence through Barnes, Richmond, and Twickenbarn to Sunhurr Common; back by and Twickenham to Sunbury Common; back by by Hampton, Kungston, and Coembe Hill, the tetal distance being about 34 miles. The South London Trievele Club is the foremost association of its kind in London. Its chief executive officers are total abstainers, as also a large proportion of its membership. Among the members present on Saturday were Sister Rolfe, Bros. Wood, P.G.W.T., Rolfe, P.G.S.J.T. (hon. sec. The announcement of a visit of the G.W.C.T. nuturally drew a crowded attendance, which reached quite 300 doring the sitting. The Lodge was opened at 3.30 p.m. by wisit of the water and the same of the sam ask them to rejoice that they made neadway in recovering their serious losses. They, however, still occupied the second highest place in the lists of D.L.s, and the losses for the term were less than usual, and were actually covered by the members in two newly instituted Lodges. The annual sermon was preached by Bro, the Rev. A. W. Jephoun. CHARACTER DRESS AND KISSING GAMES.

WE realise with no small regret that the advocates of Character Dress and Kissing Games are dissetisfied with the deliverances of our Grand Lodge at its recent annual session, in which it declared all such performances unlawful in connection with our Lodges, is the province of the official organ support the decisions of the Grand Lodge of which it is the mouthpiece. It does not follow that all we write, even in our leading columns, could pretend to claim the authority of Grand Lodge; indeed, a newspaper would be very colourless and uninteresting that said nothing it could not guarantee to be in agreement with what so large and miscellaneous an assembly would endorse if it could be tested. But it would be unbecoming for an official organ to fly in the face of the matured decisions of its constituents, and we have not yet felt that any sacrifice of principle or of our convictions of duty have been involved in this service : we have rather to acknowledge that Grand Lodge has allowed us a tolerably free and wide range, and has treated any mistakes we may have made with such kind forbearance as becomes a body so consti-But we never - since the great tuted. controversy - felt more heartily colour constrained to support any decision of Grand Lodge than we do to uphold its recent utterances forbidding kissing games and character dress in connection with our Order; and if any stimulus were needed to deepen our convictions, that stimulus is supplied by the letter which we find it our duty to publish in our correspondence column.

As to the kissing games, we are simply astounded that a brother occupying a position at the head of a Degree Temple should thus openly and unblushingly advocate kissing games in, or associated with, our Lodges. We will not speak in wholesale condemnation of kissing games. At best, however, even in family parties and select circles, where the company is wellchosen, we regard them as uncommonly silly, and their tendency as very questionable. But what we have to do with is the Lodge-room, or with public gatherings in connection with the Order: assemblies at which the company cannot be selected. And we simply repeat what was said at Grand Lodge, that it is, in our judgment, a degradation of the sister sex, amounting to immorality, for a number of young maidens, or women of any age, to submit their lips to be "slobbered over" by a miscellaneous assortment of fellows, many of whom are strangers, and, it may be, very questionable characters, and all this exposed the while to the public gaze. Where is the common decency, not to say the native modesty, of the English maiden, if she delight in such treatment as this? However, there are such treatment as this? However, there are advocates of such doings among us; and as they seem determined to agitate the question in the Lodges, we will not close our columns to their contentions. We shall thus, it may be, learn what can be said in favour of such proceedings, and how far its advocates do really represent the feelings of what is called the rank and file of our Order.

Then, as to character dress. We do not condemn all dramatic performances, nor regard actors as necessarily an immoral class of people. We do know, however, that the associations of the stage do tend to blunt that fine edge of moral sensitiveness which we would rather preserve in our own children, alike in their earlier and later maturity. But the question narrows itself down to this-Shall theatrical performances be associated with our Lodges? We cannot absolutely control our young folks outside the Lodge, and it is better we should not attempt it. Good precept and good example, with a fair range of liberty and selfgovernment, will, we think, do more to train a virtuous manbood than will reins, whips, and leading-strings. We ourselves are not so fastidious that we should refuse to join a game of family charades, or to take part with approved companions in amateur theatricals. But to provide for such performances in car Lodges, constituted as they are; or under the public auspices of our Order, established as it is specifically for the advancement of a great moral and religious reform; this is quite another matter. Our excellent brothers and sisters who say, "What harm is there?" do not. we think, sufficiently take into account how, and for what objects, our Order is pleasing though it might be to some, would be a perversion of the Order itself from the objects of its existence, and a violation of the consciences of many of its most valued members and workers

And there is another view we would urge. There never was a greater need than there is to day that all moral and religious agencies ahould combine to frown down the public and fagrant parade of indecency that is deluging our land. The newspapers of the day are barely fit for a place in a well-regulated family. The filth of divorce courts and of police courts is the daily dainty, spiced up to serve the market, that is doing much to make the fortunes of our journalists, and to demoralise our homes at the same time. One London theatre is just now giving a play, which was patrotised the other day by the Prince and Princess of Wales, in which the harlot is the heroine. Another fashionable theatre is giving a grossly indecent play, and as some of its incidents are too impure for performance, the suppressed portions are printed for circulation among the audiences. And in yet a third, an actress who testified her own guilt in a divorce case is the principal character and the admired of the wives and daughters of fashionable society. Even the sensational advocates of purity have themselves seemed more anxious to parade the details of flagrant indecencies than to provide better teaching; and, altogether, the atmosphere of the age seems to reck with tainted talk and familiar indeconcies. It is time there were some efforts at a reaction; and our Order can do far better service to society than by opening up a new departure in a direction that opening up a new departure in a direction that can more easily be set going than controlled. It is very cheap chaff to taunt us with having "goody-goody" notions. We are not conscious that there is an excess of "namby-pambyism" in our leading members. The representative men and women we are accustomed to meet at Grand Lodge, or in our District gatherings, do not strike us as being childish simpletons as a rule; and we can take such taunts with complacency. We are not above being taught something, however, and if our esteemed correspondent, who writes as one who knows a thing or two, can favour us with some better teaching, or help to cultivate a more robust and manly sentiment, we will gladly give it heed. But as a pre-liminary example of what would strike us as liminary example of what would strike us as a higher style of writing than that of our correspondent, or than we can pretend to offer from our own pen, we commend to our readers the perusal of the article which follows.

GOOD ADVICE FROM A GREAT AUTHORITY.

" BE ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given Himself for us an offering and asacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour. But fornication and all uncleanness or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints; neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient; but rather giving of thanks. For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor coveteous man who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the Kingdom of Christ and of God. Let no man deceive you with vain words'; for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. Be not ye therefore partakers with them. For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord:
walk as children of light: (For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;) proving what is acceptable unto the Lord, And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. For it is a shame even to speak secret. But all things that are reproved are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, hut as wise, redeeming the time because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is, and be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; hut be filled with the Spirit; speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ; submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God."

As AN INTRODUCTION to any debates on the questions of character dress and kissing games in the Lodges, we would venture to suggest the reading of the two articles in our leading columns.

Bro. LIEUTENANT WAWRINSKY, G.W.Co., of Sweden, who acted as interpreter to Bro. Malins during the first part of his visit to Sweden, is, we hear, in Lordon. We heartily greet him, and bc-speak for him a warm welcome.

LEES versus MALINS.-We learn further hearing of this case has been set down, and that it only remains for Mr. Justice Wills to fix the date. This appointment may be made in about a fortnight, and the hearing may be resumed about a month hence or later.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Good Templar and Temperance Orphanage will be held at the Institu-tion, Sunbury, on the 22nd inst, and should draw a large gathering, as the well kept grounds will be open for the inspection of visitors. We understand open for the inspection of visitors. We understand that a reduced fare may be participated in by those leaving Waterloo Station by the 2.35 p.m. train.

THE PUBLIC BREAKFAST OF THE BAND OF HOPE UNION in Exeter Hall on Wednesday last, was a great success. The address of the chairman, the Critical Reviews of the chairman, the Ven. Dr. Dawson Burns, the Rev. Isaac Doxsey, the Rev. Bennett, Secre-tary of the Wesleyan Temperance Society, the Rev. J. P. Gledstone, Mr. W. S. Shirley, M. P., and others. Out of six M. Statford Howard, and William Saunders, several of whom were in the House till 3 o'clock the same of whom were in the House this o chock the same morning, but some of whom were with their con-stituents, endeavouring to "square the circle" of the Irish difficulty. The afternoon conference and evening public meeting were also of great interest and well attended.

THE AMERICAN OND FELLOWS, like the Free-manus Expenses and all other frequency.

THE AMERICAN OND FELLOWS, like the Free-masons, Foresters, and all other fraternities there, are excluding the coloured people. An American paper to hand says:—"It is the general opinion of many that the Independent Order of Odd Fellows is doomed to die out. A New Temperance Poet.—A neat shilling volume entitled, "The Banner of Temperance," by Bro, John Adams, who modestly hides his name and issues it as "By a Member of the Victory Lodge, Dresden" (Staffordshire), has been published by John Heywood. Its contents exhibit remarkable merit, and it is to be hoped it will be used in reading and reciting at many a Good Templar and Temperance meeting. These pieces are not mere rhymes, but contain evidence of real peetic genius, bright with the fire and feeling of a genius, bright with the fire and feeling of a true Temperance worker. The piece on "Silent Workers" ought to be heard by many such. That on "The Publican" we reprint in

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

It would hardly he possible to conceive a greater contrast than the scene witnessed in the City Temple at the recent meeting of the Congregational Union, and that chacted in the same place on a similar occasion two years ago. Many will recollect the masterly address then delivered by Dr. Parker, and how that portion referring to the drink traffic, and its long train of servants and adherents, was received. Loud and prolonged were the cheers that resounded through this noblest and grandest of Nouconformist buildings, when the learned Doctor proclaimed that he saw no difference between the man who grew rich and affluent upon the proceeds of the liquor traffic, and the poor wretched victim and slave of strong drink. And the enthusiasm was still greater it was declared that it was the duty of the Church to refuse to accept help from the proceeds of vice and sin, for such assistance could bring no good to the cause of Christ.

The latest occupant of the chair of the Congregational Union has also thought it his dury to refer to the drink question, but only so as to give him an opportunity of making an unwarrant able and unchristian attack upon, not only several of his fellow ministers, but also a large and important section of the community. This marvellous effusion of thought and language appeared in last week's Watchword; and I have no doubt was read with sorrow and pain by thousands. Such must have been the feeling in the minds of Mr. White's hearers last Tuesday week. Out of respect to the position occupied by the speaker, the audience listened to his words in silence, but on many countenances were depicted sorrow and despair that any man occupying the highest post in the gift of the Union should have thought it his duty to give utterance to such an unsafe, unsound, and pernicious doctrine as set forth by his words. Had, however, the gathering been a public one, in the ordinary acceptance of the term, I question if Mr. White would have had so patient and forbearing an audience.

I have no doubt several correspondents will be ready to accede to the invitation given them last week by the Editor, and satisfactorily and conclusively repel Mr. White's attack on total abstinence. But there are one or two points I would like to notice. The Chairman of the Congregational Union admits that "total abstinence from fermented liquors is good as a habit for all the young, and perhaps for most adults." It is something to gain this admission. But does not the speaker contradict himself when he goes on toadvocatemoderatedrinking as a virtue. When do men or women arrive at the age that they may add to their privileges, this one of "taking a glass of claret or ale"? No, the reverend gentleman shrinks from committing himself to this extent. He complains bitterly about the lack of teaching on Temperance; and not without cause. Certainly, if he had studied the matter at all, he would not have cut such a sorry figure as on this necasion.

Again, his appeal to Scripture for sanction of drinking shows how even ministers can attempt to misapply the teaching of the Bible. He says total abstinence "was not required as Sinai by any one of the Ten Commandments, nor by any one of the 613 precepts of the Mosaic law." This may be; or directed to take strong drink? And if a more minute examination had been made of the precepts and principles inculeated by Biblical writers, and principles incureated by Biblical writers, a large number of passages might have been found, in which the use of wine and strong drink is emphatically and undeniably condemned.

We are also told that "all moral teachers are under infinite obligation to God to drunkerness, and to set forth before old define young that drunkards and the makers of drunkards shall infallibly be consigned to the ahyss of perdition." But did Mr. White think when he wrote young that these words that he might be pronouncing his own doom? If the "makers of drunkards" are to have the same punishment measured out to them eir victims, how will those have tempted young men to drink, and have helped the foundation of the habit wh their and them women proved their ruin? And is it not possible there may be someone present in such an assembly as that of last Tuesday week halting, as it were, between two opinious, and who may be led to a value of £243 lidecide for moderate drinking by the sophistry of mates was 1,020.

the meeker Should such an one become the speaker. Should such an one become a drunkard, if "God will judge men by ordinary moral laws," will not he who led him to the beginning of his downward course stand in the position of a "maker of a drunkard"! Certainly there are more drunkards made by such misguided utterances than by all the harangues of the wiser (?) wing of the abstinence reformers." 'm-

A great discovery has been made, and the champions of liquordom have at last found a people who pions of liquordom have at last found a people who have a great aversion to drinking water, but who are perpetually "browing of ale," with which they moisten "innumerable pipes." These phenomena are located in Contral Africa, and are called the Waganda tribe. Physically and morally, we are told, these people are a most superior race, well up in sanitary laws, and they are the only community in Central Africa who are clothed in a respectable manner. The account would have been more manner. interesting if the writer had told us what kind of ale was brewed. Should, however, the story be a true one, and I very much doubt its authenticity, it will form no excuse for drinking in England, because the results produced here are exactly the reverse to those in Africa, or rather the particular spot of that Continent alluded to.

The Durham Sunday Closing Bill is not to be allowed to pass so easily after all. That remark-able body of disappointed politicians and placeable body of and body of disappointed politicians and place-seekers, the Liberty and Property Defence League, is endeavouring to persuade all the "lame, halt and blind" ones of the House of Lords to natt and blind "ones of the House of Lords to come up and vote against it at its final stage. The "trade" and other interested parties are "arrang-ing demonstrations," which are nothing but gather-ings of roughs, who hustle and assault anyone who dares to express views favourable to the Bill. Should these tactics prove successful, the victory will be short-lived, for the electors of Durham are resolved that should such a contingency arise, they will accept no candidate at the next election who refuses to vote for this measure; thus Mr. Milvain will have to look for another seat.

Last Saturday I looked in at the East and Mid-Surrey District Lodge, and found a large body of members present to meet Bro. Malins and other "The Good of the Order distinguished visitors. was the principal topic of the evening, and I hope an impetus was given to the work.

The following "chips" to taken from the American National Temperance Advocate, will be of interest to those watching the progress of Prohibition in the

This does not look much like failure, and if the feeling at present existing in the States is kept alive, in 10 years Prohibition will be the law of the land.

THE CONGREGATIONAL PRESIDENT AND THE VIRTUES OF LITTLE-DROP DRINKING.

BRO, THE REV. H. MINTON-SENHOOSE has written to the Rev. Edward White as follows :written to the Key. Edward Winte as index-will you allow me, with the despest respect for your age, position, and learning, to point out what seems to me the fallacies of your speech relating to Total Abstinence reformation. 1. You seem to think that it is an article of the Total Total Abstinence reformation. 1. You to think that it is an article of the Abstainers' creed that we "cannot save souls unless we save bodies at the same time." I never heard that stated on any Temperance platform; but we do maintain that if a man is destroying his body with alcohol, or by any other means, he is ipso facto destroying his soul; for we must accept the axiom that he that shortens his life is guilty of his own death, and suicides are murderers, and as such excluded from the Kingdom of Heaven by God Himself. 2. You assert "that absolute and universal abstinence from all fermented liquors is not a law of nature." Is not this statement incorrect? Can of nature." Is not this statement incorrect? Our you mention a single spot on the whole globe where man has found fermented liquors ready provided for him by nature? Alcohol is feund in nature, only in the smallest quantities, and that only in dead vegetable matter. Does not nature by refusing to provide fermented liquors, declare its own law of total abstinence from them? 3. You state that abstinence from formented liquors is not mentioned in the Decalogue over the 613 presents of Moses. True but is it as or the 613 precepts of Moses. True, but is it a fair inference that therefore God intends us to use tair interence that therefore God intends us to use them? I submit that it is not, for (lat) the Decalogue does not prafess to teach Hygienics (2nd) God never intended by his servant Moses to give a complete list of all things unfit for food, as opium and other such brain destroyers would have been forbidden. God denounces drunkenness in the strongest terms, and He is not the God of results only, but of causes as well. Moreover, have we not denunciations against the Moreover, have we not denunctations against tuse of strong drink all through the Bible? Solomon cautions his son not to "look" upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its colour in the glass, when it moveth itself aright (i.e., when it is glass, when it moves it rest argin (i.e., when it intoxicating). Hosea (iv. 11) classes wine and whoredom together, stating that they "take away the heart." Not a word about the quantity; the tendency of wine is to do so, St. the tendency of wine is to do so. St. Peter says "Drink not" (original Greek) 1 Pet. v. 8, 4. You assert that Total Abstinence was not practised by our Lord. I ask you, sir, if this is net plainly untrue.? Was not being a wine drinker the false accusation which was broads to with the false accusation which was brought by "the men of that generation" against our Lord, and dare we takesides with them? 5. I think that more mature contakesides with them? 5. I think that more mature consideration will shew you by llogical is your parallel of the eelibacy of the Romish priesthood and total abstinence from fermented drinks—eelibacy joined with auricular confession has indeed caused gross immorality amongst the Romish priest; but who ever heard of drunkenuess being Tostered by total abstinence? Were one-hundredth part of the woes pronounced against drink hurled 'against marriage, we should unhositatingly assert the latter to be wrong. G. You accuse us of "stopping the mouths of moderate drinkers in denouncing drunkenness." Sir, it is not we who stop them, but their own conof moderate drunkers in denotinging drunkerness. Sir, it is not we who stop them, but their own con-sciences, which will not allow them to do so while they themselves are using the very things which make the drunkard. And, lastly, your own words are, "the makers of drunkards shall infallibly be consigned to the abyas of perdition." Who are the drunkard makers? Surely they who provide the drink; and must we not add, they who tell them they do right to drink it. As an elder, I entreat you, consider the awful responsibility of your words. If through them one person has been stopped from joining the total abstainers and ever becomes a drunkard, at whose hands will the Lord require it?

Bro. G. Collin, of Cambridge, writes:—Surely the Congregational Union, when they elected their chairman (the Rev. Edward White), could have had no idea that he held such strange notions, or was capable of giving utterance to such absurd nonseuse on the subject of Temperance. He begins his attack on total abstinence, as all sophists do, by assuming that the use of intoxicating drioke is a lawful enjoyment, to be regulated by occa-sional or habitual abstinences. But he fails to shew that any use of them does any good, or is either lawful or right. He says "You cannot save souls miless you save bodies as well." Whoever said that they could? He says truly, "A vigorous but wise discipline of all the bodily appetites, formed a very prominent feature of primitive Christianity. And this, Edward White ought to know, is Temperance: the proper use of good things, and total abstinence from bad things. And this ought to be a much more prominent assume the foliation of today. We are frequently being told that "total abstinence will not save a soul." But Edward White says, "Total abstinence from fermented liquors is good as a habit for all the young and perhaps for most adults; but assuredly it is the one hope of physical and Elevnal Saleation for drunkerds of every degree." If an ignorant costernation of the production of the sale made such a statement, he would have much more prominent feature in the Christianity of to-day. We are frequently being told that monger had made such a statement, he would nave been designated by a class of learned ignorannuses as "one of the unwise advocates of the total absti-nence reformation." He tells us, "the movement deserves a high rank in the history of heroic selfdenial; nevertheless, absolute and universal abstinence from all fermented liquors, even the abathence from all fermented liquors, even the weakest (for claret and brandy are not identical drinks) is surely neither a law of nature, nor a revealed law of God." But Edward White ought to know that the intoxicating parts of claret, brandy, and all other intoxicating drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are identically as a sure part of the drinks are in the tical, are not found in nature, nor do they find sauction in the revealed law of God. stinence was not required by one of the Ten Com-mandments," does Edward White think that if the commandment had been given, "thou shalt not drink intoxicating drink," to drink it would have been more wrong than it is? And if the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," had not been given, that incre wrong than it is? And it the commandment, "Thou shall not steal," had not been given, that therefore stealing would have been right? If he does, I pity him. Where does Edward White learn that "abstinence from intoxicating drinks was not practised by the Lord Jesus Christ?" He has a poor opinion of the Master who thinks that He either sed, or sanctioned the use of intoxicating drinks, which He knew would, in the coming time, be such which He knew would, in the coming time, be such a source of misery, sin, and death; but He never did. Again, "The Word of God for Jew and Gentile, both in the Old and New Testaments, forbide drunkenness." Can Edward White define drunkenness apart from the use of intoxicating drinks? or imagine its existence with abstinence from those drinks? If a glass of liquor will make a man drunk is he not drunk in degree when he has taken part of it? And as drinking is practised from a thimbleful to a gallon, can Edward White tell us wheresobriety ends and drunkenness begins? Can Edward White or any of the defenders of drinking intoxicating drinks, of any kind or colour, give a better reason for drinking any defined quantity. better reason for drinking any defined quantity of them than the thief can give for stealing? The best reason that men can give for drinking it is that the best reason that men can give for drinking it is "that they believe it does them good." And if Edward White could make London thieves believe that they cannot get good by stealing, they would steal no more. I repeat, Temperance is the steel no more. I repeat, Temperance is the proper use of good things; and abstinence from bad things, and intoxicating drinks are bad, and no man can shew that they have ever done, or can do anything but mischief to the bodies of men. Edward White's sober men (little drinkers) have made all the drunkards that ever have been, and will make all that are to follow. The littlewill make all that are to follow. The little-drinking Reverend Johns are setting examples drinking Reverend Johns are setting examples which make many who try to follow them become drunken Jacks. But Edward White can see no other preventative nor cure than to shake before them "the pain of Eternal Dannation, and nothing less," as defeating every right end of human life. "Drunkards," says St. Paul, twice, "cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." The immorality of drinking is not in the kind or quantity of the evil thing taken, but in the act of quantity of the evir ining taken, but it in each or seeking good from such a source of misery, orime, and death. And while learned ignoramuses teach and claim the right to seek good from the use of these evil drinks, they will make drunkards even is now, notwithstanding all threats of burning flames and eternal damnation. All drunkards are names and eternal damnation. All drunkards are made by drinking intoxicating drinks, and universal abstinence is the only way of universal salvation tom drunkenness and its effects. But, "While the leaders of the people lead them sarray, they that are led of them shall be destroyed."

Character Dress and Kissing Games. Along with many more loyal and earnest Good Templars in Carlisle, a city containing six Lodges, I cannot refrain from expressing my regret that I cannot retrain from expressing my region character dress and kissing games have received their quietus at the Grand Lodge. I belong to the largest and most successful Lodge in the district of East Cumberland (The Anchor, No. 30), a Lodge that has always adopted those games at seasons when other, and much to be avoided, entertainments were in full swing in the city. By opening our Lodge were in full swing in the city. By opening our Loage to the public at such times as the races, the Christmas, and Easter holidays, and allowing a few simple games, we have not only kept our own members together, but have induced large numbers of the general public to come amongst us, and see that Good Templary and teetotalism were not the milk-and-water fads that so many people imagine them to be. The consequence is that we have added several to our Lodge who had not the most remote idea of joining the Order. It is most disheartening to find year by year that our numbers are getting smaller, and that no rational or common sense effort is made to check this decrease; on the contrary, we are so overridden with faddists that to attempt to increase our numbers is now out of the question. Like other large institutions, we will have to go with the times. People are wise enough now to know that the proper place to perform their devotions is at their own place of worship. will not sit in a Templar Lodge and listen to an amateur cleric, nor to the cut and dried old old stories of the would-be goody-goody. What the people want is harmless and healthy recreation, and not so much lecturing. As to the silly talk about the not so much lecturing. As to the silly talk about the immorshity of the games, a greater piece of humbug I cannot conceive. If our daughters are never led into greater temptation than kissing games I am content to trust mine, whilst at the same time I would not allow them to look in at some of our firstclass print sellers' windows. I know for a positive fact that had the six Lodges in Carlisle been policel, 30 per cent, would have voted in favour of the games. If you will kindly lind space for this rather long epistic, it may be the means of drawing a long epistic, it may be the means of graving a fuller opinion of the great body of our brothers and sisters than has hitherto been expressed.—John R. Matthews, P.W.C.T., Anchor Lodge and D.G.W.C.T., City of Carlisle Degree Temple.

How to Increase Interest in our Lodges. The plan adopted by my Lodge is, I think, as good as any to forward this purpose, viz., to send a report of the proceedings of the Lodge meetings to some local paper every week, commencing with the name and number of the Lodge, I.O.G.T. (in that have the Lodge was called to order at 8 o'clock." The calling to order is, I believe, a the eyes of the public as something fresh—not to say unique—which attracts their attention, and they read the whole report, thus learning that Sister Jones gave an original reading, or Bro. Robinson sang a new song, or whatever else the entertaining portion of the prowhatever ease the entertaining portion of the pro-ceedings might have been, so creating a sort of theorest in the affair; and they will look for the report next week. By this means, you see, a free advertisement appears every week, from which some good must surely come. We, in Harlesden, have been able to trace several converts to our cause from this source alone. Another feature will be found where Lodges adopt this plan, and it is this: Many members may be induced to attend the Lodge meetings, and assist in the working of same, if by so doing their names will appear in a public print. Of course the "good men and true" are not included in this category, but we all know there are certain classes of our members who seldom attend their own or any other Lodge, and I put this forward as a means of bringing them "up to the scratch." There may be some Lodges who have tried this, without any apparent success, or have tried this, without any apparent success, or the editors may have ignored their reports; but sisters and brothers, keep worrying them (the editors) and you will win in the end. I am happy to say there are now very few papers which do not count at least one abstainer on its "staff," and if you can only secure that man as a member of your Lodge I'll answer for it your reports will regularly appear. This will entail a little extra work for one or two members of the Lodge, but they musn't mind that. Look at the prospect in view—increased membership and good attendance.—Yours fraternally, Chriss. Willson, Harlesden Lodge.

Prayer Meetings at Grand Lodge.-I have had the privilege of attending seven out of the 16 Grand Lodge Sessions held in England, viz., Bradford, London, Newcastle, Plymouth, Hull, Southampton, Leicester, and Newport, and among many things that interested me at these annual gatherings, not the least was the morning prayer meetings. But ception to the rule. But this year was an exception to the rule. On Thesday morang about 20 were present; on Wednesday only eight; and on Thursday only a brother from Street and myself, and as we were leaving we met a sister just coming in. Now, what the meetings were on Monday and Friday I cannot say, as I left early on Friday morning. I can but say how I was grieved to see such a contrast to what I had seen in former years. The remembrance of some of the prayer meetings held are very pleasing and delightful, and one that was held at in the open air (as we could not get the key of the hall), led by Bro. Rev. J. Hargreaves, will long be remembered. Now, why this contrast? I know there are excuses, such as getting home to breakfast and to G.L. again by nine o'clock; but there have been the same difficulties in former years, have been the same difficulties in former years, and the old adage holds good still—"Prayor and provender hinder no man." I am afraid this, among others, is one source of leakage. If we lose our faith and interest in prayer we shall resemble Samson when shorn of his locks, and be powerless in fight with this terrible foe, and and be poweriess in ngar with this terrible foo, strong drink. I have given this gentle hint, hoping it may not be forgotten next year, when G.L. meets in London, nor when it meets in the Isle of Wight, as I hear some intimation of an invitation being given for 1888.—W. THE REASONABLENESS OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

By J. James Ridge, M.D., B.S., B.A., B.Sc., London, Physician to the London Temperance Hospital, Honorary Secretary of the British Medical Temperance Association, &c.

In a valuable paper upon this subject, which was read by Bro. Dr. J. J. Ridge at the recent Tempersone Congress held at Croyden, the arguments in support of abstinence were summed up as follows:

IT IS MORE REASONABLE TO ABSTAIN FROM ALCOHOL THAN TO DRINK IT-

1. Because it is a narcotic drug which prevents the proper performance of the functions of the nervous system, weakens the will, warps the judgment, reduces the powers of self-control over thoughts, words, and actions, and thus promotes meral evil.

2. Because it creates, in common with other narcotics, a craving or desire for itself, which, under unforeseen and unavoidable circumstances, may become irresistible.

3. Because its habitual use exposes the body to disease, leads to premature degeneration, and shortens life.

snortens lite.

4. Because small (so-called moderate) doses have the small kind of action as large ones, and a greater effect than can be perceived at the time, especially by the unaided and sloohel-injured senses of the drinker.

5. Because alcohol hinders the due performance of work, is not able to take the place of food, and injures the body in proportion to the quantity

6. Because it is capable of so altering the body by its habitual use as to seem necessary for the maintenance of ordinary health, thus giving rise to those fallacious sensations by which so many are deceived.

7. Because the assertion that alcohol is necessary for some constitutions, or under some circumstances, rests on no well-ascertained or incontrovertible rests on no well-ascertained or incontrovertible facts or figures, but is a mere assertion, rendered more than doubtful by the same claim being made for other narcotics, and by the ignominious failure of false prophets of evil. Further, it is totally disproved by the experience of millions of total abstainers, of all ages, of both seres, and under every conceivable circumstance.

8. Because the createst fasts of skill hard work

8. Because the greatest feats of skill, hard work, 5. Decause the greatest reast of sain, hard wors, and endurance are performed, and performed more easily, by those who are habitual total abstainers, or who become so for a time for the very purpose of steadying their nerves, and increasing their strength.

9. Because the advice of Solemen the Wise* and of the Apostle Peter!—Nepsate: do not drink wine or strong drink—agrees with the result of experience and the latest teaching of science, and if followed, will prevent the lessening of Temperance or self-control, will diminish vice, crime, and misery, and render this world a happier and a holier place.

Bro. T. W. Glover.—A public meeting was held in the Lyceum Hall, Dunedin, New Zealand, on March 31, to welcome Bro. Sir W. Fox. R.W.G.A.S., and Bro. W. Glover, P.G.W.M., on on their arrival in the colony. The Mayor presided and there was a large attendance. Effective speeches were given by our brethren and other certification. gentlemen.

EXTRACT FROM A LECTURE DELIVERED AT THE ROYAL AQUARIUM, LONDON, BY DR. HENRY R. TAYLOR, OF NEW YORK.

We published in these columns some few weeks ago a synopsis of a lecture delivered before the Balloon Society of the Royal Aquarium by Dr. Taylor, of New York. There were so many new ideas presented, and startling revelations made by the lecturer, that we are induced to resent another extract. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting. Speaking of the kidneys and their functions, the doctor said:— That I may emphasise and clearly explain and how much independent upon them, I propose, metaphorically speaking, to take one from the human body anapholish the said of th

The 24th annual meeting of the Total Abstinence section, was held on Wednesday evening, May 12, at Exeter Hall, the Bishop of Durham presiding. The report stated that the Council were thankful to be able to point not only to a large increase in the work done, but aise to some improvement in the organisation of the society. Although there had been an increase in the income of the society, there was a deficit on the year's work, after taking liabilities into account of £48. HOUSE OF LORDS

MAY 13, -- THE DURBAM SUNDAY CLOSING BILL The Marquis of Salisbury called attention to the fact that the committee on the Durham Sunday Closing Bill was on the orders for the evening, and suggested that a sufficient time had not been allowed for putting down amendments. The LORD CHANCELLOR said when the monster petition containing 60,000 signatures was presented against the Bill, he stated at the time that it was against the Bill, he stated at the time that it was possible to over-estimate the importance of petitions presented to the House. He had received several petitions with reference to the petition in question, one from a Good Templar, who stated that he one from a Good Templar, who stated that he signed the petition under the impression that it was in favour of Sunday Closing. (Laughter.) He had asked his clerk to look through some of the signatures, and he had discovered that many were evidently in the same handwriting. Under those circumstances he could not oppose the motion.

The motion was then agreed to.

[FROM HAZELL'S ANNUAL CYCLOPGEDIA, 1886.]

The Independent Order of Good Templars is a Temperance fraternity which originated in New York in 1851. In 1868 it was extended to Eugland by Joseph Malins, who, by 1870, had instituted the Grand Lodge of England, from which the Order has spread round the world. It administers a pledge of lifelong abstinence from intexicating beverages, and advocates the legal suppression of their common sale. It seeks to protect the abstinent and reclaim the inebriate. It admits both sexes to equal privileges and office. Only a small fee of sixpence or one shilling per quarter is exacted, as it is non-beneficiary in basis ; Worthy Grand Lodge met in Kentucky, the British Grand Lodges severed from the Americans owing to negroexclusion in the exclave states, and there have since been two Orders, one mainly American, and the other mainly British. The latter at once re-organized their supreme the "Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the World," which has suce held sessions in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, United States, Canada and Sweden. Its last session (1885) cases which is the Parliament House at Stockholm once re-organised their supreme court as ight Worthy Grand Lodge of the assembled in the Parliament House at Stockholm where it reported nearly 300,000 members, an in-crease of 20,000 since the preceding session. The other Right Worthy Grand Lodge, which always meets in America, claims a still larger membership, but its adult adherents in the United Kingdom are out its adult adherents in the United Kingdom are under 10,000, mostly in Ireland; while the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the World has 127,000 adherents in the United Kingdom, of whom 80,000 are under its Grand Lodge of England, whose permanent offices are in Edmund-street, Congreve-street, Birmingham. The English organ is THE GOOD TEMPLARS' WATCHOORD, 1d. weekly; is The Good Templars' Warchword, 1d. weekly; and eeveral local monthlies are issued, besides much literary matter from the Grand Lodge morthing presses. The Grand Lodge has over 1,600 Lodges, of which 50 are in the army and navy The Grand Lodge meeting in Manchester Town Hall, Easter, 1835, was attended by 1,450 representatives and officers; and 226 Temperanee sermons were preached on that Easter Sunday in Manchester and the neighbourhood. Although ordinary Lodge meetings are confined to members ordinary Lodge meetings are confined to members, yet thousands of public meetings are held annually; while the rules, &c., of the Order are quite public. Most Lodges publish programmes, shewing that by addresses, debates, essays, music, recitals, and parties, the members mutually improve and entertain each other—their greatest festival being an intermittent Crystal Palace fête, when some 40,000 or 50,000 persons attend. There is also attached a Juvenile Order, avianine abstinence from strong drink, tobacco, ordinary Ludge meetings are confined to members, attend. There is also attached a Juvenile Order, for raul when writing to him, said. "Be no longer enjouing a stringer for which to bacco, a drinker of water, but use a little wine, for thy gambling, and profanity, and which has 50,000 stomach's sake," and from these words we see that English members, in 700 branches. The members Timothy was an abstainer before.

have founded a Temperance Orphanage at Sunbury, at a cost of about £10,000. The Grand Lodge of Scotland has 630 adult and 260 junior branches; its office is 72, Great Clyde-street, Glasgow, and its monthly organ is the The Good Templar. Ireland and Wales have 260 adult and junior branches, and publish English and Welsh junior branches, and publish English and Welsh organs. The Order issues 25 newspapers the world round, and the officers of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the World, installed at Stockholm, are residents of England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Channel Islands, Norway, Swedon, Denmark, Belgium, United States, Canada, and New Zea-

THE TEETOTALERS OF THE BIBLE.

FIRST PRIZE PAPER IN THE "JUVENILE TEMPLAR"

[By Annie Sandford, aged 133 years.]

It must be very interesting to all tectotalers to know that not only are there abstainers mentioned in the Bible, but that they are always spoken of as being the better for it. The first mentioned as an abstainer from his birth is Samson, and he was, as we all know, the strongest man that ever lived; but although he was so strong, he never drank anything atthough he was so strong, he never grank anything but water. Those people who say that they drink to revive their spirits, should take their Bibles, and see what Samson drank when he was faint with thirst, after killing a thousand Phillistines with a jaw-bone of an ass.

In Jermiah we read of the Rechabites, who were obedient to Jonadab their father, and drank no obedient to Jonadab their father, and drank no wine, though they were tempted by Jeverniah the prophet in the House of the Lord; and there are still the prophet in the House of their decendants, who live just the same as their foresthers did so many years ago, and they are still faithful to their promise award delicition. never to drink wine.

One of the most important laws for the priests was that they should not drink any wine or strong drink when they went into the tabernacle, lest they should die.

The Nazarites were a sect of people who separated themselves unto the Lord, and vowed a vow that they would eat or drink nothing which was made from the vine tree.

All through the 40 years that the Israelites wandered in the wilderness they had nothing but water to drink, thus shewing that whole nations can very well do without strong drink.

The last teetotalers that we read of in the Old Tostament are Daniel and his three friends, who would not drink the king's wine, but drank water instead, and they were found to be fairer and healthier than those who drank wine.

There are not many abstainers mentioned in the New Testament, but we know that John the Bap-tist was one, and of him Christ said, "There hath not risen a greater."

not risen a greater.

There are many who say that Christ also was an abstainer, and it is very likely He was; for He would not drink when they offered Him wine mingled with myrth, before He was crucified; and also He never spoke of wine by that nane, but always called it the "fruit of the vine."

It is very probable that Timothy was an abstainer, for Paul when writing to him, said. " Be no longer

GOOD TEMPLAR AND TEMPERANCE ORPHANAGE

ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

Despite the great storm of wind and rain which startled the Metropolis early on Saturday morning, May 22, and the very unsettled state of the weather thereafter during the day, some 80 subscribers and friends attended the annual meeting of the Orphanage, held at the Institution, Sun-bury. The attendance was the largest perhaps ever recorded at previous annual meetings, and was in a measure brought about by the District Juvenile Council of Middlesex, whose secretary, Bro. J. B. Scott, arranged an excursion, and obtained the concession of a reduced fare for all those journeying by the 2.35 p.m. train from Waterloo.
Accordingly, some 30 members of the Order took advantage of this privilege to visit the home of our little orphans:

our little orphans:

Among those present were:—Bro. E. Wood, P.G.W.T. (chairman of the Board); Bro. S. R. Rolfe, Past P.G.S.J.T. (hon. sec.); Bro. Captain W. H. Phipps, R.N., P.D.C.T.; Bro. Lieulenant-Colonel Young, Bro. F. W. Dimbleby, Past P.D.C.T.; Bro. J.H. Retallack-Moioney, W.D.S.; Sister Mis. Browne, Bro. Froome Talfourd, members of the Board of Management; Sister Rolfe, Sister Dimbleby, Bro. Insull. and Mrs. and bers of the Board of Management; Sister Rolfe, Sister Dimbleby, Bro. Insull, and Mrs. and Miss Insull; Bro. Lieutenant W. J. Phillips, Bro. J. B. Scott, Bro. R. Hyde, D.E.S., and Miss. And Miss Hyde; Sister Mrs. Weeks, Sister Mrs. Haarnack, Bro. E. A. Gibson, Bro. T. C. Macrow, Bro. R. W. Bowers, Bro. H. Browne, and Miss Browne, Bro. F. W. Thorne, Bro. John Mann, and Mrs. Mann, and others, making very "good company" indeed. The time which elapsed between the arrival at the Orphanage and the servine of fea. was senet by

he Orphanage and the serving of tea, was spent by a few at croquet on the lawn, and by the majority in a tour of inspection of the premises, kitchen garden, poultry yard, &c., the excellent condition everything was found in calling forth many expressions of approval.

Tea was partaken of at five o'clock, and at 6 p.m. the subscribers' meeting was held in the school-room, which was crowded. During the proceedings a telegram of greeting was received from the West Kent D.L. in session at Sideup, and replied to. Bro. Wood having been voted to the chair,

Bro. Rolfe (hon. sec.) read the annual report of the Board of Management, which was as follows :--

It is with pleasure that the Board of Manage-ment again meets the subscribers to present to ment again meets the subscribers to present to them its annual report upon the position of the Orphanage, together with the balance-sheet and statement of accounts. There are now in the home 54 children—32 boys and 22 girls—13 of whom have been admitted during the past year, 15 54 billion begins left during the same period. No children having left during the same period. No serious cases of illness have occurred among them, and the freedom from sickness is not only a cause for thankfulness, but affords unmistakable evidence of the care exercised in the management of the children's health. The national character of the institution is indicated by the widely extended area from which the children have been received. The number of counties represented by them has been further increased by the addition of Essex and Sussex to the list, while one boy has recently been received from Antwerp upon the nomination of the Good Templar Lodge meeting in that city. It is a matter for regret that the financial position of the Orphanage is not so satisfactory as could be wished, and the Board ask for this the serious consideration of all its friends and subscribers. It is necessary that efforts should be made to increase its income and so enable the home to be maintained with its full number of inmates and allow the board to consider the many necessitous cases among the applicants for admis sion. The accompanying balance-sheet will shew that the receipts of the year have again fallen far short of the expenditure, and in consequence the Board feel it necessary to defer the fill-ing of any vacancies that may arise until their resources are strengthened or the number of children considerably reduced. The income of the year, apart from the building fund, has been £988 5s., of which the collections from English Lodges and Juvenila Temples amount to £623 18s. 14d., a falling off from the previous year, when the receipts from the same sources were £675 5s. 6?d. The total receipts for the general fund are £65 below those shown in last report. decrease may be partially accounted for by an alteration in the method of book-keeping, in consequence of which various amounts which would, under the former arrangement, have appeared in this year's receipts will now be included in next All expenditure is now charged to vear's accounts. year's accounts. An expenditure is now entaged to the general fund (including interest on mortgage and hank charges amounting to £143 10s. 4d., with other items, hitherto placed to the building fund). This arrangement will indicate clearly the financial ture of the year is shewn to be £1,269 1s. 2d., being £128 5s. 6d. in excess of the gross receipts for both general and building funds, and exceeding by £230 the amounts placed to the credit of the general fund only. This is the third year in which the expenditure has exceeded the the mooms in the general fund, as will be seen by the summary now given, and our reserve fund has in consequence almost disappeared :—Receipts, year ending 31st January 31, 1884, £1,086 3s. 10d.; expenditure, namos daspleate — lecterly, year claud 938-January 31, 1884, £1,086 3s. 10d.; expenditure, £1,125 10s. 2d.; receipts, year ending January 31, 1885, £1,053 11s. 6d.; expenditure, £1,141 6s. 10d.; year ending January 31, 1886, £988 5s. 10d., 1,269 1s. 2d., or, including Building Fund contributions, £1.140 15s. 8d.

As in last year's report, so now the contributions from Good Templar Lodges have been grouped to correspond with the areas occupied by the various District Lodges, and the list of subscriptions will shew the amount received from each. The Districts contributing the largest amounts are—Mid Kent, £55 17s. 1d.; East Kent, £52 18s. 1d.; Middlesox, £48 5s. 3d.; E and M. Surrey, £46 1s. 73d.; West Gloucester, £39 14s. 2d.; and West Kent, £28 17s. 04b.

The receipts on account of the building fund have been £152 10s. 8d., of which £132 0s. 8d. was the proceeds of the bazara held at the Orphanage during the summer, and £10 voted by the Crystal Palace Fête (1884) Committee, supplementing the sum of £50 voted by that body the previous year. The debt upon the building is now £3,292 11s. 7d. instead of £3,482 2s. 3d., as shown in last report.

In addition to the bazara held at the Orphanage.

In addition to the bezaar held at the Orphanage, another was organised by True Unity of Toubridge Lodge (842), which resulted in £35 6s, being added to our funds. The members of the Order in West Gloucester District have also remitted £25 5s, as the result of their efforts in the same direction. The institution would receive material aid if our members in other parts would do their best to obtain funds in similar manuer. The income has again been augmented by a grant from the Education Department following the usual examination by Her Majesty's Inspector. The board have again great pleasure in bearing testimony to the efficient and willing services of the members of the staff. The members of the board who now rotire, but are eligible for re-election, are Messrs. Wood, Talfourd, Kempster, and Bowen.

The Charman, in moving that the report and balance be adopted, printed, and circulated among the subscribers, observed that he was pleased to see to show the form of the subscribers, observed that he was pleased to see as large a gathering, and hoped it indicated a growing interest in the welfare of the institution, in spite of the failing off in the income last year. A most gratifying statement in the report was the reference to the continued good health of the Bakewell 2s. 2d., and at Ohesterfield 3d.—Derbychildren, for which they must all be truly thankful. skire Courier.

During the whole year the services of the medical officer had only been required once, for one child. This proved not only the advantages of total abstinence, but that the children were properly cared for— their principles of wholesome diet and cleanliness and he believed in the use of plenty of water outside as well as in-contributing largely to their good state of health. On the question of finance, Bro. Wood urged upon all present to obtain for the institution a larger and more sympathetic recognition by the general Temperance community. He reby the general Temperance community. He re-marked that it could not be too widely known that the institution was not solely for the children of Good Templars, but was open to all sections of the Temperance movement, as their rules would shew. He noted with interest that the districts con-tributing the largest sums to the funds were those nearest to the institution, thus were those nearest to the institution, thus shewing that those having the opportunity of frequently visiting the place were satisfied with the management, and increased contributions was the result. He wished that something could be done to establish a system of honorary lady collectors in all parts of the country. He was sure great good would follow; and ladies were asked to correspond with the hon, see, with a view of carrying this idea into effect. Another gratifying circumstance was the report of Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools, whose endorsement of the examination papers, though brief, spoke volumes. He wrote, "The school continues to be pleasantly and satisfactorily conducted." (Applause.) Ha (Bro. Wood), however, governess, Miss Palmer, who is shortly leaving with her mother for India, and he wished her in the name of the meeting a pleasant voyage, and great prosperity.

Boo. CAPT. PHIPPS, in seconding the resolution, complained of the many drains upon the resources of the members of the Order, diverting, he said, sums that should flow into the coffers of the institution which he thought did not obtain the consideration in the consideration of the consideration is a second or the consideration of the consideration is a second or the consideration of the consi tion which he thought did not obtain the consideration it certainly deserved to do.

BIO. LIEUT. WAWKINSKY, G. W. Co. (Sweden), who was heartily received, spoke in support of the motion, as did also Bro. Mann, and it was adopted. The following resolutions were also agreed to:—

Moved by Bro. DIMBLERY, seconded by Bro.
MOLONEY—"That the retiring members of the

"That Messrs. Robinson and Churchman be reelected auditors for the coming year."

Moved by Mrs. Browne, seconded by Bro. TALFOURD-"That the hearty thanks of the subscribers be presented to the matron and other members of the staff."

Sister CUNNINGTON having replied to the last resolution in a nice little speech, the proceedings terminated.

ALCOUGL IN WORKHOUSES.—A MODEL BILL.—The return, laid before the Chesterfield Board of Guardiana, on May 15, as to the consumption of intoxicants in the Chesterfield Workhouse during the year 1885 is as eatisfactory as the most ardent tectotaler could desire. The total cost of the wine, spirits and beer consumed in the whole 12 months was only £4 19s. 6jd, and as the average number of persons in the house during that period was 345, it follows that the cost was only a trifle over threepence per annum for each inmate. Evidently the "drink" has only been used for "medical purposes," and then only in homeopathic doses. It was remarked that the figures would compare invourably with those of most of the workhouses in the country. They certainly do with those of other workhouses in Derbyshire. In the Derby Workhouse, with an average of about 450 inmates, the cost of intoxicants last year w.s about £113; at Belper, with 246 immates, it was £23 17s.3d.; and at Bakewell, xib; 140 immates, it was £15 6s. 3d. In other works the cost for each immate for the 12 months was—1 Derby 5s., at Belper 2s. 8d., at Bakewell 2s. 2d., and at Chesterfield 3d.—Derby-skire Courier.

United Kingdom Band of Hope Union.

The 31st anniversary of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union was celebrated by a breakfast and public meeting at Exeter Hall, on Wednesday morning, May 19, when Archdeacon Farrar presided. Among those who delivered addresses were Mr. J. H. Raper, Canon Ellison, Mr. W. S. Shirley, M.P., Dr. Dawson Burns, &c. In the afternoon a general conference was held in the lower hall, which was presided over by Mr. J. E. Ellis, M.P. An evening meeting took place in the large hall, which was densely crowded, under the presidency of Mr. was densely crowded, under the presidency of Mr. George Williams, in the absence of the president, Mr. Samuel Morley, through iodisposition. A letter from Mr. Morley was read, in which he said:—"The longer I live and the more I think on the subject, the more I am convinced that we are grasping with the greatest evil of our day." After prayer and a hymn, rendered by a choir consisting of about 500 senior members of Bands of Hope, Mr. Charles Wakely, the general secretary, read the annual reverse which stated that the numerical increase was port, which stated that the numerical increase was most satisfactory; according to the most recent returns there were in the United Kingdom, 12,674 Bands of Hope and other juvenile Temperance societies, with a membership of 1,557,605 young people who received instruction calculated to assist them in becoming good and useful men and women. The two provincial agents held 508 meetings, attended by over 150,000 persons. In London also the work had been well sustained, 1,374 ordinary, and a large number of special meetings having been addressed by the evening agents of the union. The School Board for London having consented to the delivery of illustrated Temperance lectures in Board Schools, the society took full advantage of this permission, giving also similar varies of the permission, giving also similar lectures in refuges, orphanages, training ships, and other institutions for the young. During the year the movement had received considerable development in the colonies. The income fewent-ment in the colonies. The income from sub-scriptions, including a legacy, amounted to £1,577, a a balance of £5 remaining in hand. The report was received with cheers.—The chairman, in the course of his address, said that no other society but this could speak of such progress as they could.

Altogether they had 12,674 Bands of Hope, with a Altogether they and 12,074 ands of Hope, with a membership of 1,557,605.—The Rev. J. R. Diggle, M.A. (chairman of the School Board for London), next addressed the meeting, and said he felt bound to state that there was nothing in London which more undid the work of the London School Board than the intemperance of the people. School Beard than the intemperance of the people. The Rev. H. Price Hughes, M.A., spoke of the rapid progress which the cause of Temperance had recently made. He moved:—"That a petition be adopted by this meeting in favour of the Sale of Intoxicating Liquore Bill and forwarded to the Home Secretary for presentation to Parliament; and that Mr. S. Morley, the president, be requested to write to the Prime Minister on requested to write to the Frime Minister and the Home Secretary asking them to give facilities for the passing of this most pressing measure." (Cheers,—Mr. Raper seconded the resolution, which was passed amid loud cheers.—The Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh then moved the adoption of a petition to the House of Commons praying that an Act for atopping the sale of in-toxicating liquors during the whole of Sunday be passed for the United Kingdom.—Mr. E. Whitwell becomded the resolution, which was passed by the columntion. Addresses were also delivered by the acclamation. Rev. Ossian Davies (Tollington-park Congregational Church), the Rev. Dr. Clifford (Westbourne-park Baptist Chapel), and others, and the meeting closed with the Doxology and Benediction.

British Women's Temperance Association.

The annual meeting of the British Women's Temperance Association was held on Tuesday May 18, at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street. Mr. U. Kegan Paul, presided and there was a numerous attendance. The annual report set forth that at the close of the first year of the society's existence eight affiliated societies were reported, and now after 10 years' work they had 169 direct 'affilia-tious, which, together with the branches com-prised in the several unions and the dependencies or offshoots reported by others, made a total of 284 societies. During the past year 36 new affiliations were gained. Much of this progress was due to the drawing-room meetings which had been continued establishment of the British Women's Temperance Home, which up to the present had received much support. There was every reason for congratulation upon the progress made, but with extended means the good could be greatly increased. The financial statement shewed that the ordinary income stood at £519, an amount which was hardly sufficient to carry on the extensive operations of the association. There was at the close of the the association. There was at the close of the financial year a balance in hand of £22.—The chairman then gave an address.—Mrs. Wellstood (Edinburgh) moved that the chairman he em-(Lamburgh) moved that the chairman be empowered to sign a petition to Parliament on behalf of the meeting in favour of Sunday Closing, and Miss Brewster and Mrs. H. W. Smith (America) supported the resolution, which was agreed to.

Professor Andre's Training Schools and Alpine Choirs.

On Monday night last the second annual meeting On Monday night last the second annual meeting and concert of Brc. Professor Andrés Temperance Training Schools and Alpine Choirs was hald at Exeter Hall. The chair was to have been taken by Mr. W. S. Caine, M.P., but a telegram was received stating that he was detained at the House of Commons by an important division. All Commons by an important division. All his sympathies were, however, with the meeting. The Rev. G. M. Murphy, of the London School Board, presided. In the earlier part of the evening the members of the well-known Alpine Choir sang several pieces in a very effective manner, the Temperance Choir, under the conductable of the Personal Choir contents of the Company of the conductorship of Mr. Hoye, also giving two or three selections; the subsequent speeches being liberally interspersed with music by both sets of three selections; the subsequent speeches eliberally interspersed with music by both sets of performers. The singing of the Alpine Choir was frequently applauded. Professor Andre, in the course of a short report, explained how it was that the was led to take up the work in which he was attempted to take up the work in which he was at present engaged. Seeing so much intemperance as he went about the country he became inspired with the idea that one way to overcome that great evil was to provide a counter attraction in the shape of music, and this might easily be done, because there was not a country in the world where there was so much mosical talent amongst the young as in this. Every child might be trained for Gospel Temperance work, and the homes of all such might be music-halls, and thus the attractions of low places of amusement and of public-houses would be counteracted. Since last year he had places of amusement and of public-houses had be counteracted. Since last year he had opened a school at Brighton, where there were about 60 pupils, of whom 17 were free pupils. At Brighton, as well as in connection with his training school at Hackney, there was a Band of Hope. Pupils were taught to play man from one to four instruments. The chairwas a Eand of Hope. Pupils were taught to play upon from one to four instruments. The chairman said that Professor André had done a good work in the cause of Temperance, among other places at Liverpool, and in several large towns in the North; and as a teetotaler of 40 years standing, he (the chairman) designed to though hip for its he (the chairman) desired to thank him for it sincerely. More music less crime; more song —and especially such song as they had heard on that occasion—less sorrow in the houso. (Cheers.) The Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh house. (Creers, I he Hol. and Kev. Canon Leigh heartily congratulated Professor André upon his success, and wishing him God-speed. Of his pupils no less than 345 were young persons who were receiving a free musical education. Mr. J. H. Raper and Mr. T. H. Brand, of Boston, U.S., next addressed the meeting, the chairman stating that the last-named gentleman was about to take an Alpine choir back to America with him. After an amusing speech by Mr. George Nokes, a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was seconded by Bro. J. Kempster, brought the proceedings to a DRINK AND CRIME IN FRANCE.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says: who are in sympathy with the Blue-Ribbon move-ment will hear with interestthat in consequence of the great number of criminal cases in which French barristers have pleaded for their clients alcoholic dementia, M. Sarrien has instructed all the Prefects in France to report him on the effects of drunkenness in inciting to crime upon their several departments. The War Minister has, on his side, instituted an official inquiry into the action of liquor in reducing the health and debilitating young men so as to render them unfit for military service. In the industrial centres the Revising Bureau, which drawing-room meetings which had been continued decided what conscripts were not strong enough for with great success throughout the year. Perhaps the army, reported congenital alcoholism as the the most important work of the year had been the Jegreatest source of weakness.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MAY 25 .- SUNDAY CLOSING IN DURHAM.

The Bishor of Durham, in moving the third reading of the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday (Dusham) Bill, denied that there had been anything like clerical interference in regar't to promoting the agitation in favour of the bill, which the sturdy people inhabiting the district to which the bill applied would be the first to resent. Nonconformist and Roman Catholic uninisters were quite as eagor for the bill as clergmen of the Church of England, and the feeling of the mass of the working men in Durham was strongly in favour of it. In conclusion, the right reverend prelate enlogised those men who had devoted themselves to Temporance questions, with such cool results to the community.

The EARL OF WANYSS moved the rejection of the bill, and said the second reading was passed by the House in an unguarded moment. If, however, the bill were thrown out upon the third reading their lordships would be acting in accord with their previous attitude on this question. Although he admitted that good work had been done by Temperance advocates, he objected to the bill on account of its exceptional character, and to the general principle involved in the bill. The basis of this bill wasthat the majority of the people of Durham wished for it, but would the advocates of this bill consent to a bring he marriage law or disestablishing the Church in a particular district en a similar ground? (Hear, hear.) The results shown in Wales were stal to this elass of legislation. In Wales, with an Act, there had been an increase of 37 per cent. in convictions for Sunday drunkenness, whereas in Durham, without an Act during the same period, there had been an increase of only 20 per cent.

Lord Kensington, referring to the assertion that in Wales the Act had been a failure, said that sithough in Cardiff, Swansea, and Wrexham, drunkenness was prevalent, those three towns were not the whole Principality, and in other parts Sanday Closing had been attended with good results. Ho should vote for the third reading of the hill.

LORD NORTON intended to vote for the third reading, although he had voted against the second reading, and although he condemned the bill because it did not deal with clubs.

The Marquis of Salisbury said nobedy censured the heroic workers in the cause of Temperance, and even where their advocacy was carried to the extreme point of recommending entire abstinence, that they occupied a perfectly defensible position. It was not those who preached Temperance who were liable to censure, but those who came to Parliament and asked for the secular arm to assist them. As matters stood now, it was a sad thing to think that the only thing with regard to which the unity of religious bodies of all denominations could be relied upon was in the desire to make use of the secular power to carry into effect that which should be the result of their own high religious eloquence and teaching. (Hear, hear.) The gist of the proposition before them was that a certain and reaching. (Gear, hear.) The gist of the proposition before them was that a certain portion of the population of this country should abstain from their accustomed article of diet because a section of the population said that the temptation to consume far too much of those articles of diet was too strong for them. He had great doubt whether the majority had the right to legislate for the minority on this subject, but in proposing this paradoxical and anomalous restriction they should make themselves quite certain that they were acting according to the will of the majority of the people affected;—they should either provide machinery to ascertain the extent of the majority, or they should so act that there should he no doubt upon the point. He should vote against the bill.

EARL GRANVILLE said the whole of the noble marquis's case rested upon the denial that it was the wish of the people of Durham that this bill should pass. Upon that point he thought the argument of the promoters of the bill was unanswerable. This question was more discussed in the county during the election than any other, and these members were pledged up to their necks to vote for the bill, that being, in fact, the condition on which they were returned. The most influential class in Durham were the miners, and two of their representatives owed their return to the fact that they supported the bill, and all the Liberal members were returned on that account in consequence of the support they received from the miners. He also thought the fact that the whole of the elergy and the Nonconformiat and Roman Cath-lie ministers supported the bill was evidence that the people of Durham wished for it. The Hones divided—

MAY 25.—BEER FROM RICE.

The CHANCELOR OF THE EXCHEQUER said, in answer to Colonel Hamilton, that the use of malted rice in brewing was not a matter on which the Commissioners of Inland Revenue would be justified in offering an opinion, but he believed there was no doubt that very good beer was made from rice.

MISSION REVIVAL WORK.

[This column is for notes of progress. Tersely and briefly expressed paragraphs of news, of the institution or restoring of Lodges, and the extension of the Order invited.]

Sourn Drvon.—On May 4, a Lodge was instituted in the village of Buckfast, near Totnes. Bro. T. H. Hamley, D.C.T., Sister Symons, D.V.T., Bro. E. A. Davies, P.D.C.T., Sister Litten, W.D.T., Bro. Osmond, D.S.J.T., and Bro. Taylor, acting W.D.S., proceeded from Plymouth to Totnes by train, when they were augmented by about 20 members of the Dart Vale Lodge, the whole journeying by waggonette to the village where a public meeting was held, There was a crowded attendance, and and at the close 15 candidates were initiated, and the Hope of Buckfast Lodge was established. Bro. C. Andrews was elected W.C.T.; Sister S. Northcott, W.V.T.; Bro. Northcott, W.S. Bro. Searle was recommended as L.D., and Bro. Hunt as W.S. Hearty thanks were accorded Bro. Northcott, of the Henry Wheeler Lodge, Plymouth, for the scrive steps he had taken in the institution of the Lodge. The Plymouth friends arrived home at 1 a.m. Wednesday morning, after an excellent evening's work. A very pleasing circumstance being that there is not a single place in the village were intoxicating drinks are sold.

EAST AND MIO-SUREFY.—Under the auspices of the Open Air Mission four meetings were held on Sunday, 23rd inst. The first in Colliers'-rents, Long-lane, Borough, by the members of the Mint Ledge, Bro. C. Hill conducting, Bro. Gear and others speaking.

This is a good neithbourhood for the work. The second meeting was at Vaux-hall Cross, by the Lambeth Perseverance and Ploneer Ledges; conductor, Mr. Thew; speakers, Bro. Hinton and Mr. Wallor; singing and soles by members of Ledge; very successful and profitable. The first meeting also opened at Stockwell Green, by Bro. Hyde, D.E.S. This is under the Stockwell Hope Ledge. Speakers Bros. Brown, Stagg, Hubbard, P.D.C.T., and others. Some opposition, but fairly good meeting. The other was on The Triangle, Southwark Bridge-read, where the George Thorneloe Ledge appeared in regulia. This stand belongs to the St. D.C.A.M., and the above Ledge, by the kindness of the said mission, has two or three meetings during the season. Speakers Bros. Maiden, W.Sec., Heartfield, W.T., Gear, P.W.C.T., and Reeves, L.D. and the conductor of the meeting. Fairly successful; one pledge.

The Price of Beer. — A New Orleans paper tells of a printer who, when his fellow workmen went out to dink beer during working hours, put in the bank the exact amount which he would have spent if he had gone out to drink with them. He kept to his resolution for five years. He then examined his bank account, and found that he had on depestion to the property of the printing office, were worthless as workmen, and were discharged. The water-drinker then bought the printing office, went on enlarging his business, and 20 years from the time he began to put by his money, was worth 100,000dol.

May Meetings.—I take the liberty of encrosching on your valuable space now that the May meetings are in full swing, to bring before the readers of the Warthwore, &c., a subject which seems to me to be very important. During the last week, and for several more to come, public meetings, &c., have been, and will be, held by the supporters of different societies. &c. On looking over the list of such meetings I notice that several denominations of religion are represented. Missionary and benevolent societies are to the front. Temperance and total abstinence societies are numerous. But one Order is conspicuous (at least, to me) by its absence. I mean the noble Order of the Good Templaras. Now, why cannot the I.O.G.T. hold a public meeting annually at Exeter, Hall as well as the societies I have named? Is the because a large audience would not assemble?—I think not. Good Templars are supposed to be—and I trust really are—the leaders of the Temperance cause; they desire more than many Temperance societies, "Prohibition for the State"—why are they in the rear of the samp in this respect? I hope the Grand Lodge will before long take this matter up, and that next year the Good Templars will have a magnificent meeting at Exeter Hall, to be followed by one every May.—Percy K. Woollacort, W.Sec., William Tweedie

PRAYING "PROHIBITION" TO CON-GRESSMEN.

The chaplain of the House of Representives, Rev. Dr. W. H. Milburn, at the opening of a recent session of that body, prayed earnestly concerning drunkenness as follows:—"O God! answer, we beseech Thee, the supplications of millions of hearte ascending to Thee for the speedy close of that greatest evil of modern society—drunkenness. Linked with almost every vice and crime in a losthsome compact with gaming-houses and brothels, it burdens the criminal dockets of courts of justice, througs the poor-houses, mad-houses, gools, and gibbets, drives men to despair through the anakewreathed portals of delirium tremens, unbars the posterns of life, that they may eisk into the cowardly grave of suicide. Beginning most often in an alluring taste in the jocund bond of good-fellowship, it becomes an appetite and master-passion, which destroys the body, darkens the inteliect, blinds the moral sense, deadens the soul, drives God out of men's spirit, and, paralysing the will, binde men and women hand and foot and casts them into hell, leaving an entail of despair and wetchedness to their children." The prayer is said to have called forth applause from some total-abstaining members of Congress and expressions of displeasure from some who are not total abstainers.

NEW TEMPERANCE HALL AND GOOD TEMPLARS LONGE-ROOM, DONGASTER.—On Sunday, May 2, at 7 a.m., these rooms were dedicated to their work by a meeting for prayer, conducted by Mr. Councillor J. G. Robinson. In the afternoon a practical address was delivered by Bro. Parker, of Sheffield, and at 8 p.m. Bro. the Rev. H. J. Boyd, D.C.T., conducted the service and preached a Temperance screen. On Monday, Mr. Cass, et Gastleford, was the principal speaker, and the meeting was presided over by W. Gass, ESq. On Tuesday the speaker was Miss Capper, of Leeds, and the chairman, R. Morris, Esq. On Woneady the British Women's Association was represented by Mrs. Whiting, of Leeds, and Mrs. Priestman, of Hull, Sister Mrs. E. H. Walker presided. On Thursday the address was by Bro. J. Maline, G.W.C.T., and the chairman Bro. the Rev. H. McNiel-Minton-Senhonse. On Friday, Bro. the Rev. J. C. Hills, vicar of Belsover, was the speaker, and the chairman, E. H. Walker, Esq. On Saturday, A. Sheldrick, Esq., of Derby, gave the address, and Bro. T. Duckworth presided. On the Tlursday, there was a public teat at which about 290 sat down. All the meetings were crowded and enthusiastic, and every speaker in glowing terms spoke of the self-denying efforts of our Sister Walker, to whom we are indebted for a beautiful suite of rooms for public meetings (Good Templar Lodges, committee-rooms, &c., &c. The singing by the choir was under the direction of Bro. H. A. Blair.

THE TERRIBLE FATE OF A SMALL BODY OF MEN, AND THE FUTURE HANGING OVER

weekes men:—
"We have been living u, on a raft for 10 days, and for more than half of the time without water. We have hoped nguiest hope, and now are ready and waiting for death. Anything is better than this agony. We cannot endure it more than a few hours larger way a ressel and thought we agoog. We cannot endure it more than a few hours longer. Yesterday we saw a vessel and thought we were safe, but it passed on without seeing us. To-day we have abandoned hope. Such a death, away from friends, and in such agony, is terrible. To look into the cannon's mouth requires bravery, but to face death coming slowly, but surely, needs only despair. There is no hope."

The only difference between the experience of these men and thousands of others on land to-day is that the shipwrecked men realised their fate, while the others do not. They are in just as certain danger, but are wholly unconscious of it. They are aware that their heads pain them frequently; that the

but are wholly incensions of it. In year aware that their heads pain them frequently; that their appetite is fickle; that they are losing flesh or pos-sibly bloating; that their skin is often hot or fever-ish alternating with distressing chills; that at times ish alternating with distressing chills; that at times breathing is difficult; that the ambition is gone and deapondency frequently occurs. People notice these things but think they are caused by some cold or iodigestion, and hence give them no further thought. Any one of the above symptoms recurring at iotervals indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys which is certain to result in Bright's disease if permitted to go on unchecked. What the terrors of this terrible disease are can never be described, but it has carried off some of the finest man and most poble women. disease are can never he described, but I has carried off some of the finest men and most noble women England has ever produced. "About one-third its victims," says Dr. Roberts, the highest authority on the subject, "through neglect to take the disease promptly in hand on its first appearance, die of uremic poisoning, in convulsions or diarrhons. Many die from watery soffoation, from gangrenous erspielas in the legs and thighs, pneumonia, heart disease, appellexy, iotestinal ulcrations, prathysis, &c., all of which troubles are the result of Bright's disease." Another high anthority says:—"Diabetes and Bright's disease of the kidneys always terminate in death if discovered too late, but yield readily to treatment if taken in time. Thousands of people who past hick, yellow matter, with brickdast seilment, and complain of a slight hacksche, headache, dizziness, imperfect vision, cold back, hands and feet, general debility, &c., &c., are victims to this deadly disease, pulknown to themselves, and when, at last, overcome off some of the finest men and most noble women England has ever produced. "About one-third its nuknown to themselves, and when, at last, overcome by its exhausting influence they present themselves to by ite standard indicates they present teams: view to their medical attendant, he, nine times out of ten, will write out a prescription for malarial poison, or discovering their terrible condition, inform them that they have come 'too late.'"

To permit the kidneys to rot away or to suffer lime-

To permit the kidneys to ret away or to suffer lime-stone deposite to accumulate in the bladder is or minal carelessness, especially when it can be entirely avoided by care and the use of the proper means. For this purpose, however, there is but one known remeigy, and that is Wankel's ASPE CORE, which can be obtained from all chemists or druggists, or of H. H. Wankel and Co., 47, Farringdon-street, Lundon, E.C. It is true there are many preparations that claim to cure or re-lieve these troubles, but no remedy has ever been found that absolutely dees this except the one above mentioned. It is actually the only proprietary medicine which has ever received the unquisited andersement of the medical profession. Among the brindreds of medical men who have prescribed it and written about its wonderful properties are such lights in the profession as Dio Lewis, M.D., who stands at the very head and as Dio Lewis, M.D., who stands at the very head and front of bygicale science, and Dr. Robert A. Gunn, the well-known president of the United States Medical College, of New York City. These men are men of science who value their reputation as their life, and who would not endorse a thing noises they knew it to possess merit of the highest degree. But the thousands of men, women, and children in every nock and corner of America who have been kept from disease and saved from death by means of WANNEYS SAFE CURE speak more trely for its value than could all the endorsement of every ubvision in the land. more trely for 18 value than could all the endorse-ments of every physician in the land. They do not speak of its chemical properties, but of its healing powers. They know the value of the renedy, for it has restored them to health. The shove facts all shew that it is a duty you owe yourself and your friends to not only carefully observe and reflect upon these things but cartefully observe and reflect upon these things, but touttend to them in time.

GOOD TEMPLARS' WATCHWORD. MONDAY, MAY 31, 1886.

NINETY-SEVEN IGNOBLE LORDS.

SEVENTY noble lords voted for the third reading of the Durham Sunday Closing Bill, and 97-can we call them noble also ?-voted against it; so that the Bill was thrown out by a majority of 27. Whatever the rank or titles We met a Radical teetotal member of Parliament on the morning after the division, and he actually said he was glad the Lords had thrown out the Bill. We asked why he was glad. He said, "Because it will teach our Temperance men what they may expect from the Lords and the Tories." This was all very well from a Radical, but our Conservative they could get votes without pledging them-selves. But even the "vote for vote" policy will not reach the House of Lords, unless they so abundantly prove themselves the enemies of Temperance that teetotalers are obliged to compass the abolition of the House of Lords as a preliminary to the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Rotten vested interests have a liking for each other just as certain kinds of vermin thrive on putrefaction. We have heard some of our Temperance politicians regret that Sir Wilfrid Lawson was 50 regret that Sir Wilfrid Lawson was so strong an opponent of the Lords. Per-haps, now, spart from all party con-siderations, the recent conduct of the Lords may modify this regret, and we may recognise the sagacity of Sir Wilfrid in opposing the Lords as the defenders of the liquor interest. We do not forget that Lord Salisbury bitterly opposed the prohibition of the reversets. opposed the prohibition of the payment of wages in public houses; and his main reason was that many hundreds of publicans would be de-prived of their means of livelihood unless they were allowed thus to entrap their men at the time they received their wages, and before they could reach their wives and families. Notwithstanding any Conservative tendencies we may have had, this settled Lord Salisbury in our estimation, and his recent speech and con-duct only confirm our opinion of his duct only confirm our opinion of his callous-heartedness. It would seem that working men and their families are, in his estimation, only so many inferior creatures for rich brewers. publicans, and land owners to subsist upon. We abhor such doctrines, and could wish that all men were in some fashion converted who hold them, and that all institutions were noid them, and that and institutions were abolished that tend to slavery of drinkdom. That 97 ignoble lords, representing nobody but themselves, should thus override the will of a whole county full of working people who simply desire to live purer and nobler lives, and to free themselves from enticements to intemperance upon their one day of rest-be it their Sabbath or their secular holidsy-is a scandal and a disgrace. Punch once had a picture of some miners who saw a clergyman approaching, and on one of their number saying who he was, another remarked, "Heave a hrick at him." This we took to indicate Punch's estimate of the low brutality of the men. What will Punch say now when the men of Durham clamour for a sober Sunday, and when 97 ignoble lords deny them the simple justice of self-govern-ment in so righteous a direction? We would not say to the Durham miners, "Heave a brick at Salisbury"; but we should certainly regard it Sailsbury, one we should certainly regard as a healthy sign, when any of these 97 tom-noddies may parade themselves in the Durham coalfields, if they should meet with an unmistskably warm reception.

In another column we give an article on Good Templary, from "Hazell'e Annual Cyclopedia," which comprises much matter, intended to be a eyclopædia of current institutions, events, and con-temporary individuals. It is a remarkable work of some 600 pages, and contains nearly 2,000 articles. It is edited by E. D. Price, F.G.S.

THE DEATH OF LADY OGLE, P.G.W.V.T.

We have to record the death of one of the early friends of our Order, and one who, having given it the advantage of her name and influence, in its early days, retained her membership up to the time of her decease. Lady Ogle filled the office of G.W.V.T. in the year 1873-74, having been elected to that office at the Bristel session of the Grand Lodge of England.

The late Lady Ogle, of Withdeane Court, near Brighton, was Lady of the Manor of Withdeane, daughter of the late William Thomas Roe, Esq., Commissioner of Customs and Chancellor of the Commissioner of Customs and Chancellor of the Commissioner of Customs and Chancellor of Customs and Customs and Chancellor of Customs and Customs a Commissioner of Clustoms and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancashire; granddaughter of the late Sir E. Dering, Bart., of Surrenden-Dering, Kent; niece of the late Sir Frederick Adair Ree, Bart., formerly Chief Magistrate at Bow-street; and widow of the late Captain Sir Chalmer Ogle, who was the eldest som of Admiral Sir Charles Ogle. Her husband died in 1839. In the vicinity of Brighton, Lady Ogle was known for her Christian benevolence and active sympathy with the poor. Her private chapel and mission-hall were centres of Christian work, and her purse was largely drawn upon for the relief of the temporal necessities of those around her, as well as for ministering to their spirituel advancement.

Her interest in the Temperance movement was shewn by personal effort and abstinence, as well as by financial aid. She first signed the pledge to induce an old and faithful servant—a victim to intemperance—to do the same, and her influence and example thus saved one who intemperance—to do the same, influence and example thus saved one who lived afterwards for some years a consistent Christian life, and whose end was perfect peace. Lady Ogle kept a pledge-book and cards, and was unwearied in her efforts to reclaim the fallen and to watch over the reasonal. wearing in her enorth to reclaim the faller and to watch over the rescued. A Total Abstinence Society and Band of Hope were carried on at Windsor Hall, her ladyship's mission hall, before Guod Templary existed at Brighton, and on Bro. arsens helding a meeting there to recommend the Order, a Lodge was instituted, called the Withdeane Court Lodge, No. 908, and Lady Ogle became its W.C.T., and was subsequently elected W.D. Treasurer for the Sussex District. In August, 1872, the second Convention of the Order In August 10.2, the second convention of the Other for the county of Sussex was held in the chapel and grounds of Withdeane Ceurt, which was attended by the G. The death of Lady Ogle occurred on May 12, at the age of 62. She had long been a confirmed invalid, having lost her sight for some years past. Her remains were buried on the 17th inst. in the Brighton Extra Mural Cemetery, and a large converse of the poor as well as many distinguished. course of the peor as well as many distinguished

We learn from the Brighton Gazette that "the mournful procession left Withdeane Court at 1 o'clock, and slowly wended its way along the Preston-road, which was lined with spectators of all ranks of acciety, and who, almost one and cill reverse the state of the second state of the secon all ranks of seciety, and who, almost one and all, reverently lifted their hats and remained bare-headed as the cortége passed. Many of the places of business were also partly closed, and signs of mourning were very generally observable. Passing slowly through the rapidly increasing throng of onlookers, many of whom turned and joined in the procession many of whom turned and joined in the procession of pedestrians which followed the vehicles, the procession proceeded by way of Round Hill-crescent and Upper Lewes-road to the Extra Mural Ceouctery, at the gates of which it was joined by a fresh and numerous contingent of the public. The scene was solemnly impressive as the long string of carriages, followed and flanked on either side by hundreds of pedestrians, slowly wended its way up the treepedestrians, slowly wended its way up the tree-shaded arenue leading to the burial ground, the monotonously even tolling of the bell for the dead, and the semi-gloom occasioned by the leafy foliage of the trees overhead influencing the slowly advancprinciples overhead influencing the slowly advancing crowd to silence, until, save for the sound of the wheels and of the feet of the pelestrians, silence prevailed. On reaching the gate of the chapel a short

J. O. Gregory, Incumbent of Emmanuel kard. It would have been well if he had gone Church, and the Rev. Mr. Jackson (Vian of Patcham). The service was peculiarly impressive, drawn. By the time the first portion of the service had been brought to a conclusion some 700 or 800 people had assembled round the special space which had been reserved for the grave. This was railed off with an iron palisading which was draped with their A mined paliform was placed cound. with black. A raised platform was placed round the grave, covered with crimson cloth, and at the of the grave the enclosure was banked up with head moss and growing plants and the wreaths which had been sent were also deposited here, while the coffin was awaiting its lowering to the grave. Numerous wreaths were deposited by loving hands, and the report further states that was present at the concluding portion of the sad rites could fail to be struck by the wide range of sympathy and respect which was exhibited by those had flocked to the grave. The humbler life, amongst whom her ladyship classes of life, amongst whom her ladyship had gained such a well-deserved reputation for philanthropy, were largely represented. It was noticeable, too, that in nearly every case was noticeable, too, that in nearly every case some effort had been made to shew by an outward compliance with conventionality the respect and regret which lay buried beneath. The scanty plece of crape, the well-worn and threadbare black gloves, and the much brushed black hat, testified, as plainly as words, to the hearty and sincere desire of the humbler section of the assembly to combine with genuine and unfeigned sorrow the orthodox outward signs of mourning. The concluding senoutward signs of mourning. tences of the service were uttered amidst a pro-found silence amidst which the sound of earth falling upon the coffin could be distinctly heard as the Rev. J. G. Gregory pronounced the solumn passage 'Ashes to ashes, and dust to dust.' Before the concluding hymn was sung he delivered a brief and thing exhortation to those present. He said there were many of them gathered together who loved so much hary dear departed sister, and they could not let them depart without one word. God had taken their dear sister home, she was absent from them their dear sister hold, she was assent from their in the body and was present with the Lord in the spirit. Where was she now? She was now with Jesus where He reigns supreme shining in bright ness, where no tears nor sighs should be. One word to the neighbours of the departed one. It might be but a little while, and they too must be ready to meet the grave. Jesus died for her, and He had taken her. Jesus died for us all, and he would take us all; how precious were the words 'Come unto Me all ye that are heavy laden and I will give you rost, Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast What a loving speech. He would in no ways out. What a roving speech. He would in no ways cast out any who came to Him. The Order was represented at the funeral by Bros. Major S. Williams, D.C.T.; J. Nisbet, D.E. Supt.; G. Cooper, D.C.L.; Sir. E. Paulson, D.Y.T.; and Bro. H. Sauuders. Lady Ogle's own Lodge was represented by Sister B. Reed, W.C.T., and Bro. A. Peters, L.D., and many other Good Templars.

VIRTUES OF LITTLE-DROP DRINKING.

BRO. REV. W. SPURGEON, Stourbridge, writes :-When reading the address of the Rev. Edward White I was not a little surprised and pained that one so undoubtedly able should use his dignified position as Chairman of the Congregational Union, for the purpose of making slighting and unjust references to the great Temperance question. One was led to wonder whether he had ever fully considered the subject; for surely a study of the Spirit, not only ofour Lord's life and teaching, but of the whole New Testament, will lead to th conclusion that in view of the admitted evil (evil conclusion that in New of the admitted evil (evil that like a cancer is eating out our national life), absolute and universal abstinence from all fer-mented liquors is demanded, not only in the interests of trade and morals, but for the spiritual good of the people. Mr. White has strangly mixed up the question of the moderate drinker and the drun-It would have been well if he had gone ance begins. Every day experience proves to us that large numbers of the temperate of to-day are on the way to fill the ranks of the degraded, who shall infallibly be consigned to the abyss of perdition."

Agaio, Mr. White talks as though the Temperate Agaio, Mr. White talks as though the Temperate Christian men were as likely as the abstainers, or more so, to feel deeply for the victims of the drink. But where are the facts of the case? Why, that those who are clean from all connection with the drink will not only abour more heartily, but more successfully. perience teaches that the drunkard is seldom influenced by the moderate drinker. It is far more likely that the person warned shall cry back to his likely that the person warned shall cry back to his brother, who loves his clarat and port, "Physician heal thyself." One more, Mr. White sneaks as though the heat alies of the Temperance movement are the Christians who take a little. But, sir, those who lave been for years at work resouing the perishing could tell this divine that the greatest difficulties of their work have arisen from the person be so lauds. These respectable professors sons he so lauds. These respectable professors who never get too much are the people who have given a status and power to the drink it could never otherwise have had. But, alsa, how many never otherwise have had. But, alsa, how many trying to follow them have gone too far, and now their blood is required at the hands of those who preferred to please themselves rather than give up a little for the brethren for whom Christ died. I know your space is limited, and so let me say that I trust this achieve will be discussed in say that I trust this subject will be discussed in every District Lodge in the country, and so shall good come out of evil. In my own District Lodge of Worcestershire, on Monday, we had a very long and warm debate, resulting in a resolution being unanimously carried expressing our deep regret unanimously carried expressing out deep egico-that so good a cause should have been so misrepre-sented.—W. SPURDEON, Stourbridge. "S," the Alliance News London correspondent, observes:—It would be difficult to crowd a greater number of greater fallacies into the same compass than were collected into the few remarks on T perance by the Rev. Edward White in his address to the Congregational Union of England and Wales. to the Congregational Union of England and Wales. The evidence thus afforded by Mr. White of his ignorance of the question can alone account for his ability to make such an uttorance in the presence of men, a majority of whom may be supposed to enjoy a tolerable acquaintance with the subject. The situation is about as ludicrous as would be the grave enunciaion of the Ptolomaic theory of astronomy in the hearing of a company of modern scientists. Mr. White is a very good man, and can forcibly expound what he understands; but his interest in the Temperance Reform has never been strong, and he has proved, once for all, that he is enabled to rank among the agnostics while lecturing those who possess the information of which he ia

A NOVEL EXPERIMENT.

A NOVEL BALLMANDA.

An interesting incident was witnessed at the annual meeting of the Total Abstinence Branch of the Church of England Temperance Society, at Freter Hall under the presidency of the Bishop of Durham. In order to exemplify the social improvement effected by abstinence from intoxicating beverages, and the evils attendant on the beverages, and the evils attendant on the drink system, a series of "transformation scenes" was exhibited, the process being a novel invention by the Transformation Printing Syndicate (Reid's Patent), of 34, Fenchurch-street. Two life-size representations were displayed of a dissipated and unkempt individual sufficient from the affects of always are recommended. individual suffering from the effects of debauchery, and on the pictures being "sponged off" with water they revealed the familiar form and face of the late Mr. J. B. Gough, the eminent Temperance reformer and lecturer. A number of smaller plates were distributed amongst the audience, under the title of "A Startling Change," the picture of an a oject drunkard leaving a pawnshop, and striking his ragged boy whe cries for food, being converted, by the simple application of sponge and water, into by the simple application of sponge and waves, into a well-attired, sober, and respectable citizen, leading along a well-clad, smiling child. The effect of the "transformations" upon the crowded audience was immense, and was received with enthusiastic applause. The exhibition was conducted by Mr. Tyrrell, the indefatigable manager of the publication department of the Church of England Temperance Society, whose efforts were most successful. This novel process is adopted for sketches and advertisements for social, political, and commercial purposes, and is quite unique in its attractive effects.—City Press.

The f. W.b. Ti Note Book.

THE GOVERNMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES have added Bro. Alexander Hutchinson, G.W.C.T. of New South Wales, to the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the evils arising from the Drink Traffic.

The Metrologican District Executive met on the Surrey side on Saturday, May 15, and organised for receiving the Grand Lodge of England in annual session at Easter, 1887. I had the pleasure of being present and noting the determination to make the essession the most memorable ever held.

THE JOURNAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL TEM-FREANCE CONGRESS, recently held at Antworp, is issued in the Freuch language, at the low price of 1s., post free 1s. 3d. It contains the several papers read there, including my own, on "A Century of Temperance Teaching" We can supply a few copies from our Grand Lodge office.

THE PROGRAME OF EXCENSION LOOSE (No. 34) Alderly Edge, is a neat folded card, on the back of which it is announced that "Gospel services are held each Sunday afternoon," and also that a Band of Hope in connection with the Lodge meets fortnightly. It might also try to start a Senior Juvenile Temple, if touly met in the intervening weeks. A Senior Temple is a splendid stepping-stone to the adult Lodge.

Grand Longe members did not know that on the Tuesday after Grand Lodge Session Bro. Edward Hall, of Middlessex, was to take part in an especially happy ceremony. On that day, at Malvern, he secured as his wife Sister Agnes Langley, daughter of Bro. and Sister Langley, whose excellent little hydropathic establishment in that charming resort is known and appreciated by many Good Templars, who have sought and found health there. I was "best man" for Bro. Hall on the occasion, and, of course, wished the principals all possible happiness.

A CONTENTED ANY truly says that :—Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T. of England, in a paper on "A Century of Temperance Teaching," read at the International Conference in Antwerp, gave as a result of the movement that there are now in Great Britain and Ireland, not fewer than 10,000 total abstinence societies for adults, and an equally large number for children. All these are estimated to have about 2,500,000 abstaining members. It is supposed that there are an equal number of unattached abstainers — adults and children — thus giving a grand total of 5,000,000 in a population of 35,000,000, or one in seven.

The Newbork Band of Hope Union invited our Grand Lodge Executive to a recherché breakfast, which was specially given in our honour, on Easter Wednesday morning, but pressing official duties precluded several from attending, but they sent able proxies. Those representing the G.L. Executive were Sister Robson, G.W.V.T.; Bro. Rev. J. Aston, G.W. Chaplain; Evo. R. Mansergh, P.G.W.Co., and Sister A.E. Eccles, P.W.D.V.T., all of whom made excellent speeches, after Sister Young, P.G.S.J.T., had, by special request, read an admirable paper on Temperance work among children, which was highly appreciated. The occasion was a most enjoyable one, and the Newport friends well merited the thanks accorded to them by the Grand Lodge for their hospitality.

The Annual Report of the Sussex-street Mission at Brighton, of which Bro. J. J.Jones is Missionary, says:—'On Monday evenings a Good Templars Lodge is held, which numbers 147 members, the largest in Brighton. For the information of the uninitiated it may be stated that this is in every way self-supporting society of total abstainers. The members are bound together in a bond of brotherhood, which feeling is often practically shewn in cases of need. The meetings are of a social, educational character, and always commenced by devotional exercises. These meetings have done an excellent work in 'rescuing the fallen and eaving others from falling.' On Tuesday evenings similar gatherings are held for the young, over which Mrs. Jones precides. Youths and children to the number of 100 avail themselves of this cupportunity of being trained in the virtues of Temperance, mechaes, and the work among young people would be heartily welcomed at the meetings, and, we venture to think, repaid for any trouble taken in attending."

THE GAMBLING MANIA.

The month of May is always an eventful one to the sporting and pleasure-seeking fraternity of our land, from the fact that it is the first menth in the year in which outdoor sports and annessments can be indulged in with any degree of enjoyment. Few sights are more cheefful than that of a large number of men and youths joining heartily in some manly English aport, such as cricket, running, jumping, or the like; and the parks and commons in and surrounding our large towns provide excellent opportunities for those confined in factories and warehouses to obtain the recreation so much needed to revitalise their mental and bodily faculties. The rapid advance made in cycling during the past few years has also provided a new and healthful pastime by which many are enabled to leave the snocky cities behiod, and enjoy a few hours of pure and invigorating country air. All this, however, is the best side of sport as practiced.

The recurrence of the great Epsom carnival gives rise to reflections the reverse of pleasurable. Here we see what may be called the dark side of English life. I can well imagine the excitement of horseracing, the nearest parallel to which I should say is bicycle tacing. There is nothing I enjoy so much as to witness half-a-dozen men struggling for the supremacy of the cinder track, and I would fain believe there are yet to be found in athletic and cycling circles those who think more of the homour of championship than of the prizes they receive. And if horse racing were carried out on this principle, most of the objections to it would be removed. But we know that this so-called "national sport" is nothing more or less than a means by which men may indulge in gambling, swindling, and deception of the very worst description.

It is hardly possible to find words strong enough to describe and condemn betting and all its attendant evils. When once indulged in there is nothing—excepting, perhaps, the use of strong drink—which seems to have a greater fascination for, and hold upon its victims, than gambling. If men lose their all to-day, they will contrive or scheme some device for getting money to stake again the next day in the hope of retrieving their position. And so they will gon till credit, respect, and honour are all sacrificed to feed this terrible mania. Would it be too much to say that in London alone tens of thousands of pounds will change hands over the result of last Wednesday's Derby? If the secrets of many could be laid bare, I am afraid we should find that some of those supposed to be in positions of affluence and prosperity, are upon the verge of ruin, their estates mortgaged up to the full value—everything staked in the hope that at last their "turn of luck," would come, and fortune be regained.

But the evil is not confined to the upper classes. Led on by the vain promises of "tipstera," working men—and this class includes all dependent upon the produce of their labour for a living—are tempted to put a few shillings on some horse, sure to win, and bring them in a large interest for their "investment." An idea of the extent to which betting is carried on amongst this class may be obtained any week day by walking along Fleet-street, where hundreds may be seen eagerly coming sporting papere and "racing guider," fand 'holding conferences with persons standing in the immunerable courts on either side of the street. Homes are neglected, wires and children are deprived of food and clothing, and the money which should be spent for these purposes finds its way into the bookmaker's pocket. Even if men do "spot the winner," did you ever hear of money won in this way ever doing a man any good? Invariably it finds its way into the public-house, or else is staked upon another animal only to be finally lost. A sport which is productive of nothing better than gambling, drinking, blasphemy, and dishonesty, is certainly not worthy the name of "national."

The evil, however, ie not confined to the race-course; and, I am afraid, unless some vigorous measures are taken, it will degrade many of our most healthy and needful patimes to such an extent that no respectable man will be able to take part in them. You have only to attend the principal athletic and cycle meetings and you will see aweepetakes and betting openly arranged and carried on. Then, again, there is beat-racing. Can anybody doubt that "arrangements" are semetimes made, and that men, when brought out by professional bookmakers, row according to the orders they receive from their employers? All this kind of thing is demoralising true sport, though it is by no means confined to the class generally termed professionals.

Some time ago, I believe, the Jockey Oluh adopted a rule forbidding betting amongst jockeys, but I do net think the A.A.A. has any law prohibiting athletes betting on the result of racea they may take part in. If there is such a rule, it is practically a dead letter. The effect of this is that the results of some of the most important amateur races are influenced by the "market price," to be obtained on some of the runners. Cases are known where men have ran badly for two or three races on purpose to get well handicapped in a big event, when they will back themselves and secure a large stake. Only the other day I heard of a case where something similar to this was done, and the excuse given was that "you must make a little for yourself sometimes; the training and other expenses are so heavy a youn fellow cannot stand them." Of course it is hard to detect such cases, but that they do occur is a well known fact.

Another objectionable feature has been introduced within the last few years, and has now grown to such dimensions as to call for some protest on the matter. I refer to the smoking concerts so general amongst clubs holding weekly meetings. Can you imagine anything more contradictory than a body of men engaging in a healthy exercise for some hours, ostenably with the object of invigorating and resuscitating their bodily strength, and then immediately afterwarde going into a close and confined room, and sit till late at night amid the fumes of tobacco smoke and alcoholic drink. The gatherings are nothing but a revival of the tap-room scenes of former days, and they are exerting a most injurious influence upon the health and morals of those taking part.

Thus we find that eport in England is fast degenerating into nothing more than a means for betting, gambling, and dissipation. Of course there are many bright exceptions, and men are to be found who act honourably irrespective of the plans and schemes of others. We want to see this number multiplied, and a determined and recelute effort made to rid our national pastimes of blacklegs and gamblers. As escala and Temperance references it is our duty to strive to stem this terrible betting fever, for it is ruining and 'degrading all classes of society.

Not only in our Juvenile Temples must we warn the children on this matter, and teach them to shun the first step towards it as they would shun the taking of strong drink; we must also endeavour to counteract the evil in our workshops, warchouses, and factories, and by both practice and precept dissountenance it in every way. Let athletes and others come out from those clubs where gambling in any form is carried on, and also refuse to affiliate themselves with others where emoking and drinking appeare to be the chief pastime of some. If some can be found to do this, then there is hope for true sport in England.

ALCOHOL AS A MEDICINE.—At a meeting of the clamberwell Board of Guardiane, on May 19, the clork submitted a return of the cost of wine and spirits issued upon medical certificates for outdoor relief from 1870 to 1885. The details resulting to 1870, 207; 1877, 244; 1873, 246; 1879, 222; 1884, 223; 1881, 223; 1881, 223; 1882, 223; 1883, £26; 1884, £22; 1885, £16. Dr. Greene, at whose suggestion the return was prepared, expressed satisfaction at it, and added that he thought the time was coming when no alcohol would be given.—Dr. Massey: You wouldn't prevent us using a little would you? CHARACTER DRESS AND KISSING GAMES.

Bro. A. E. Stevens, W.C.T., Guildford, writes:—I was very pleased to see your leading article this week in Warchword. It can only be a certain class of people who have no respect (or at least very little) for themselves who would think of indulging in such things. For myself, the least seen of them the better. Members would be leave seen of them the better. Members would be leav-ing our Lodges, and fathers of families would object to see their daughters, and maybe their sens object to see their daugnters, and maybe their sons, join an Order so situated. Such is my opinion, and of all members I have spoken with on the subject.

May all such things be kept out of our loved Order.

BRO. HARRY AINSWORTH, W.C.T., Love and Unity Lodge, Folkestone, writes:—I would like to ask Bro. R. Matthews how he reconciled his opening charge as W.C.T., "We are here to work, let us Bro. R. Matthews how he reconciled his opening charge as W.C.T., "We are here to work, let us do so, and thus advance our common cause and honour God." Being myself only a recroit in the Order, and perhaps uot so well taught as our D.G. W.C.T., I would like to know. I am a W.C.T. this term, and desirous of promoting the good of the Order, but I do not see how kissing games are going to do it. My Ledge only meets for two hours once a week. I cannot see how kis ob bring in the so-called harmless and healthy recreation.

If he would explain how ace how to bring in the so-called harmless and healthy recreasion. If he would explain how he did it, perhaps ours might do likewise. My experience, which as I have stated is only very limited, proves the contrary. The Lodges that have solid work, lectures, and Gospel Temperance meetings, are the Lodges I find thrive. If the brother had been at the East Kent District meeting, this week, I think he would have learnt that in this end of England we do not want kissing games in the Lodges, and I sincerely hope and pray that they never will be allowed.

Bro. A. G. Havater D.G. W.C.T. Artisop.

Bro. A. G. HEMSLEY, D.G.W.C.T., Artisan Lodge, Middleest, writes:—I fail to see any reason why you should be astounded at the first correspondent's statements on account of his pesition, as there are many, I anticipate, even higher officials, will advecate above subjects. The Order, we learn with regret, has decreased in its membership during several past years. I fear the declension will continue now the Grand Lodge has prohibited kissing games. The proceeds of the soirées (believe most Ledges have one every quarter) are the principal support of the Lodges paying their way. I must admit that the majority of those who way. I must admit that the majority of those who attend these gatherings are young people who will not attend soirées unless kissing games are indulged in. I coincide with Bro. Matthews that it is silly talk about the immorality of the games. These games are no more likely to tend to immorality than the attendance of the sisters at the the ordinary Lodge esssions or public meetings, where both sexes meet; and being a fraternal Order, they will become, and are expected to be, acquainted with each other, as brothers and sisters ought to be, which I resume to be the true spirit of the Order. Then as to character dress. I am not a believer in the drama, which I should not think any member of our Order desired to perform in the Lodge-room; that I do believe in a good sketch, which has an exhalt of the order. our Order desired to perform in the Lodge-room; but I do believe in a good sketch, which has an ex-cellent moral attached to it, not only because it is in accordance with the times, but it will draw those who spend most of their spare time in publichouses away to witness an innocent farce, who would not otherwise attend to listen to a speech would not otherwise attend to listen to a speech upon total abstinence only.

Bro. A. PATERSON, W.D.S. East Cumberland, writes:—"Your able leader, which I heartily en-dorse, might with safety be taken as a complete answer to Bro. Matthews, but there are some very misleading statements in his letter, which as a mem-ber of this District I am bound to take notice of. ber of this District I am bound to take notice of. The statement with respect to the success of the Anchor Lodge, in the matter of numbers I freely admit; but at what cost have they arrived at this position? By driving out the intelligent Temperance workers and filling their places will young members, some mere children; and such has been their conduct under the influence of the "simple games" (sic) that the Lodge has had to come under the discipline of the District Executive more they come to the grif of the intelligent and the discipline of the District Executive more than once, to the grief of the intelligent and more earnest Temperance workers of that Lodge. With respect to the petty sneer about "Goody-goodyism, and amateur eleries" and the wisdom of worshipping in chapels, &c., little need be said farther than this; that although not one of be said acting tide. The state of the state daily actions of their lives and lived it, and did not put it off and on with their Sunday clothes. Tears shed under a moving sermon on a Sunday make no atonement for deeds done on a Monday. The statement, "I know for a positive fact that had the six Lodges in Carlisle been polled 95 per cent. would have voted in favour of games," is a gross libel upon the Good Templars of Carlisle. There are six Lodges with a total membership of 358, and dare our brether assert, with the hope of being believed, that there are no more than 17 or 18 members of the Order in Carlisle who are opposed menuers of the Order in Carlisle who are opposed to the tomfoolery and mountebank work which is the result or outcome of these games? Individually, I must protest against such an assumption for it is not a fact; and I very much doubt whether the members of the Anchor Ledge will thank Ben Mathema for helling the Lodge will thank Bro. Matthews for holding them up to the contempt of the Order hy saying that out of a membership of 110 in their Ledge there is but five or six who are really not above being classed among the foolish ones of the day. "Positive facts" such as these when examined by the light of common-sanse, shew the utter worthlessness of the whole case our brother tries to make out; and I am not surprised that you should express your astonishnot surprised that you should express your astonishment that any one holding the position he does, much less a father of a family, should advocate such things, totally forgetting or ignoring the objects of our Order—the reclamation of the druokard, and total suppression of the traffic in drink

Bro. E. Kentish, London, late of the Isle of Wight, writes :- I am not one who practises much wight, writes:—I am not one who practises much the very enjoyable act of osculation, but all the talk and twaddle adverse to it I characterise as perfectly uncalled for and imposing. Anyone would perfectly uncastled for and imposing. Anyone would think that if we minigle in a kissing game we are bound to kiss everyone and anyone of the opposite sex. Not a bit of it. You can join in the game, and play it for two or three hours and not be compelled to give or receive a single kiss. Read the words at the commencement of the WATCHWORD— "Policy—Broad; allowing Lodges to act according to locality." &c. Now, if a locality ing to locality," &c. Now, if a locality favour kissing games, why try to interfere with it when net a vestige of sin is committed or thought of, or a single item of Good Templary violated? It seems to me that the foremost and almost only objectors are married members, who can't partake of the games themselves, and so wish to have it ad the games themserves, and so want to have it abolished altogether from the younger folk. I fully endorse every word Bro. Matthews has said in his letter, and believe that (innocent as some may seem on the subject) there is scarcely a Lodge in England who do not at times have, desire, approve and wish the retention of harmless kissing games for these who like tham.

Bro. E. R. Pickerr, Paddington Lodge, London, writes:—As a member of the Paddington Lodge, I may say that when we discussed the Grand Lodge proceedings, there was not a single member in favour of the new bye-law. It was regarded by all the members as an interference with our personal liberty, and they did not consider that our Grand Lodge was carrying out its professed broad policy. I have personally canvassed the opinion of some 18 or 20 Lodges in Middlesex, and can guarantee that 98 per cent. of the members reented the prohibition.

Bro. "Jackson Martindal," Frizzington, writes: Thanks for re-opening the discussion on this quesinitiatory ceremony—"of necessity brief." You are right, it is the province of the official organ to support the decisions of Grand Lodge, of which it support the decisions of Grand Lodge, of which it is the mouthspiece. I go further, and say, it is the prevince of every member of our Order to advocate, through the official organ, anything that may tend to promote the "Good of the Order." Therefore, if any member can give practical proof of the two prohibited practices, that have, for the last 15 years, under comparatively little or no restraint, been the means of grace of reclaiming any single individual ways or waveful one atthem. single individual, ave, or married one either, or the means whereby any Lodge has been kept from collap-sing and permanently secured the stability of such Lodge, "let him now declare it or for ever after bold his peace." But it would be well that our hold his peace." But it would be well that our membership should have a clear and ungarbled definition of the prohibitory bye-laws, so that they may realise their true position in the matter. It is only meant (as I understand the ruling or deciaion of Grand Lodge) that at any entertainment or public meeting got up under the auspicas of any Lodge or number of Lodges, that the two matter and not confuse the meaning, I will ask the matter and not confuse the meaning, I will ask the G.L. Executive to clearly settle this point, viz., a number of Lodges organise an entdoor demonstration and picnie, to which the "(general public" are invited, and charged an entrance fee to the grounds. Many young people pay their admission fee, to whom the Temperance speeches are unsavory, owing to the diffigulty of the of getting them within pale of the speaker's influence, and they, "the public," commence these questionable games. Question: Is the Committee of Management to take action and stop the "little game," or—what is to be done in such an event? Also, Question No. 2: In what position do our Liverpool members stand in relation to the bye-law by their recent action at the demonstration in honour of her Majesty's visit to the City in their representation of the "Drunkard's Home" versus the "Teetetaler's Home" An answer to these two questions will very much oblige.

BEO. W. CANN, P.D.C.T. (South Devon), writes:

—Personally, I am delighted that the Grand Lodge took such a stand at its last session on the abovo subject. In this District (South Devon) we have materially suffered on account of these so-called parlour games, which would be better described 'tca-garden' games. My experience is that these games are usually adopted when the funds of the games are usually adopted what the funds of the Lodge have become low, and then our Lodge-rooms are thrown open to the public. Two or three Lodges in this District resorted to those games, but ultimately found that they did not pay, and to-day they barely exist. The Eliott Lodge, which held its 15th anniversary on the 21st, has held its own for members as compared with other Lodges in the neighbourhood for years; has its monthly prayer meeting and devotional exercises, and last week on paying a fraternal visit to the James Teare Lodge, at Devouport, high culogy was passed by one of the oldest members of the Lodge, visited on the entertainment given, and warmly endorsed by all the other members present—the singing, readings, recitations and addresses being well chosen. Said the brother: "If more such food as chosen. Said the brother: "It more such loog as that provided to night was given in our Lodges we should not see so many who, after having been with us for a short time, depart with a bad impression of the doings in our Order." I know for a fact that had the Lodges in Plymouth been polled as large a percentage would have been against the games as that said to be for them at Carlisle. It is evident that the Templars of Carlisle, It is evident that the Templars of Carlisle and Plymouth are at extremes in this matter as they are geographically; and I trust we shall always be opposed to such questionable tactics in trying to stay the leakage in our mem-

Bro. J. W. Johnson, P.W.C.T., S.D., and Degree Secretary, Carlisle, writes:—I think Bro. Matthews has largely overrated the facts in his estimate of those who would have voted for the kissing games, wisely and justly prohibited by last G.L. Session. I quite concur with Bro. Matthews' Order has been decreasing, and the decrease is mainly owing to the fact that those idiotic kissing games have been allowed to exist so long in our Lodges, for they have driven the more intelligent, tried, and trusted of our members from us. And I will just call your attention to the following facts (which can easily be proved). In 1879, before kissing games took such a prominent part in our Order, East Cumberland could boast of having 21 Lodges with a total membership varying from 900 to 1,000. In 1886, with those kissing games to the front, East Cumberland has only 11 to the front, East Cumberland has only 11 Lodges, with a membership of about 500, and deeply deplores the loss of half their Lodges and half their members. Then another instance: In 1880, a Lodge named the Good Templars' Home, in Carlisle, was commenced for the purpose of carrying on these games, and they gamed themselves out of existence in about two scottles them as our believe as well. months; they never making a return. These are positive facts, which I am able to prove. I am surprised at Bro. Matthews, the father of a family, saying he would sooner see his daughters take part in these games than look in at a print shop window. Can any young woman think much of herself, who comes forward in a public audience into the centre of a room, and allows herself to be kissed by from six to 12 young men, who, in a great many cases, may be utter strangers to her. Her parents cannot have much regard for their daughter's character to permit or advocate such doings as those alluded trust that now those games are prohibited our

ON WINKING.

Rev. Sam Small, during the late revival services in Chicago, referred to the subject of "winking" as follows:—"A great deal is done nowadays with a wink of the eye. It means sometimes an invitaa wink of the eye. It means sometimes an invita-tion or a conspiracy; so a man who wants a drink and don't want to speak out, winks. 'A member of the Christian church don't want to be seen going into a bar-room by his fellow members, but he may be seen rushing into a drug store and going to the end and winking and getting be seen rushing into a drug store and going to the end and winking and getting whisky. So he will wink at a druggist and get a prescription that is whisky, and a little water. A man pretending to keep a drug store for that purpose is an abomination to the Lord. He should be honest, and instead of the pestle and mortar as a sign, put up 'whisky saloon.' He is a barkeeper, and agent of the devil to damn his fellow citizens. Then a father winketh his eye in teaching his child to drink! Many a father who says ho was never known to be drunk in his life, has found his child a besotted drunkard in the gutters of a city. Wy father used to be one of these reof a city. My father used to be one of those re-spectable drinkers, but he woke up one day and found that his son had become a drunkard in attempting to be a moderate drinker. Many a man who has prided himself that he had power to control his conduct as to liquor finds that he has been a curse to his son, and so a God-fearing father who a curse to his son, and so a God-fearing lather who winks at it, keeping liquor in the house, or at the office, and the precious souls of their children became debauched and damned by liquor, cannot avoid the consequences, for God will judge them at the har on judgment day. Such winking is an abunination to God."

OBITUARY.

Bro. John T. Marshall.—It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of Bro. John T. Marshall, of Betheeda Lodge, Sheffield, who died, after a long and painful illness on Tuesday, May 11, leaving a wife and two children to mourn his loss. He has been a member of the above Lodge for a number of years, and, until prevented by illness was a recular studyer of the standards of the stand above Lodge for a number of years, and, with prevented by illness, was a regular attender at his Lodge. The funeral took place on Saturday, May 15, at the Burngreave-road Cemetery, Sheffield, and 15, at the Burngreave-road Cemetery, Sheffield, and was attended by a good number of members of the Order from various Lodges in the town. After the usual ceremony, Bro. H. R. Akers, L.D. of Rialto Lodge, read the Good Templar service in a very impressive manner, after which all present sang No. 104 in Moody and Sankey's book, entitled, "Home at Last,"—S.A.

OF THIS COUNTRY

IS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit or the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eves are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous. irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive: the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eves become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness, All these symptoms are in turn present.

population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

THE CURSE OF DRUNKEN-

THE CURSE OF DRUNKENNESS my three particulars are as follows:—Drunkenness is a habit, follows: —Drunkenness is a habit, a sin, and a disease. Notice both a sin and a disease, and the sin causes the disease. Where the habit ends and the sin begins, I habit ends and the say. "I shall not pretend to say. "I speak as unto wise men, judge ye." Also where the sin ends and ye." Also where the sin enus and the disease begins, I am unable to tell. This much I may predor our the Habit of drinking is under our own control: the Sin is a subject for the minister to deal with; and for the Disease, we call in the doctor. This habit is not a ridinghabit, but an ever-riding habithabit that brings many a man and many a woman to their lest shift.

People say that the curse of strong drink lies in the abuse—they "like to see a man that can either take it or want it." (These are the people who are always either taking drink or wanting it!) My answer is. What is the abuse, but a continuance of the use? The evil lies in the use, because if there were no use there could be no abuse; if there were no mederate drinkers there would be no inebriates; if there were no drinking, there never could be any drunkenness.

I do not enlarge on the fact that the annual expenditure on alcoholic drink is nearly £4 per head for each of the population, nor dwell on the 120,000 deaths in our country yearly caused by drinking. The mere figures show curse enough; men spending their money for that which is net bread; slow suicides digging their own graves graves over which no lover or friend will ever shed a tear. Think it over: out of every six moderate drinkers, one certainly shortens his days through drink. In your own circle are there no friends or relatives dying before their time-lights going out

If it be the case that drink does more to undo the blessings of the Gospel than all the other causes of sin and immorality put together, then it becomes Christian men to "look not on the wine" becomes Unistan men to 100k not on the wine but with horror and dread. It behoves us all no longer to gloss over, and cover up, and make a joke of, the iniquity of drunkennes; only "fools make a mock at sim." At births, baptisms, and burials we have gone on drinking each other's healths till we have nearly drinking each other's healths uil we have nearly drunk away our own. But if a custom is bad in itself, the being as old as sin won't make it any better. They drink who never drank before, and they who drank before now drink the more. One man drinks because he is happy, he is fond of > is able to say he only takes whisky on two occasions—the one is when he has salmon to dinner, the other,

when he has not!

The Americans say we have no climate in this country, we have only "samples." But many only "samples." But many people insist that the cause of so people has that the case of so much drinking in Scotland is the climate. Well, the climate may be bad enough, but I don't see how drinking to it will make it any better. Men drink because they're dry, or else they will be by-and-bye, or then some other reason why. Any reason is good enough—the dry-rot, for instance. To me, what climate we have appears so moist as never, no never-well, hardly ever-to an excuse for anybody being dry. Some drink because they're hot, and some because they're cold some because they're young, and some because they're old. An Irishman remarked about Scotchmen in Ceylon: They never were at home but when they were abroad; and he said that when they came out to Ceylon they are and they drank, and they nk and they dra drank, and then they died, and after that they had the audacity to write home and blame the climate! The truth is. write home and biame the cumate: Incumum, every man can do without his glass, except perhaps the glazier. Alcoholic drink is not necessary—either under the burning sun of the tropies, or middle according odd of an Arctic winter. It amid the appalling cold of an Arctic winter. It is not necessary, either for Bengal in India, or for Benjamin Gall at the North Pole.

Most people drink because they are thirsty. That is a very good reason; and every animal has the same reason for drinking. Let us stick to it. A donkey eats thistles because he is an ass; but he is sensible in his drinking. If a man would drink like a beast he would only drink water, and never drink more than was good for him. A toper systhe drinks to cure thirst. I say he does not his kind of drink never cured thirst, it creates it. I any young man thinks his glass of beer cures his thirst, let me tell him it is not the beer that cures his thirst, but only the water that is in it. If a glass of grog seems to quench your thirst, it is not the whisky that does it, but simply the water with which it is mixed.

Alcoholic drink is a queer thing. A man takes it down, and it goes u >; it slackens his tongue, and it loosens his legs. It weakens his understanding sun, and one of the most grunner was a succession and one of the most grunner and cause! Therein we differ. "Many men, many it hosens his lega. It weakens his understanding minds." You say the cause of drunkenness is custom. So tis. Drinking is an old custom—as old as Noah, or even as Ann Tiquity—in fact its a demand rather than supplies one. As the

"REAL PAIN IN THE MORNING."

"CHAMPAGNE AT NIGHT."

Our strength and standpoint is this: If we never learn the habit, we shall never | ascribe to it, there is a call upon every philanthroascribe to it, there is a call upon every philanthro-pist to discountenanee it by every means in his power. If drinking is what keeps men from join-ing the church, and causes most of the fallings and failings within the church, it looks like the duty of every Christian man to hate it with a perfect hatred, and to put away from him altogether the evil and abominable thing.

I speak for myself. "Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind." To me, there is but one way of doing my duty in this matter, though I allow there are many ways of avoiding it. "To allow there are many ways of avoiding it. To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Just as surely is it true, that to a man who knows alcohol to be to him an evil spirit, "to him it is sin" to touch, taste, or handle it. Drink is not only the very devil's way into some men, but many men's way into very devils. Take it literally, "wine, wherein is excess," and you won't take it at all. Bad men excuse their faults, good men forsake them.

THE CAUSE OF DRUNKENNESS

Scotland is the most religious country under the What is the sun, and one of the most drunken Paisley weaver put it:— "Yae gless is plenty, twa's owet mony, three's no half encuch." This artificial craving for alcohol makes a man seem to be actually living on the very thing which is killing him. A man with this crave in him is on a dangerous descent. Bles the labelstated man danger. dangerous descent, like the lubricated way down which a ship is launched into the deep—once a momentum has been acquire l, the course can hardly be arrested. The craving is insatiable; and the curious thing about it is, that the more the disessed currous thing about it is, that he more becauses we desire is gratified the less is it satisfied. Every publican knows that his hardest, heaviest drinkers are always his driest, drouthest customers. The more beer a man drinks at night, the drier he is in the morning; the more ale at night, the more aling in the morning; the more champagne at night, the more real-pain in the morning.

might, the more real-pain in the morning.

To prove the value of a thing, you must shew the good that it doth bring. What is whisky good for? "Cleaning silver," I am told. I might add,
"Yes, especially cleaning silver out of a working man's pocket!" Though alcohol were sold by an angel it would still preduce evil, and only evil man's pocket!" Though alcohol were sold by an angel it would still produce evil, and only evil continually. It is good for killing men while they are alive, and keeping them when they are dead. If it is nearly, it is only for outward application, as when the good Samaritan poured in the oil and the wine (into the wounds, not into the mouth); or when a coachman applies whisky to his horses' knees; or when Weston, the champion walker, hardens the soles of his feet with champion walker, hardens the soles of his feet with it. That is the only form in which Weston uses alcohol,—a very good looting for drink—the sole use; for if other men would only keep the whisky under their feet it would never trip them. Then it would not be (as the nigger puts it) "de siu dat dees most casily upset us."

mos casily upset us."

Why then do people drink? The reason is one, though the excuses are many. Our friends take drink simply because they like it. And why do they like it? Because of the alcohol that is in it. And why do they like the alcohol? Because of its intoxicating quality. These the intoxicating property out of a class of hitter hear and oh! have property out of a glass of bitter beer, and oh! how property out or a glass of bitter beer, and oh! how bitter it is; nobody wants to drink it now. If you take the head and the headiness from a bottle of champagne, nobody would pay 5s. a bottle for The Shum. Whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

THE CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

THE CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

The cure is simple, sensible, and sure. The cure of sin is the Gospel, and the cure of drunkenness is total abstinence. As the Quaker said to his son, "John, thou canst give up drinking as easy as thee can open thy hand." "How?" said John. "Why, when thou raisest thy glass to thy lips, just open thy hand and thou wilt never get drunk." As Herbert remarks, "It is most just to throw that on the ground which else would throw me there." on the ground which else would throw me there."
I draw the line at drink. The Paisley weaver drew the line at the back of one glass, we draw the line in front of one drop.

"Wine is a mocker." The only way to be sure it will not make a fool of you is never to taste itnever to let that into your mouth which Shakespeare says will steal away your brains. If it is a small sacrifice to give up drink, do it—at this glad New macruce to give up drink, do it—at this glad New Year—for the sake of others; if it is a great sacri-fice to give up drink, do it for your own sake. My Irlend, it is better to sacrifice something, than be sacrificed yourself.

"Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Think of the children. Beware lest your habits and indulgences are repeated in your families.

If you sow the seeds, you shall reap the weeds.

"Our acts our angels are, or good or ill, our fatal shadows that walk by us still." There is a worm that will turn: the worm of the corkscrew. Many a reformed man has lived to see his early vices looking back at him out of the faces of his sons. "Thou shalt not" is the key-note of every com mandment. While moderation is allowed in things mandment. While moderation is allowed in things good and lawful, total abstinence is required in things evil and hurtful. If the thing is bad, there can be no proper moderation in it. The words, "Let your moderation be known unto all men," never had any reference to drink; but we must put in the stop to prevent barrel organs in the church clusters begin and the text for let me tell you. playing longer on that text; for, let me tell you, no such verse has any place in the revised edition of the New Testament.

of the New Jestament.

Drunkenness is incurable—absolutely incurable—so long as there is drinking. This is true, alike of the individual and of society. We must work towards Local Option in the community; so that, of the individual and of society. We must work towards Local Option in the community; so that, by reducing and renoving licences, we may check the abounding licentiousness. Meantime, we can individually exercise our Local Option. In this E.C.—[ADVI.]

is matter, every man can be a law unto himself; and matter, every man can be a law unto himself; and so, if we cannot shut the public-houses, we can each shut our own mouths. We can shut our mouths against drink, and open them in favour of total abstinence. So shall we have a rainy season of Temperance, and an early spring time when many new leaves shall be turned over, and many love lives become new lives begun.

"Be wise to-day"—every moderate drinker could be a total abstainer if he would. "Tis madness to defer"—every inchriate would be a total abstainer if he could. You, if you would. He, if he could. Remember this: Drink is no respecter of persons; there is hardly a family in the land without the drink brand upon it; and every manfrom the highest to the lowest—who has been lost through strong drink, became a drunkard in trying to be a moderate drinker.

New Year is the time for pledging. There are pledges of love and pledges of liquor. Some take both. Many a man dies of love—of wine. For myself, I take nothing more strengthening than sleep. But all do not think lemonade suithcient. sleep. But all do not think remonant said. And, if you feel inclined to take anything aid. And, if you feel inclined to take anything my parting if you feel you must take something, my parting advice to you is take THE PLEDGE.

SPECIAL GRAND LODGE SESSION AT PENZANCE.

Bro. T. James, W.D.S., writes as follows:—
"Permit me to call the attention of the members of the Order to the fact that a special session of the Grand Lodge will be held at Ponzance on July 2. This will be the first time in the history of Good Paractlem that such as session has been held in Templary that such a session has been held in Cornwall, and the District Executive are most cornwan, and the District Executive are most anxious that it shall be a success. It is, perhaps, superfluons to say that the Cornish are proverbial for their heartiness, and it will be the highest aim of those of us who are situated in this corner of the country to accord to our visitors a kindly welcome. The neighbourhood has many charms, being within touch of those extremities of our island, the Lizard and Land's End. Penzance lies on the shores of Monnt's Bay, which equals any bay in the kingdom, and travelwhich equals any bay in the lengtom, and traver-lers say, rivals in magnificence the famous Bay of Naples. One of its special features is its St. Michael's Mount, a grant old pile which towers 250 feet above the sea level; and at the top of which is a very anc cut castle. The villages which which is a very ancent eastle. The villages which dot the shores are occupied by hardy fishers, famous dot the shores are occupied by hardy fishers, famous for their sobriety, and these toilers as they nightly put to sea in their trim craft make a busy and a pretty scene. In Penzance accommodation is to be found to suit all classes, and of a summer's evening the beautiful promenade which skirts the water's edge may be seen crowded with folk who drink in the beauty of the scene. Forty miles away are the Scilly Islands, which may be reached any day at this season of the year by Last and comfortable steamboats. The Executive are hopeful of having a deputation of five Grand Lodge officers with them on this occasion, and trust a fresh impetus may be given to the Order in this a fresh impetus may be given to the Order in this locality. We cordially invite all who can to be present with us.

"Drink and the Children" (Monthly Tract Society, Bridge House, Blackfriars, and National Temperance League, 337, Strand) is the title of a well-written pamphlet, by Mrs. J. Christic Mackenzie (Id.), containing an earnest and effective Temperature angual on habit of shifting. mackenzie (1d.), containing an earnest and effective Temperance appeal on behalf of children. Many striking facts and figures are given, shewing the direct and indirect evil effects of our drinking cus-toms on young people. The pamphlet states that over 300 babies were overlaid by drunken mothers in once are the contained of t toms on young people. The painfine states wince over 300 babies were overlaid by drunken mothers in one year in London alone, and that in a metropolitan district, containing 200 public - houses, 7,019 children taining 200 public - houses, 7,019 children were seen to enter their doors within three hours. The writer naturally asks, if such numbers go into 200 public-houses, how many go into the 10,000 public-houses of the Metropolis, not only during the three hours, but during the 105} hours the public-houses are open every week? The little brachure houses are open every week? The little brôchure is valuable for distribution in the interests of Temis valuable for distribution in the interests of telli-perance. The same may be said of "She Harn Done What She Could," "Seven Reasons why I Wear the Blue Riebon," "Home," &c., all by the same authoress.

A HARD NUT TO CRACK.

(From the Blackburn Times.)

The following interesting particulars concerning an astonishing experience recently thet with by a resident of Blackburn have just been brought to light. We may say that the facts as given have been carefully investigated by the well-known chemists, Messrs. J. M. Jackson and Co., of No. 9, Top of Penny-street, who youch for the entire truthfulness of every word that is here stated. As the event is of decided public interest, ipasouch as it relates to a discovery about which considerable is now appearing in the newspapers, permission has been obtained to place all the circumstances before our readers. Mr. Jackson, who made these investigations to satisfy his own mind, very aptly remarked to a representative of this paper, that the astonishing results which, to his own personal knowledge, had been achieved by the agency in question, hordered so closely on the miraculous as to present to scientists and scepties "a hard nut to crack." The facts in the case are these:—

William Henry Holden, residing at 26, Whalley Oldroad, Blackburn, has ever sioco IST2, at frequent intervals, been subjected to indescribable suffering, owing to terrible attacks of intense pain and swelling in his feet. THE

MONDAY, JUNE 7, 1886.

THE TEMPERANCE LIFE OFFICE.

THE 45th general meeting of this great insurance company, now so familiarly known as "THE TEMPERANCE LIFE OFFICE," and whose actual title is "THE UNITED KINGDOM TEMPER-ANCE AND GENERAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION, was held in London on the 25th ult., under the presidency of its founder and chairman, Mr. Robert Warner. The report, which was moved for adoption by the chairman, and seconded by Mr. B. Whitworth, was eminently satisfactory. It disclosed a surplus of over a million of moncy. A million is a large sum of money, and when we speak of there being a surplus of a million, it means not simply that such a sum is invested, but that, after calculating upon the strictest rules the present value of all assets and liabilities, there is an actual surplus of assets over liabilities to the extent of a million and more of pounds. This proves careful working and profitable business; and as this surplus exists at hundred thousand pounds, of which the largest item, over three hundred thousand pounds, is to go to life policies in the Temperance section.

The chief interest we have in reviewing this report, as we do from year to year, lies in the notable teaching of the figures of this Temperance section. The old actuarial calculations as to when people ought to die are rudely disturbed by this Temperance section. Take the last five years for example. According to actuarial estimate 1,179 members ought to have died, but only 835 of these actually passed away, so that 344 persons lived and paid in their money beyond the anticipated number. This means profit to the society and increase of divisible funds. Had the estimated deaths occurred, the money payments would have been £268,272; instead of which the money actually claimed was only £168,003.

The real advantages of total abstinence, as contributing to longevity, are, however, more completely demonstrated by comparison with the non-abstaining section, the calculations for which are made on precisely the same prin-In the non-abstaining or "general ciples se tion" the deaths very nearly reached the estimates, and only a small margin of money remains unpaid; there were expected 1,670 claims for £367,214, and there arose 1,530 actual claims for £327,100.

The financial position of this office is unique. With the surplus we have already indicated, and with over three millions of well-invested funds, it offers security and inducements to insurers, and especially to Temperance men, which can hardly be excelled. The following well-known and greatly respected gentlemen are upon the direction, viz., Messrs. R. Warner, Barrett, J. Bromhall, J.P., W. S. e, M.P., Admiral Sir W. King Caine, M.P., Admiral Sir W. King-Hall, K.C.B., J. T. Pritchett, J. H. Raper, John Taylor and B. Whitworth; and Mr Thomas Cash is the secretary. The success of such an office is of immense service to the Temperance cause, and but for the great facts it demonstrates, our armoury of argument and de-fence would be incomplete. We wish the Society itself abundant prosperity, and long life to its members in the Temperance section,

MURDEROUS OUTRAGES IN THE SOUTHERN STATES OF AMERICA.

It is sad to have to record that there still exist in the Southern States not only a pre-judice of colour but legal disabilities arising from the complexion of the skin. It seems hard to believe this, but newspaper reports now before us of speeches of governors and senators, advocating equal rights in the States Assemblies, force the deplorable facts upon our attention. And this, alas, is not all. Law, which ought to protect virtue, is in this case the parent not only of vice but of crime. The cruel, inhuman treatment of any man, woman, or child, is a vice of the most hateful nature. By all God's laws it is a crime, and one that cannot go undespotism and inhumanity is sure to foster crime. And so it comes about that where efforts are made on the part of the coloured races to resent injustice and to claim the protection of law, brutal white men combine to injure and even to murder the coloured people.

Only so recently as March last, in the town of Carrollton, in Mississippi, an armed mob of some 50 white men rode to the Court House, where a coloured citizen was arraigned for trial. A number of coloured witnesses and friends were also there, presumably under the protection of the law; but this armed and lawless white mob entered the court and the end of another five years, when a division murdered the prisoner and a number of other of profits takes place, the actuary (Mr. Ralph coloured persons within the precincts of the P. Hardy) has recommended for division court. Stern and even threatening resolutions amongst the members the sum of over eight have since been adopted by coloured citizens, and in which the Governor of the State and the officials of the court are openly charged with shielding these assassins, and are branded as "a set of heartless cowards and enemies to instice."

In Ohio, Governor Hadley, as recently as April last, in his message to the General Assembly, eloquently pleads for the repeal of all laws discriminating between citizens on account of colour, and he specially refers to those that sanction the punishment of coloured children without legal trial, and their forced exclusion from common schools. In this State the words "For Coloured Persons" are written over the railroad waiting rooms; cars are marked "For Coloured Passengers," and in some cases white people are not allowed to ride in these cars lest the exclusion should be broken through. Even in the North this exclusiveness is practised in hotels, in theatres, and, saddest of all, in the very places of worship.

A letter which appeared in The Christian in March last tells us of special Gospel mission services which have been held at Central Services which have been held at Central Church "for coloured people"; also that the Rev. W. Hay Aitken has been holding meetings "for the white people"; and further, that Messre. Moody and Sankey have been holding meetings in New Orleans of the All Control of the Control of "for the coloured people, and many for the white people." Again we read, "Mr. Charlton is now conducting revival meetings for the Baptists (coloured)." How deep the prejudice and how strong the "caste" must be that allows this kind of apparation, so that the colours must be assorted in order to the "rightly dividing" of the word of God's truth.

We cannot believe that any enlightened Englishmen can approve this state of things. It is high time that Christian churches protested, and sent out a better Gospel than this to the heathena abroad. We are thankful that, though there is much still to deplore, things are not as had as they have been. A sense of shame is spreading; exclusive laws are being repealed; and the hateful practices are being narrowed to some extent. It is deplorable how little we can do more than by exposing these evils. But we are bound to do this much; and as a world-wide brotherhood we are bound to declare that Good Templary lends no sanction to any such human tyranny. Those from whom we separated ourselves, whose laws once decreedthe exclusion of coloured persons from their Lodges and from the Order, have, we have been told, yielded our claim by wiping out the exclusive words from their laws and constitutions, though as yet they still separate the races in their Lodges. May the time soon come when even this distinction shall cease to exist, and when Good Templary everywherewithout any distinction or qualification in its title—shall be synonymous with human brotherhood and equality.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Bro. William Dongson, D.E.S, South Durham, and member of the G.L. Committee on Political Action, writes:—At our recent G.L. we re-affirmed the rule, that party politics (other than Temperance politics) and sectarian questions must not be discussed in our Lodges, or, I presume, in our official organ. I take it, however, that the question of whether the House of Lords ought to be abolished as a legislative assembly, now comes abolished as a legislative assembly, now comes strictly within Temperance lines.

The action of the House of Lords on the Cornwall and Durham Sunday Closing Bills proves that though, largely through the efforts of the Temperance party, a House of Commons has been returned which will pass Temperance measures by a majority of two to one, we have yet to deal with an irresponsible body of men who form a barrier to their becoming law. Unlike the House of Commons, we can bring no practically effective measure to hear upon these obstructionists: the notably at a meeting recently held in Boston, however much they may misrepresent their wishes. Arising out of the action of the House of Lords Arising out of the action of the Induse of Lorden upon other matters with which we, as Temperance reformers, have nothing to do, there is a large party in the country who are of opinion that it should be abolished as a legislative body; whilst we need not enter into any question as to the possible usefulness of the House of Lords, or of other mischief which it may be supposed by some other mischief which it may be supposed by some to have done; for, as the fact is clear that it is now the sole obstacle in the way of rapid and effective Temperance legislation, this seems to me to point it out as a proper object for vigorous attack by Good Templars and their Temperance friends. Perhaps the only immediate result would be to convey to the Lords Abstathair researches in clienting from them the that their procedure is alienating from them the sympathy of the sober and orderly classes of the sympathy of the sober and orderly classes of the country, and that they are driving from them those whose aid would be of the greatest value should the course of events bring the question of their continuance pruminently before the people. Even this conviction would do us great service, as it would be sufficient to make the Peers pause before they again threw out, apparently with reckless indifference, measures which it would need but little inquiry to convince them are earnestly desired by the great mass of the people, and which would be for their lasting social elevation. I hope that our Lodges will now take this question up in their political discussions.

THE LONDON TEMPERANCE HOSPITAL

The annual meeting of the Lundon Temperance Hospital was held on Thursday, May 27, at th Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, under the presidency of Mr. R. H. Penney. The report presented stated that as the hospital was now structurally canable of receiving 124 patients, it would be seen that when the finances permitted the Beard to arrange for the reception of the full number of patients the results of the experience acquired would be of greatly increased interest and value. The special object of their hospital began where the general object ended. To alleviate, began where the general object ended. To alleviate, and if pessible cure, bodily disease was the design of all hospital treatment, but while they sought to gain this result by means which the highest science of the day approved, they had at heart the protection of the sick from a form of temptation peculiarly subtle and dangerous; and also the advancement of the Temperance reformation, the ratio of whose progress was the ratio of the nation's social improvement and prosperity. They nation's social improvement and prosperity. They disclaimed any wish to sacrifice scientific methods disciamed any wish to sacrace scientific memors to philanthropic impulses, but they should rejoice, as they believed all good men and women would, it it could be shewn that the disuse of alcohol as a medicine was not detrimental to those who entered medicine was not detrimental to those who entered a hospital for medical or surgical treatment. As was well known, their medical staff had power to prescribe alcohol as a drug if they considered a trial of its use needful; and in one case during the past year alcohol was so prescribed without any apparent beneficial result. The in - patients received during the official patients received during the official were 624, and as 48 were under treatment May 1, 1885, the total number treated was 672, the number under treatment May 1, 1886, being 63. The deaths were 41, giving a rate of mortality of 6.7 per cent. From the opening of the hospital, October 6, 1873, th. April 30, 1886, 12 years and seven months, the in-patients were 3,486, of whom 1,968 were cured, 1,272 were relieved, and 183 died, a percentage of 5.2. The out-patient department had proved, as formerly, a useful branch of the hospital practice. The number of out-patients receiving advice and medicine during the year had been 3,252, raising the total number from the commencement to 22,790. The patients were encouraged to pay a small sum for their medicines, but in cases where this would be a hardship, it was not required. As in most The deaths were 41, giving a rate of mortality of 6.7 be a hardship, it was not required. As in most cases an out-patient made several visits, the number of attendances far exceeding the number of put-patients above reported. The increasing number of appli-cations at the hospital for the treatment of accidents and other cases of emergency had rendered it necessary to open a "casualty department" for their special reception. This was now in good their special reception. This was now in good working order, and was likely to prove a valuable addition to the efficiency of the hospital. In spite of the success of the bazaars which had been held of the success of the ozzans which had been held in aid of the building fund, it still shewed a deficit of nearly £5,000. The general receipts had been £3,741 10s. 7d., including £1,071 10s. 3d., and subscriptions £1,565 13s. 11d.; the expenditure had amounted to £4,010 7s. 3d., leaving a balance of £13 0s. 2d.

The proceedings opened with prayer, and after a few remarks from Bro. Dr. Dawson Burns, hon. sec., Mr. Frank Wright, a memoer of the board of management, addressed the meeting. He thought that the hospital was worthy of all support from the friends of Temperance. Every year since the setablishment of the finstitution had been one of progress, and this showed that the principles which they believed in and practised were gaining ground among the general public, and by the attendance of their out-patients respecially, it was shown that a good many people preferred a non-alcoholic treatment in their illnesses. For the first time in the history of the preferred a non-alcoholic treatment in their illnesses. For the first time in the history of the hospital they had been able to compile mortality statistics of some of the most common forms of disease, and this proved the complete triumph of Temperance treatment over any other. (Cheers.)

Mr. Thomas Watson, M.P., moved the adoption of the report, and remarked that he had been interested in the Temperance question for a long time It had proved a good many things, but at the same time there were a good many which remained to be proved; it had proved that men could grow and be healthy and strong, and do their work as well, if not better, and he thought better, than by the aid of alcoholic drinks. The Temper-ance hospital was now proving that it was possible to cure many, if not all, diseases, without using intoxicants at all. It was marvellous to think of the number of accidents and the amount of disease in the country, and they wanted as many institutions of this kind as they could get. He commended the institution to their sympathy and aupport, and urged them to send the help to it which it needed. (Cheers.)

The Rev Prebondary Barker, in seconding the resolution, thought that Temperance men were the most practical of people, for although it was said that they would never get any number of supporters. intoxicants at all. It was marvellous to think most practical of people, for although it was said that they would never get any number of supporters to their principles, and although they had been told that patients could never be successfully treated without alcohol, yet there were now some 4,000,000 tectotalors, and they had heard that the Temperance hospital had cured a larger percentage of patients by Temperance treatment than had been done in other hospitals. (Checrs.)

The resolution, having been supported, was put and carried.

It was subsequently decided, "That the enlarge at was subsequently decided,—that the enlarge-more capable of providing for the treatment of 124 in-patients, is regarded by this meeting as an urgent reason for completing the building fund, in order that the hospital may be speedily utilised to the greatest possible extent for the beneficient purposes which it was adapted to subserve," and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The conduct of the majority of those present in the House of Lords on the third reading of the Durham Sunday Closing Bill has been the principal topic of conversation during the past few days.
Whilst some of the more Radical Temperance men rejoice that the peers manifest so much anxiety to dig a pit wherewith to compass their own downfall, the miners of Durham feel very keenly the injustice the miners of Durnam receivery Recury the injustice which has been shewn them. Never was a case for legislation so clearly demonstrated. The question was a test one at the general election, and those candidates who pledged themselves to vote in favour of the Bill obtained (counting one unopposed return) upwards of 30,000 votes in excess of their opponents. Was ever a desire more emphatically expressed?

Commenting on the action of the "Ignoble Lords," the Daily News said :--

"We should always resist a Sunday Closing Bill which was forced apon the community by fanatical tectotalers, or by grandmotherly philantbropists, or the classes possessed of cellars and clubs. But when the classes possessed of cellars and clubs. But when the Durham miners, who have at least as much in-telligence and knowledge as most peers, demand that in their own interests and for the sake of order and peace public bonses should be closed on a Sunday, their case is a very strong one."

Several other London papers, to say nothing of the provincials, also referred to the matter in very strong terms. Before very long the inhabitants of Durham may have another opportunity of making known their wants, and I should advise Lord Salisbury and his blind followers to visit the county and learn whether or no there is a desire for this measure.

An "Ex-Colonial Official," has recently contri-buted an article to the Glub and Institute Journal in which he reveals the existence of a sad state of affairs in Madagascar and other places. He tells how Christian England forces rum upon the Mala-gasies in order that the white traders of the gasies in order that the white traders of the Mauritius may line their pockets with gold, whilst at the same time they are "weakening and debasing at the same time they are "weakening and depasing the youth of the country, and tribes are perishing through indulgence in this spirit." But here is the worst part. The Prime Minister of the island worst part. The Prime Minister of the island states that if the people were permitted to have a voice in the matter not a single bottle of the vile spirit would ever enter the ports, "but the British Government will not allow them bridge for themselves." How many more countries ge we going to ruin by our professed efforts to Christianise them! Surely it is time we threw Christianise them! Surely it is time we threw off the mask, and if we want to civilise the world
let us act as Christ would have done. Let the Gospel preached be not only salvation, but also Temperance, purity, and justice.

The following paragraph appeared in last week's Temperance Record:

Temperance Record:—
"at will gratify our readers to learn that before "at will gratify our readers to learn that before "at will gratify our readers the Rev. anowance or caree.

One is glad to learn the above, but at the same time it makes Mr. White's atterances more remarkable than ever. It seems almost incredible that a man who has personally experienced the benefits of total abstinence as compared with even the slightest form of moderation, should attempt in any way to defend the drinking customs of the day. How Mr. White can reconcile such a paradox seems a marvel.

Every friend of Temperance must be thankful at the splendid success recorded by the United King-dom Temperance and General Provident Institution as set forth at its recent annual meeting. Few men as see, tortin at its recent annual meeting. Few men live to see their ideas and labours rewarded so fully as Mr. Robert Warner has been permitted to. But more than this. The Institution is daily demonstrating to the world the advantages of total abstinence in a manner which exceeds the eloquence of all advocatos and teachers, and provides an argument which the "trade" apostles are utterly unable to refute.

One of the most remarkable and successful of the May Meetings was that held by the Railway Mission in Exeter Hall. This large building was thronged in all parts by railway officials and servants from all parts of the country. The proceedings were most enthusiastic, the speeches and hymns being in thorough keeping with the character of the andience. Some of the speakers were only allowed three minutes, but one of them, driver Gooderidge three minutes, but one of them, driver Gooderdge of Munchester, gave a piece of information which called forth loud and prelongel cheers. He stated that allthe most important trains on the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire line were being run by Christian Temperance capitie-men and guards. Lady thepe, one of the first friends of the mission, said there were no less than 2,000 abstainers on the Great Western Railway alone. This is "glad tidings" indeed, and I am sure we all wish our railway friends God-speed in their work.

Our G.W.Ch., Bro. Winton, who is missionary to the public-houses in Hammersmith and district, was one of the principal speakers at the 51st anniversary gathering of the London City Mission, held in Exeter Hall. Bro. Winton spoke with great force and power, and drew special attention to the evils arising from the private drinking clubs now being established in all parts of the Metropolis.

There is, perhaps, no religious movement of the present day upon which so much abuse has been showered as the one rejoicing in the above aam, and established by the Rev. W. Booth some 18 years ago. It has, however, one feature in particular, which separates it from all other sects in the Christian community, and I sincerely hope that day is not far distant when all churches will see the importance and necessity of adopting the same test. To be a soldier in the Salvation Army you must be a total abstairer. General Booth and his fellow workers have learnt long ago that it was fellow workers have learnt long ago that it was almost useless to attempt to prosecute their work except under this banner, and there are thousands of men and women who to-day thank God for deliverance from the evils of intemperance through

The progress of this movement during the past four years has been remarkable. At the "Welcome meeting," which commenced the Congress, which commenced the Congress, and the control of t come meeting," which commenced the Congress, Mr. Booth announced that in 1882 the Army had 320 corps, now it had 1,552. In 1882 they had 766 officers, now they had 3,602 "separated" officer to sustain and carry on the war. Then they officers to sustain and carry on the war. Then they were holding 6,226 services a week, whereas they now held over 28,000. In addition to this, during the four years they had purchased, leased, or fitted up buildings scating 526,000 people (besides renting theatres, concert-halls, &c.), at a cost of £289,078. The Army now occupied 19 counties and colonies, and they published 19 "War Cry's." Besides the above several branches for "special" work had hen organised. work had been organised.

A case of considerable importance came before the Plymouth magistrates last Monday. It appears that for some time past Sunday drinking has been carried on to a large extent in the military quarters, carried on to a large extent in the military quarters, and a test case was brought forward to see it it could not be put a stop to. A sergeant of the Coast Brigade, Royal Artillery, was charged with aelling liquor without a licence at the canteen on the second Sunday in May. Evidence was given to the effect that on the afternoon mentioned, there were over 50 persons at the canteen, and that drink was supplied without question when called the Coast was supplied without question when called for. One of the witnesses described the scene as a regular of the witnesses described the scene as a regular "fair," and stated that many persons were drunk. The magistrates inflicted a fine of £10. Other places should follow the example here set, and if illied trinking can be proved, let it be brought to light, and the principals punished.

CHARACTER DRESS AND KISSING GAMES.

BRO. JOHN NIXON, Anchor Lodge, Carlisle, writes :- I am glad to see that a brother of my Lodge has commenced a correspondence on subject which I am sure has not been sufficiently ventilated in our Lodges. He justly explains that kissing games have been stopped. I entirely agree with him. Does any sane man mean to tell me that men fresh from the recking tap-room can be kept in a Lodge without something to take the place of the vile attractions that have fascinated them to the drinking den? Will prayer meetings do it? No. Will the everlasting Temperance recitation and hymn do it? No. Will sitting in a Lodge like a funeral party induce new members to come again? Certainly not. Then what are we to do? Why, do like other rational beings; use every fair inducement and attraction to make the Lodge more inviting than the "pub." Let people see that we can enjoy ourselves far better than they can at the tap, and away with sentimentalism. Don't be so squeamish. I think it better to save 10 drunkards by the use of a little harmless fun in the shape of parlour games than to be trying to turn our Lodges into something like Quakers' meetings. This sanctigames than to be trying to turn our Lodges into something like Quakers' meetings. This sanctinonious craze is being pushed to such an extent that in a few more years our fine Order will have ceased to exist, and this is being done by a few would-be divines whose only merit and influence is the position they occupy. I would like to know how much time they devote to the actual Good of the Order.

BRO. WILLIAM H. JEATER, W.C.T. and D.L. Rep., Camberwell, writes:—The thanks of the membership are due to you for throwing open your columns that those, who like myself, are dissatisfied with the decision of the G. L., in reference to character dress, may have an opportunity of expressrecter dress, may have an opportunity of express-ing their views on the matter. I must express my regret that G. L. did not see its way clear to amend the bye-law so as to permit Temperance sketches the oye-taw so as to permit Temperance sketches being given in character at Ledge entertsimments; for while I admit the recital of a good sketch would be very likely to preduce good results, at the same time I cannot but think that more good would be likely to accrue if character dress were allowed, because I am certain that we should get larger audiences, and therefore more to come under the sound of good Temperance taching, such as is contained in the "Trial of John Barleycorn," or that excellent little sketch entitled "Reaping the Fruits," both of which would undeubtedly draw larger audiences which would undoubtenly area larger audiences if given in character. I cannot agree with those who think that if this bye-law were amended bad results would ensue, for I refuse to believe that any Lodge would perform pieces that would tend to injure the moral sensitiveness of any of the audience.

Bro. E. A. Gibson, P.D.C.T., Middlesex, writes:—Having had nine Lodges to supervise in my Sub-District while acting as V.D., and being a constant visitor to one or the other, as well as neighbouring Sub-Districts, I can speak with some experience. The results of my observations are that where "slobbering" exists at our soirées, the majority of the participants are strangers and not members of the Order so far as relates to the msle portion of the audience, to whom such as "Kissing," "Bingo," and other absurdities are the only attraction! and it is sad to note with what gusto even a Grand Lodge lecturer can act as Master of Geremonies on such occasions. I cordially upheld the action of G.L. on the prohibition of kissing games; they not only pander to the lowest passions, and are they not only pander to the lowest passions, and are therefore immoral, but they tend to lower the flag of the Order and prejudice its best interests, as well as to exclude the middle classes (whom our G.W.C.T. has so often referred to as being de-sirable nembers). I, for one, should certainly not permit any daughter to mix up with nor the property of the control hot permit any daugner to mix up with, nor re-kissed by, any fellow "masher or no masher" who chooses to claim such a right. I consider it a de-grading and disgusting game, and a positive bar to the progress of the Order and the cause of Temperance. As to character dress, and per-formance of Temperance sketches, the Grand Lodge formance of Temperance aketches, the Grand Lodge is inconsistent. If these sketches are printed by the G.L., and a profit is made thereon, in the name of reason, where is the horror of performing them? Surely, if they are worth printing by the leaders of the Order, they are worth performing! Are we simply to purchase these aketches and not G.L. on the above subject, because the C.L. does use them? The position is untenable. My experience proves that where a really good sketch jet, to prove this, I will mention at the annual is performed satisfactorily, it is not only session of my own District a motion asking G.L. to attractive to outsiders but to the members also, and, moreover, a welcome source of profit. An absolute necessity for most of the Lodges in the Metropolis, where rentals are so high and subscriptions meagre. Most of other kindred organisations permit Temperance sketches (as well as others), and if members of our Order are to be debarred, the G.L. will make a fatal mis-take, and many Lodges will be compelled to close their doors for want of funds, as well as attractions. I trust this action of C.L. will speedily be re-pealed, and permission granted for the performance of special sketches sanctioned by the Grand Lodge itself.

"A TEMPLAR SISTER" writes:-In discussing the question of character dress, and kissing games in our Order, one of your correspondents is somewhat amusing in his defence of kissing games. He amusing in his detence or kissing games. In advocates their continuance on the ground that "you can join in the game and play it for two or three hours without giving or receiving a single kiss." A kissing game without the kissing! I trust the "foremost and almost only objectors" sre not as Bro. Kentish says, "the married members" only, but that there are many single members, both brothers and sisters, who have sufficient respect for themselves (and, as a consequence, for others) to condemn such indiscriminate familiarity; for we have to bear in mind that at meetings where these games have been most popular, not only non-members but very frequently NON-ABSTAINERS have taken part, and thus our young and thoughtless members may be exposed to the risk of close contact with the tainted breath of the drinker! Let the older and more thoughtful seek rather to remove such anomalies from our Order, rather than to excuse and perpetuate them. Surely no thoughtful father of a family would seek to expose his DAUGHTERS to such an experience as a lesser evil than looking in a printshop window. Personally I know nothing of the Order in Middlesex, but for the honour of our Lodges there I trust the brother is mistaken who says that he can guarantee that 98 per cent. of the members resent the prohibition recently enacted at G.L. From my experience of this District (S.E. Lanc.) I think the members we may lose from the new bye-law will be few, if any; certainly not those who have been long in the Order, who have grasped the real meaning of our obligation, who have learnt that amusement of any kind is only an adjunct, though a necessary one, and not a fundamental principle, worthy of the chief consideration of our fraternity. If we must amuse ourselves, and we should at proper times) for "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull bey"), let it at least be in a manner becoming to us as members of our noble Order. We becoming to us as members of our noble Order. We need not necessarily be debarred from pathous ames — (did anyone ever see kiss-in-the-ring played in a parlour?)—I have taken part in some at Ledges, where the players have been so hilarious—games of skill with no objectionable feature—(such as family coach, Germao band, &c.), that the ring-players have been anxious to leave their own game and take part. In conclusion I would ask every Good Templar "to abstain from all appearance of evil." ance of evil.

Bro. H. W. Fellows, P. W. G T., London, writes : —On the subject of kissing I cannot speak in too strong terms of disapproval. The idea of a lot of grown-up people, whether Good Templars or any other body, joining in anything of this kind is to my mind thoroughly absurd and childish. My only regret is that our leaders and your valuable paper were so quiet about it when the great outcry was made some time ago in many leading The second subject under discussion periodicals. am inclined to favour, and am sorry G.L. should have been so very decisive on this question, I have seen good, sound, moral sketches performed not only in Temperance societies, but in connection with our Lodges (in character), and you need little change in dress to make the performance more attractive. I regret that the motion in favour of these sketches should have been thrown out, as I cannot for the life of me see what harm there is in them. But, on the contrary, they have been, and would be, if still allowed, the means of improving a large number of Ledges both numerically and Birmingham, writes:—With your permission, I would like to reply to your Leader of the 24th ult. First, we are dissatisfied with the vote of G.L. on the above subject, because the G.L. does not represent the membership. On the first subject, to prove this, I will mention at the annual rescind the bye-law was carried by a large majority. We sent three representative, only one voted for the metion to rescind, two voted against. of this have we not a right to be dissatisfied? to the kissing games, our objection to the vote of G.L. on this subject is that G.L. would better add to the success of our Order by allowing more "Local Option" to our Districts rather than by making cast-iron rules which irritate our membership, and thus tend to harm rather than to snip, and thus tend to harm rather main to do good. You say that the question of character dress performances narrows itself down to this "Shall theatrical performances be asso-ciated with one Lodges!" This, I contend, is hardly a fair way of putting it before our membership. What we ask is this—that our Lodges shall be allowed to teach Temperance truths by appealing to that dramatic instinct which is inborn appearing to that dramatic institle which is moorn in all humanity. The great complaint in our Order—at least, in my District—is that we are not doing enough public aggressive work. not doing enough public aggressive work. Speechmaking is not the only way of bringing home to the people the great importance of adoptnome to the people the great unportance or adopting Temperance in our daily lives. Excuse me, sir, if I say that to my mind the remarks in your leader would only be apropos on the assumption that had we succeeded in getting this bye-law rescinded our Lodges would at once have developed in the live of the control of the live of t into unlicensed theatres, our members appearing session after session in all the paraphernalia apper taining to theatres. This is not the place to con-trovert your assertions on the morality of the stage, or I could shew you where humanity has been lifted up to a higher level of moral living by the art of tho actor.

BRO. WILLIAM THOMPSON, P.W.G., Victorious Lodge, York, writes:—I heartily endorse the action of Grand Ledge as regards the prohibition of kissing games in the Lodge-room, and cannot agree with our Bro. at Carlisle in his letter on the subject. In the Lodge to which I have the honour to bolong, and which, I believe, has existed for about 13 years, such a thing has never been allowed since its first opening, and I believe should any one atits first opening, and I believe should any one at-tempt to introduce the games, he would be promptly out-voted. I should be very sorry to think that the welfare and prosperity of any Lodge depended on such proceedings. Our Lodge, the Victorious, of York) has lived all this time without these games, and although we have lad our periods of depression and difficulty, yet we have never surrendered, and to-day we are in a sound and healthy position, and looking forward hopefully for still better times. With regard to character dress, I think there is somewhat more to be said in its favour, but, whilst holding the opinion that character dress. With regard to character dress, I think entertainments might be allowed, I would strictly have the same confined to Temperance sketches.

BRO. ALFRED G. HILL, P.W.D.Ch., Birmingham, writes :- I fail to see the harm which is supposed to arise from the performance of good dramatic sketches if carried on in a proper manner. There are many pieces published, Temerance and other-wise, which make capital entertainments. But we cannot perform them because we are not allowed to dress in the least hit of character. In this we make dress in the least bit of character. In this we make a mistake, for I am sure if we could but put these pieces on our platforms at our public meetings, and entertainments, it would be the means of bringing more members into the Order and help to stop the declension. I think that so many interferences with the liberty of our membera will not do much good to the Order, as it is likely to be very much resented. We have a large number of young members in our Ledges who are capable of doing credit to the Order if we give them a chance. But if we take away their liberty them a chance. But if we take away their liberty they will take their talent somewhere else. If there is this much-talked of evil existing in places where character dress is allowed, I think the case might be met by giving the District Lodges Local Option in the matter, so that they may have the power to suppress the cvil wherever it arises. I am of opinion that we shall never succeed until the whole membership rises and says we will have what we know will be for the good of the Order. I don't advocate breaking the laws of the But it could be done by discussing the question in the Subordinate Lodges, and taking a vote of the whole membership. We have plenty of time to consider the matter before the next Grand Lodge Session and not leave it to members who are sent to represent the Order and only represent their own opinions. If this suggestion was to be carried out, I am sure we should be able to get a very large majority in favour of the proper use of character dress.

BRO. S. BOWN, L.D., Gratitude Lodge, Hamp

issing games, but I am decidedly of opinion that issing games, but I am decinionly or opinion that the Grand Lodge, by passing such prohibitory measures trespassed on our right, inasmuch as our policy is laid down as being broad, allowing Lodges to act according to locality and circum-stances. I think it would be more beneficial to our Order if the Grand Lodge would trust more to the common-sense of our members. The ordinary routine of business at our Lodges is very dry to the majority of our members, and I feel con-vinced that if Temperance pieces were allowed to be performed in character dress at our meetings it would make our teachings more effective, and tend greatly to increase our members. If we wish a piece rendered to have its desired effect, it is very essential that each character should be properly represented. I admit that the use of character dress could be carried too far, but if the Grand Lodge were to confine us to Temperance pieces, I think they could trust to the common sense of a Good Templar to know where to draw We are not all of one frame of mind, and the line. I feel certain that if the feelings of the whole of our membership were tested on this subject, the action of the Grand Lodge would be condemned by an overwhelming majority.

BRO. T. G. CRAFT, P.D.G.W.C.T., Artisan DRO. T. G. CRAFT, F.D.G.W.C.T., Artisan Lodge, Middlesex, writes:—In answer to Bro. Ainsworth, perhaps he has nover heard the old adage that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and surely after 12 weeks' work, one week's recreation is not too much pleasure. And in most Lodges it rarely occurs more than once a Then as regards character dress, I feel quarter. Then as regards character dress, I feel very strongly on this point, and it was by my proposition that it was brought into the Artisan Ludge, and from thence carried to the District Bro. Martindall wants to know why we Lodge. are in favour of it. The reply I make is it has been the means of saving many. As an example, a number of the members of my Lodge belong to a society of Temperance entertainers and at the close of some of their meetings, after a sketch has been pernormed in character-dress, men have come forward and testified that the sketch, or a similar one, has been the means of saving them. Several so converted are now Good Templars. If this is the result of these prohibited sketches, why should they be so crushed? formed in character-dress, men have come for

BRO. JOHN TULLY, W.V.T., Seaton Delaval Reformer, Northumberland, writes: — Many fallacies are apparent in some of the letters now appearing in your paper, more particularly the assertion, "that the decline of our Order is owing assertion, "that the decline of our Order is owing to character dress and kissing games." My Lodge had at one time a membership of about 120; by some cause cr other over 100 of thess left, leaving only those who had the work at heart. Up to this time neither character dress performances nor kissing games had ever been indulged in at the kissing pames had ever been indulged in at the Lodge. Since then we have worked up to about 70 again, nor have we as yet stopped and many times have kissing games been part of the programme at social parties connected with the Lodge, and character dress would too, had we been allowed. Personally, I am against those games in allowed. Personally, I am against those games in allowed. Fersonally, I am against those games in Lodges, but am willing to allow those to indulge who choose, and this is what the Grand Lodge should be. They might have spoken and requeste the G.W.C. Templar to speak to the membership against kissing games, but to lay down a stringent law, which is sure to be broken, was not the way to increase our membership. About character dress, I differ entirely from the G.L. ruling; for whatever those who never go to theatres and those who only go once in a while, theatrea and those who only go once in a while, and then to a pantonine, may say, the drama is a power for good, and would be more so if we as an Order, along with the churches, would assist the managers instead of staying away leaving them to be kept up by those who care for low class performances. Those of us who take part in arranging public meetings, &c., know the difficulty in getting the public to attend, and yet the G.L. has raised an existing obstruction higher. Whatnext?

BRO. CHAS. W. HATT, D.G.W.C.T., and W.S., Workman's Home Lodge, Upper Holloway, writes:— I fail to see what can be done to benefit Lodges and to obtain new members now that our Grand Lodge has decided by a majority to atill retain the rule that character dress performances be not permitted in our Lodges, and also that kissing gamea be dis-continued at soirces in connection with the Order. My Lodge has experienced great difficulty in paying its rent, and is now in a condition where it is because the standard processary that something should be done to raise its finances. We cannot tax the members any more it agreeable.—Pythagoras.

writes :- 1 am not personally in favour of than they are already taxed at the present time, seeing that the majority are those who have to work hard for their living. We must raise money somehard for their living. We must raise money some-how to pay our rent, and 40 members' subscriptions are not sufficient to pay a rent of £I 19s. per quarter. If we try concerts we must have the same old programme, consisting of songs and recitations, repeated over again. We are forbidden to render even a pure Temperance dialogue in character, because some consider it is wrong to do so. The outside public will not come and listen to songs and recitations; something more attractive is required in the way of a change. We try a soirce or fruit banquet, and we find that these draw people together very well, but now we must discontinue these because but now but now we must discontinue these because of the kissing games. The question is, What are we to do now? My opinion is that if the Order would only permit performances of Temperance dialogues in character at our concerts, that the Lodges would be greatly benefited certs, that the Lodges would be greatly benefited thereby, and many might be induced to turn over a new leaf at beholding the drunkard in his true colours. Should this beallowed my Lodge would willingly forego eoirées and their kissing games for a good concert at which, if we rendered a suitable Temperance sketch, we should be sure of obtaining a good audience.

BRO. CAPTAIN W. HUGH PHIPPS, R.N., P.G.W.M., writes :- I have read with great pain and surprise the letters of Bro. Andrews and those of the other bruthers who advocate, and see at all events, no harm in what are called "kissing games." Lately I read also in the Waretwons some remarks of the G.W.C.T. on the desirability of feeding our reduced ranks from the middle classes. I should blush with shame even to show our organ to any friend of mine, let alone to ask anyone of the middle classes to run the risk of being present when such vulgar games were carried on. Our Order is certainly far worse off than I ever thought Order is certainly tar worse on than Lever thought it possible, when it is seriously proposed to bolster it up with "kissing games" and such like anusements. We may have made many mistakes, but I never thought it possible that a brother should write and say that only married members ubjected to these games because they could not join in them. Fancy the low ebb to which we are fallen if these suppositions can exist which we are failed if these suppositors can exhibit in a bruther who considers himself sane. The only reason that justifies the free meeting together of both sexes of all ranks and classes in the seclusion outs seves of an ranks and classes in the seculation of a Lodge must rest upon the entire absence of these follies, and anything like undue freedom. Indeed, I may go further, and say that we risk the possibility of the sexts meeting together if these games are permitted in any of our Lodges, as we know how soon a report of this kind sprea No Christian man and no Christian woman, who looks upon their Lodge as sacred ground, can think NOWS upon neir Lodge as sacred ground, can think of these things except with abhorrence and disgustalike discreditable to the Lodge that allows such practices, and themselves as members of the same Order.

BRO. MORRIS JONES, W.D.Sec., S.W. Lancashire, writes:—Your leading article on kissing games, so called, and the action of the Newport Grand Lodge, relative thereto, has the right ring in it, and I trust the outcome of it will be the unani mous expression that the course taken was the only one opened to vindicate the moral teaching, principles one opened to vindicate the moral teaching, principles, and reputation of our Order. I hold the law as now laid down simply restricts our members (as such) to know the reputation of the Order, when gathered under its published arrangements; and as loyal members all should assist to carry out this obligation. Kissing games are no part of our work. Outside our jurisdiction (as the Ledge and the Tample), those by others who (i.e. the Lodge and the Temple), those brothers who wish to indulge in such a pastime can do so, and if "the common decency and native modesty of our sisters will allow themand if "the common decency and native modesty of our sisters will allow themselves to be slobbered over by an assortment of fellows to whom they are entire strangers"—rell, let them also do so, but not under the legal sanction, and approval of the grandest institution, capable, if properly administered, of raising all classes of society into a higher and nobler sphere of usefulness both for God and man, as the Order to which I have been attached as a Good Templar for the cert leaves. On this question there ought the past 15 years. On this question there ought not to be two opinions. On character dress I say nuthing. Possibly two opinions may exist.

INTERESTING PRESENTATION.

Bro. Henry Browne, P.W.D.C. of Middlesex. L.D. of the Bedford Lodge, and Sister Browne, P.R.W.S.J.T., both of whom have been . Proxy Representatives of the Grand Lodge of Cape Colony to R.W.G.L. of the World, are the recipients of the following interesting letter, with the accompaniments :-

"Grand Lodge of Cape Colony.-Office of G.W.S., Newlands, Cape Town. April 28, 1886. — To Bro. and Sister H. Browne. April 28, — Dear Sister and Brother, — By the mail leaving on Wodnesday next we are sending a small registered postal parcel addressed to Bro. Browne, but intended for both. The contents of this parcel are as follows: One diamond ring for Bro. Browne, one crocidolite brooch for Sister Browne; one ditto bracelet for Sister Browne, three feathers for Sister Browne, and an illustrated handbook of the Cape of Good Hope. These items are intended by our members as tokens of the fraternal regard felt towards Bro. and Sister Browne, and also as a small recognition of their kind and considerate services as our representatives to R.W.G. Lodge. The testimonial is not a large or particularly valuable one; but we trust that you will regard it not from its intrinsic value, but as a token of regard from your South African. but as a token of regard from your South African friends and brethren, and the result is due, not to one or two, but to small offerings from the majority of our Lodges. I may tell you that the feathers are entirely the gift of one Lodge situated in an ostrich district (the Arm of Help Lodge, Graaff Reinet, last returns 156 members). Sister Browne will especially value them when she learns that the Lodge consisted almost, if not quite, of coloured members. We do not know how the parcel will be effected by any customs or import due, and therefore send this separate notice, that there may be no delay in your receiving your parcel. Trusting that you may have as much pleasure in receiving our little remembrance as we have in sending it.—We beg to remain, dear Brother and Sixten.

Sister, most fraternally yours, Wm. Boyn, G.W.C.T.; J. B. WHEELWRIGHT, G.W.S."
The Bedford Lodge has forwarded us the following communication: "Dear Sir and Bro,—The members of the Bedford Lodge, 1,435, in eession assembled, desire to make known that Bro. and Sister Browne have received a letter with a parcel with contents (as above enumerated) as a present with contents (as above enumerated) as a present from G. Lodge of Cape. Colony, in recogni-tion of their valuable services as their representatives to R.W.G.L.W. With un-speakable Joy we are highly delighted to see and to know that their labours have been ap-preciated by South African friends. With assurance we can state that they richly and well deserve any such appreciation. They are both true carnest workers, always willing and ready to render their services, and to do their utmost for the good of the adult Order, and to promote the cause of Temperance. Above all, and not least, they the good of the adult Order, and to promote the cause of Temperance. Above all, and not least, they are greatly interested in training the young in the faith of Temperance. It is hereby resolved that an official letter be sent to Cape Colony as a token of our heartfelt thankfulness. With best wishes for the success, prosperity, and welfare of the Order in South Africa we heartily forward them our fraternal regards.—George Jemmett, W.C.T., Joseph Powett. A CAPTAIN SAVED.

HOW A MEMBER OF HER MAJESTY'S SERVICE ESCAPED DESTRUCTION. - HIS GRAPHIC ACCOUNT.

Some little commotion was occasioned several months ago regarding the experience of a gentleman well known in this city, and at the time was a subject of general conversation. In order to ascertain all the facts bearing upon the matter, a representative of this paper was despatchel yesterday to interview the gentleman in question, with the following result:-

Captain W. II. Nicholls, formerly in her Majesty's service, is a man well advanced in years, who has evidently seen much of the world. Earlowed by nature with a strong constitution, he was comblet to endure hardships under which many men would have succumbed. Through all privation and exposure he preserved his constitution unimpaired. Anumber of years ago, however, he began to feel a strange undermining of his life. He noticed that he had less energy than formerly, that his appetite was uncertain and changing, that he was unaccountably weary at certain times and correspondingly energetic at others; that his head pained him, first in front and then at the base of the brain, and that his heart was unusually irregular in its action. All these throughes he attributed to some passing disorder, and gave them little attention, but they seemed to increase in violence continually. To the writer he said:

"I never for a moment thought these things

"I never for a moment thought these things amounted to mything serious, and I gave them little, if any, thought; but I felt myself growing weaker all the time, and could in no way account for it."

"Did you take no steps to check these symptoms?" "Did you take no steps to check these symptoms?"
"Very little, if any. I thought they were only tomporary in their nature, and would soon pass away. By the property of the property in the pr This indication increased until my body began to fill with water and finally awelled to enormous proportions. I was afflicted with acute rheumatic pains, and was fearful at times that it would attack my heart. I consulted one of our most prominent physicians, and he gave me to hope of ever recovering. He said the might live several months, but my condition was such than the meither myself nor any of my family had a the all. live several months, but my condition was such that neither myself nor any of my family had the slightest hope of my recovery. In this condition a number of months passed by, during which time I had to sit hope of my recovery. In this condition a some hope of my recovery. In this condition a some hope of months passed by, during which time I had to fit constantly in an easy-chair, not heing able to lie down, lest I should choke to death. The slight pains! had at first experience! increased to most terrible agonies. My thirst was intense, and a good por ion of the time I was wholly unconscious. When I did recover my senses I suffered so severely that my order could be heard for nearly a mile. No one washle only less of the agony I endored. I was unable early least of the agony I endored. I was unable early described and I was so exhausted that I pured day and I was so exhausted that I pured day and I was left in a condition to dir, and that, one I was left in a condition to dir, and that, one I was left in a who bad suffered very much as I had, and I escoted to pursue the same course of treatment which entirely cured him. I accordingly began, and at once fiel a change for the better going on in my system. In the course of a week the awelling had gone from my abdomen and diminished all over my body, and I and another man. I contioned the treatment, and an amother man. I contioned the treatment, and an order time of the covery of modern times were already to the covery of modern times were already to the covery of modern times were already.

"And you feel apparently well now?"

"And you feel apparently well now?"
"Yes, indeed. I amin good health, eat heartily, and both the doctors and my friends are greatly surprised and gratified at my remark tole, after I was virtually in the grave. My dark or and has been terribly trouble with a pain in her was caused by kidney trouble, has also been cured by means
"this same wreat remedy and my family and my fall is and my family and my fa caused by kidney trouble, has also been ented by means of this same great remedy, and my family and myself have constituted ourselves a kind of missionary society for supplying the poor of our neighbourhood with the remedy which has been so valuable to ns."

As the writer was returning bome he reflected upon the statements of the noble old man with whom he had the statements of the noble old man with whom he had coavered, and was impressed unto only with the truth of his assertions, but also with the sincerity of all his note. And be could not hit with that the thousands who are suffering with minor troubles which become so revious unless taken in time might know Captain Nicholls's experience and the unner in which he was swed. And that is the cause of this article,—Hamilton (Canada) Spectator.

THE GHOST AT THE RAILWAY STATION.

"They say there's a ghost at the railway station, sir! He was moaning last night fearful, and all the young women is frightened away.'

"Why young women?—are there no men at railway stations?"

"Yes, sir, there's passengers, but this is in the refreshment-rooms where the young ladies is. They say the ghost has took to moaning since Friday, and they can make out words here and there, but no one can't see anything, sir."

"Well! Thomas, I am not surprised that beings from another world should moan and groan over the fate of those who have fallen victims to the fate of those who have fallen victims to intemperance since that refreshment bar was opened, but I will go and see for myself what I can nake of this spirit who means to the discomiture of the young ladies in the bar."

"Accordingly the Rev. James Clifford walked into the town of C—and instituted inquiries. True enough, as his gardener had stated, mysterious sounds were heard in the refreshment bar, and the popular mind was much excited. After sounds were neard in the regressment our, and the popular mind was much excited. After having convinced himself that many, if not all, these sounds were produced by a high westerly wind blowing through a keyhole, along several wires, and flapping gently the registers of two of the unused stoves, Mr. Clifford bethought himself of the capital opportunity this small excitement afforded for inculcating a lesson on Temperance.

The next day bills were posted in various parts of the town, headed :-

"GHOSTS! GHOSTS! GHOSTS! Come and hear "GHOSTS! GHOSTS! GHOSTS! Come and hear the Rev. James Clifford on The Ghost at the Rail-way Station. Meeting to be held in the goods shed, kindly lent for the occasion, &c., &c. It is expected that some of the ghosts will be heard during the evening."

Punctually at 8 o'dlock the rev. speaker appeared upon the platform, made of packing cases and odds and ends, and found an esger crowd of upturned faces waiting his arrival.

A guard off duty having been voted to the chair, the lecturer at once plunged into his subject.

Ladies and gentlemen, he commenced, men say we have a ghost among us; a voice which wails at midnight in the refreshmene bar, a pitiful cry which thills the heart, a knock, knock, knocking from the lone land where the dead wait—wait and watch the living. I tell you there are many ghosts who haunt that bar—many voices, many wailing to gries, and that there are spirits who knock all night long hoping to be heard, but we are deaf to their happeals. I shall endeadour to personate a few of appeals. I shall endeavour to personate a tew of these"; and, lowering his voice, the speaker . I shall endeavour to personate a few of went on :-

"I was a railway porter; I earned fair wages, and being civil, I took a lot of money in tips. I had a wife and children, but they went hungry and were a wife and children, but they went nuogry and were badly clothed. I drank, and drank in this bar, and at a little public-house round the corner, until I died at 42 and left my wife without a penny. Will none of you listen when I moan, and moan? Tell my mates to give up drinking, to live a sober life, and to shun these places where drink is sold as they would the plague, or a pest-house."

After a moment's slience, the speaker resumed in a deeply sorrowful tone :-

"I was a cabman; I had five children and as good a wife as man ever had. The money I took would have kept us all in comfort, but I spent shilling after shilling in this bar, and in pretty nearly shiling after shilling in this par, and in precty nearly every public-house I came to, and they went short at home. For years my wife had no newclothes, her old mistress supplying her with bonnet or gown just mistress supplying her with bonnet or gown just decent enough to go about in. 'He's a good husband, 'she would say, 'if the drink did not sap up his money so. All cabmen's alike, and he never gave me a blow in his life, as many does!' Yet when they carried me to a drunkard's grave, she felt, poor soul, that she was better off without me. Why don't the rest of you listen to what I say, take your money home, save it while you can? Soon, it may be, the time will come when you will have to ask the parish for its two or three shillings a week as I had, and I once owned the best horse and carriage that turned out of the yard."

"I was second nurse in Mr. Selwyn's family; I took my quarter's wages to go home, and I met a friend in the bar, who asked me to drink a glass of wine in honour of her birthday. I drank first one glass, then another, before I got into the train. Presently I fell asleep, until arriving at Boxall Station I heard, and only half heard, them call the name, jumped up (my head all swimming and confused), opened the carriage door without seeing that the train was movine, and remembered no more "I was second nurse in Mr. Selwyn's family; I that the train was moving, and remembered no more that the train was moving, and remembered no more until I heard the nurse say at the hospital 'She is conscious, but sinking fast.' Will no one listen to my wailing cry? Tell my fellow-servants three glasses of wine killed me; that if I had never entered the place where they sold this dreadful poison, I should not have been found mangled and balf dead unon the line at Boxall." half dead upon the line at Boxall.

Again, the voice of a well-bred lady spoke :-Again, the voice of a well-bred lady spoke:—
"I purchased brandy in this bar to refresh my-self during my sorrowful journey to bid good-bye to my husband, who was leaving England with his regiment. I arrived at Plymouth intoxicated, so intoxicated that I could bid him no good-bye, leave him with no tender messages, and the ship sailed and I knew nothing. Then I drank to drown the thought of it, and I had a fever on the brain, and it killed me. Do you not hear my vaice which heads, and pleads? Tell two sistert to Do you not hear my ds? Tell my sister to the brain, and it killed me. Do you not near my voice which pleads, and pleads? Toll my sister to see that the children I left behind never touch this fearful thing; tell them that it has killed their mother, and has broken their father's heart; that it is such an insidious foe that although it did all this, only the very immediate members of my family ever suspected the dreadful fact that I was intemperate.

Lastly came the bluff deep voice of a man, who said:—

"I was an engineer: I came into this bar one night with a friend who had turned tectoraler, that is, he followed me in, pleading all the way: 'Burford, you've had enough; Burford, have some good coffee, I'll pay; Burford, when the drink's in the wit's out.' No use, I was in a queer temper. They had snapped me up for being behind my tione. I knew it was my own fault, but it made me savage. I took a glass and had my flask filled. 'O that man should put an enemy into hismouth to steal away his brains,' sighed my teetotal friend, and I went out and got on to the engine, growling 'Brains, what do you say orans, signed my rectoral triend, and I went out and goton to theengine, growling 'Brains, what do you say about brains? I have got more brains than a teetotaler any day.' That night I took the train into a siding. I never saw the signals, which were dead against me. The enemy had stolen away my dead against me. Inc enemy had storen away my orains, and I lay with my skull smashed in at Exeter. Will no one listen to my knock, knock, knocking, as I try to shout to all my old comrades? As sure as you put the enemy in your mouth he'll steal away your brains, and even while you boast of your strength and your freedom, he may take your life away, and that of others, as he did that night at the junction—19 of us in all. Nover a place where they sell the accursed liquor, but we wail, and mean, and knock, hoping to make some of you listen and bid you give up the habit of drinking now, at once, and for ever."

The rev. speaker then solemnly pronounced a benediction and was gone, but it was not until some moments afterwards that men began to move slowly away to their homes, some of them remark-ing that every word they had heard was true, and that drink was at the bottom of half the evil the world suffered from. Let us hope that not a few solemily pledged themselves to give it up "now, at once, and for ever."—British Women's Temperance Journal.

TURN OVER A NEW LEAF.

He always meant to do that. From his early boyhood upward-or downward, rather, alas :-- to this his manhood! A pitiable object he looked as he stood there in his rags, propped up by the walk and unsteady even then. "Intoxicated again, Smith," said the master, passing by, "why, you promised to mend!" "I'll t-t-turn over a n-n-new leaf, sir," stuttered he, as usual. Poor wretch! whether he wills it or no, the new leaves keep turning of his book of life, and very dirty leaves they are. With health shattered by long indulgence in drink, he cannot have many leaves left to turn over. Soon will come the last, and Though he so often talks of then? "turning the then! Though he so often taiks of "turning the leaves," he has never realised he is, in all truth, writing a book. Yet he is doing that, and so are you, whether you know it or not! It is a grand thing to write a good book, full of noble thoughts that will help men togrow better, and shed a light from Heaven all around. Some books do that, some lives do that. Other books and other lives hav quits an opposite influence; they lead men far from God, and cause them to become the slave of their own evil passions. The books we are writing, you and I—our lives—will affect us and all who surround us for ever. Is not that a solemn thought? In ordinary books errors can be corrected, but in In ordinary books errors can be corrected, but in these books as we write so it stands for eer. Rach day is a page in our book of life. How do these pages look? Are they fair and bright, bearing the impress of loving hearts, seeking God's glory, in kindly deeds and thoughts to all around? Are they blurred and blotted by self-seeking and evil passions? Probably there are seeking and evil passions? Probably there are many things we fain would blot out if we could! Sins and mistakes, oh! so many! We cannot mend Sins and inistakes, oh! so many! We cannot mend these dark pages, but we can take then to God, who, for the Saviour's sake, will forgive us and help us from henceforth to lead clean, pure lives. Then, when our last page will be filled up and the book closed on earth, He will say, "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you." (Matt. xxv. 34.)

CHARACTER DRESS AND KISSING GAMES.

SISTER GEORGINA S. WARD, D.S.J.T., E. Cumberland, writes:—In reading over the correspondence in last week's Warchword I was astonished in reading Bro. A. Paterson's letter to find so many misstatements, and feel it my daty to reply to them. In the first place Bro. Paterson says that we have the large membership at the cost of driving out the intelligent Temperance workers and filling their places with young members, some mere children.

Now I defy Bro. Paterson to prove this statement. nor can be mention one who has left the Lodge for any such reason, and out of a membership of 112 we have only two or three young members who are not only an ornament but a credit to us, and Bro. Paterson has been very often indebted to the chil-dren of the Anchor Lodge, for at nearly every entertainment their Lodge has, our members have been the principal entertainers. With regard to our being principal entertainers. brought under the discipline of the District Lodge this is mere spite, and as to the game question I may say that the Anchor Lodge have not indulged any more in games than the Lodge which Bro. Paterson is a member of. I have been a member of the Anchor Lodge for 15 years, and I am now the oldest female member of the Order in Carlisle, and I cannot remember ever reading more incorrect statements in connection with any Lodge since ever I joined the Order. 1 may here state that all the members of the Anchor Lodge are both respectable and intelligent, of which the Order may well be proud.

BRO. EDWARD GLAISTER, Leighton Buzzard, writes: - I quite agree with the letter of Bro. Captain W. H. Phipps, and I have been very careful not to lend a copy of the WATCHWORD since the present discussion has been going on. Character dress stands, I think, on another footing, Sir Joseph Paxton Lodge has obeyed the law to the Joseph Paxion Lodge has obeyed the law to the letter, and has been careful, when introducing any of the good Temperance sketches—"Susan Sandford," "King Dibble," Band of Hope dialogue on smoking, or others—to call the meeting a Temperance Rehearsal or Social Gathering—as distinctived guished from an entertainment undertaken by the I.O.G.T. Lodge.

BRO. JOHN BROOKS, P.D.C.T., S.W. Yorks, BRO. JOHN BROOKS, F.D.C.T., S.W. 10783, writes:—I have no desire to be an advocate for "character dress," or "kissing games," but sumply to express my disapproval of Grand Lodge making bye-laws which interfere with freedom of action of the Lodges. If this sort of legislation is persected. of the loages. It has sort of legislation is perse-vered in the watchword by which the Order will be known will be "Pax and Onex." I think if our obligation is kept, which not only refers to abstinence from intoxicants, but actions which may injure one another, and the best endeavours for Temperance work, then any additional commandment becomes a burden and most likely to he resisted by the membership. May I suggest how this needless legislation could be avoided? I think that if our members who qualify themselves for Grand Lodge representatives would always attend Subordinate Lodge and exercise their power and influence in directing its affairs and suggesting its programme, then no complaint would reach our annual Parliament or offend the sensitive organs of our best brothers and sisters.

BRO, WILLIAM HENNY, L.D., Avon Lodge, Bradford-on-Avon, writes:—In one of the publica-tions of the Licensed Victnallers, it says that the Good Templars are squabbling among themselves about kissing games, &c., and that they, the pub-licans, need not trouble themselves about it, but keep quiet and watch the game. Now, sir, it would be much better if our members want to write about anything to write letters telling as how to put a stop to the drink traffic. It is not so much play we want, but real carnest work. It is to put down the drink we are formed into Lodges, not to play at kissing games or such like. I hope that our members will remember that the Licensed Victuallers be much better if our members want to write about are watching us.

BRO. EDWIN PENRICE, D.G.W.C.T., Birmingham, writes: - If we can judge from the corresponthat has already taken place the action the Grand Lodge has taken is in every way beneficial to our Order; I think our Bro. Kentish is in his opinions far from what our Order expect from its members. All the talk and twaddle adverse to it members. All the talk and twaddle adverse to it need to decline the present. When our the characterises as perfectly uncalled for and L.D. read his commission to the Lodge, the particular problems. I would remind Bro. Kentish that nothing is uncalled for or imposing that upholds the law of Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge has the law of Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge has the law of Grand Lodge as the medium of the law of Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge has the law of Grand Lodge as the medium of the law of Grand Lodge.

decided by an overwhelming majority to prohibit such games in connection with our Order, and every member of our Order has promised to be obedient to all the rules, usages, and bye-laws of our Order.
If our brother wishes to be obedient to this rule, I hope he will until such times as the law is rescinded. Then again he says one may join in a game without giving or receiving a kiss. If this is the case I think those who don't wish to kiss had best keep out of the games, as it is more likely to give offence to the games, as it is more likely to give offence to reject anyone than it is not to allow the game to be played. As to the policy our 'orother refers to, I would tell him that an item of Good Templary is violated by the rule I have mentioned. And as for only being married members that object I would ask our brother who the stability of the Order depends apon but the married members. I don't think it is exclusively the younger portion of our Order that would make our Order what it ought to be. I hope when he tries to reclaim a drunkard he won't toll him we have kissing games at our meetings, or he'll be laughed at. If it is only the young folks that want these games I would ask our brother to try and teach them to grow up to be Temperance workers. I would ell our brother's atmarried members. I don't think it is exclusively the tention to the principles of our Order, and see if he cannot do good rather than receive benefit; also to the correspondence of our Bro. Pickett. He bas the correspondence of our Bro. Pickett. He has personally canvassed 18 or 20 Lodges, and 88 per cent. resented the prohibition. Now fancy, out of 20 Lodges, 98 per cent. are not married. What a pity our Order is possessed of 20 Lodges with so few married people. If this is all the married there are in these Lodges, I fear the work of reclaiming the fall sits such that the control of the contro fallen is lacking considerably. I am pleased to see there are so many young members, still I should like to see more elderly members amongst them to have o see more enterly memoers amongst them by teach them to do what our Order asked them to do. I am a S.J.T., and no one delights more than I do to work for the young; at the same time I do what I can to bring the elder ones into our midst. I have been connected with the Order from a Javenile (now nine years), and I have always had superintendents to guide me in the way I should go. I sincerely aphold the action of the G.L. as my duty to the Order, and my appreciation of its welfare.

Bro. W. M. Lockwood, Fulham, writes :- The stage is what people make it, and while the good stay away and only hold up their hands with pious horror against the few blots that exist, naturally the managers will pander to the class who go, although I maintain that the pieces in which virtue is victor and vice vanquished are the majority, and have the longest runs. Go to any theatre where there is a working-class audience and hear the villain howled at. It would do your heart good and would quite convince you that the heart of the nation is still sound. In quoting Paul you (to me) scem to lose sight of the fact that he was speaking to the saved people who had accepted Jesus as their Saviour, and who would naturally be on quite a different footing from those persons whom we have just rescued from the snares of drink, and who have something to see and hear, more than Paslms and hymns and spiritual songs. time, of course, comes when the regenerated soul does oraye this kind of food, and then I say the proper place is the place of worship and not the Good Templar Lodge. Thousands have been lost to our well beloved Order through various causes, and it seems as if Satan were always "stirring up strife amongst the brethren" so as to be able to extend the size of his kingdom. Instead of passing futile laws, we should be trying to be more liberal. Narrowmindedness never did avail, and never will. Catholicity in practice will do more than aught else to bring us to "Thy Kingdom come."

BRO. CHRISS. WILLSON, Queen's Park, London, writes :- I think the resolution of the Grand Lodgo writes:—I tilink the resolution of the Grand Longo on this subject may be classed among the wisest and best on record, and I think, when it becomes known to the public, a great impetus will be given to our Order and many will join who have hitherta held aloof. After the letters lately in the Telegraph I think our G.L. could not have a better resolution. I have always strenuously opposed including kissing games in our entertainment programmes, but have not always been successful with my opposition. At the last soriée we held, this question was put to the vote, and these games carried by a very small majority. I believe about four or five out of about 60 persons present. When our an entertsingent was being held, and during the an entertainment was being lieft, and during the evening (up to the time I left, 10.30) there were no less than four kissing games, one of which was "Jacob's Ladder," in my humble opinion the most objectionable and repulsive of all. One reason I always urge is that I object to any other man kissing my wife, and consequently I consider it to be my duty (to her) not to kiss any other female (my mother and daughters excepted).

BRO, C. SIDNEY M. LEEDS, P.W.C.T. and P.D.T., Sittingbourne, writes: I, with many other members in this part of Kent, was deeply disappointed to read in the report of the G.L. proceedpointed to read in the report of the G.L. proceed-ings that dressing in character had been so strongly condemned and strictly prohibited by our G.L. legislators. I am glad that the subject of "Kissing Games" is no longer to be linked with character dress. The tendency of kissing games, to say the least, is not to elecate our members, or to bring credit on the Order, the honour and prosperity of which we have all so much at heart. But with regard to character dress, what can be said? The G.L. Reps. have sadly misrepresented the wishes of our membership in this matter, we have reason to believe. Some time ago our Lodge performed "The Trial of John Barleycorn" in character dress. (How dread-John Barleyoorn "in character dress. (How dread-ful.") We devoted considerable time and anxiety in endeavouring to put it before the public at its best, but we were amply rewarded. We got several new members as a result of our labours. And did these members turn out to be of very little or no use in our Lodge (as some seem to think those are that are attracted by dramatic performances?) Decidedly not. We have proved them to be earnest workers, whose motto is, "War to the knife, and the knife to the hilt!" We have memoearnest workers, whose motto is, "War to the members in our Lodges wno probably are not capable of making a speech, but who could and would eloquently denounce the curse of drink in a dramatic performance. Why should such be de-barred from giving utterance to their hatred of this legalised traffic and be compelled to hide their telent? I fear if they are treated thus they will tident? I fear if they are treated thus they will go into some other camp whose members are not annoyed and bound down by such tyrannous legislation, and by this means we shall lose some of our most thorough and promising members. I should be very sorry to see anything of a doubtful character presented to the public under the auspices of our Order; but this could be easily prevented by asking permission to perform a piece, of some responsible officer (say the D.C.T.). Surely Grand Lodge will not legislate against the Surely Grand Lodge will not legislate against the wishes of a large majority of the most earnest and devoted members of our world-wide fraternity?

Bro. J. R. Marthews, P.W.C.T., Anchor Lodge, Carlisle, writes:—Being the originator of the very interesting correspondence on character dress and kissing games, perhaps you will permit me to say a few words in reply. After carefully weighing the evidence adduced by the various writers who denounce the games, I fail to find anything to substantiate their assertions. In fact, their case was entirely broken down. dared to point out a single instance of real morality as the outcome of those games, and I have moranty as the outcome of those games, and I have the authority of a 15 years' member to prove that not a single case has during that time occurred in this District. I honestly believe that the seventh Commandment is more strictly observed by our members than those of any other organisation that I know. I cannot conceive a more dastardly insult to our sisters than to question their purity because they take part in a kissing game, and I do hope that the next G.L. will see the imperative utility of revoking the obnoxious resolution they passed last Easter week.

Bro. GEORGE DODDS, P.G.W.C., writes :- Until I read the letters which have appeared in the WATCHWORD since Grand Lodge Sessions on kissing WATCHWORD SINCE CITAIN LONGS SESSIONEOU REISHING games, I had no conception whitever that our Order had sunk so low as to depend for success upon the supplying of our Lodges with young girls to be kissed by a lot of thoughtless young men, who will only come to them for that purpose. It appears from Bro. Matthew's statements that his Lodge tries to compete with the frivolities of the race week by permitting kissing in the Lodge as a draw, and that his own daughter, if I understand him correctly, takes part in the games. I wonder they have have not ventured to open an I.O.G.T Kissing Booth on the Carlisle racecourse, and competed with the tents of the publicans by advercompleted with the tension of the plantains by adver-tising—"A company of young girls who would take part in the kissing games inside the booth. Admis-sion 0d. each. The entertainment to be continued after the races are over in the Lodge-room."

Another brother says, "I fear the declension will continue now that the Grand Lodge has prohibited kissing games in our Lodges.' serious in this matter I fear that the very publication of these letters in our official organ will have such an effect upon thoughtful mothers who would not on any account submit their daughters to such an ordeal as to be kissed by any young man who might choose to do so, as to prevent their dear girls from joining our Order, and quite right they would be in so doing; bester keep them at home under their own care and protection and away from such dubious entertainments. But is it really true as dubtons entertainments. But is it reasily true as Bro. A. G. Hemsley asserts, that our Order will decline, now "that the Grand Lodge has prohibited kissing games"? We have strong evidence to the contrary in the letter of Bro. J. W. Johnson, office assing games I we have strong evidence to the contrary in the letter of Bro. J. W. Johnson, P.W.C.T., Carlisle. He agrees with Bro. Matthews that the Order has been decreasing, but the decrease is mainly owing to the fact that those "idiotic kissing games have been allowed to exist so long in our Lodges," Bro. Johnson supposit the statement in the Bro. Johnson supports the statement by the games took auch a prominent part in our Order, East Cumberland could boast of having 21 Lodges with a total membership varying from 900 to 1,000. In 1886 with those kissing games to the front, East Cumberland has only 11 Lodges, with a member-ahip of about 500, and deeply deplores the loss of half their Lodges and half their members." Again "in 1880 a Ledge named the Good Tomplars'

Home, in Carlisle, was commenced for the purpose of carrying on those games, and they gamed thomselves out of existence in about two months, never making a return." These, says he, are positive facts, and "Facts are shields that win a day, and dare not be disputed." My own quinion a day, and dare not be disputed." My own opinion is (and my opinion is based upon 50 years' experience as a worker in the Temperance cause), that if we intend our beloved Order to be a grand success, we must make our Lodges what all such places for the education of our young men and women in true Temperance principles, ought to be "a home away from home"; a place where parents can with confidence trust their sens and daughters. with condence trust their sens and daughters, feelingame that no indiscreet actions of any kind will be found in connection with our Order, prefessedly based upon Ohristian principles, and Christian teaching. If we fail to secure such confidence, depend upon it wo shall not have the support of a large class of people who could to be support of a large class of people who could to be strength and our support in the glorious warfare we have entered upon. Finally, brothers and sisters, permit a word of admonition from one who had watched with all a parent's fondness the rise and progress of the Temperance cause in our be-loved country, and is jealous lest anything should be done to impair the beauty of our Order, or impade the progress of the deliverance of our homes from England's greatest curse—the drink traffic.

BRO. JAMES MACHIN, L.D., Burslem, writes :think that more harm is being done by the decision of the Grand Lodge, and the critics who object to character dress, than by the reality of the dress itself. Of course, it should be understood that all our entertainments are strictly confined to Temperance pieces, of which there is no lack. Not for one moment do I believe in the nigger for one moment repartee. Our Order is an elevating one, and it may be very well for those Lodges who have only Our Order is an elevating one, and with them to carp at character dress, but let such members try in reality to rescue the fallen, let them visit the drunkard's home, as we have done, kindly inviting them to come and join us, and they will acon find that they must either provide counter-acting pleasures to the public-house, or they won't long retain them. Man is a sociable being, and you have to take into consideration his surroundings. Make to take ince consideration his surroundings. What will do for one locality will not always suit another. It wants leaving an open question; no scheme can be brought forward but what opposition will be offered to it from some quarter. For my own part, as an abstainer of more than 37 years, I do not wish for a change, but I am locking to the dissatisfaction of others. Even in our own Lodge it is only kindness that prevents a rupture and the losing of some members by this vexed question; and if the leading officers were in the same mind as some of the members, the Lodge would succumb, as already one Lodge has done in our District. If at the Grand Lodge Session a number of reclaimed drunkards could have testified to the dazzling attractions that Beniface uses to entice his victims, I trow that the vote would have been for it to have been left an open question. We live in a land of liberty, and the members think that their rights are interfered with when they cannot get up an entertainment without being subject to a violation, if perchance in a dialogue those who can be considered. The constant of the constant of take part in it clothe themselves in any but their own dress.

Bro. G. F. Rackett, jun., W.C.T., Sandown, Isle of Wight, writes: As to character dress, I should like to ask the Grand Lodge why they publish from time to time in their Ode Books, pauiphlets, and Good Templar's Watchword, lists of dialogues and sketches, which according to the various headings of the same cannot be successfully rendered without character dress, as I have some "A shop," characters John so and so, carpenter, &c., &c., or "Scene," a railway station, Joseph oc., cc., or "Seene, a railway station, Joseph so and so, porter, cc., cc. If they are forbidden why publish them in the Watchword I am no prophet, but owing to these two bye-laws now in force I venture to predict that we shall hear of a heavy loss of members of the Order at the next tirand Lodge Session. There are brothers and sisters in my own Lodge who will bear me out in what I am now going to assert, that in bygone years, before the character dress was terbidden, we used to have most crowded meetings when we had dialogues and sketches in character, but at more had dialogues and skotches in character, but at more recent entertainments, minus pieces in character dress, Temperance meetings and lectures, sometimes we could only get an audience of 40 or 50 in a town of ever 3,000 inhabitants. Only a few weeks since we had two most excellent speakers, Bro. Williams, P.D.C.T. of South Hants, and Bro. Rev. W. Rogers, of Woolston, Southampton, who gave two most excellent addresses worthy of heine learn in tha cellent addresses, worthy of being heard in the largest crowded town hall in England, but only about 50 or 60—not more,—put in an appearance. Yet I venture to say had we got up an entertain-ment for that evening with dialogues and sketches in character we should have had a crowded house, and should have been benefited numerically and financially, Iaskas a member of the Order for 14 years, who have seen the ups and downs of Good Templary, is it fair to members of the Order to build them with such an iron band that outsiders cannot them with such an iron band that outsiders cannot be reached unless by entertainments of a character which are unjustly forbidden? I answer emphati-cally, No. The sooner these bye-laws are repealed cally, No. The sooner these bye-laws are repealed the better for the membership and the public at large,

POLITICAL ACTION.

Hodges, "That this Conneil protests against unjustifiable action of the Common process; against unjustuance accord of the House of Lords in rejecting the Durham Sunday Closing Bill at its third reading, and that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to the Prime Minister, Earl Granville, Lord Salisbury, and the Bishop of Durham." INEBRIETY MEDICALLY EXAMINED.

At the recent quarterly meeting of the Society Active recem quarterly meeting of the Society for the Study and Cure of Inebriety, an interesting communication on "The Sanitary Relations of Inebriety," by Dr. T. D. Crothers, of Hartford, Connecticut, United States of America, was read Connectect, United States of America, was read by the secretary, Dr. Crothers in his paper said that the intellectual and physical vigour of a nation depended largely on its vitality. The mortality and disease arising from inebirely laid the burden on the remaining populations heavier by the withdrawal of so much preductive nower. Inabirety drawal of so much productive nower. Inebriety was so invidious and widespread that its sanitary aspect was of the highest importance. Its influence aspect was of the inguest importance. Its immende on the public health was evidenced markedly in nortality. At least 60,000 premature deaths were caused every year by it in the United States. Compared with this estimate the mortality from cholers and yellow fover satik into insignificance. The principal period of life when persons were cut off through inebriety was between the ages of 20 and 40, when the greatest value was to be attached to activity and greatest value was to be attended to activity strength. Over 50 per cent. of all the sickness resulted, directly or indirectly, from inebriety. Nervous discases, paralysis, epilepsy, and apoplexy were largely fed from this source. Besides, it lessened the conserving and resisting powers, so that disease was less easily withstood. Fevers also prevailed more among inebriates, and the mertality among them from that cause was greater than among the rest of the com-munity. Then much of the disease from the unmunity. Then much of the disease from the un-sanitary condition of dwellings was caused by the want of means to secure a good house through extravagant expenditure in liquor. The crimes which flowed from inebriety exceeded those from all other causes. In Canada it was estimated at 9s per cent., in New York City at 80 per cent., and in other places from 50 per cent. upwards. This alone, with the disturbances to society, the destitution, and pauperism were appalling. Inchriety had been called a relic of barbarism Inchriety had been called a relic of barbarian surviving in the midst of our civilisation; but it was really our civilisation which was barbaric. Inebriety was felt on the public health, following political, social, or financial revolution. For example, the last "Black Friday" would long be remembered. Insane asylums were barroneters in which we read the traces of the storms of insaling all the properties of the storms of insaling all the storms of inebriety. It sprang from change, excitement, un-healthy surroundings, and was frequently an active cause of the very conditions from which it was re-eruited. Inebricty, in its effect on public health, was not limited to crime, disease, and poverty. There was the still more grave transmission of the alceholic taint efadiseased tendency to degradation—physical, moral, and mental. The children of inebriates were bound down by conditions of birth from which their whole life was a stroggle to escape. Inchriety could not be cured by enthusiasm, except in a few cases, but by a careful scientific course of treat-ment; and it was urgently to be hoped that the physically deceased condition of the inebriate would closely studied, with a view to thorough remedying of the fearful amount of inebriety which sadlened our whole surroundings,

BAD BLOOD.

A FEW PLAIN WORDS ON A SUBJECT OF WHICH THE PUBLIC IS IGNORANT

Can't you understand why you always feel so dull, tired and weary, at this season of the year?

It is not to be wondered at that you can't Thousands are just as much perplexed by it as you are.

It is a fact, too, that if this feeling is not gotten rid of, the summer will bresk you down completely, and bring on chronic disease, suffering, and death.

Now, then, listen a few minutes, and we will tell you all about it, in very simple phrase and words.

We have about 10 quarts of blood in the average-aized man. It is constantly undergoing change, and is mannfactured from the food we daily consume by a chemical process Nature has. She selects only that portion which, after digestion, is found to be proper, and takes it up by a tobe called the thoracic duct, emptying it into the large vein, near the left collar bone, from which it is at once carried to the kidneys to be strained of all the deleterious matter which is left by the bowels.

as a surely are in healthy condition, the blood is in an absolutely pure state, contains all the elements for repairing waste, returns at once to the heart, and is thrown by that organ to every part of the living body, to give up its nourishment and take up all the worm-out material. If the kidneys are in healthy condition, the blood is in material.

Contrary to the general belief, the liver is not a bloodpurifying organ; its purpose is only for nutrition and digestion and it secretes daily many pounds of bile, some being used in digestion and nutrition, and the balance as

You ask, why? Because, ny friend, the liver is a slagish, lethargic organ that cannot be relieved of any ailment except by medicine which acts upon it in a quiet, easy manner, producing permanent effects, and assisting, not gooding its normal action. The kidneys do the property of the property o pared to publish their names in its favour. These have all been brothers. We think it is to the credit of the sisters that not one of them has similarly attached her name to its advocacy. And in spite of the strong demands of some of the brothers, we still decline to believe that the practice has been very prevalent. Still less do we believe that a large proportion of our members can seriously desire the practice to be perpetuated.

The Grand Lodge has forbidden it within the ranks of the Order, and in connection with Lodges or entertainments at which the name of the Order is announced This decision is undoubtedly final, To rescind it would be to break up the Order itself, for right-minded parents who entertain the view that most respectable people do as to public and indiscriminate kissing among comparative strangers, would certainly do their best to frown comparative down any organisation that countenanced such a practice. We admit that many young people despise such parental influence and restraint. There is a tendency, we know, towards a revised version of the Scripture, enjoining parents to obey their children; but we question the wisdom of those who would revise it in their practice, and we should rather our children avoided matrimonial alliance with these rebellious upstarts.

Decent people will not be associated with a society which, under the guise of promoting a great moral and religious reform, might turn itself into a weekly kiss-in-the-ring; and the matter will not admit of further discussion. The pleas offered in its favour are the strongest proof of the absolute impossibility of its being permitted. The public kissing business must be done outside. This is the law; and we doubt Those who not it will be loyally obeyed. must have such amusement will know where to find it; but surely they would not wish to drive from the ranks of Good Templary the valued workers who could not possibly be associated with such practices.

The question of character dress is upon quite another footing. No one has urged that it is immoral to act a piece in character dress. The simple ground of its exclusion has been the difficulty of drawing the line, and of regulating entertainments when once the limit is passed which prohibits character dress. The Order has been degraded before the public by some such performances, and they have been pro-hibited, not by any sudden legislation, but after duly published notice; and the prohibition has been re-affirmed at repeated sessions of our Grand Lodge. We have, as Good Templars, a representative Government, more democratic in its character than that of anyother organisation in the country, and we are a law-abiding as well as a self-governing people. We have shewn every desire in this journal to give free scope to the opinions of the members; and we have taken leave to express our own. Our advice now to all is, obey the law; and if, in any matters, it is not thought satisfactory, raise the question in your Subordinate and District Lodges, and finally elect Representatives to Grand Lodge who will, in your judgment, legislate wisely and well on your behalf-never Order has in view.

Bro. Libut. Wawrinsky, G.W.Co, Sweden, will be entertained at tea by prominent Metropolitan members on Friday, 11th inst., at the \[\]London Central \(\)Club, Bridewell - place, New Bridgeatreet, E.C.

In closing the correspondence upon this unsavoury subject, we have really very little to say. Like Bro. George Dodds, whose judgment and counsel fitly conclude the discussion, we had no idea that the practice was prevalent enough to find so many advocates prevalent enough to find so be paid, and did not include Visiting Deputies' expenses. —J. M.

Bro. CHIEF WAUBINO, P.G. Guard of Cacada, will soon close his long visit to England and return to his Indian settlement with the Indian hymn books he has had printed, and with funds to build a new Mission School for his people. His portrait is in last mooth's Jueenile Templar, just as he appears in full Indian costume, with plumes and tomahawk, at District Lodge and other public meetings, where his fine appearance, good singing in the Indian tongue, and his striking Englah advocacy of Temperance, create intense interest and enthusiasm. Bro. Waubuno is a Good Templar of 28 years' standing, and hears a thoroughly good record. Bro. Duncan Milligan, 21, Spencer-road, New Wandsworth, London, S.W., is ably acting as his hon. secretary.—J. M.

The Church of Ireland Temperance Visitor is an excellent periodical. It is in its muth volume, yet its existence has hitherto been unknown to me and probably to most Temperance people on this side the Irish Channel.

THE ACTING W.C.T., W.T., and W.S. of a Lodge in the West Cheshire District are 61, 71, and 79 years of age respectively. It does us good to know that such veterans rally round the flag and hold the fort.

THE ROYAL HANDBELL RINGERS (POLAND-STREET).—These brethren have ended a long tour in Sweden. They performed in the Good Templar Hall at Ostersund. The immense building was crowded in every part. They had also a good attendance in Gefic, also in the Templar's Hall. The ringers sailed for England on June 3.

A New TEMPERANCE HALL has just been built at Donesster by our good Sister Mra. Walker, who is one of those who desire to spend and be spent in doing good. A whole week of Temperance meetings wore held to inaugurate the opening, commencing May 2, and on my visit on the Friday I found the main room crowded to excess. The building is large and handsome. The lower hall is to be used as a Lodge-room.

THE BRITISH AND COLONIAL TEMPERANCE CONGRESS projected by the National Temperance League, in commemoration of the "Colluidies" Exhibition, commences the day after the Crystal Palace Temperance Fete, at which fete we shall have a special session of Grand Lodge. The Congress opens Wednesday, July 14, and continues the two following days. Very valuable colonial papers will doubtless be read. Members' tickets are 5s.
Lodges or societies can, by paying 10s., send three delogates. Members and bodies represented will be entitled to the volume of proceedings. Our Grand Lodge will be represented, and we hope our District and Sub Lodges will also send delegated.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Question.—Can associate members sign the petition form for a charter to open a new Lodge; or should they weit until the institution is completed before depositing their associate cards?

Answer.—Associate members may sign the petition form, and may also be received into membership at the institution of the Lcdge.

Question.—An associate member is elected W.C.T. before his ordinary Lodge has installed its officers. Can such associate W.C.T. receive the password at his installation?

Anseer,—An associate W.C.T. as such can receive password to give to members paying dues, but he cannot use the password to enter that or any Lodge till he also gets it from the W.C.T. of his regular Lodge, which he should do as soon as the latter W.C.T. is installed.

Question: When a member of a Lodge is on clearance card, can any D.C.T. or Lodge give him the new password on his tendering a quarter's subscription?

Abswer: (1) A member while on elearance eard has no dues to pay for the next quarter and cannot receive its password. (2) None but the W.C.T. of a Sub-Lodge has the right to give the password to members. (3) A W.O.T. cannot give the password to a member of another Lodge, unless such member presents a warrant for it from his own W.C.T., and to such warrant are be given to a member on slearance card.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Another crisis has arisen in the history of our nation. For the second time this year a Government has been defeated, and we are on the eve of a General Election. The issue upon which the election will be fought may, unless the friends of Temperance are on the alert, affect the position of our cause in the House of Commons. Therefore in every case we must endeavour to secure the return of men favourable to our views, giving a decided preference to those who are prepared to grant the direct veto to localities in order that the people themselves may decide whether or no drink traffickers shall be allowed to carry on their mischievous trade.

From the turn recent events have taken, it seems clear the method by which we shall obtain the power of dealing with the liquor traffic will be an extended form of self government. It would be some years before Parliament would pass anything like agenuine Prohibition measure, whereas now there would be very little difficulty in getting it to adopt a Bill handing over to counties the right of settling licensing and other local matters. Already there are portions of the United Kingdom ready to act on such authority, sod very soom we should see Prohibitive measures proposed if not enacted. We must move with the times, and as our opportunities occur we must grasp them. Let us learn the lesson of to-day and then we shall be ready when the time for action arrive.

At last a vote has been taken in the House of Commons upon the question of Sunday Closing for England (excluding the Metropolis), and a proposition to that effect has been carried by a majority of 15. Mr. Stevenson is to be congratulated on the success thus obtained. He has toiled long and patiently, and although he may not at present be permitted to reap the fruit of his victory, it will encourage him to persevers in the new Parliament, and carry through a measure embodying the principlo he got affirmed the other evening.

and carry through a measure emotoring the paneipho he got affirmed the other evening.

The Daily Telegraph ***

The Daily Telegraph of Tuesday last published one of those remarkable leaders for which it has become eelcherted—for we are now used to this so-called "leading" morning paper denouncing every movement which tends to raise the moral tone of the people and stop drunkenness and vice, as "fads" and "grandmotherly legislation." The writer imputes all manner of had motives to those members who supported Mr. Stevenson's amendment, and its abuse of the Ministers who voted with him is as silly as it is untrue. The following sentence will reveal how ignorant this paper of "world-wide circulation" is of the composition and extent of our interest. In the present House a strong Probibilista cliquer we were well aware. Tocall them the Terminist cliquer we were well aware. Tocall them the Terminist cliquer we were well aware. To call them the Terminist cliquer we were well aware to them a tille they do not deserve. Some of the most excellent men and women of whom Eogland can boast at the present time have promoted Temperance by example and precept, and have clevated thousands of working classes by teaching them sobriety and all its advantages. The partisans of repressive legislation, however—those who would shut up all public-houses and compel into water-drinking all working men—are a distinct body. They are fanaties who do ub telleve in moral reformation, but in the strait-waistocat system. The narrow fanatics mod other men has hithorth had considerable success. We live in an era of political flabbiness. The majority of our politicals have no backbones. They can bend and how to public opinion as easily as if they were invertebrate animals. Therefore, the properties of the leaders of our "arliament making concession after concession. Sociland, Ireland, and Wales have secured Sunday closing through local Bills."

It would be interesting to know how many of the "excellent men" who have done so much to promote Temperance are found on the stall of the D.T. Again the writer of this article must have forgotten that things political have very materially altered during the last 50 years. Why is it there are so many members in the present House of Commons so favourable to Temperance legislation? Simply because the electors of the United Kingdom refuse to give their votes to men notse disposed. The working men of England now think for themselves, and are not content to let members of Parliament treat them with contempt and disdain. None know this better than the M.P.'s themselves, and they fully realise that they only retain their seats so long as they enjoy the confidence of their constituents.

But we must not look for too much from the D. T. A paper that makes a speciality of reporting prize fights and such like, and is constantly sounding the praises of that which maddens the brain and debases the nature of man can hardly be expected to shed much real light upon the social problems of the day. We can only pity the editor for his short-sightedness, and hope that very soon he may receive a clearer revelation of the true state of public opinion.

At the present time there is to be seen at the Colonial Exhibition a remarkable exemplification of the benefits of abstinence, in the person of a centenarian said to be 102 years of age. This old man is still lithe and active, with teeth mostly sound, and eyesight good, appearing to bear the burden of a century as though it were only 40 years. The secret of this vitality, according to Dr. Tyler, who is in charge of the Hindoo party, is absteniousness and temperance: excess in meat and drink this patriarch has never known; alcohol in any form he has never imbiled; he has lived on the fruits of the earth, and knows no more the tasto of flesh food than he does of the sensation of rheumatism.

It is officially announced that Mr. C. M. Kennedy, C. B., of the Foreign Office, and Mr. Cecil Trevor, C. V., Assistant-secretary to the Board of Trade, have been appointed to be the British delegates at the International Conference at the Hague, to discuss the liquor traffic earried on by "Copers" in the North Sea. Mr. Nicolle, of the Bord of Trade, will be secretary to the British delegates.

A representative of the Pull Mull Guzette has recently interviewed a tamer of wild animals. Amongst the questions asked was the following:—
"How is it that every now and then you hear of a lion-tamer being killed?"

"Drink, sir," said the tamer, "drink. The performer gets a glass too much some day, enters the cage, fails to see that the floor is wet and slippery; he makes a false step and is down on his hack before he knows where he is. The lino or tiger, as the case may be, is on bic chest, and then good bye. As long as you are erect, have your senses about you, and keep your nerve, you may do anything with the beast; but if once your erect is bakee, your eye unsteady, and you slip, the game is up."

The drinkers are a hard lot to please. They object to teetotalers because they say we want to rob them of their beer and take away their liberty. They object to the publicans "doctoring" the beer, and putting in thinga with terribly long names, enough in themselves to make your blood run cold. And now they are getting up an agitation against those who would secure for them "pure" beer, because if Parliament enacts a law to the effect that beer shall be brewed only from certain ingredients, they say the beer will lose its flavour and will be "dreadful stuff to drink." If it is bad now, and will be worse then, why, of course, there is only one remedy, viz., to sweep it away altogether.

FREE LANCE.

A Gallant Good Templar Rewarded.—At the Penzance Guildhall, on Monday last, the Mayor presented to Bro. Richard Edyvean, of the Bonk Fide Lodge, Porthleaven, and who is only 17 years of age, a bronze medal and £3 from the Board of Trade in recognition of his gallant services in saving life on March 2, of this year, particulars of which have been previously recorded in our columns. In making the presentation the Mayor heartily congratulated Bro. Edyvean on his heroic conduct.

PRESENTATION.—Bro. Albert Casley, who last year left Exeter for Taunton, was on May 28 presented by the Exeter brethren with a handsome Grand Lodgo Degree regalia, in leather case, with an illuminated address, in recognition of bis services for the Order in the city. Bro. Casley returned due thanks. Our brother had previously received testimonials from the D.L. of East Devon, of which he was D.Sec., and the St. Andrew Tent, I.O.R., of which he was Tens secretary. The presentation took place at Carnall's Coffee Tavern, Exeter.

THE GOOD TEMPLAR FLAG.*

"In the name of our God we will set up our banners'—Psalm xx., 5.
(Dedicated to Bro. R. P. J. Simpson, R.N., P.G.W.C.T., originator of the Templar Flag.)

See, our banner floats on high, Proudly 'gainst the azure sky!
'Tis the Templar's flag unfurled
In the sight of all the world! Rally round it all true mer., Join in a crusade again : This our noble battle cry "Faith, and Hope, and Charity!" See, the banner teaches us God and man are banded thus:
For the cross of Christ we lay (Cross that soon shall win the day) On a spotless, pure white field, And on that each nation's shield Nobly floats the flag on high, Emblem of true unity ! Raise it proudly, sailors brave, As ye breast the ocean wave Let it grace, ye gallant lads, Wooden walls and · nclads. May our banner ever fly As a beacon set on high, Warning off from rocks and shoals Which now wreck immortal souls! Gallant soldiers of our land, Shoulder unto shoulder stand Shoulder unto shoulder state!

Guard the flag, each Templar Knight,

God will still defend the right?!

Brave battalions! lend your aid In our loving, new crusade. Round the colours rally fast, Victory shall be ours at last. Lift our standard every clime; Aid our object so sublime, 'Gainst the drink that men deludes, And from Heaven itself excludes! Raise our banner, Templars, raise! Till our prayers be turned to praise; Till its symbols be unfurled O'er a sober, righteous world! Annie Clegg, P.V.T.

On Wednesday evening, May 26, Bro. James Seaward, of Greenwich, a life-abstainer of 69 Seaward, of Greenwich, a life-abstance of 69 years delivered his interesting lecture, entitled, "Recollections of a Publican's Son: What he saw before and behind the Bar," at the Lecture Hall, Avenue-road, Shepherd's Bush. Bro. Robert Smiles, author of the "Life of Livingstone," also gave an able and powerful address. During the evening several of Bro. Seaward's Sacred Songs were beautifully rendered. The Rev. J. Simmance presided, and there was a very good attendance.

OF THIS COUNTRY

TS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit or the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous. irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured. depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present.

population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

It is thought that nearly one-half of our

FATHER, MOTHER, AND SON. A BREAKFAST-TABLE A VISITOR EXPECTED, MEMORIES OF CHILDROOD. A FOX HUNT,

Trawley Hall stands in one of the midland counties, about two miles from the nearest town, which is but small. It is situated on the left of the which so did sink. It is structured on the ferr or the high road, in a fine park, possessing some of the largest oaks and beechee for miles round. The building is almost square, with a stone front, rather plain looking the whole appearance being more substantial than orusmental. A gravel drive goes straight from the road to the hall door. Here resided Thorold Cresroad to the nail door. Here resided Incroid Crea-well, Esq., thrice an unsuccessful candidate for Par-liamentary honoure, and now retired, after an active life of many years, from the chairmanship of one of the political associations of the borough, and all prominent part in politics, having abandoned all hope of reaching St. Stephen's. With him also were his wife, a faithful companion and help-meet of over 40 years; and his somewhat gay son, Bertie, the days of whose years were but few past his majority, and as yet gave but alight indi-cations of manly steadiness. These three persons were seated at the breakfast table on one of the mornings of early winter. The father's few locks, almost snowy white, with a frame bearing evidence of declining strength; the mother rather small and of declining attength; the mother rather small and insignificant, but with a kindly look in her eyes very pleasant to see, and that ever had the faculty of gaining the affections of the little ones. Bertie, with his bright, sunny face, and glad, laughing eyes, showing as yet no trace of care, though at times ahadowed by thought which might have had a slight stime of remerses.

"Poor girl," says his mother, "it is so sad for her to be left fatherless and motherless. I feel so sorry for her. I will do my utmost to comfort her, and make her feel at home."

sorry for ner. A win to come," and make her feel at home, "How we used to enjoy ourselves when she came here on a visit," exclaimed Bertie. "I always called her my 'Queen,' and myself her servant, whom she could command to do anything. Did you know, mother, she never would have a taste of wine, even when a little girl. She would say 'No!' ehut her lips, and straighten herself up, and you couldn't persuade her." couldn't persuade her.

couldn't persuade her."
"Yes," anys the squire, "that was all her mother's doings; she always taught the girl not to touch it. Very unreasonable of her, I think."
"But she had a bitter reason for what she did," said Mrs. Creawell, "It was enough to make any woman hate to see wines and spirits."
"Just a woman's reason," the squire said.

the squire said. "Just a woman's reason,

"Just a woman's reason," the squire said.

"Because one misuses a thing, no one else must even have the opportunity to use it properly."

"They said her father killed himself by drinking didn't they!" said Bertie. "I remember hearing some of the servants say so when he died."

"Yes, that is quite true, but you must be careful not to refer to it when she arrives," his mother

"Young as she was I believe it made a terrible impression on her, and any reference to it would no doubt be painful."

"Oh, you may trust me. I fancy, though, I shall feel rather awkward when she does come, as I have not seen her for a year or two, and people change so in that time."

"Tut, don't be childish, man," says the squire. It was no less than an act of charity to fetch him out that time." "Tut, don't be childish, man," says the squire.

"Why, I verily believe you're blushing," raising his eye-glass, "yee, that you are."
"Oh, no; it's only the fire, father."
"Very likely, the fire inside," said he, rising from the table and ringing the bell. "Tell Smith to have the coach ready to meet the 2.30 train at Longdon," he said to the servant who entered.

Then each separated to attend to their various occupations.

Bertie looked out of the window, whistling anything, he scarce knew what. For he was running over, or rather living again his childhood, in as many minutas as there had been years; especially the holidays spent here with Carrie Meadows as bis only companion. He fancied he could hear ons only companion. He tances are could near her merry laughter, and see her jumping and frisking about as though she knew not what weariness was. He remembered climbing the tall tree there to get a bird's nest, which his "Queen" wished to have, and how she had cried when he seemed so high he could never get down. He remembered also, a and now also had cried when he seemed so high he could never get down. He remembered also, a man, her father, of whom she always seemed afraid, and involuntarily shrank from whenever he came near; the look of dread, which came into her face, such as a hunted deer might have when unable to escape, whenever he reproved her, as he often and needlessly did. He remembered her sohbingly telling him, "Mamma does so cry, and tells womang, wanng mm, "mamma qoes so ory, and tella me never to marry a man who drinks, when I grow up, and 'I won't, I wont,' I said; and mamma says, looking at the ceiling, 'God—if there be any —forbid that you should."

this, and much more, rushes through his mind, as he stands unconsciously gazing through the window until his eyes grow dim.

"Bert, if you're dead, speak, and I'll go," laughs

a voice near. He turns quickly, and sees young Hattersly in the room, booted and spurred. "What in the name of goodeess is the matter? Here I've been standing not quite a century, and might have stood until Doomsday, for the notice You're very complimentary to you'd have taken. your nistors. Come, we've a party at our place.
We're having a hunt, and then a jolly tally-ho supper, so get ready quick. Now, no excuses, I'm not going back without you."
"But we've a visitor coming, I can't leave home

"Visitor be hang—I beg pardon—be remembered to-morrow. We'll let you off an hour or two earlier, but come you must. A ride to day will be simply glorious, and shake off that fit of the blues you've got.

Bertie looked through the window and inwardly consented that it would be "glorious," and perhaps it might be as well to be away when Carrie arrived. Not because he cared that much, but still it might

Not because he cared that much, but still it might be as well.

"Come, Bert, you're as serious as a parson, and quite as long-winded too. Let's be off. Its no one of importance is it? Some old dry M.P.?"

"Oh no! it's an old friend," said Bertie, evasively, "but I think I'll go." Soon the two were seen riding down the drive. Hattersly laughing and talking loudly enough for two; Bertie saying little, and at times half determining to go back. Half an hour's quick run brought them to the "place" as Hattersly called it, where they found that all the other "fellows" had arrived and were waiting only for them. Hattersly at once threw all the blame on to was he had done, and for which he thought he deserved Bertie's everlasting gratitude. All this, and the laughing comments of the others, Bertie bore not quite with his usual good humour, but soon forgot it in that all-absorbing, thrilling, revivifying run after a poor fox.

CHAPTER II.

THE ARRIVAL. WHERE IS BERTIE? A WARM WEL-COME, A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT. CARRIE'S PROMISE.

About 2 o'clock the squire left in the coach for the station, having lingered as long as he could in the hope that Bertie would return. But that young gentleman was half-a-dozen miles away, and each minute was increasing the distance, utterly oblivious of everything save the fox in front.

W. Creawell survived at the station of the state Mr. Creswell arrived at the station some minutes before the train was due; but for once it was percore the train was due; but for once it was punctual, and he had not long to wait. Only one person alighted on the platform, and that was a young lady, dressed in deep mourning; tall and well formed evidently; the one the squire had come well formed evidently; the one the squire had come to meet. He reached out his hand to bid her welcome, and the old man noticed that there was a slight tremor in her voice, as ahe answered his many inquiries concerning the journey, her health, &c. Her voice was low, but sweet, so the squire thought, and he was not far wrong. During the drive she spoke a little, inquiring of Mrs. Cresdrive she spoke a little, inquiring of Mrs. well, and himself and Bertie.

well, and himself and Bertie.
"Oh, Bertie is well enough," he said. "Do you know, Carrie, I fancy he is getting a bit 'wild,' as they say; not much, you know, but he is rather. Nothing serious. He went out this morning for a hunt and had not returned when I started, or he might have come to meet you."

"Oh, it didn't matter," she said; though it really might have done, for she could scarcely make up her mind whether to be glad or sorry, though it ended in her being a little of both.

Mrs. Creswell was at the hall door and Carrie ran into herarms, and both wept; the one feeling she had come as to a mother, the other that she had at last a daughter.

"Come, my dear, and take your things off, you must be tired," she said, as she led Carrie to her room.

"Yes, I am, rather. The journey has seemed so long, travelling alone, I was weary of it."

"I dare say, dear," Mrs. Creswell said, looking kindly in her oyes, so kindly that it touched Carrie, and the tears came freely as she thought that never more would her mother look in her eyes like that. Ah! that sad, sad, word "nevermore," makes weaklings of us all.

Guessing somewhat of what was passing in the girl's mind, she said, "I will try to be a mother to you, dear, as long as I live."

Tears, a sob, and a kiss, were all that Carrie could give, but they were enough, and epoke plainly to the old lady's tender heart; so she stroked the golden hair and soothed her.

"Come, I am sure you want some refreshment," she said at last, as she raised Carrie's head; so they went down stairs. But it was little that she could eat, though the squire encouraged her as much as he knew how.

Bertie had not yet arrived, neither had he when dinner was announced, causing Mra. Creswell to feel somewhat annoyed. It seemed very wrong to her that he should go away in this manner on such an occasion; but the old squire only said, "Oh you know, boys will be boys."

"Between 8 and 9 o'clock, as they were sitting round the fire, coshy talking together, they heard he rapid tread of a horse's feet on the gravel, and round the fire, cosily talking i together, they heard the rapid tread of a horse's feet on the gravel, and thought that Bertie was coming. How easily are we begoiled, and how thin and weak the foundation on which our hopes are often built. Instead of Bertie, a servant hurried in, with the message that the squire was required at once. Dread, sure harbinger of sorrow, filled their hearts, as he hurried from the room. Hattersly, coachman had ridden over to say that Mr. Bertie had left the house, accompanied by Hattersly, after supper, and riding recklessly had struck the horse savagely, which had reared and thrown him; he was taken up insensible, and would they send the coach for him at once. Consternation took possession of them all; the old squire staggered as though struck by a heavy blow; Mrs. Creswell had to be carried away in a fainting condition; Carrie only seemed to retain her presence of mind. She ordered the servants, who crowded round, to get out the coach at once, and so sharply, that they collected their senses, set to work, and had all ready in a short time. Carrie was at the hall door dressed for the journey. "Carrie what does this mean?" said the source. "Carrie, what does this mean?" said the source. "Carrie was at the hall door dressed for the journey.

"Carrie, what does this mean?" said the squire,
"You can't go out a night like this."

"Yes, I shall," she answered, quietly, but

But you will take cold."

"I am well wrapped up; and there is no time to lose, he may be dying." What utter despair and agony in that one last word.

So saying, she almost pushed the squire in, and got in herself, telling the coachman to drive rapidly. But he needed no exhertation. Even the horses seemed to understand what was required of them, and seemed almost to glide over the smooth snow. The squire said not a word. Carrie's face was ashen white, and her lips were compressed as it in pain. She was thinking of the difference between what she had imagined, and what the reality was. She knew now the meaning unerence between what she had imagined, and what the reality was. She knew now the meaning of that pleasure she had felt when thinking of coming to Trawley Hall. A bright star gleam in those midnight hours of sorrow and early bereaveto night of tawney than. A oright star gream in those midnight hours of sorrow and early bereavement, when her life was shrouded by dark storm clouds. She loved Bertie. Yes. Not as a brother as she once had thought, but far beyond everyone else. She knew it when they said he had fallen; the knowledge of it leapt into her mind quick as the lightning's flash. Loved him, tenderly, passionately And yet, yet, she feared, trembled lest the cause of his accident should be what she suspected, that he was—drunk. Then rose up before the unite her fate with such an one. Her childish promise came back to her mind, and its renewal on that most solemn occasion, and she said, painfully and sadly, yet firmly, 'I will keep it. God help me.' Her words startled her, and roused her from her reverie. Presently they stopped and the door me. Her words startused ner, and roused her from her reverie. Presently they stopped and the door was opened. The squire got out first; and soon Bertie was carried to the coach, and then she knew Bertie was carried to the coach, and then she knew the sad, sober truth. It was as she feared, and a thrill of herror and pain rushed through her frame, which those standing round noticed. It was not thiss she had expected to meet him. He had been stunned by the fall; both hie collar bone and left arm were broken, but the doctor did not think he had sustained any serious internal injury. Carrie held his head in her arms; he was not conscious of her presence, and why shouldn't she? Besides, he would never know, and she could never be his now; it would be for the brist and last time. the brst and last time.

She seemed to have lived through years in that

The next morning he was very feverish, and was found to be badly bruised about the face and body. nounce to see sauty orussed about the face and body. He had been thrown on a heap of large stones by the road-side, which, but for their thick covering of snow, might have ended his life. Hattersly being in but a slightly better condition, had not been able to remove him until his clothes were well saturated.

The fever gained strength, and he was very restless, displacing bandages, and rapidly undoing what it had taken much care and skill to do. Only what it had taken much care and skill to do. Only Carrie could soothe, her hand, or the sound of her voice, invariably calmed him, even before he was quite conscious who she was.

Thus the days passed, and became weeks before he was able to walk about the house unforce he was able to walk about the house unforced by the spisode. assisted. And, common as may seem the opisode, in it there was a heroism and self-abnegation displayed by one, which, though known only to a few, perhaps not fully to any, puts to shame the much-vaunted and much-rewarded heroism of butchery. Truly we have fallen upon evil days, when the world delights most to honour him who share states than him who saves slavs rather than him who saves.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION ON TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

The Rev. Edward White says "Total abstinence is the one hope of physical and eternal salvation for drunkards of every degree."

Thanks, Edward White, for this new light, By which we clearly see That users of the drunkard's drink

Are drunkards in degree.

We some have little drinkers called, Who, by your light we see, Have qualified, and taken too,

The drunkard's first degree. And some who take a little more, Though little it may be ; Can claim their rights by your new light,

To number two degree. But, sir, it is not now quite clear, To little folks like me, How to define, or mark the line, The drunkard's third degree.

We further go, but do not know; Ne, sir, we cannot see, By drops, how many, men might claim,

An extra drink degree. But, sir, again, there is the name, The colour and the kind

Each playe it part, each brings it smart To hody and to mind. Then should not each have its own weight, Though little as you please, In fixing of the standards for. The drunkard's own degrees Tom Jones is called a drunkard great, But little makes him reel, John Thomas six times more would take, And would quite sober feel. Who should stand highest in degrees, Jones who with little reels, Or Thomas with his six times more, Who yet quite sober seems.

Or if Tom Jones his wife knocks down, When on his drunken spree, While Thomas treats his with respect, But starves her quietly.

Which of the two, Edward, think you, Jones reeling on the spree, Or Thomas straight, starving his wife Should have the best degree?

If Thompson takes enough of ale, To make him shoot his brother, And Johnson just enough of gin To make him stab his mother;

Which of the two, Edward, think you, Would most entitled be To have for what they dared to do, The drunkard's best degree?

In reply to a letter from Bro. Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T., to the Hon. James Black, who has been the neminee of the National Prohibition Party for the Presidency of the United States, and who is in the legal profession, Mr. Black writes thus :-

"I have your letter inquiring whether or not the partial or absolute prohibiting liquor laws of this, and other states of the Union, had made pro-vision for compensation to persone engaged in the manufacture or sale of intexicating liquors for use as a beverage for loss of, or damage to property used in such manufacture or trade.

"In the restrictive or prehibitory liquor laws of the United States I do not know of any provivision for compensation to liquor sellers. A licence to make or sell is only granted for a limited time—one year—and upon the ground of necessity or benefit of the public, and never for the interest or profit of the applicants for such licence. The applicant has to show that he is a citizon of good morat character, and has a proper place for the intense of profit of the privilege asked for, and is not conferred as a matter of right; and the fact that he proves he has fitting accommodation for the public does not entitle. The grant is a matter of grace for the public decay large and the fact that he proves he public decay large for the public will accommodation for the public does not entitle. The grant is a matter of grace for the public will care, and not for the potitioner. Hence the plea for compensation is deemed impertinent, the plea for compensation is deemed impertinent, and without any ground for support in equity or common law.

"The Legislature of Pennsylvania in 1846, per-"The Legislature of Pennsylvania in 1846, permitted 18 counties to vote upon the question of 'Licence' or 'No Licence' in these counties. All of them voted against the grant of licence for the sale of liquor within their bounds. No compensation to the liquor sellers whose business was ended by this law was granted or proposed.

"In 1873, under a general Local Option law, 44 counties out of 67, covering two-thirds of the area of this State, voted against licence, and liquor making and selling ceased. One hundred and sixty-one breweirs were closed under this law and vote. No compensation was proposed or allowed. The county of Potter, in Pennsylvania, heside some horoughs and townships, still have absolute prohibition.—Potter County over since 1850. No compensation was asked or allowed. I have ordered to be mailed to you, from the National Temperance Society and Publication House, New York, a copy of the Liquor Laws of the United States. You will find no compensation provided in any of them. The idea of a vested interest to liquor sellers, who annually ask for the privilege of selling is deemed absurd; and only can come from a class of traders who and only can come from a class of traders who deem themselves omnipotent in the politics of the country.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN THE NORTH

The International Conference on the liquor traffic in the North Sea was opened at The Hague on June 10. Germany is represented by MM. Weymann and Donner; Belgium, by M. Leopold Orban; Dennark, by Captain Brunn; Frence, by Commander Mangel; the Netherlands, by MM. Rahussen, Buya, and Verkerk Pistorius; and Great Britain, by Mr. Kennedy, of the Foreign Office, and Mr. Trevor, of the Board of Trade. M. Van Karnebock, Minister for Foreign Affairs, was present, as well as M. Van de Bergh, Minister of the Waterstaat, Commerce and Industry.

M. Van Karnebock delivered the opening address, in which he expressed the hope that the decisions of the conference would form a logical sequel to the convention of 1881 on the question of the fishing police. The object they had in view, he continued, was to establish order and justice amen the fishermen, to raise their morals, and save them The International Conference on the liquer traffic continued, was to establish order and justice among the fishermen, to raise their morals, and save them from perdition, by putting an end to the abuses engendered by the traffic in spirituous liquors, especially that carried on by the coopers. Some concessions would be necessary on certain points with regard to which the legislative and administrative powers of the different Governments concerned were und in secretable. cerned were not in accordance.

The conference commenced its labours immediately, and elected M. Rahussen president, Mr. Kennedy vice-president, and Baron Van Regners TEMPERANCE IN THE HARVEST FIELD.

CASH VERSUS BEER

On Saturday, June 12, Mr. John Abbey, secretary of the Agricultural Department of the C.E.T.S. read a practical paper in the above subject before the Northampton Chamber of Agriculture, the Hon. Frederick Henley, J.P., in the chair. Mr. Abbey has long been recognised as an authority on this important branch of the Society's work, and therefore his papers are always listened to with the respect they deserve. Mr. Abbey observes:

Numbers of working men have told me that they Numbers of working men have told me that ther find by experience that they can do their work better and with greater satisfaction to themselves when using such drinks as stokes, which is made as follows: It is very strengthening, easily made and cheap. Put alls, of fine catment, about 602s. of sugar, and half a lemon cut into slices, into a pan; mix all together with a little warm water, then add a gallon of boiling water; stirthoroughly, then add a gallon of boiling water; sur morougnly, and use when cold. The lemon may be omitted, or any other flavouring may be used instead. Pore "Lime Fruit Juice" makes an excellent flavouring, about three tablespoonfuls to the gallon, put in when cold. Cost 3d. a gallon. A fine, strong ing, about three tablespoontus to the gallon, put in when cold. Cost 3d. a gallou. A fine, strong fellow told me some time ago that he "found it most helpful to him when mowing grass," he said "it was both meat and drink to him."

The strongest recommendation in favour of this The strongest recommendation in favour of this movement I am able to submit to the chamber, is an extract from the journal of the Royal Agricultural Society for 1884, Vol. XX., Part II., p. 516. This quotation is from the report of the judges of the best cultivated farm for the year. The judges were, Mr. John Coleman, of York, Mr. Richard Stratton, of Newport, Monmouth, and Mr. George Street, of Malden, Amphill, Beds. These three practical business men, after giving this subject their careful consideration, recommend that the farmers should get up an agitation themselves to abolish the custom.

"A custom which to our minds would be more honoured in the breach than in the observance, and in many instances the farmers were of the same opinion as our-issives, but the tyrant custom has been hitherto too strong for them." them."
After describing the system and the evils arising out of it, they go on to say :-

"Seeing how almost entirely money has been substituted for drink in many parts, and the advantages to all concerned which follow, we think that in these days of combined action by means of clubs and chambers, a well-directed agitation might be worked, and the cider suitfort more such it is—done away with. Labour should be paid for it money only."

This wise and beneficient commendation, coming as it does from the Royal Agricultural Society attention. It more than justifies the efforts now being made to induce employers to give the value of the beer in cash, and I am happy to say that a very considerable number of farmers in various parts of the country have adopted the practice. I have recently have I have recently been in communication with all the chambers of agriculture and farmers' clubs throughout the country on this subject, and have received replies from a considerable number, and every one are of an encouraging character.

The secretaries of the following societies say-

KILMARNOCK FARMERS' SOCIETY. - "It is not the custom, so far as I am aware, and I speak with special reference to the West of Scotland, for farmers to provide beer in the hay and harvest fields for their labourers, this being a custom peculiar to England."

THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF IRELAND. "In the districts I have to deal with, extra wages are paid by the farmers in harvest, the practice of supplying beer is not a general one in Ireland."

NEWCASTLE FARMERS' CLUB, -"In the northern counties the practice of giving either beer or cider in lieu of wages is unknown; the labourers are a TAINDER FARMERS' CLUB (DURHAM).—"In this county it is not customary to give labourers drink in harvest, except on leading days, when the carters and forkers are allowed beer morning and afternoon.

am most anxious to encourage sobriety amongst the labourers under my control, and we in this district give our labourers money instead of beer during hay and harvest season."

These extracts shew that employers in various parts of the country have given considerable attention to the subject, and have or are adopting the money payment. During late years a great change money payment. During into years a great enange in this direction has taken place in various other counties than those referred to above including Berkshire, Oxfordshire, Buckinghamshire, and Sussex. In fact the success has far exceeded our expectations, and the generous way it has everywhere been received and treated by beth landowners and farmers is beyond all praise; and I feel confident that in a few more years the practice of supplying beer on English farms will be as rare as it is in Canada, as I am convinced that British farmers have the interests of their men at heart as much as any other class of employers, and as the beer supply had its origin in the desire to benefit and help the men, now that it has been proved to have been a mistake, I believe the same generous feeling will lead employers to see that to continue the old system is not to the best interests of the men.

Some farmers think that if the nation drank less beer they would not find such a ready sale for their barley. It is clear that those who talk in this way have never thought out the subject thoroughly in all its bearings, or they would find that agricul-ture has all to gain and nothing to lose from a decrease in the consumption of beer; for it is a simple fact that the brewers have now found out how to make beer without malt just as good as with it, and this is now done to such an extent that a Bill is now before Parliament to compel them to state what the liquor is made from. I recently paid a visit to a very large establishment in the neighbourhood of London where they manufacture stuff called saccharine in very large quantities. I said, "What do you use to produce this stuff" and they said, "Oh, a variety of things," and amongst them was mine view to refer the said. and amongst them was maize, rice, tapicca, and ago. I said, "Do you use much barley?" and the answer was, "None at all." Now the rice, maize, sago and tapicca are none of them produced by English farmers, and those farmers who are depending user the relative to the same thanks. pending upon the sale of barley for malting purpending upon the sale of party for matting purposes, will find, as years go on, that they are resting upon a broken reed unless they sell it at a greatly reduced price. I need not remind them that there is such a thing as Atlantic barley.

The drink trade is responsible for at least half the pay. It is, therefore, clear that the abstainer three times as good a customer to the farmer as the and commerce generally.

Landed proprietors, farmers, and tradesmen should therefore be warm supporters of the Temperance Movement.

Although the farmers in days gone by have ometimes given Temperance workers the cold shoulder, they may depend upon it we are among their best and truest friends, and we would be greatly rejoiced to see the return of good times for the yeomen of our country. I know when the farmers thrive the country prospers; and I for one can say from the depths of my heart-

" Good luck to the hoof and the horn, Good luck to the noor and the norn, Good luck to the flock and the fleece, Good luck to the grower of corn, With blessings of plenty and peace,

HOUSE OF COMMONS

JUNE 16 .- INTOXICATING LIQUORS (SALE TO CHILDREN) BILL.

On the motion that the House should go into Committee on this bill.

Viscount GRIMSTON moved, as an amendment, that the House should go into committee on the bill on that day three months. He was opposed to such grandmotherly legislation.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Mr. Cavendish Bentinck, said the Government were prepared in committee to amend the bill in order that it might not prevent a parent sanding his child to a licensed house for liquor to be consumed off the premises. The object of the bill, in under 13 years of age from going into a public-house and getting served with liquor for his or her own consumption.

After some further discussion the amendment was by leave, withdrawn, and the House went into committee on the bill.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL moved an amendment the object of which was that a publican would be liable to a penalty if he "knowingly supplied or allowed any person to supply" intoxicating liquors to a child under 13 years of age.

The amendment was agreed to.

Sir R. Webster then moved an amendment to dd after "13 years of age," the words "for his or her own consumption.'

The amendment was agreed to. The bill, as amended, was then reported to the

Mr. McLagan explained that he would not press the second reading of the Liquor Traffic Local Veto (S:otland) Bill, and the order would accordingly be discharged and the bill withdrawn.

THE POOLE PERJURY CASE. - In the House of THE POOLE PERSONNY CASE,—In the House of Commons on June 10 Mr. Childers (Home Secretary), in reply to Mr. W. S. Shirley, said the had inquired into the merits of this case, and that he saw no reason for interfering with the sentence of seven years' penal servitude.

A LAUDABLE ENTERPRISE.—For years past, our Quaker friends at Street, Somerset, have been experimenting and devising how to utilise the vast fruit supply of the district for purposes other than cider and British wines, which, of course, they would not have anything to do with, and the result would not have anything to do with, and the result is the establishment, by Sister Impey, sen, and others, of the "Avalon" (Vale of Apples) steam preserve and pickle company, which already supplies tons of these delicious and perfectly pure plus tons of these denicious and perfectly pure jams, preserved fruits and pickles to great shipping and other firms. The preserves include every variety of fruits of the best kind, but their specialities consist of preserved apples with ginger flavour; much like preserved ginger; apple jelly, an excellent apple pickle, besides mixed pickles in an excellent apple pickle, uestaes intacu pickles pure apple vinegar, and a delicious chutnec from a famous receipt. Cheaper preserves are mixed famous receipt. Cheaper preserves are mixed blackberry and apple, gooseberry and apple, straw-berry and apple, &c., in which the colour and flavour of the first-named fruit takes the lead, navour of the instrument flut cares she read Orange and apple marmalade, too, is excellent. We have ourselves purchased sample cases with much satisfaction and we recommend our realers to at once send 5s. for a case of samples for trial, as set forth in our advertising columns. This is no interested puff on our part, but a recommendation of a good enterprise, well calculated to lessen cider three times as good a customer to the farmer as the timoto a good enterprise, we calculated to ressent due beer drinker. Thus the Temperance Cause is the and wine consumption, and save the fruit for farmer's friend, and in its success lies the secret of delectable and wholesome cating. We have seen the success of British agriculture, as well as of trade them being made, and can vouch for their purity and excellence.

MASSACHUSETTS

The annual session of this Grand Lodge was held North Evangelical Church at Watertown in North Evangelical Church at Watertown recently. The reports of the G.W.C.T. and G.W.Sec. shewed an increase of 50 per cent. in the membership. Sister Miss Jessie Forsyth presented an interesting report of the R.W.G.L. Session. A pleasing feature of the session was the admission of Juvenile Temple, who presented a honquet to the G.W.C.T., and sang several pieces. The efficiers G.W.C.T., and sang several pieces. The officers for the term just entered upon are: G.W.C.T., Bro. C. A. Stevens; G.W.Sec., Sister Miss Jessis Forsyth; and our brother, the Rev. S. C. Goosely—the coloured professor whose exclusion from the Order prior to our split from the Americans was one of the leading incidents—was appointed P.G.W.C.T.

NORWAY.

The following is part of a letter from Bro. Lars O. Yensen, a student of Christiana University, who represented the G.L. of Norway at our R.W.G.L. Session at Stockholm last summer :-

Perhaps we Norwegians are too much afraid of being criticised. We are afraid that people will laugh at us. In our Lodge, for instance, it is very difficult to get a member to read a paper, or in any difficult to get a member to read a paper, or in any way appear on the platform, though I feel assured that the other members would but be thankful. Yet I hope that when people get more accustomed to it they will not be so elty. You have difficulties in England, too, I see, so that we Norwegians are not the only ones that are troubled in one or the other way. You tell me that your Lodge is in a little village, two miles off. That sounds very much to me, but when I remember that it means English miles I find that I liave quite that it means English miles I and that I have quite as long way, though my Lodge is in the same town. In some parts of Norway there are, however, Good Templars that have two or three Norwegian miles (viz., 14 to 21 English) to the Lodge, and yet visit

As for the Temperance Mission, we do very little here in Norway. The Grand Lodge has engaged one Temperance speaker, and he makes good work; but what we need is just the thing you speak of—that some of the members should hold Temperance meetings where they live and sometimes take little trips to other places. Yet one Order is making progress annally. The Parance to the our Order is making progress annally. The Par-liament (Storthing) has given 8,000 kroner to the Temperance cause, and of this sum we have got the 800 kroner (about £20). This sum will help us very much in keeping our Grand Lodge agent. We now try in Christiana to get up a "Coffee Palace"—n palace in the resi eense of this word, but a fine Temperance caté, especially for tradesmen and the young clerks, that will not visit our many coffee houses. If it would go I am sure it would do much nood. would do much good.

WEST INDIA.

The Bahama Islands have been free from that wholesale manufacture of rum, &c., which prevails in Jamaica and other West Indian islands, but a bill has recently been introduced into its House of Assembly with a view to legalise and develop the manufacture. This was especially repugnant to the Good Templars and others who had obtained from the Assembly a Local Option Act, and had got it enforced in several districts. The Manufacture of Spirits Bill came up finally on April 21. The Assembly had been sitten; in committee. 21. The Assembly had been sitting in committee of the whole House, over which Mr. T. N. G. Clare (who is G. W. Chief Templar of the I.O. Good Templars) was presiding. On the Speaker resuming neurplars) was presiding. On the speaker resunning the chair, it was moved that the Spirits Bill he now read a second time. Mr. Clare moved as an amendment that the Bill be read that day three mouths, and his amendment was carried, thus defeating the bill altogether.

BURMAH.

An esteemed correspondent writes from Bhamo:
-"Burmah is a fearful place for cheap drink and heavy crime. The natives manufacture what is called Sham-sho; it is supposed to be made from-rice and lime. One may form an idea of its power when I assure you that it will dissolve a Martinirice and lime. We are glad to hear from the same source that determined efforts are being made by Burmah Good Templars to suppress the sale of this fiery poison, and they have no doubt that Government will take action shortly in the matter in their own interest, if not in that of the matter in their own interest, if not in that of the Temperance cause. Among other doubtful mercies, Burmal will be favoured with a revised abkarry ruling, which is sure to moderate the strength of this dreadful poison. Much more to the point are those efforts now being taken by members of our Order to have Temperance pledges widely circulated, and an alliance formed against the ruinous traffic.—Indian Good Templar.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

The eighth annual session of this G. L. took place at Adelaide, Tuceday, March 2, G.W.C.T. Stephens presiding. The annual report of the Executive was presented by the G.W.Sec., and shewed that among other things the Executive had taken store the control of the taken steps to secure an important site at Adelaide Railway Station for advertising the Order, time and place of meeting of local Lodges being thus announced. The Executive had felt themselves announced. The Executive had left themselves unable to engage a Grand Lodge lecturer, owing to continued depression and lack of funds. Attempts had been made to secure the incorporation of the Order, but owing to the expense being considerable it was referred to G.L. Active steps had been taken for the suppression of deceive in had been taken for the suppression of dancing in the Lodges. The statistical report shewed 954 members in good standing, a decrease on the year of 313. From the statistics it is apparent the losses are 313. From the statistics it is apparent the losses are most by suspension for arrears. G.W.T. report shews a slight balance in hand. The following were elected officers for the eneuing year:—G.W.C.T., Bro. W. B. Stephens; G.W.Co., Bro. J. F. Grutzmacher; G.S.J.T., Bro. A. J. Barnes; G.W.See, Bro. W. W. Winwood; G.W.T., Bro. S. Telefor the G.L., but was left to the Executive. Telegraphic greetings were received from G.L. of New South Wales. The matter of incorporation having been again considered, was referred to Executive again. It was resolved that the annual session of the G.L. should be held in the month of March in each year, and at such time and place as may be fixed by G.L. in session. Session was brought to a close by votes of thanks to past officers, &c.

NOTES FROM SWEDEN.

BY BRO. OSKAR ERLUND, P.R.W.G.M.

Our brethren in Gethenburg have just brought into Parliament a Good Templar brother, A.
Torngren, a schoolmaster. He has for a long time been neminated by the Liberal party as a candidate, but he has always been beaten. Now, since he was a Good Templar—he has been a G.T. since ne was a Good Tempiar—ne has been a G.T. about one year—he went with a large majority. The election took place in order to fill a vacancy caused by Sir Charles Dickson, who had been elected to the first chamber elect another. We have now, I think, about 30 teetotalers in our Parliament (Filisaday). In the Norwegian (Storling, we have 19 teetotal seats.

Some weeks ago we had a very interesting elec-tion battle here in Stockholm. One of our mem-bers in Parliament died, and the people had to elect another.

The Temperance and sectarism men nominated Mr. Ernst Beileman, a teetotaler, and second editor of the largest Swedish paper, Stockholms Dagblad (the day paper of Stockholm). Some other parties nominated another. The result was our candidate was the winner, with 150 votes more than the other.

As I think you know, the King in Sweden last year brought forward a proposition for the Swedish Parliament to determine on the prohibition of the selling of intoxicating liquors during Sundaye, except during the dinner time.

This law was with some small alterations adopted by Parliament. But it was added to the royal proposition, that "in places, where special circumstances may be found, the county governor could allow selling of intoxicating liquors at any time during Sundays excepting during the time for Divine service in the State Church."

In all towns in Sweden, the people don't went the Sunday traffic, but the Town Councils, which have a good profit from it for the town, would not loose it.

In some smaller places, where the Good Templer Order has had something to say, the new law took kept, but in the larger towns the Town Councils asked the governor for Sunday selling.

The Temperance men, specially the Good Templars, had large meetings in Gothenburg, Stockholm, Nonköping, Linköping, Gerle, Upsala, and elsewhere, protesting against the council's wishes in the matter.

From 1.000 to 4.000 people attended those

From 1,000 to 4,000 people attended those meetings

Resolutions were passed and adopted, and depu-tations were elected to the governor and to the Very curiously indeed, some governors in some counties (line) did allow the Sunday selling and countries (ton) una annual or others prohibited it.

In Linköping läu, where the town Nonköping is situated (which, as regards population, is the third town in Sweden), Sunday selling was not allowed.

The same in Kopparbergs lüu.

But in Stockholm, Gothenburg, and most of the ethers, it was allowed.

others, it was allowed.

Now, the Tomperance party did not agree to the resolutions by the governors. Of course they have given appeals to the king. And in those counties where the Temperance party were the winners, the liquor traffickers party appealed to the king. In it not very curious? What will the king do? It ne not very curious! What will the king do? It seems that he will do nothing, because six months have gone since the appeal took place.

We hope he may do as he has said to me many times when I have spoken to him. He said when I and Bro. A. H. Berg, G.W.C.T., and Bro. Lundin, P.G.W.C., delivered to him the bandsome illuminated address from our R.W.G. Lodge, "I will support the Temperance cause as far as is possible!"

But have her her supported our cause! He

But how has he supported our cause? He brought into this year's Parliament a new Bill, allowing public houses to open with the consent of the authorities even during the evening sermon at seven. Again the Temperance friends had to have seven. Again the Temperance trienus has to have meetings and deliver petitions and so on. The first chamber adopted the royal proposition, but in the second chamber there was grand debate and the Temperance cause won with a large majority, 108 votes against 75. Of course the Bill was not made law

The royal Bill was delivered because the public holders in Stockholm eent a petition to the king about the question. It is very curious that the king about the question. It is very curious that the king listened to that petition, and yet will not at all listen to the Temperance petition with about 200,000 signatures in favour of prohibition. The petition was delivered some weeks ago to the king by Stockholm's Allmanns nyhterbets-komité (the general Temperance committee of Stockholm), of stocknoims - Amasans - Amasans - Amasans - General Temperance committee of Stockholm), of which I am a member.

You have already been told about our good Bishop L. Landgren, of Hernogand, who don't like testotalism and the Good Templar Order at all. He sent out-come months ago a letter to his ministers saying thorein that abstinence is very bad, that our Lord Jesue Christ drank wine, that a well educated man must drink wine, and that the Good Templar Order is a very bad institution and so on. My paper, Stenska Good Templar, answered him, and Bros. J. Aspling, A. H. Berr, G. W. C.T., Rev. P. Nymanson, Rev. W. Nowlin, and Bro. Broome, D.C.T., had excellent replice published in it. Those replice were afterwards reprinted in a small book, of which was sold during two months 10,000 copies. The Lodges arranged public meetings, and gave one copy to each one attendmeetings, and gave one copy to each one attending. In all 15,000 copies of the replies were eent out, also 5,000 in Sexaka Good Templar.

I think that the bishop has done the Order good service, and we want such a bishop every month!

It would put a good deal more life in our friends, and enemies too.

The Order is going on well. In the northern part not so well as before. More improvement now in the southern districts. I think our membership is about 40,000.

ship is about 40,000. The Temperance friends in Parliament have asked for money for the Temperance cause. They have asked for 15,000 kronor. Yet the Parliament has not voted anything; but the committee has proposed 8,000 kronor—not quite £500. Our good brother, Rev. J. F. H. Gauzon, of Osthammar, the Good Templar town, as it was called, died the 1st of this month. He was the first State Church minister who became a Good Templar in this country. He became a member in the early part of 1832. He was from 1882 to 1885 our C.W.Ch. The Good Templars are now about to collect more money for his larce family. We our G. W. Un. It will be a very grand concern if it is possible for him to accomplish it.

I send you best wishes and greetings to all English friends from myself and all Swedish Good Templars.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' WATCHWORD.

MONDAY, JUNE 21, 1886.

A FEW WORDS ON MISSION WORK.

By Bro. Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T.

THE membership decreased last year, but it now appears to be advancing. The D.L. reports generally shew that even last year we had an increase of 68 Lodges, and many more are being formed by Lodges holding mission meetings, and Special Sub-Lodge sessions to initiate candidates at outlying places. Each Lodge Deputy has had sent to him a form of petition for charter, and if a new Lodge can be projected at an unoccupied place, we will, out of the Mission Fund contributions, print handbills or grant tracts to help in thus extending the Order.

The Mission Fund, however, needs further We last year spent much more on mission work than we received for the Mission Fund. This we cannot do again. If, however, every Lodge will only contribute a little, we may at least continue grants of printed matter, for organising Lodges where they are needed, and if the fund is increased we can do much more. There is sent to every Lodge Deputy a quarterly collecting card. We ask each Lodge to at once designate an earnest member to endeavour to secure one penny monthly from each member; and to send it to the Worthy District Secretary with the tax at the end of the quarter. The District Lodges retain half the fund for local mission efforts, and the remainder comes to the Grand Lodge Mission Fund. Failing a member more at liberty, we look to the Lodge Deputy to act as Grand and District Lodge Agent in this respect.

Some Lodges avoid the voluntary contributions of one penny per month by making a bye-law, charging an extra penny per quarter for dues, and giving that penny to the Mission Fund. This has worked well, and may be preferred by some Lodges.

When it was arranged to leave with District Lodges one-half of all Mission Fund retrict Lodges one-half of all Mission Fund receipts from Lodge collections, we had hoped that the plan would have the practical support of all District Lodges, but as yet the results have heen very meagre. Out of these acanty receipts we have promoted the formation of Lodges in hitherto unoccupied places, and so helped to gain 68 more Lodges in England than we had last year. We have also maintained our Mission Agent—Bro. Wrathall—in the North where mele of the money wee sulthe North, where much of the money was subacribed, and are glad that the main subscribers are willing for us to utilise that agent in other Districts also. We need several more such agents, who, like him, will go-whether helped or not-into ocuntry villages and speak, sing, or preach in-doors and in the open air, visit absent members, and revive sleeping Lodges. While we want no District to subscribe just for what it may get in return, it is none the less a fast that in most, if not all cases, we could—in secrets' severes or wearent greaters below most. agents' services or money grants—help most Districts to the full extent of Lodge collections -because, through the G.L. a few stronger Districts can help the weaker, and certain personal contributions to G.L. adds to the funds received from Lodges. For a District to isolate itself by saying it will raise and retain all ita own mission fund is, at most, to incite only a spasmodic effort, and in the end this narrow spirit apreads to Sub-Lodges and members, who then similarly say they will keep and apend their own money.

The Grand Lodge Executive, of course, will not spend a penny of mission money for any-H. SOHWEITZER & CO., 101 Ader. street, Strend; bondon, W.o thing but mission work; and they could leave it wholly in the hands of the Districts, but for the fact that a greater effort is often made for a national than for a local scheme, and that by this national plan they can help some Districts which are wholly unable to help themselves.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

WE are now called upon as citizens of the British Empire to take part in the election of a new Commons House of Parliament. The great issue upon which rival parties will contest the constituencies is the question of Irish Self-Government, and it will not be easy to raise any other question, however vital and urgent, to such prominence as seriously to affect the public mind. But we must not forget that while the new Parliament will be elected with special reference to Irish legislation, it is quite possible that after the settlement of the question of the hour the ranks of the dominant party may be reunited and form a strong Government for passing domestic for the better government of England, Scotland, and Wales. We should, therefore, be recreant to duty, were we to relax our efforts to return members pledged to give Home Rule for England in relation to the removal of the greatest of all the evils that has ever afflicted any people. If the Irish question should, as it doubtless will in many instances, govern our votes, we, as earnest and true Temperance reformers, cannot fail to insist upon this condition at least in addition to any other that may influence our action—That the candidate we vote for will support a measure giving the full and direct veto power to the inhabitants of every locality that may choose to exercise it. Candidates who refuse to concede this power forfeit dates who retuse to concede this power forest their claims upon the confidence of Conserva-tive electors, because they deny their coveted constituents the power to protect life and property, and to give fair scope to legiti-mate commerce in their midst. And no true Liberal can refuse this power, because he thus fails to trust the people in their several localities with the exercise of a choice; but, on the contrary, he maintains a system by which some authority may be enabled to force upon the people terrible disasters as the result of a traffic which he refuses them the power to pro-

The present contest affords a favourable opportunity for all true patriots to mould the future destinies of the people of this country for all time to come. "Drink," said the late lamented Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, "is the only enemy England has to fear." Parliament is powerless of itself to control it. The people, and the people only, by their direct votea and individual action in their own localities can repulse and vanquish this enemy; and the despot who denies them this rightful power is unworthy of the confidence of intelligent, liberty-loving, and patriotic English-

DISTRICT ELECTORAL DEPUTIES should less no time in counselling prompt and wise action on the part of Constituency and Lodge Electoral Superintendents, Meetings of the members of the Order should be called wherever possible. Copies of the Good Templar manifesto, embodying the resolution adopted at the last Grand Lodge Sessien, may be obtained from the Grand Lodge Office for enclosing in letters to Members of Parliament and candidates; and other auitable literature may also be obtained from the same source. Some additional leaflets will doubtless also be issued. The G.E.S. will be ready to give counsel in special cases where needed, and communications should be addressed to him at 3, Bolt-court, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

Bro. JOHN KEMPSTER has received communications from several constituencies seeking candidates, and it is possible that his candidature may shortly be announced.

THE DUTY OF THE TEMPERANCE PARTY IN THE PRESENT CRISIS.

Bre. Guy Hayler, D.E.S., East Riding of Yorkshire, has issued an address to the members, in which he says:—

"An appeal to the country upon the great Irish Question is upon us, and within a few weeks the voice of the people will have been delivered. It may be that in some constituencies the question of Temperance, for which we have fought so long, will during the contest be overlooked or abandoned; let this, however, not be the case in this district. Our watchword in the past has been "Vote for vote,' and,' Nothing for Nothing"; to-day it is still the same. Under the grand old banner of "Total abstinance for the individual and prohibition for the State" we still march forward, determined to have the power placed in the hands of the people to 'veto' the liquor traffic, and thus remove from the country an evil which William Ewart Gladstone, the Prime Miniater, declares equal in extent to the three great historic scourges, viz., war, pestilence, and famine.

We have in the past looked forward, honing and believing that both political parties would acknowledge the evils arising from the liquor traftic, and would have adopted even Prohibition as part of their platform; but unfortunately this has not been the case. The Conservative party oy making common cause with brewers and publicans and opposing net only "Local Option," but the slmost universal demand of the people for Sunday Closing, can neither expect nor claim any Temperance vots in the forthcoming context. For even in this Parliament we find that by the votes of the Conservative peers, led by Lord Salisbury, the Durham Sunday Closing Bill was rejected in the House of Lords on the 23rd of May, and that, by the combined votes of the Conservatives and brewers in the House of Commons. On the 4th of Juna, the English Sunday Closing Bill (No. 2), after having been amended in Committee was delayed so as if possible to prevent its adoption during the present possible to prevent its adoption auring one present Parliament.

With the Liberal Party it is different. Local Option and Sunday Closing have now to all intents and purposes been made planks in their political programmen, having not only received the support of the Prims Minister, Mr. Gladstone, in the Commens, and Lord Gravulle in the Lords, but that of the Liberal Federation, the Reform Union, and the Liberal Federation, the Reform Union, and the Liberal Councils throughout the country. A large majority of the Liberal party have also supported the bill preventing publicans from supplying children under 14 years of age with drink; the abolition of the payment of wages in public houses; the closing of public houses on election days, and making heir use illegal for committee-roems, &c., &c., and many other measures, having for their object the lessening of the evils resulting from the liquor traffic. This warrants us in believing that the Liberal party will settle the great question in future upon the lines indicated in the resolution of our noble leader, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, and repeatedly affirmed by increasing majorities in the House of

Our duty is, therefore, plain, and must not be forgotten for a moment, even in the present crisis. Our existence must be known and felt by both political parties. We must let it be understood that whatever else politicians do they must give up all hops of our vote unless for candidates that can give satisfactary assurances in view of Temperance legislation.

HIGHLAND TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.—A meeting of the Highland Temperance League was held at the residence of Lady Ashburton, Kont House, Knightsbridge (Colonel M'Donald M'Donald in the chair), to hear an account of the Temperance movement in the Highlands from Mr. Robertson, agent of the League. The work was shewn to be progressing most satisfactorily, especially amongst the crofters, who, Mr. Robertson said, "husbanded the little they had got, all they wanted being free course that they might get the fruits of their industry. The gratifying statement was also made that three-fourths of the Highland ministers were now total abstainers.

POLITICAL ACTION.

Hackney (Central).—On Tuesday night a numerous deputation of Temperance electors of Central Hackney had a conference with Major Sharp Hume, the Liberal candidate, at the Lower Clapton Congregational School-roem.—The Rev. T. C. Udall, president of the Central Hackney Local Option and Alliance Union, was in the clasir, and several of the leaders of the Good Templar Order were also present. A long discussion took place in which Bro. W. Dobson, (Dalston) P.D.C.T., was the leading spokesman, as to the requirements of the Temperance party in the matter of future legislation, and how far the candidate would come up to their wishes.—Major Hume said he was strongly in favour of carrying out the full programme as propounded by the United Kingdom Alliance, and if elected he would do sill he could to give legislative effect to the Local Option resolutions introduced by Sir Wilfrid Lawson, and thrice affirmed by the House of Commons.—On the motion of Bro. E. A. Gibson, seconded by Bro. Page, a resolution was candidature, and promising to use the best endeavours to promote his election.

The f.W.C. Ti Note Book.

At the Recent Election for three vacancies on Crambington Local Board, out of eight candidates for the three seats, Bro. Hobkirk, W.D.S., headed the poll by a large majority.

He has also been returned as a member of the Tynemouth Union Board of Guardians.

AMERICAN FREEMASONRY AND PUBLICANS.—The Masonic Grand Lodge of Ohio, U.S. A., has adopted a resolution declaring it to be the opinion of that body that the selling of intoxicating drinks should disqualify anyone from initiation into, or affiliation with any Masonic body.

THE JUVENILE TEMPLE connected with the Old Fortisth Military Lodge at Portsmouth has increased from 34 to 196 members during the quater. This Temple was before located at Aden, on the Red Sea, with the Regiment, and while there issued a model programme.

THE CHALLENG SHIELD.—I see that some friends have been setting a given value upon the Challenge Shield. We do not know its value, but the original donor would not like other would he donors to be deterred by too high an setimate. The Shield is an exact reproduction of an ancient original of great value, and is remarkably appropriate in design, while the case in which it is mounted cost a good many pounds. If any others desire to give another piece of plate, no doubt the G. L. Executive would have it well mounted.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Question: If a member, who is not changing his residence, applies fer his clearance card, can the Lodge refuse by vote to grant it.

Anseer: As a rule the Lodge is bound to grant the card, unless a charge is pending or the member is indebted to the Lodge. To persistently refuse is to try to turn a fraternal home into a prison. Such refusal can be appealed against. Yet if the card is applied for under an apparent misunderstanding, the Lodge may request the applicant to postpone the application for a week or so.

Question: Is a member, after serving a term as W.C.T., always afterwards entitled to designate himself as a "Past Worthy Chief Templar" of does he only own that title while in the P.W.C.T.'s chair.

Answer: He retains the title as long as he lives, unless he forfeits it by misconduct, or by failing to remain in the Order.

Question: Which Ledge in England has the largest number of members?

Answer: Probably the "Gleam of Sunshine" Lodge, Birkenhead, which last quarter paid tax on 300 members. The "Kingston-upon-Hull" Ledge apparently came next by paying tax on 283 members.

Note.—Questions of law can only be answered if sent through the District Deputy, and such questions must not involve pending cases of discipline which must be dealt with by trial, appeal, &c., in harmony with the Constitution.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Whit-Monday heliday has passed off quietly. Thousands of toil-worn artisans were glad to escape for a time from their work, and repair for a few hours to the suburbs and parks of this great Metropolis; whilst others, taking advantage of cheap trips, left the smoke begrimed cities behind and en-joyed a short spell at the seaside. The workingjoyer a sindrespen at the seasure. The working-men's holidays are being appreciated more year by year, and instead of being occasions for drunken bouts and the like, as in some former years, are now bouts and the like, as in some former years, are now spent in recreation of a purer and better kind. This improvement in the habits of the people is traceable above everything else to the spread of Temperance, and as the blessings, both personal and national, of sobriety become more apparent, so our Bank Holidays will be of increased advantage and benefit to the working classes of our land.

A few years ago it was not at all an unusual A few years ago it was not at all an unusual occurrence to find from 50 to 100 charges to be dealt with at most of the metropolitan police-courts. Last Tuesday morning the total number of cases down for hearing at the 12 courts reached 256, or an average of 24½ for each district. Southwark headed the list with reached 256, or an average of 24½ for each district. Southwark headed the list with 36; Thames had 33; Worship-street, 32; the shortest lists were Highgate three, and Hampstead only two. When it is remembered there were over 60,000 upon the Heath, this last number is indeed remarkable, and says much for the good order maintained by so large a crowd.

The above figures show that, despite the large The above ngures show that, despite the large influx of visitors from the country, and the immense crowds flocking to every available open space in and around the great Metropolis, only one in about 20,000 inhabitants was charged with violating the law. If you take away the charges for drunkenness the percentage would not have been more than one in 100,000.

The holiday amusements in Dublin were attended with an unusually large number of accidents and brawls, mestly brought about by intoxication. Over 50 cases were treated in Mercer's Hospital, and 35 in Jervis-street. What a pity it is men will not realise how senseless it is to take that which makes them forget their manliness and act like infuriated them forget their manniness and act like inturaced beasts. If the power of local self-government would shut up the whisky shops of "Ould Ireland" and help to make the nation sober, one can only hope that such a measure may speedily be

There still exist those who advocate the use of grog in the Naval and Merchant Services, and who will tell you it would be impossible for sailors to perform their duties if they did not receive their allowance of rum and water. The other night I was in the company of an old sailor, who has been three times round the world, and has been three times round the world, and taken part in over a score battles. Besides this, some 25 years ago he received a Reyal Humane Society's medal for saving a fellow-shipmate's life. Since he left the service he has shipmate's life. Since he left the service he has been a scaman's missionary in various parts of the kingdom. His experience of scafaring life is about as extensive as it is possible for one man to obtain, and an opinion on the grog question from such an one is a thousand times more valuable than any disquisition of the most learned theoretical teacher of the day.

He read to me a few selections from some short papers he had written when in active service, one of which was a description of what sailors have to do when there is a storm at sea. At the conclusion of the account the following passage At the occurred :-

"Here I pause a moment to say a word on the serving of the grog, a composition of rum and water. The use of this stuff is of old date in the navy, and would seem to be considered essential to navigation. In what are called Temperance ships no grog is served, neither after reeling of topssals nor at any other time; but what is very shameful in many instances, no substitute is allowed. If sailors might have coffee instead of rum they would thankfully accept the substitute, for coffee is incomparably a better stimulant. The invigoration from the rum is only momentary, but the wholesome effect of the coffee is felt for an hour. When, however, the latter is not forthcoming, the sailors very excusably observe, 'Better grog than nothing.'"

The above experience is one that may be extended to every occupation. Some there are who think they would not be able to work without beer. But if they could be persuaded to try coffee they would find that instead of becom- linearing."

"Ah," exclaimed a lover as he described his sweetheart to his mother, "you should have seen think they would be persuaded to try coffee and a wine-coloured silk that made her perfectly they would find that instead of becom- lintoxicating."

ing sleepy and needing constant stimulation, the head would be much clearer, and the mental and perceptive faculties considerably brighter. One of the best and most invigorating drinks for the summer is coffee made in the morning (the sugar and milk added at the time), and allowed to cool. A cup of this taken after dinner will be found more refreshing than all the alcoholic liquor in England.

An interesting discussion took place the other day in the Brighton Town Council. It appears that during the season a series of promenade concerts are given in the Pavilion at this famous wateringplace; and, although refreshments are on sale, alcoholic liquers have been rigorously excluded. This auconoicinquers have occur rigorously excluded. This wise precaution is appreciated by all visitors, and the concerts are well patronised by the townsmen and visitors, a large number of whom would instantly withdraw their patronage if the "taps" were turned on. Some members (no doubt connected with the "trade") of the Town Council though that drink should be sold at these gatherings, and a motion to this effect was brought before the Council. This body, however, wisely refused to be parties to a movement to lower and degrade their town, and the motion was rejected by a large majority. It is an open secret that the members of a certain Order have very materially aided in bringing about such a healthy public sentiment in the celebrated Sussex

An important decision was given at the City Summons Court on Saturday, June 12. The land-lady of a public-house was summoned for keeping lady or a punic-house was summoned for keeping her house open during prohibited hours, and also for permitting drunkenness upon her premises. The first charge broke down, but it was proved that two men were in the house drunk on a Sunday afternoon. It was urged in dafence on a Sunday atternoon. It was urged in datence that the men were friends; but Sir Thomas Owden said this made no difference, for no keeper of a public-house was justified in permitting drunkenness at any time. A fine of 10s. was enferred

The movement, insugurated under the presidency of Mr. Herbert J. Gladstone, to provide physical recreation for the working classes is one physical recreation for the working classes is one that should commend itself to all. There are many amongst us who would gladly indulge in such manly exercises as gymnastics, calisthenics, &c., only our means are so limited we are not able to do so. The object of the National Physical Recreation Society is to place the necessary apparati for obtaining such recreation within the reach of all. The Council is composed of several well-known athletes and cricketers, and I trust they will be able to launch their project successfully.

On Tuesday night last the inaugural meeting of the Deaf and Dumb Temperance Army, to which I referred some menths since as in course of formation, was held at the St. Mark's Parcchial Hall, York-street, Wallworth-road, London, under the presidency of the Rev. A. G. Ormeby, who was supported, among others, by Mr. E. H. Pickersgill, M. P. There was a good attendance of the deaf and dumb of South London present. The Rev. E. Abraham, the president and founder of this new Temperance consistion, as ted as interpreter and Temperance organisation, acted as interpreter, and at the outset of the proceedings gave an account of the formation of the army, which already has a large number of honorary supporters amongst members of Parliament and well-known gentlemen in the Temperance world. The society aims at establishing branches of the army all over the country among the deaf and dumb.

The writer of the leading article in the Daily News of Wednesday last is certainly labouring under a delusion. He says:—"The teetotalers feel uneasy so long as it is a matter of uncertainty whether alcohol is or is not a food." Whoever wrote these words would de well to read over the opinions of eminent medical men upon this question, given in Mr. Gustafson's "Foundation of Death." If there is one thing more than another upon which the doctors are agreed, it is that alcohel in abao-lutely useless as a food. Hence we have no anxiety on this score.

FREE LANCE.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

The 31st annual session of the National Division of the Order of the Sons of Temperance is this year held at Sunderland. The National Division was opened on Whit Monday merning, Bro. Wightman, M.P., presiding, and 140 delegates, from most of the towns in the United Kingdom, being present. The report shewed the number of members in the Order in the United Kingdom to the best of the services of the towns in the United Kingdom to the best of the services of the towns in the Order in the United Kingdom to be 21,309; the sick and funeral fund amounts to £63,073; the management fund to £3,291 and the benevolent fund to £954. It had been intended to hold an open air demonstration, but, owing to the bad weather, a public meeting was held in the Brougham-street Chapel. General condemnation was expressed of the House of Lords for throwing out the Durham Sunday Closing Bill, and a resolution in favour of voting only for those candidates who would support Local Option was carried. Tea was afterwards provided, and in the evening another public meeting was held, the Mayor (Alderman Preston) presiding, who announced, smidst applause, that he had become one of the Sons of Temperance. The meeting was also addressed by a number of delegates.

THE REVENUE FROM DRINK.

Social reformers maintain that the moral and social evils resulting from the use of alcohol are too great to be atoned for by the revenue which it yields. This was the view of John Wesley in 1784, when he wrote to Mr. Pitt, the Prime 1784, when he wrote to Mr. Pitt, the Prune Minister, a strong letter of remonstrance, in which he said: "Surely that gold is bought too dear if it is the price of blood." That this is a reasonable view is clear from the fact that cool, calculating statesmen acknowledge its justice. It was in the earlier portion of last century that the duties on alcoholic liquors became an important feature in the national Budget. Sir Robert Walpole had discovered in them a grand source of revenue, and while laying a tax on alcohol he took care to encourage the consumption. Lord Chesterfield denounced this policy with great severity. Speaking of the "Gin Acts" of 1743, in the House of Lords, he said: "Vice, my lords, is not properly to be he said: "Vice, my lords, is not properly to be taxed, but to be suppressed. Luxury may very properly be taxed; but the use of these things which are simply hurfful—hurfful in their o-n nature and in every degree—is to be prolibited." In 1860, Mr. Gladstons ... said, with regard to Temperance legislation: "Certainly I shall not think it compatible with my duty to oppose any such plan as the Permissive Bill on fiscal grounds. I should myself man that feet the feet to be a such plan as the feet to be fe should myself urge that fiscal grounds, whether they be important or not, must necessarily be secondary to that question. . . . It ought to be decided on entirely social and moral grounds." decided on enti

GOOD TEMPLAR INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION .- On GOOD TEMPLAE INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION—Thresday afternoon last an interesting industrial exhibition and flower show, in aid of the funds of the South London Lodge and Juvenile Temple, was openedat the Bible Christian School-room, Waterlooroad, S.E. The opening ceremony was performed by Bro. the Rev. A. W. Jephson, vicar of St. John'a, Waterloo-road, who remarked that exhibi-Johna, Waterloc-road, who remarked that exhibi-tions were always pleasant things. The present one was very near and dear to his own heart, because it was held in connection with the great Order to which he had the pleasure of belonging— the Order of Good Templars. What they wanted was to raise funds for the purpose of extending their work as a Lodge and as an Order in that part of South London. The need for Temperance work was everwheiming. Upon the motion of Bro. J. Woollacott, W.D.T., seconded by Bro. the Rev.W. H. Tickell, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Br. Jephson, who was presented with a bouquet by Miss Gracie Robinson, a young lady of three aummers. In addition to the exhibits, which were of an interesting nature, there were stalls for the sale of fancy articles and refreshments, over which sale of lancy articles and retreshments, over which Sisters Mrs. Woollacott and Misses Robinson, Lang, and Scammell presided. The exhibition was open on Wednesday, when Mr. Walter Wren (Liberal candidate for North Lambeth) presided at the opening, and on Thursday, when General Fraser, V.C., M.P. (North Lambeth), performed the opening ceremony.

TAKING TEA WITH THE G.W.Co. OF SWEDEN.

On the invitation of the Middless District Executive, a very pleasant and interesting gathering was held on the 11th inst., at the London Central Club, Bridewell-place, New Bridge-street, E.C., to greet and welcome Bro. Wavriosky, G.W.Co. of the Grand Lodge of Sweden, who is spending a short holiday in London for the purpose of informing himself of such of our manners and customs as are new to him, and to study the Temperance and philanthropic movements of the country. Having so distinguished a brother amongst them, the "largest District Lodge in the world" did the correct thing in paying this mask of fraternal recognition. The Iollowing members of the Order were present at tes:—Bro. Wavrinsky, and Bros. Dr. Dawson Eurns; J. W. Winton, D.C.T.; W. Sutherland, W.D.Co.; J. W. Jones, D.E.S.; Sister Slakespeare, D. V. T.; J. H. Retallack Moloney, W.D.S.; John Hilton, W.D.T.; W. Rains, W.D.Ch.; J. Lambert, W.D.M.; H. J. Easton, W.D.Ch.; Sister Harnack, P.D.V.T.; Sister Wooks, P.D.V.T.; Bro. and Sister Insul!; Bro. and Sister Vincent; Bro. Rev. — Collett; Bro. H. Ansell, and Bro. T. C. Macrow, all of Middlesex; Bros. C. Pinhorn, D.C.T.; W. E. Hooper, W.D.C., J. Hodges, W.D.S.; John Mann, P.W.D.T., of E. and M. Surrey.

Bro. Winton presided, and the tea, which was of an excellent description, was done heavity justice to, as evidenced by the commendable promptitude with which the plates were cleared of their contents. This, however, by-the-way.

Bro. Moloney having read letters from Bros. J. Kempster, G.E.S. Superintendent Foster, and others, regretting that their engagements prevented their sitendance, brief addresses of welcome were given by Bros. Winton, Pinhorn, and Dr. Burns.

Bro. WAVRINSKY then rose to address the meeting, and was heartily greeted. He thanked them very much for their kindness for thus coming them very much for their kindness for thus coming together to do him honour, and assured them that that evening would long linger as a pleasant memory in the days that were to come. Our brother's speech contained some interesting particulars of the rise and progress of the Order in Sweden. The total abstainers, we were told, might be reckoned at 200,000, and this, he thought, was good, when it was considered that the populawas gond, when it was considered that the popula-tion was only the same as that of London, and scattered over the entire country. As to Good Tomplary, the Grand Lodge, owing allegiance to the R.W.G.L. of the World, was the strongest and most influential, and numbered 40,000 members in 1,000 Lodges. There are also two other Templar Orders—the "Hickmanites" and the "Scandinavian Templar Order, "this latter an excrement of the Hickmanites and the best of them. These two bodies have about 35,000 them. These two bounds have about 5,000 members between them. It appears, however, that the three organisations agree together well and interchange visits. This multiplicity of Orders having the same name has hitherto rather hindered the work than pushed it on; but since the new year this state of things has been altered, and the efforts of the Templars are being more recognised and appreciated. It seems that a joint committee of the three bodies has been formed with the Hickmanite G.W.C.T. at its head. This committee meets quarterly, and to it are sub-mitted any dissensions or troubles that may have arisen between the Ludges, for mutual considera-tion and amicable settlement, and this plan is working smoothly and well. The committee has also done good in another direction. It has interviewed the Prime Minister to obtain an expression of the sympathy of the Government for the movement, and after that dignatary had recovered from his surprise to see the "quarrelsome Templars" united, he cordially assured the deputation of his interest and influence, and promised to do some-thing to help them. This promise was subsequently fulfilled, and the committee was granted a sum of 8,000 crowns (about £450) for the dissemination of Temperance literature. A literature committee was formed, and Bro. Wavrinsky was chosen chair-One of the objects undertaken by this committee is the formation of a National Library of Temperance Works, and Bro. Wavriosky stated that Temperance works, and from the committee would much appreciate gifts of standard Temperance publications for the library from anyone who might have effect the the exist them to spare. One thing about the Lodges in Sweden is that not only are all sectarian Order topics and party politics tabooed, but nothing is known of Temperance politics, and one brother promised on his return to do what he could to change this, and had resolved at the next G.I. Session to move for the election of a Graud Electoral Superintendent. His visit, Bro. Wavrinsky remarked, in conclusion, had given him a great deal of knowledge, which he hoped to utilise for the advancement of the Order on his return to Sweden. (Applause.)

Bro. J. MANN in thanking the guest of the evening for his address, urged him to do what he could to establish Bands of Hope or Juvenile Temples in Sweden. Bro. the Rev. Collett also spoke, and the proceedings closed.

CHARACTER DRESS.

BRO, JOSEPH KESTERTON, W.D.G., Warwickshire, writes :- I desire to express my extreme regret at the action of Grand Lodge in relation to character dress. According to reports the C.L. Keps. appeared to think that the Lodges G.L.Keps. appeared to think that the Lodges would develop into amateur theatrical and min-strel entertainers, and that the most vulgar dress would be worn. Even you, sir, in a Leading article, class the sketches which would be performed in costume with the lowest of London theatres. Now, I do not appreciate the theatre, but believe it a power of evil rather than 1800d. Neither do I believe the membership source to wraten by whether lowers but what? desire to produce low theatrical pieces; but what the membership does want is permission to play a Temperance dialogue as it ought to be played—to a Temperance dialogue as it ought to shew the drunkard in his real form. What can be said of the dissolute drunken wretch who appears the conteman? What the picture of a respectable gentlement office can it have upon the audience? I have recently composed several Temperance dialogues, but the given in connection with Good they cannot be given in connection with Templary because without characterdress their effect is destroyed. I have often heard the G. W.C. T. say that our Order is democratic, that is, governed by its our Order is democratic, that is, governed by its members. Let the membership remember this at the next election of G.L. Reps. My advice to those who see the error of G.L. is to vote for no District Rep. who will not promise to vote for G.L.Reps. in harmony with character dress, and to the D. Reps. to support none but those in favour of the abolition of the present bye-law, so that the next abolition of the present agenus, so that the next G.L. may represent the membership. This is the great question of the day in Good Templary; nothing else is of so much importance, and, while it exists, nothing can do more injury to our Order. Let those who love the Order fight with all legitimate means in their power to blot this foolish law out of existence.

Bro. EGWARD Hooson, E.S., Birmingham, writes:—I, as a Good Templar of 10 years, know thero are good things to be learnt in our Lndg. 8, I also know there is talent in our members, and it must be used. The question is, shall we keep the members and their talent, or lose them both! I have seen many Temperance pieces played with good results, not only in my own District, but almost in half the Districts of England. I altogether fail to see where the harm comes in. I think a line should be drawn somewhere, and I should say that the support of the Order, the Order's real body and soul, should draw that line. I mean the Sub-Lodges, or, I should say, the members thereof. Would the G.L. be in its present position, were it not for the Sub-Lodge members? The question lies in a very small space, I think. It is this: Pay, and do as we tell you, or we will take your Charter; now the G.L. has said, You shall not do this or that. I ask, are we children, to be spoken to in soulc amanner? Shall we be bound by honds that gall our limbs? Shall we sit passive in our Lodge and say nothing? I say, No. By all that is good, No! Sub-Lodge members should answer G.L. and say, We will do this, and we will do that, and you won't stop us. We are the chief and the support of the Order, and as such we have a voice, and one that shall be heard. Wishing our noble Order every success in its world-wide mission of love and Temperance.

BRO.E. GRANT TUPPER, D.G. W.C.T., Portsmouth, writes:—Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for having permitted a further correspondence on this most important ambject, I beg to throw out a suggestion to those who intend to have the matter again brought. H. Wilson, D.C.' the existing bye-law be substituted by one to the effect that only such sketches as have been submitted to and approved by the Good of the J. M. Skinner, P. Order Committee shall be enacted in Over 400 present.

character dress. Since the G.L. session, I have refrained from expressing my views on the subject because it had become almost inextricably associated in our official organ with one of a very different calibre, which is unworthy of the support of any right-thinking man or woman. But I must not digress upon this forbidden topic; no have I any inclination so to do. That permission to perform suitable selections in character dress would prove beneficial to our Order is apparent at all our entertainments. And we must entertain our new members (who, for a time, take but little interest in ordinary Lodge business), if we wish to retain them. The motion was somewhat bitterly opposed at the recent G.L. session by a number of clerical brothers, who are, to say the least, a power for good in our noble Order; but their objections would appear to have been principally based upon the moral tone that would be likely to predominate in the sketches performed; and this, I think, might safely be left to the discretion of the Good of the Order Committee of Subordinate Lodge.

Bro. Feed. W. Vidler. W.M., Harleaden, London, writes:—I think it a very great mistake of the Grand Lodge to prohibit dialogues in character dress at our Lodges. In the Christman number of the Wartewone is princide a play where a lieutenant takes a principal part, and would it not be absurd to act the piece with the soldier dressed in civil an clothes? If so, whyprint in the Good Teathrans' Wartewoor belonges we cannot (or dare not) act in a correct dress? Temperance dialogues in character dress would, in the first place, set non-working members to work, and would bring other members to the sessions that now stop away for the want of more ontertainment in the Lodges; and it would also help weak Lodges to get the public in, thereby enabling them to raise the rout, which to many is very hard to do. I trust the Grand Lodge will see their judgment is wrong, and soon make it legal for our members to give Temperance dialogues in character dress.

Seventeen members presented a.c.'s, and it was decided to call the Lodge the Bolton United, and to hold its meetings on Saturday evenings at 7.30. CHAPTER III.

THE COURSE OF TRUE LOVE NEVER DID RUN SMOOTH. - BERTIE'S RESOLVE. - A YEAR'S PRO-BATION.

During the early days of Bertie's illness, they unconsciously continued that free intercourse they had known in childhood, and were quite at esee. She read to him and talked with him as though he were not more to her than he had ever been, in fact, as not more to her than he had ever been, in fact, as her adopted brother; but, as by a tacit consent, they avoided all mention of the day of her arrival and his accident. It was too painful to Bertie as yet, the thought of it overwhelmed him with too much shame for him to mentical it. His case followed her with a tanger will are. wholmed him with too much shame for him to men-tion it. His eyes followed her with a tender, wist-ful look, whenever she moved about the room, which she, turning suddenly, had once or twice surprised, and whose meaning she knew only too well. But as he progressed towards recovery, address and formality graw up hatween too well. But as he progressed towards recovery, a coldness and formality grew up between them, which pained him much, but was her only refuge. Therefore she incressed it all the more, as he tried to lessen it. The struggle all the more, as he tried to leasen it. The struggle between love and principle was begun, and to act so, she knew was her only wisdom; yet none the leas did she suffer. He would at times impulsively attempt to leap across the chasm, that he knew was slowly yet surely widening between them. Mrs. Oreswell saw and wondered at it, but her delicate sense of honour would not allow her to question Carrie concerning it.

question Carrie concerning in.

One afternoon, shortly before Christmas, all the four were together in the sitting room, talking of the coming Christmas, the weather, and other four were together in the sitting room, taking or the coming Christmas, the weather, and other commonplace topics. A constraint seemed to be falling upon them, which even the squire felt and fidgeted under, and at last fled from, under some slight pretext or other.

Bertie determined to break through it, and asked Bertie determined to break through it, and assect Carrie if ahe would sing for them, and in answer to her inquiry, chose Moore's "Isle of Beauty." She struck a few preliminary chords, under cover of which Mrs. Creswell silently withdrew, and then of which Mrs. Creswell silently withdrew, and then commenced to sing with much pathos and tender feeling. The tones seemed to thrill through the room, more sepacially the refrain, "Fare thee well." Each succeeding time it gained in pathos and sadness, until the last seemed almost to tend her heart. They both were silent. Bertie fets an meenhable paincreepingover him which he could not dispel; it seemed as though she were gliding away from his grasp. Carrie rose, and went to the window. The prospect was sad and dreary enough, just in keep-ing with her condition, she thought. Soon Bertie was at her side, looking in her face with an in-quiring, longing expression, which she too well understood

"Carrie," he said, "you have saved my life."

" No, No."

"Yes. Mother has told me all; how you came for me that night, how you tended me in the came for me that night, how you bended in the ravings of fever, and endangered your own health to save mine, You have done far more for me than I deserved. I can never repay you as I ought, but if my life, which you have saved, can, it shall. You at Trawley Hall, and that is the one once occupied of eitizens.

must know, I love you, Carry, love you more than my life; will you take all that I have and am and give me your love in return."

She stepped back as if smitten by an unseen hand, and he saw a look of intense pain on her face, as she said :-

"No, Bertie, no, it cannot be.

"Cannot be, Carrie! Why?

"Oh! I can't tell you," she said, covering her face, and rushing from the room, while Bertie stood say if stunded, deprived of all sense and motion. All he was conscious of were the words "Canuot be," which seemed to be repeated by innumerable voices. How could be be mistaken? He felt sure he loved him. Could it be that she loved another? No, never ; he would never believe that unless he heard it from her own lips. What was it, then? He paced the room restlessly to and fro, but no answer sould be get to his question. Two hours afterwards a note was put into his hand, which read as follows :-

"Desr Bertie-I may still call you that, mayn't I? I could not explain to you the reason of my re-fusal, but you have a right to know, and, therefore, I write to you. You will remember that when we used to play together as children, my mother used used to play together as children, my mother used to tell me never to marry one like my father, and that I promised never to do so. Shortly before she died she asked me to renew that promise, and I did. Who could refuse? It was her last request. Forgive me if I have pained you, and try to forget me. At least let me be your sister. I have no other friends in the world now. Try to forgivo me, Carrie,

A quick succession of feelings rushed through him when he had read the note. The first was extreme vexation at her mother for requiring such a foolish promise, and thus wrecking her daughter's happiness; for he felt no doubt now as to her love for him. But soon this view passed; he saw how Carrie was placed, and his love for her was doubled and he inwardly acknowledged her to be right. Before he went to sleep his resolve was taken; that as soon as he was well enough he would eave home, and test himself, to know whether leave nome, and test nimsen, to know whether he could conquer the habit, which he now knew had stronger hold on him than he had thought, then, whon he was victorious, as something assured him he would be; return and claim Carrie as his

The latent mobility and decision of hie character had been fully roused; they had but been lying dormant, and needed but the application of the match to make them flame forth. by Mr. Creswell. When spring was beginning to by Mr. Creswell. When epring was beginning to re-beautify the earth, he was called away from this land of growth and decay, to the land of eternal spring, which knows not the sad decay of autumn, nor the dreary cold of winter.

ONE PENNY.

Standing there by the self-same window, as of yore, we see Bertie and Carrie, not with sadness and pain on their faces now. but with the glad, happy look of unrestrained affection. How it lights both faces as with bright sunshine, as she leans her head upon his shoulder. Has she forgotten her promise to her mother? Has her love so depromise to her mother? Has her love so de-generated itself and herself as to rush madly over the dead body of what was to her a sacred principle, to gain its object! No, no. She has not descended; Bertie has risen to her level. Easily? No. Who does? It has been an uphill not descented; No. Who does? It has been an uphill struggle, but he has conquered as every true man will. His companions helped him not. They railed at his childishness, as they called it, to give sailed at his childishness, as they called it, to give up his pleasure for the whim of a woman. There was nothing msnly in it, so they thought and said, and pitied, yea, almost despised him for his weakness. But it had meant more to him than they knew. It not only meant that he should lose or win Carrie; in the time of his separation from her, when he came to himself, it presented itself as a choice between the sensual and spiritual, the mean and the noble, his baser and better self; and he chose the latter. It does not necessarily do so to all, perhaps it does so to but comparatively few; enough for Bertie that it did to him.

And did he ever regret. Listen.

And did he ever regret. Listen. "Bertie," says Carrie, turning her face towards his, "I want to ask you a question, a serious one-may I?"

"Yes, darling, anything you like. You know you can. What is it?"

"I scarcely like to ask, and yet I want to. You won't think me nakind, wilt you!

"No, dear," drawing her nearer to him. "don't hesitate

"Did you—have you ever regretted giving up what you did for me?" hiding her face in his bosom to cover the tears that would come.

"Never, darling, never," he eaid, as he kissed or fervently. "I could give up far more for her fervently. von.

And he meant every word.

That was a very happy Christmas they spent at Trawley Hall, for they were now husband and wife. They were now beginning the real romance of life, and there was much unborn sorrow in the dumb years before them, but they met it together and were thus strong. The upward course Bertie had begun was never discontinued. Though disheartened many times, especially in the earlier years, he never failed; for Carrie taught him where to look for strength. She was ever pointing him upwards. Her true vocation she understood to be the brightening and ennobling of her husband'e and children's lives, and not theirs alone, but of all with whom she had to do; and the tenants and poor people around learned to bless the names of "squire" and "lady" Creswell.

W. LLOYD GARRISON.-A bronze statue William Lloyd Garrison, the life-long friend of the Temperance and anti-slavery movements has been presented to the city of Boston by a large number

At a recent public meeting held under the auspices of the East Devon District Lolge, in the Town Hall, St. Mary Church. Mr. Lewis McIver, M.P., delivered an excellent address on Temperance legislation. 4 He observed that being indisposed he had left his bed in order to take part in the meeting. Endorsing the statement of the chairman that the Good Templars were the no one knew better than himself how true this was, for he had reason to be grateful to the Good Templars on an energent occasion when their organisation and fighting qualities came out in very bright relief indeed. (Hear, hear.) Temperance work and individual effort were going on everywhere, but the great difficulty it had to meet wasthis—that the law provided and encouraged, and in a measure lived upon the providing of large temptations, and the department of the work to which he belonged was that of effort to reduce and minimise those temptations by Temperance legislation. He was afraid they were not very near obtaining the direct veto just now, but as long as Good Templars and other good Temperas ong as Good rempara and oner good rempera-ance workers, in their different tents and "habita-tions"—(laughter)—he meant their tents and associations—kept their armour bright and their swords sharp for the fight, direct veto was far away.

There were, however, direct veto was far away. There were, however, other points of Temperance legislation, and as every little counted he had always advocated that, whilst they should push forward to the goal of the direct they should push forward to the goal of the direct veto, they should at the same time piok up every little they could get on the way and be thankful for it. (Hear, hear.) They had had very little to be thankful for in this respect in this session of Parliament. Various Temperance measures had found their way into the lobbies of the House found their way into the lobbies of the House of Commons, but very few had come on for discussion. Of those that had, the first was the Durham Sunday Closing Bill. Durham, like Corn-wall, was a county where Temperance doctrines wall, was a county where remperance doctrines had sunk very deep and spread very wide, and the introducer of a Bill was able to say that out of the 15 members of the House of Commons returned by the county of Darham, 14 had adopted the Bill. (Hear, hear.) This was, therefore, a case where it might reasonably be said that the county almost unanimously demanded such legislation. (Hear, hear.) After considerable debate, the Bill was carnear.) After considerable decate, the Bill was carried, and Mr. Thecofore Fry, a gentleman well known to Temperance reformers—(hear, hear)—asked him (Mr. McIver) to use any influence he might have with peers to assist its being carried by the House of Lords. He did what he could but the Bill was nevertheless thrown out by that House and, additionally he was any in. although he did not want to make any in-proper or unconstitutional reference to "the other place," he might say that there was a very big account there, and that this was an item added to it. (Hear, hear.) The Bill would in all probability again come before Parliament, and he did not think the House of Lords would throw it out again. Hav-ing referred to Mr. Conybeare's Bill for the protec-tion of children, Mr. McIver went on to speak of Sir J. Pease's Bill for Sunday closing. A more unsatisfactory Bill for Sundayclosing he could not think of. (Hear, hear.) It proposed to leave London alone. He did not disagree with that, as no doubt the Metropolis required special treatment. It further netropois required special treatment. If further proposed to close public-houses on Sunday in the rural districts, and in a "populous place" like St. Mary Church it proposed to leave the houses open for two or three hours in the middle of the day and for the same time at night. The effect it would have on St. Mary Church would be to reduce the sale of Sunday has a few forms. be to reduce the sale on Sunday by a few hours. The Temperance Committee decided that they did not care much about that, but that when they got the Bill in committee they would see if could not improve it. Consequently, when it they could not improve it. Consequency, when it reached that stage, they proposed to make it absolute that there should be closing for the whole of Sunday, except for London. (Applause.) Sir Inte that there should be closing for the whole of Sunday, except for London. (Applause.) Sir J. Pease, however, voted against this amendment, and withdrew the Bill. The a nendment was carried. and withdrew the Bill. The a nendment was carried. At the present moment the question was in this position. The House of Commons had affirmed by a majority, though not a decisive one, the principle of Sunday closing for Eogland, with the exception of London. (Hear, hear.) Thus, as the result of the discussions on Temperance legislation in the House of Commons during the last few months, if nothing had absolutely been done, there was a great deal

In conclusion, Mr. McIver alluded to the fact that he had been asked to take charge—on behalf of the Church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the Church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the Church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the Church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the Church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the church of England Temperance Society—of a Bill Displayed to the church of England Temperance Society and the church of England T Unurch of EnglandTemperance Society—of a Bill for the repeal of therefreshment and shopkeepers'licence, and also to support a Bill for the repeal of the part payment of wages oy order, and he was considering the advisability of meeting this latter system by extending the provisions of the Truck Act to agricultural labourers. The session of the House of Commons had been sure cheet and the system of the control of the session of the House of Commons had been sure cheet as a sixty of the session. agricultural labourers. The session of the Model of Commons had been a very short one, and it had been more than ordinarily agitated by two very large measures which were inseparably connected, to the exclusion of a great connected, to ordinary very large measures which were inseparably connected, to the exclusion of a great deal of ordinary private members' legislation; but if they had nothing absolutely tangible to shew in regard to Temperance, and if the House of Lords, by rejecting the Durham Sunday Closing Bill, had robbed them of their one ewe lamb, they had been able to prove that there was a very active desire on the part of private members to give effect to the largely-developed thendomy of the constituencies in the direction of tendency of the constituencies in the direction of Temperance legislation. WHIT-MONDAY DEMONSTRATION. - At Sitting bourne on Whit-Monday the Good Templars held a conference, tea, and entertainment. The conference was opened at two o'clock by Bro. W. T. Rule, W.D.Co. Three papers were to have been read, but the reader of the first paper on "How to Reclaim the Drunkard" (Rev. H. Denn, vicar of Sittingbourne), bring unavoidably prevented from being present, two only were read, the first of these being by Mr. C. Wicks (of Tong) on behalf of the Bands of Hope of that town, and the second (on behalf of the I.O. (4 T.) by Bro. W. Webster, on "Consistent Good Templary." Animated discussions followed each of these papers. At six o'clock a crowded tea meeting was held in the Crescent-street school-room, at the close of which the members and friends formed into processional order and paraded the principal streets, headed by a brass band, and marched to the Town Hall, where a monster public marchet to the Town Hall, where a monster public meeting and entertainment was held under the presidency of Bro. THE RIGHT TO PROHIBIT WITHOUT COMPENSATION.

The decision of Judge Brewer, of the United States District Court at Topeka, Kansas, in favour of compensating a brewer for being refused a licence to brew even for lawful "mechanical or medicinal purposes," did not fouch the question of manufacture purposes, and not touch the question of manufacture as a beverage. Even, however, if it had done so, it might be upset by the Supreme Court. It meets, however, with its match in the recent decision of Judge McKny, of the United States District Court of Northern Georgia, where the stockholders in a brewery of the Court of Surperson or the support of the state of the support of th in a brewery claimed compensation owing to the suppression of the traffic under the recently passed Local Option law. The judge said: "This whole subject of the liquor traffic, and of investments precisely like those of the complainants—investments broken up or largely crippled by prohibitory laws—has been a fruitful source of distartion before the courts, and they are all now agreed sion before the courts, and they are all now agreed that such rights and properties as the complainants assert they are about to have injured or descripted in the control of the control uniformly and clearly held that rights of the character here set up must yield, however coatly and devastating may be the evil, to the will of the Legislature in its passage of laws in their judgment for the public good. It is one of the risks that every man takes in entering a business or making an investment, and he cannot complain."

The Superintendent read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed. some discussion it was resolved that a petition to some discussion it was resolved that a perition to the magistrates against granting new licences, and to refuse the renewal of any of the existing ones, should be premoted under the auspices of the local should be promoted under the auspices of the local Good Templars. Bro. Gumbrill moved, and Bro. A. Peters, E.S., seconded the following resolution, which was unanimously carried: "That this meeting of representatives from nine Lodges of the Independent Order of Good Templars in Brighton, with a membership of upwards of 600 persons, views with deep regret the action of the House of Lords in rejecting the Durham Sunday Closing Bill at its third reading, and that copies of the re-solution be forwarded to the Marquis of Salisbury, Earl Granville and the Bishop of Durham." The C.S. was then directed to inform the executives of the Liberal and Conservative Associations that no candidate would receive the Templar votes unless favourable to Temperance. It having been arranged to communicate with any new candidates for Parliament who might come forward for the borough in order to ascertain their views, and to call a meeting of the Convention to consider the same, the meeting closed with prayer.

SMOKING TOBACCO. - The use of tobacco, as distinguished from its abuse, ought to be a matter of intelligent observation and experience. We should incline to the opinion that any particular individual who can say, "I always know when I have smoked enough—if I go beyond the just limit I lese my power of prompt decision," had better not smoke at all. It is clearly unwise for a man who cannot swim to persist in dabbling in deep waters. There are currents and under-draughts which may at any moment destroy his balance. The very reverse of the complaint made by this person is the experience of most smokers. A moderate use of tobacco soothes the senses, and leaves the mental Thurse no Degree Temple Charters were to be issued to confer the Third Degree.

DISTRICK LODGE DEGREE.—It was agreed that wherever a District Lodge had enacted that the better be eschewed, —Lancet.

HOW WE WON THE VETO.

Regardless of any and overy other question, the Temperanee party in North Dorset made the Veto suppreme, and determined that their M.P. should vote for the Veto, or they would oppose him with a man that would. Innediately the Irish Division was taken, we again obtained a statement of our M.P.'s view, which were in favour of Local Option through County Boards and against the veto. Therefore, without an hour's delay we county. fore, without an hour's delay, we sought in several directions for a Veto candidate, no matter what his other views might be. Daily and hourly, by teleother views might be. Daily and hourly, by tele-graph, post, rail, and road, we organised opposition, consolidated existing antagonism, and with inexor-able purpose, casting aside all party ties, we worked in and out of political organisations by pen, and speech, and Press, till we had in a few days destroped half of 1,500 majority, and got one Veto candidate quite, and another partially, ready. Then the sitting member sent for our secretary and promised in writing to "vote for a Bill, or a clause in a Bill giging the divers results are as promised in writing to "vote for a Bill, or a clause in a Bill, giving the direct popular veto on the Liquor Question by means of a plebiscite, a power similar to that now possessed by ratepayers under the Borough Funds Act." The rival political party to that of the majority of Veloists afterwards adopted the new candidate so that now whichever man wins to Veloists. the Vetoists gain their point. Every Dorsetshire Liberal candidate now is pledged to the Veto. If Prohibitionists, whether few or many, whether Prohibitionists, whether few or many, whether followers of Gladstone, Salisbury, Hartington or Chamberlain, would but be true to their principles, unflinchingly and promptly sacrifice all else to obtain their one measure, only give vote for a vote, and daringly and faithfully fight every single Parliamentary opponent, the veto would be in operation within a year.

ENCOURAGING PROGRESS, we are glad to learn from the Temperance Record, is being made with the needful arrangements for the forthcoming British and Colonial Temperance Conthe needful arrangements for the forthcom-ing British and Colonial Temperance Con-gress to be held at Princes' Hall, Piccadilly, on July 14, 15, and 16. Papers are promised, and delegates have been appointed from India, Ceylon, Australia, Canada, South Africa, Malta, and Gibraltar: and the area of interest is being widened by the arrival of each mail. Many windened by the arrival of each mail. Blady influential Temperance workers in this country have cordially agreed to co-operate in offering a cordial welcome to the colonial friends who may be present at the Congress, and numerous British anisations have already officially intimated their adhesion and their intention to be represented by delegates. The programme of the three days' proceedings is advertised in this issue, and any further information may be had of Mr. R. Rae, National Temperance League, 337, Strand, W.C. The attractive list of notabilities who are to attend will doubtless draw large attendances. Our own Grand Lodge will be represented by the G.W.C.T., G.E.S., and G.W.S.

BRO. THE REV. JOHN KIRK, D.D., who has been one of the most prolific of theological authors, and in recent years the writer of invaluable papers on health which have achieved a world-wide fame, is health which have achieved a world-wide fame, is now over '72 years of age, and his exhaustive labours can no longer be prosecuted with the energy which he has shewn for half a century. The Alliance News says of him:—"For nearly half a century he has laboured with untiring zeal and energy—often amid much opposition—for the advancement of the social moral, and religious well-being of the community. In Temperance work he has always been an enthusiastic advocate, both by voice and pen." He was one of the first G.W.Chaplains of the Grand Lodge of Sectiand, and none but his associates in Lodge of Scotland, and none but his associates in the early years of the Order there can understand the peculiar nature of Lis labours for us and the influence his learning and noble character gave us. His devotion to prohibitory principles has ever been unflinching — so much so that he has seemed almost to stand alone at times. For years he has been unable to use his voice much ror years he has been unable to use "as voice min public, but the splendid articles in the Alliance News, and other papers, signed "J. K." were from his pen. A committee is formed to present the worthy professor with a substantial testimonial, and we trust the appeal will be well responded to, and honour be thus done to one who has ever been true as steel. The treasurer to the committee is Mr. Daniel Osborne, Baok of Scotland, 13, Glassford-street, Glasgow.—J.M.

VOTE AS YOU PRAY.

My countrymen, hear me, in God's name awake, There's work to be done, there are fetters to break; Arm for the conflict, for victory's near, If true to each other, and liberty dear.

The issne's before us; then strike for the right, For God and the people, now work with your might; Oh! rescue our nation, drink-ridden and low, For inebriate bondsmen are sinking in wee.

The parties in power are false to their trust, Their once lofty record is trailing the dust; The swift wheels of progress are clogged in their flight,

The sunlight of trnth is still darkened as night.

Fathers and mothers, O hear ye the cry, Saatch from the burning those ready to die; Your daughters are wailing, your boys may be elain, Come, vote as you pray, lest you labour in vain,

Our cause is advancing from mountain and plaio, The glad song of freedom is rieging again; Our army is marching; then onward ye brave, And vote as you pray, our dear country to save.

MISSION REVIVAL WORK.

WOKINGHAM -On June 17 the members of the Caledonian Lodge, Reading, visited the Woking-ham Excelsior Lodge, which has been for some man Excessor Lodge, which has been for some time in a very low state. A public meeting was held, the chair being taken by the Rev. — Hughes, curate of Wokingham. Sister Hiscock, and Bros. Lee, James, Spencer, W.C.T., and Robinson, P.D.E.D., took part in the proceedings. A hope is enter-tained that the chairman will become a member of the Order, and it is expected that several others will join as a result of the meeting. There was a will join as a result of the meeting. There was a fair attendance of visitors from Reading; also of the general public.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

At this moment, in every constituency, the Temperance party ought to be promptly and vigorously active. If Irish Home Rule must be voted upon, a more momentous question even than that need not be, and must not be, forgotten. Two birds have been killed with one stone before now; and two questions may, even now, be aimed at and hit with one vote, even by those who refuse to aim only at that which is really most important. Especially, just now, in the first place, in the matter of the choice of candidates, may there be a good and useful vote given by every true patriot. "We must have a Gladstonian Home Rule candidate," it is said. Or " we must have the reverse." Very well, we answer, have him by all means, if you must have him. Get your candidate, as satisfactory a one as you can catch, on the Home Rule question, if that is really your determination. But what hinders that you insist on his being such a man as will at the same time be satisfactory on the still more important question of Temperance legislation? Nothing hinders, or if it does, at least nothing ought to hinder. If your political friends, nothing ought to hinder. It your political triends, the wirepullers of your causes or of your committee of selection, are about to foist on you some brower, some brewer's friend, or some liquor-traffic partisan, do not, we beg of you, let them foist him upon you. If you are at all numerous and unsanimous, or if you are loud though few, they will listen to your representations; even a few votes will be deemed important just now. They will look round for some candidate who will meet your expectation, and so enable you afterwards to enjoy the double delight of giving at the poll a vote agreeable at once to your conscience and to your political party.

Undoubtedly, two birds with one stone may be so dealt with even by those who think the Home so dealt with even by those who think the Home Rule bird very important. And why not? If we were to say—Do not mind the Home Rule question; let Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Hartington, and Lord Salisbury go their several ways, and do you concentrate your atten-tion on the really most important question of the times, the deliverance of your country from its bitterest, deadliest curse—if we so said, we sup-pose we should by many be thought to be unreasonable. Thus far, we have only asked that in the selection of candidates, not at the polls, but in view of them, the vote of the Temperance party shall be heard, if not "above the rest," at any rate loudly and with determination amongst the rest. In a little while it will be too late to attempt it be neglected new. The candidates will have been fixed upon, and the unhappiness either of not voting, or else of having to vote for a Home Rule brewer, on the one hand, or for a Unionist distiller on the other, will, perhaps, be all that will be left to you. There is really no need that the Temperance vote should be thus degraded the Temperance vote should be thus degraded and debased. At the last General Election a great and notable advance was won; the Temperance vote was signally effective and successful. We must not go back upon this now. It will never do to let the liquor traffic again creep into power in the House of Commons, because so many people's eyes are fixed solely upon Home Rule or upon Anti-Home Rule. If we are resolved to keep one eye open to the Home Rule question, let us reserve at least all the other eye for the still more momentous Home Rescue and Country Salvation question, and so, with both eyes well occu-pied, defy the Liquor Traffic's efforts to creep once more into power.

So much we have ventured to say to those of our friends whose minds the Irish question just how holds with a strong grip. There are many, we are assured, with whom it is not so; they see clearly the immensely superior importance of social amelioration, and do not entangle their thoughts in matters akin to party notifies. To these we need address in the to party politics. To these we need address just now no special word. They, we know, will not allow themselves to be diverted from their one great purpose—their all-absorbing duty. When the election comes, they will vote straight for the the election comes, they will vote straight for the right sort of Temperance legislation, though the political heavens fall. And meanwhile they will not be inclined to neglect making their existence known and felt somehow even to the political parties. They will let it be understood that, parties. They will let it be understood that, whatever else the politicians do, they must give up all hope of their vote unless for candidates that to know of any members going by the same vessel, can give satisfactory assurances in view of Tem—Address, 44, Hudleston-street, Monkwearmouth, perance legislation. this is understood, the more certain will it be that our Direct Veto "stalwarts" will find can-didates presented to them for whom it will be at once a duty and a pleasure to vote.-Alliance

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The bill brought in by Mr. Conybeare for pre-venting the sale of strong drink to children has been rendered of practically little use through the action rendered or practiceshy little use through the action of some professed friends of Temperance. As the bill now stands it is but little, if any improvement, on the present law, for I believe there exist upon the Statute-book at the present time an Act prohibiting the sale of drink to children for their own consumption. But the original object of Mr. Conybeare's bill was to prevent publicans supply ing drink to children for any purpose whatever, and this is what the Good Templars and Temperance men throughout the land have been petitioning for during the past few months.

This was also the "principle" accepted by the House of Commous when it passed the second reading. Since that occasion, however, the dissolution has come upon us, and many friends of the bill have had to hurry away to their constituencies to prepare for the coming election. The enemies of the bill were alive to this fact, and when the Committee stage was reached, they set to work, led by Sir R. Webster, and mutilated the measure to their heart's content.

The action of the House will not be without its effect upon the Temperance vote at the polling booths in the coming contest. It is clear that some are not yet educated up to our standard that some are not yet educated up to our standard and though ready to promise us, when they are ear-vassing for our votes, that they will support Temperance legislation, when in the House of Commons they "feel it their duty" to oppose every bill brought forward, because they say it interferes with individual liberty. Such half-hearted, slipshod, trickster legislators are not wanted at this period of the 19th century. We want men who will set up to their reconstructions. who will act up to their promises—men who when they say, Yes, do not mean No. We must wring from candidates definite promises on the Temperance question so that they will not be able to shield themselves behind some vague statement of "general support."

I sincerely hope the electors of the Isle of Wight I sincerely hope the electors of the Isle of Wight will have the courage to bring forward a candidate in opposition to Sir R. Webster. Some of the Temperance voters were led away by his "vagaries" last November, but they have now seen how far he will support their cause, and the sooner a more reliable man takes his place the better. The same remark applies to other places. If the Government of the future is to be "by the people and for the people," we must have clear issues before us at election times and upon no question is this more needful than upon the one we have nearest at heart needful than upon the one we have nearest at heart, viz., the right of the people themselves to deal with the liquor traffic.

With all my heart I wish our G. Electoral Superintendent success in the gallant fight he has undertaken at North Paddington. If the Good Templars and others of that division will only work Templars and others of that division will only work unitedly and carnestly, it should not be too great a task to obtain a majority for Bro. Kempster. They do say he is one of those terrible Home Rulers. He may be, but we Templars know him to be a true Unionist, and that if returned to Parlament, he will do his best to promote unity and concord between all people, and set to work at once to break down the great drink monopoly, so electors of North Paddington burry up and "VOTE FOR KEMPSTER THE TRUE FRIEND OF THE WORKING WAY!"

Will all London readers please remember that Sunday, June 27, is "Hospital Sunday"? Many of our metropolitan hospitals are greatly in want of funds, and none more than our own Temperance hospital at Hampstead. The larger the general collection the greater will be the benefit coming to this excellent institution from the Mansion House Fund. But if any would like the whole of their contributions to go to the London Temperance Hospital, they cannot do better than send direct to the treasurer, J. Hughes, Esq., 3, West-atrect, Finsbury-circus, E.C. Those holding open air meetings on Sunday night also take up collections for the hospital, for we know that none of the

been a long and trying one; but it is to be hoped that having been brought safely through he may be spared for many years to advocate the claims of Christianity and Temperance.

Many of us have had to make sacrifices and suffer persecution for our principles, but depend upon it, we never lose in the long run for what we do in the cause of truth and right. There are several cases on record of men giving up good positions in life, rather than do a dishonourable action. And we have also heard of men, on signing the Temperance pledge, destroying large quantities of wines and spirits sooner than give to others what they will not take themselves. When Bro. Booth was over here, a case analagous to the above occurred in the Midlands, and the late Mr. Gough, during in the Andahas, and the late Art. Gough, during his long life, had several converts who emptied the contents of their wine cellars down the drains. A similar case occurred in London on Saturday, June 19, when Mr. William Green, of Highgate, destroyed over 2,500 bottles of wine (valued at £600), in the presence of, and assisted by, several members of the Highgate Gospel Temperance Help One Another Society.

In a speech explaining his reasons for this action, he said that after mature reflection and carnest prayer, he had come to the conclusion that it was God's will that he should part with the contents of his wine cellar. Three methods were pressed upon him from time to time. One was to sell the wine to the trade, knowing that they would sell wine whether his or not; the some charity; and the third was to give it, as it was, to the hospitals. In pursuing the first course he would be participating in the sale of an article which had been proved to militate against the physical, social, and spiritual advancement of society. The same reasons were equally applicable to the second course, and beyond them there was in addition the inconsistency of causing in jury to others in order to benefit someone else. The third course was met by the success of the London Temperance in order to benefit comeone else. The third course was met by the success of the London Temperance Hospital, where it had been proved that alcohol was not necessary in the treatment of any disease.

After this address the contents of the bottles were poured into the sewer.

Last Saturday afternoon (June 19) several members of the East and Mid Surrey D.L. Good of the Order Committee paid a visit to Lambeth Palace by the kind permission of the Archbishop of Canterbury. A most enjoyable time was spent in the library, which contains many historical relies of great value. The picture gallery and chapel were also visited, as well as the "Lollard's Camber." On leaving the palace the members adjourned to the Mission Hall, Ann-street, where after text. the annual meeting was held. after tea, the annual meeting was held.

The other evening the Marchiness of Lorne (Princess Louise) presided at a meeting held in one of the Courts of the Colonial Exhibition, the obof the Courts of the Colonial Exhibition, the object of which was to take farewell of a party of total abstainers who have since setsail for South Africa, where they intend establishing a Temperance colony in Kaffraria, to be called Wolseley Township. The emigrant party is made up of 21 families, or 91 persons. I am sure we all wish them God-apced.

Pinhorn reported that he had received the following letter from Mr. G. J. Thorneloe:—48, Barbican, Loudon, E.C., May 4, 1886. Dear Mr. Finhorn,—Whilst I had Mr. Mildon's kind assurance on Good Friday that he would convey the family's sincere thanks to you and the committee, I feel independently of that that I must and ought to write expressing the thanks to you, and the committee, together with the kind friends who have subscribed towards the programmer accepted so heautifully on the graze Hospital, they cannot do better than send direct to the treasurer, J. Hughea, Esq., 3, West-street. Finsbury-circus, E.C. Those holding open air meetings on Sunday night also take up collections for the hospital, for we know that none of the money spent there goes for intoxicating drink.

Sir R. E. Webster and Mr. Conybeare's Bill.—At the last political contest a great Temperance Reformer (Sir R. E. Webster's lighted on the Isle of Wight and surprised all the w.r.'d with the manner in which he advocated the Temperance cause. But if we look at the debate on Mr. Conybeare's enforced absonce last Wedneaday night), we shall see that the same Sir R. E. Webster's moved the amendment to Mr. Conybeare's Bill, which made the grandest Temperance Bill ever introduced into the House of Commons not worth the paper it is written on. Sir R. E. Webster's constituents should ask him why his actions on the Temperance question do not correspond with his addresses last Movember. We, as Good Templars, should tell the candidates for Parliamentary honours that we want men who would be no party to mere pieces of sham legislation, and that we will do our utmost to return only those members who have advocated, and those who will advocate, the Temperance cause in the House of Commons—Electoral Supplement.

Redruth.

National Deaf and Dumb Teetotal Socioty.—My attention has been called to four report of a meeting of what is announced as the "Deaf and Dumb Temperance Army" held in South London on the 15th inst. I beg to remind your numerous readers that the society which I represent, namely the "National Deaf and Dumb Teetotal Society," has been established since 1877, but re-organised in 1879; has for the whole of Great Britain in such places as desire to be connected with us. We therefore claim the prior right to establish branches wherever there are assufficient number of deaf and dumb. I would also call your attention to the list of our patrons, all of whom are well known. Perhaps you yourself may remember personally addressing the first annual tea meeting of our society on January 4, 1881, in the Pilgrim Fathers' Memorial Hall, New Kentsands, S.E., whon Thomas Cask, Esp., presided, S. Bright Lucas, Esq., was then our president. We should be glad if you could find space for this note, and oblige, yours very faithfully, H. G. G. Ayshon, Screetary, 158, Hanley-road, Stroud Green, N.

"IT HOLDS THE FIELD."

By Bro, GILBERT ARCHER, G.W.C.T.

There is room for difference of opinion as to the political accuracy and significance of these now historical words, but there ought to be no hesitancy in accepting them as the statement of a simple fact when applied to the Good Templar Order. It is true of it, whether we have regard to the thoroughness and effectiveness of the mere organisation, to the number and quality of its members, or to the zeal, heartiness, and liberality with which they labour to advance the Temperance reform. Good Templars, says one, are not fanatics but philanthropists. Their principles are based upon the soundest logic, and the surest reason; and so grand is the application of these principles that none but the worfully ignorant or blindly prejudiced would seek to retard their progress. With a sphere of operations unconfined by creed, or race, or clime, it aims to redeem the world from the blighting curse of alcohol; and this mission it has prosecuted with so much aggressive fervour as to justify the assertion that amongst strictly Temperance organisations the world round, the Independent Order of Good Templars "holds the field." Correborations of this truth abounds. It was illustrated and emphassised at the latest sessions of the International Court held in Nova Scotia and in Sweden, and still later at the 17th annual session of the Grand Ledge of England, from which I have just returned. Within the latter jurisdiction the Order works alongside of and in harmony with many older and richer Temperance associations, but in force of individuality, in a pronounced and vigorously sustained policy, and in an undaunted attitude to the entire drink system "it holds the field." And may not a similar claim be advanced and maintained on behalf of the Order in Scotland? Since its organisation has it not successfully combined thousands of can be not successfully combined thousands of earnest men and women in a systematic attempt to reclaim the victims of intemperance, to save the young from ever becoming so, and in an unflinching crusade against a mighty confederation of evil? By an increasing, uncompromising, and organised agitation the Order has done much to awaken in the public mind a keener and fuller apprehension of the manifold evils of intemperance, and a deeper sense of responsibility in relation to it. The Order has been indeed a mighty factor in the lemperance revival of these recent years, and a prime agent in the work of indoctrinating our social, national, and religious life with the prinsocial, national, and rengious me who a platform ciples of true Temperance. From a platform simple but comprehensive it has borne its banner in the face of the nation, and persistently uttered in the face of the mation, and persistently uttered its voice in the Hearing of the people from John O'Groats to Madlenkirk. This and much more it has accomplished, at the same time imparting of its strength and life to the formation and promotion of other forms of Temperance effort, by transferring from its ranks very many who, though the control of the control of the present o nut owning its allegiance, are yet the best trained and most active workers in other sections of the Temperance army. In short, the evidence in support of our claim has been so abundant and convincing as of our claim has been so abundant and convincing as to call forth not a few warm eulogies from many outside the Order itself. Since the day the Rev. Professor Charteris declared in the Assembly of the Church of Scotland that "next to the preaching of the Gespel, the Good Templar movement has done more for the reclamation of the lapsed masses than any other agency," a host of sympathic without the converged and appeared and a statement and added the call of the call of the converged and appeared and a statement and added the call of the call thetic witnesses have expressed approval and admiration of the work of the Order; while they who know it best, love it and commend it who know it best, love it and commend it most. Principal Cairns has expressed thankfulness most. Principal Cairns has expressed thanktulness "that he had been so long outside the drink system, and that more recently in becoming a Good Templar he had gone as far as possible against it, hearing the strongest protest that is offered in any organisation." The Rev. Dr. F. Ferguson, Glasgow, calls it a noble Order, and tells its adherents to "be assured that the approving and the control of the control ing smile of Christ rests on Good Templarism, and that as He has blessed it hitherto He will bless it in years to come." The Rev. John Duncan, Aberdeen, emphatically declares that "the Good Templar Order, through its various forms, to my mind, approaches the very perfection of human ingenuity for the rescuing of men who have yielded to the power of drink." I have no space to quote similar honourable testimonies from other honoured witnesses. Brethren, surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, wth a record of triumphs behind us, a mighty moral and political force within us, and a hopeful future in front of us, what manner of men ought we to be: Great and our responsibilities. Others are watching us, and we have pledged ourselves to work for the are hundreds of neighbourhoods where a Lodge of Good Templars would not only meet a want felt by the Temperance sentiment, but would also meet a social need of that locality. The principles of our Order, its excellent and economical system, its beautiful and religious services, the union of male and female on terms of equality, its adaptation to Temperance work, its example and education to the young, its protecting, sympathising, and elevating influence, thrown around the poor victim of the drink, commend it to many communities who need just such a place, and just such influences." With a due sense of the impor-tance and dignity of our work, with a still firmer grasp of our principles, and an unabated love for our Order, let us so determine and so act as that as it has been in the past so it shall continue to be in the time coming our pride and boast that the Independent Order of Good Templars shall "hold the field."—The Good Templar.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

JUNE 22,-THE SHOP HOURS' BILL.

On the House going into Committee on this bill,
The Earl of LINERICK moved an amendment to Clause 8, to the effect that young persons engaged in refreshment and licensed houses should be exempt from the provisions of the bill. He had been intormed that if his amendment were not accepted it would be impossible to work the large hotels and refreshment houses.

The Dishop of Truro hoped the House would retain within the provisions of the bill young persons in public-houses.

Their lordships then divided ;-

Majority 15
The clause, therefore, remained unaltered.
Lord Stoelers, in reply to Lord Halsbury, said the clause would apply to persons under 18 employed in refreshment-rooms at railway stations.

The bill then passed through Committee.

JUNE 22.—SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS TO

JUNE 22.—SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS TO CHILDREN. Lord Fivzgerald, in moving the second reading of Lord FITEGERALD, in moving the second reading of the Intoxicating Liquors (Sale to Children) Bill, explained that the object of the measure was to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to children under 13 years of age for their own consumption. In the course of some conversation,

The Marquis of Saliseury said that, although the measure was an extraordinary one, it was not worthy of serious opposition, because he did not suppose that anyone would pay any attentin to it, if it were passed, He remembered that when he was a boy he used to row up to Surley and when there partake of a glass of cider, but under the present extraordinary legislation that would bring him within the law. (Laugh ter.)

JUNE 23.

The House went into committee on this bill.

The Earl of Millitown, on Clause 1, moved an amen I ment to omit the words "sell or supply, and substitute the word "sell."

The Marquis of Salisbury, while thinking that such a measure would not increase admiration for their legislation, said the amendment of the noble earl would help to remove objections to the bill.

The Bishop of Peterrocucian was of the opinion that the bill went too far. It entered that everywidening region of paternal legislation that of enforcing morality by means of legal penalties. Ho believed the circumstances were much rarcr than people supposed in which the State might safely interfore in enforcing morality, and he much feared that reaction would follow such ciforts. Many of the evils of modern times had arisen from one of two causes—either the State that the state of the Church, or the Church attempting to do the work of the Church, or the Church attempting to do the work of the State. He believed that in this measure they were getting into the direction of the State doing too much of the work of the Church. He did not believe that this legislation would ultimately be in the interests of Tenoperance.

Lord ABERDARE pointed out that the principle had been well laid down that Parliament felt it a duty to interfere in the sale of intoxicants. It could not be denied that in towns there was a danger of young children going into public-houses.

Viscount Cranbrook said the clause was so vague that the owner of a public-house had no means of knowing whether the child entered the house to purchase liquor for its own consumption or otherwise.

The Lord CHANCELLOR considered that the bill would only apply to cases where children consumed the liquor on the premites. He did not oppose the amendment.

The Duke of Argyll thought that the bill as it stood would be of very little use.

The amendment was then agreed to.

After one or two verbal amendments had been agreed to, the Bill passed through committee. The standing orders were then dispensed with, and the bill, as amended, was considered and read a third time.

OF THIS COUNTRY

IS

INDIGESTION.

Modern Cooking and Modern Living have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit or the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a Giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and highly coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness.

All these symptoms are in turn present. population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Seigel's Syrup changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvellous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favour of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of Indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.

It is thought that nearly one-half of our
